President Says Aides Devoted to Duties

JOHNSON LAUDS WORK OF JENKINS AND BAKER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson said Saturday that the morals arrest of Walter W. Jenkins was "a very unfortunate and unpleasant and distressing situation that probably resulted from intense overwork."

Johnson spoke up in behalf of Jenkins, his close friend and former White House aide as well as for Robert G. (Bobby) Baker in a political television broadcast paid for by the Democratic National Committee.

"I was as shocked as if someone had told me that my wife had murdered her daughter," Johnson said of his reaction to the news that Jenkins had been arrested.

Jenkins resigned Oct. 14 after public disclosure that he had been arrested in the Washington YMCA men's room on a disorderly (indecent gestures) charge Oct. 7, and on a "pervert" charge in 1959.

Scandal in the administration has been one of the main campaign charges of the Republicans this year.

The President said Jenkins had worked for the government since 1938, and added:

"I have never known a better man, a more diligent worker, a more competent and faithful person. When I heard the story the other night in New York . . . I had a chance to converse with staff members familiar with the situation within the hour.

"I did the only thing I knew to do — that was to ask for his resignation. It was promptly supplied and I asked the FBI to make a thorough investigation to be sure that no security had been violated.

"They tell me that in their opinion, they have been unable to find that any security has been compromised.

"It seems to be a very

$52,000 TO CATS CAME TOO LATE

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Viola Hunt was a frugal little lady who lived quietly in a two-room bungalow here.

Her only worldly interest was the great love she had for unwanted cats and dogs.

When Mrs. Hunt, who was 89, died Oct. 9 authorities found she was caring for about 25 cats. The Humane Society found homes for all but five of those cats. The five remaining were the personal pets of Mrs. Hunt.

Friday the trust officer of a local bank revealed that Mrs. Hunt left an estate of over $52,000 in trust for cats, dogs and other animals, including her own felines.

But the announcement of Mrs. Hunt's bequest came too late to save the five cats she had cherished. The Humane Society board of directors voted to "put them to sleep" 10 days after Mrs. Hunt died.

Say Jenkins Probed Plea of AF Officer

Woman Accused Man of Obscene Telephone Calls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former presidential confidant Walter W. Jenkins made a routine investigation of an ex-Air Force officer's plea to have his commission restored after it had been revoked on charges he made obscene telephone calls to a woman, government sources said today.

Jenkins dropped the case after Air Force officials verified the evidence against the man and opposed recommissioning him.

According to these sources, Jenkins investigated the case in 1961 when the demoted officer contacted the office of the then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

* * * *

THE MAN'S name and rank were not revealed. But it is known that he was permitted to remain in the service as an enlisted man.

As Johnson's aide, the sources said, Jenkins made a routine investigation. Jenkins resigned from the presidential staff last week after it was revealed that he had been arrested twice on morals charges, once in 1959 and again last Oct. 7.

According to the sources, the officer was broken by the Air Force after a complaint by the wife of an enlisted man.

Government sources said the former officer is now retired. They said his plight had received attention from various sources other than Jenkins because he had flown 150 missions in World War II and Korea and was a

Barry Invades Texas, Blasts Demo Leaders

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater made a campaign swing through Lyndon B. Johnson's home state Saturday and attacked the President as a man who seeks "more and more power" over the lives of Americans—"more and more without end."

It was the fifth campaign swing through Texas for the Republican presidential nominee. He plans one more trip here before the Nov. 3 election.

Goldwater has said Texas is one of four key states which will decide the election. The others are California, Ohio and Illinois.

* * * *

AFTER SPENDING FRIDAY whistle-stopping in California, the Arizona senator flew from San Diego to Austin, beginning his Texas vote-chasing in Johnson's home area.

Speaking to a crowd that exceeded the 3,700 capacity of the Austin Municipal Auditorium, Goldwater shifted his fire to Johnson's running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, describing Humphrey as an "officer and founder" of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA). He said the ADA wants to do away with all loyalty oaths.

"It's never hurt me and it's never hurt you," Goldwater said.

* * * *

"I SEE NOTHING WRONG with stating that you will be loyal to the United States of America . . . but Hubert does, and he . . . wants to be a heartbeat away from the presidency."

Goldwater also charged Humphrey favored admission of Red China to the United Nations, and giving the U.S. stockpile to the UN.

He followed the same tack, ripping into Humphrey but almost ignoring Johnson, in Corpus Christi.

He finally got around to Johnson in a speech prepared for an early evening rally here. He talked about Johnson's "curious crew," companions like Bobby Baker, Billie Sol Estes, Matt McCloskey, "and others."

Military Units Alert for New Coup Attempts

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — An old revolutionary and the mayor of Saigon Saturday night were reported named to head a new government as Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh laid aside the public trappings of power as premier.

Khanh made his farewells as premier to the diplomatic corps, government officials and correspondents at a reception. But the man who took over in South Viet Nam in a bloodless coup Jan. 30 is expected to remain the real power as commander of the armed forces.

Pahn Khac Suu, an ailing revolutionary imprisoned for eight years by President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime, was elected the new chief of state, informed sources said.

* * * *

THE High National Council, appointed two months ago by Khanh to set up a new government, met in urgent session Saturday night to pick leaders to replace the Khanh government.

Reliable informants said the council, which earlier had favored Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, current chief of state, decided on Suu at the last minute. Minh was popular because he overthrew Diem's regime last November.

Minh was reported reluctant to resign from the army to take the new post. But in any case, it was not clear whether Suu would accept the job. Suu has been weak and in poor health since he was released from a penal colony last February.

No official announcement as to the naming of a new chief of state appeared likely until today or Monday.

It also was reported that

L.B.-Area Boy Dies in Crash

A Bellflower youth was killed and another was injured Saturday when their car hit a center-divider rail and crashed six miles north of Oceanside on U.S. 101's notorious "Slaughter Alley."

Lawrence Baird, 18, of 10265 Van Ruiten Drive, the driver, was killed. His passenger, Rodney Carl Springs, 17, of 9247 Mandell St., suffered minor injuries.

* * * *

CALIFORNIA Highway Patrolmen said the youths were northbound returning from Tijuana.

"Slaughter Alley," where a church-bus crash killed seven in September, is a heavily traveled 15-mile stretch of four-lane highway, into which freeway traffic funnels between San Clemente on the north and Oceanside on the south.

Its fatality rate is said to exceed that of any similar length of road in California.

'KNOWLEDGEABLE, APPRECIATIVE'

Girl Rioters Show They're Not Squares, Prof. Says

By TERRY KOUNS

A screaming, hysterical riot by 5,000 teen-age girls at a Long Beach Arena rock 'n' roll concert was a way for the girls to show themselves "knowledgeable, interested, enthusiastic, and appreciative," a local psychologist said Saturday.

Dr. Roy K. Heintz, associate professor of psychology at Cal State, Long Beach, was asked to comment on the pandemonium Friday night which ensued as the girls temporarily lost their reason when confronted by the Pacemakers and Billy Jay Kramer.

Police officers said the girls, aged mainly 13 to 15, were storming the stage, rushing dressing rooms and charging down the aisles in order to reach their idols.

This kind of conduct, said Dr. Heintz, is "a kind of expressive behavior which has become an accepted and even expected action upon the part of girls in that age group."

Police said the girls' collective control broke loose when one of the performers took off his jacket and tie and beckoned for the girls to come and get them. The girls thereupon tore his coat to ribbons, fought in the aisles, and kicked each other, threw their belongings on the stage, and generally climbed all over the Arena.

Such behavior, Dr. Heintz said, showed "a feeling upon the part of the girls that these boys are of fine character and quality."

The girls rushed the stage, clutched ecstatically at the entertainers and tried to kiss their hands. At least 100 of them mobbed the stage, preventing the show from continuing.

"A girl who would fail to do this," asserted the psychologist, "would be looked upon by other girls as lacking in discernment and appreciation. She'd be sort of out of it."

* * * *

ONLY ONE casualty was reported: a girl suffered minor injuries when someone walked on her. The show was something of a casualty also, however, since no one could hear it above the screams.

Friday night's enthusiasm was not without historical precedent, said Dr. Heintz. "In the early history of this country," he explained, "there were some manifestations like this in connection with the Salem witch trials."

Murphy Fears U.S. Disarming

By BOB HOUSER

George Murphy, Republican nominee for U.S. Senate, repeated his antiadministration broadside here Saturday night, charging high-level decision-making "from fear, accommodation and appeasement" and stating his belief that "we are generally being unilaterally disarmed."

Speaking at the "Wings Over the World" Mayor's Banquet in Edgewater Inn Murphy attacked the theory of disarmament by example to the Russians when there has been no change in their goal of world domination.

"The contest is on," he said, "Sooner or later we must take a firm position, explain that we will oppose them, then do it properly and the problem will disappear—but not by disarmament."

We have a choice in Viet Nam, Murphy said, "win, retreat ungracefully or get out. We must win. Those who are there can, should and will win if we give them the proper backing and the implements."

Our image suffers abroad, he told the Junior Chamber of Commerce fete, NATO is crumbling and "they say in the Far East we're a paper tiger." He said America's image-rebuilding is as simple as Cinerama and Cyclorama, highly successful ventures which, when used at fairs

LBJ Raps Barry on Defense Votes

By ALVIN SPIVAK

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Thousands roared their approval Saturday night as President Johnson denounced Sen. Barry M. Goldwater for voting cuts in national-defense spending.

Johnson arrived in this old city by helicopter, stopped repeatedly to shake hands along a jammed motorcade route and won a strong endorsement from the city's Republican mayor —Theodore F. McKeldin.

It was an intense climax to a day of cheering crowds and stumping which took the chief executive to Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Before 10,000 screaming supporters in the Fifth Regiment Armory, the President attacked Goldwater's voting record on defense issues.

* * * *

BUT THE high point of his visit here was a 25-block motorcade from Patterson Park. Estimates of the crowd along the way ranged between 75,000 and 250,000, all of them howling their support of the Democratic candidate.

It was marred briefly at the beginning when someone tossed two eggs. But they struck two photographers near Johnson, who did not seem to notice the incident.

In an open Secret Service convertible Johnson stopped to tell the crowds to vote for him and Democratic state officials accompanying the presidential party.

* * * *

JOHNSON was greeted and endorsed at the armory by McKeldin, a former governor of Maryland and keynoter of the 1952 GOP convention. In supporting

Ex-Athlete Held as Child Attacker

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police Saturday arrested a former athlete on suspicion of criminally assaulting a 12-year-old girl in a church where she was lured under the belief that her assailant was a priest.

Officers said Elwood Leroy Leuschner, 32, was booked on suspicion of crimes against a child. Leuschner was listed by police as a former minor-league baseball player at Bridgeport, Conn., under the name of Bobby Pennec.

L.A.C. Says:

Two Men and Many Issues

The charges of widespread corruption in the federal government are not justified in my opinion. But such charges have been inevitable with the disclosure of how the President and some of his close associates have grown rich while in public office—from enterprises dealing with the offices they held. These are factors that justify a careful analysis of the integrity of the two Presidential candidates. And it is a challenge to the voters as to whether they will give a vote of approval to such activities.

The tragic term "doubtful integrity" is applied to the President. The Jenkins case has shaken the people's confidence in the judgment of the President. It is hard to believe the close association of over 20 years with a man twice arrested and charged with perversion could have left Mr. Johnson ignorant of the "illness" of this trusted associate in whom he allowed security information to be entrusted. If it was ignorance it is evidence of a lack of proper checking of his associates—or it is a cynicism equal to that shown in his silence on Billie Sol Estes, Bobby Baker and the TV monopoly which is possible only by decisions of a government agency over which he has control.

It is also largely based on the past voting record of Congressman and Senator Johnson on civil rights measures before he became a candidate for President and used civil rights as a major issue. In 1948 at a Democratic rally he stated "this civil rights program is a farce and sham—an effort to set up a police state in the guise of liberty." In May of 1948 at Austin, Texas he said: "I am against the FEPC because if a man can tell you whom you must hire, he can tell you whom you can't employ." Again in 1956 at the National Convention he said: "I am not now and never have been an advocate of civil rights. I don't think I ever will be."

These are some of the reasons why many people question the integrity of Mr. Johnson. They are also concerned over his forcing through a tax cut when at the same time adding on to the federal debt while charging his opponent with irresponsibility in calling for greater fiscal responsibility by the government.

As to the criticism of Mr. Goldwater, he voted against the civil rights law this year even though he knew it would be a strong weapon against him. But he stated he did so because he questioned the constitutionality of the public accommodation section. He has been charged with being "trigger happy" because he insists our commander in Europe should have authority to use tactical nuclear weapons in case of attack by an enemy. It is apparent now that such authority is being given to the NATO commander—because it is the only way to defend the world during the few minutes between the launching of an enemy attack and retaliation. Such sure retaliation is the surest safeguard against such at attack.

Goldwater is accused of being opposed to social security, but his record shows he has voted for every social security pension program since he became a senator. But he insists it should be based on a sound financial basis so the retired people can be assured they will get what is promised them.

Over and over he is charged with advocating use of nuclear weapons in Viet Nam. What he actually said was "Some people think we should use the atom bomb to defoliate the jungle—but I doubt we will ever do so." But all we hear is that he is trigger-happy and wants to use the bomb.

There are many issues on which I disagree with the senator. But I consider him a thoroughly honest man and one whose judgment I would trust in a crisis. He speaks his mind and votes as he believes is right. No one has spoken more harshly in denouncing the leader of the Birch Society. He is dedicated to the principle that a nation, like an individual, is certain to end in bankruptcy if it continues to live on deficit spending. In my opinion we need him if we are to escape the irresponsibility and misuse of power so many people are willing to accept as political expediency.—L.A.C.

Wilson Eyes Annual Meet at Summit

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Laborite Prime Minister Harold Wilson wants to hold annual summit talks on East-West relations, government surces said Saturday.

Wilson, a strong advocate of direct top-level diplomacy, envisages the United Nations as the forum for his projected summitry.

Heads of government, including above all the United Slated, Britain and the Soviet Union, and possibly other leaders would meet under this scheme at least once a year either at the United Nations General Assembly or at some other agreed occasion in the United Nations.

WILSON was expected to discuss the plan when he meets the U.S. President after the Nov. 3 election in Washington.

Additional summit meetings could be arranged if and when required.

Wilson apparently holds that major policy decisions require the presence of heads of government in the light of changed processes of world diplomacy.

Preparatory work would be conducted, as before, through traditional diplomatic channels.

Britain may take the initiative for an early East-West summit early in the new year.

SUCH a summit would provide the first opportunity for Western leaders to assess the new Kremlin leadership and to size up their policy designs.

Despite Kremlin assurances that Moscow's foreign policy will continue unchanged, there remains considerable uncertainty in the West as to future developments.

British preference for the United Nations as a meeting place stems from the Labor government's plan to strengthen its cooperation with the world organization.

INFORMANTS said earlier the council had been expected to name Interior Minister Nguyen Luu Vien as the new premier. He is a cousin of Khanh.

Khanh did not formally resign as he held his farewell reception, but in a brief speech left little doubt of his resignation, saying: "I count on all of you to continue to carry out our mission to rid our beloved fatherland of Communists."

As Khanh spoke, the army announced that three generals and five colonels had been drummed out of the army for trying to overthrow him Sept. 13.

By stepping down from the premiership as he promised two months ago, Khanh left an administrative vacuum in Saigon in which almost anything could happen.

MILITARY intelligence agencies are alert for new coup attempts, and there have been reports of troop movements that could be aimed at heading off a coup.

For the moment, South Viet Nam was without a government, and cabinet ministers themselves said Saturday night they did not know who the government was or where orders would be coming from.

There was a sense of great pessimism and impending danger expressed by men who have led the outgoing Khanh government. At the least, a new period of political upheaval appeared to be beginning.

Several ministers of the Khanh government told the Associated Press they feared that the coming weeks and months would bring a new crisis of instability and uncertainty in the war-torn nation.

"ABOUT the best we can hope for at this point," one of them said, "is that somehow Viet Nam will survive the terrible days ahead."

U.S., Russia to Exchange Satellites' Weather Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson Saturday announced the United States and the Soviet Union had reached agreement on exchange of weather information collected by orbiting satellites.

A direct communications link between Washington and Moscow will be used.

Johnson said in a statement that formal terms of the pact are expected to be released at a New York meeting next week of the United Nations committee on peaceful uses of outer space. He called it "a good step forward" in building a world weather system.

THE PROJECT grew out of a speech by the late President John F. Kennedy to the United Nations Sept. 25, 1961. Johnson reiterated his support for it in a speech last June at Holy Cross College.

The President said "the agreement provides for exchange on a reciprocal basis of weather information gathered by satellites. For a short initial period conventional data will be exchanged."

He said it was hoped that other nations belonging to the World Meteorological Organization would eventually participate. He added that he expected to announce soon the opening of a world weather center here.

The World Meteorological Organization has chosen Washington and Moscow to be two world weather centers.

THE PRESIDENT said test transmissions already have been exchanged. He said the new communications link would speed up transmission in both directions.

"The American weather man and the American public will immediately benefit from these improvements," he said.

The White House also made public a letter in which Johnson instructed Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges to take any necessary action to bring federal agencies into the world weather system.

Clear Son in Death of Father

Funeral service for Robert Hope Usher, 40, of Costa Mesa, will be held Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Brown Colonial Mortuary, Santa Ana. Usher, a service station manager, was first thought to have been killed by a blow from his son Friday night.

A coroner's autopsy, however, revealed that the blow dealt during an argument with Robert Earl Usher, 16, did not result in death. The reported cause was a cerebral hemorrhage.

AN ARGUMENT ensued when the elder Usher wanted to accompany the family to the store Friday night. He was told to remain home and the son hit him during a dispute, officers said.

Although never accused of murder, young Usher was held on an open charge at Orange County Juvenile Hall until the coroner's report was filed.

Other surviving members of the family, who live at 1935 Pomona Ave., are the wife, Mary Frances; a son, Tony, and daughter, Mary.

LITTLE LINDBERGH?

Richard Lowman, 9, of 3481 Knoxville Ave., tries out the controls of a giant C135 tanker plane at the Wings Over Long Beach display Saturday at the city's airport.

Salinger Talking at Wings Fete

A major address by U.S. Sen. Pierre Salinger and a display of America's aerospace might are among highlights of today's program at the Long Beach Jaycees' "Wings Over the World" show at Long Beach Airport.

DISPLAYS giving air-show viewers a capsule look at the development of the nation's air arm since World War II include a half-scale Apollo vehicle, rockets and a variety of historical and unusual aircraft. The world's largest cargo plane, a converted Boeing airliner, also will be available to inspection.

OTHER aircraft on display starting at 1 p.m. will be a DC8, a World War II P51, Japanese Zero, B12, KC135 tanker, B57, T38, F104, F106, T6 and helicopters.

Airline stewardesses will provide a background of beauty. Joan Merriam Smith, Long Beach aviatrix who recently circled the globe, will be on hand to offer air rides in her Apache.

Admission is free at the two-day spectacular, now in its 25th year.

Herbert Hoover Finds Rest Today Near Iowa Birthplace

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert C. Hoover goes home today.

The body of the 31st president is to be flown to Iowa, to rest in the little town of West Branch, on a grassy knoll overlooking the two-room cottage where he was born.

From the Capitol rotunda, where he has lain in state for a day and a half, the Flag-draped casket is to be carried at 9:30 a.m. EST.

The U.S. Navy band will sound ruffles and flourishes, play "Hail to the Chief" and the hymn "Abide With Me; Fast Falls the Eventide."

WHILE A 21-gun salute sounds on the autumn air, a hearse will carry the body across the Potomac to the military terminal of Washington National Airport. There the Air Force band will sound softly the strains of the hymn "Now the Day Is Over."

Then four military planes, one bearing the body, the others family and friends, will depart for Cedar Rapids Airport. In one of them will be Sen. Barry Goldwater, candidate for the presidency that Hoover won and then lost in the long ago.

Arriving at Cedar Rapids about 2:55 p.m. EST, the funeral party will take a 42-minute motor journey to West Branch. Included in the graveside service will be the playing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," one of Hoover's favorites.

No exact count was kept of the mourners who passed the bier in the Capitol rotunda since it was opened to the public at about 3 p.m. Friday, but an estimate by military authorities was between 20,000 and 25,000.

Hoover's son, Herbert Hoover Jr., issued a statement expressing "appreciation for the honors that have been paid to my father in Washington by the government and the people of the United States and foreign countries."

A 10-MINUTE ceremony with the Iowa National Guard band playing ruffles and flourishes, "Hail to the Chief" and a hymn requested by the family, "Fight the Good Fight," will be held at the Cedar Rapids Airport after Hoover's body arrives there.

Dr. Elton Trueblood, 63, of Earlham College in Indiana, the Quaker scholar who will conduct graveside rites at West Bench, will offer a prayer, an Army bugler will play "Taps," and the Flag draping the coffin will be presented to Herbert Hoover Jr., the elder of the former president's two sons.

Nikita Planned Farm Shakeup---Too Late

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev was planning yet another reorganization of Russia's flagging agriculture, but was thwarted by the ruling Communist Party presidium, informed sources said Saturday.

The sources said the former premier's farm management was held partly responsible for last year's disastrous harvest and appeared to be the straw that broke the camel's back, leading to his downfall.

THE disclosures came as west European Communist leaders converged on Moscow for a fuller explanation of Khruschchev's abrupt ouster and his political disgrace. There also were these major developments:

—The Hungarian Communist Party announced its full acceptance of the removal of Khrushchev from power, and pledged full support to the new Russian leadership.

It was the first unqualified formal acceptance by a European Communist Party of the manner in which the Soviet leadership change took place.

—Western officials in Berlin were speculating that East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht might already be in Moscow to discuss the change in Soviet leadership. They said he had not been seen in public since Oct. 12.

—Albania Communist leader Spiro Koleka called the Khrushchev ouster a "great victory."

—Informed sources in Helsinki said veteran party leader Ville Pessi may be on his way out for joining in the attack on Khrushchev and for the party's poor showing in the municipal elections.

Pravda Repeats Russ Refusal to Pay U.N. Costs

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda Saturday marked the 19th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations charter by repeating Russian refusals to pay for U. N. peacekeeping operations.

But the Communist Party mouthpiece did not repeat earlier Soviet threats to pull out of the United Nations.

In a brief mention of Peking, the article repeated Soviet charges that "the ruling circles of the United States are preventing the People's Republic of China from taking her lawful seat in the organization."

Among the flaws, the article mentioned the peacekeeping operations in The Congo and the Middle East which the Soviet Union considers illegal.

Gas Bill Advertising Presents Possibilities

By GEORGE ERES

The mailman's arrival with the next bimonthly bill from the city Gas, Water & Trash Department is eagerly being awaited to see if some alert young executive and City Hall has recognized the potentialities of what started with the last billing.

You will recall, in opening your last gas bill, a gaily printed color slip calling attention to increased flights by one of our airlines from Long Beach Municipal Airport.

OVER A PERIOD of time, various causes get a boost through the department bill mailings — concerts and civic affairs. These announcements add a little touch of warmth to the big coolness of the bill and make you feel that you are not forgotten in this big city.

However, the airline advertisement added a new dimension and shows what an advertising man can do if he puts his mind to the matter.

The ad man has always had this problem with direct mail advertising. Most people can immediately smell out the regular mail or bills. They automatically dispose of the circulars, and letters not worth finishing. The ad man's problem has been how to get the public to, at least, open his mail.

So, whoever, got the airline advertisement into the gas bill envelope has scored another point. Good man, puffmaster!

Is City Hall aware of all the angles here?

Working on the assumtpion that the airline paid for the advertisement and possibly some of the cost of mailing—there is a gold mine here that the city hasn't even begun to dig.

The city could put out to bid the concession of advertising through gas bill mail.

THIS THING could get so big that the department might even have to go back to monthly instead of bi-monthly billing to handle the scheduled advertising.

There may be a few squawks from some guys who would rather fight than accept force-fed advertising. They can switch to all electric houses. We'll still get 'em with the water bill.

Anyway, the city ought to run the idea through the water and gas pipes and see how it flows.

Clear Woman of Direct Part in Trunk Murder

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Police Saturday cleared pretty Naval reservist Alice Ewing, 23, of any direct part in the murder of a nurse whose body was stuffed into a trunk and shipped to Cleveland.

"She is not attempting any deception in her statements to Cincinnati police," in the death of Wanda Cook, said Det. Chief Col. Henry Sandman after Miss Ewing took a lie detector test.

Miss Ewing was charged with shipping the body to Cleveland and not reporting its presence to the coroner. This is a misdemeanor and she was freed on $500 bond. Her case was continued to Nov. 7 by Police Court Judge William F. Keating at the request of her lawyer, Daniel Davies of Newport, Ky.

The other principal in the case, Miss Ewing's financee, Robert Ray Abbott, 21, Dayton, Ky., was held in Newport, Ky., on a first degree murder warrant issued by Cincinnati authorities. He refused to waive extradition and authorities here are taking steps to have him brought here for trial.

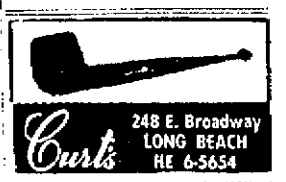

Shortly before Miss Ewing took the lie detector test, Abbot, in an interview in Newport jail said he and his fiancee bought the pistol used in the killing two weeks ago. He said Miss Ewing frequently drove alone at night after leaving him at his home and that she wanted protection.

He has accused his fiancee of killing Miss Cook in a jealous rage after learning that he and the nurse had cocktails in his room at the Sheraton-Gibson on Thursday, Oct. 15.

Girl Sky Diver Dies as Chute Opens Late

HILLSBOROUGH, N.J. (AP)—A young woman sky diver was killed Saturday when her parachute failed to open soon enough in a jump near Decker airport.

State police said Miss Sandra Rothberg, 22, and two companions, Barry Auger, 26, and Lucio Aliotti, 28, all of New York City, were practicing acrobatic stunts during a free fall from 7,500 feet.

139 Experts on Reds Say, 'Beat Barry'

NEW YORK (AP)—A group of 139 scholars specializing in communism, Russia and China issued a statement Saturday calling for the "decisive defeat" of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

They said the Republican candidate for president has expressed views on communism which are "unsound and potentially dangerous."

* * * *

GOLDWATER'S policies, the scholars said, would increase the chance of war, aid and comfort the most dangerous Communist elements, alienate many non-Communists, and spell the end "to the hopeful but precarious growth of diversity in the Soviet bloc."

The statement did not mention President Johnson.

THE SCHOLARS included Abram Bergson and Merle E. Fainsod of Harvard's Russian research center; Zbigniew Brzezinski, Alexander Dallin and Henry L. Roberts, of Columbia; Gerold T. Robinson, founder and first director of Columbia's Russian Institute and wartime chief of the USSR division of the Office of Strategic Services, and the chairmen or directors of area programs and Russian departments at 15 colleges and universities from coast to coast.

Proposition 14 Forum Scheduled Tuesday Nite

The flurry around Proposition 14, the housing initiative, promises some final week campaign excitement with rallies and special attention to it by political figures.

Biggest local exercise is a public forum on Prop. 14 at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Jewish Community Center, Willow Street and Grand Avenue. It is sponsored by Californians Against Prop. 14.

Clive Graham, Long Beach realtor and newly appointed chairman of the California Fair Employment Practice Commission, will chair the panel: Rev. William C. Cole, president, Long Beach Ministerial Union, and Myron Blumberg, CAP 14's Long Beach chairman.

* * * *

GRAHAM was 1958 president of the California Real Estate Association, the group sponsoring the initiative which he opposes.

The initiative would nullify state laws against discrimination in housings rentals and sales, would prohibit legislative bodies from acting in this field and would give property owners absolute discretion in sale, rental or lease of their real property.

The public is invited and may ask questions of panelists.

Meanwhile, John T. Webster, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, announced that the first persons who can prove that the proposed constitutional amendment will be "forever frozen into our state constitution" will be paid a $5,000 cash award, citing this claim as a misrepresentation by opponents of Prop. 14.

CLIVE GRAHAM
Will Head Panel

* * * *

STATE Sen. Thomas M. Rees, noting that this offer is statewide, accused the committee for Yes on Prop. 14 of "perpetrating a cheap political trick . . . to prove its own deceitful propaganda."

Rees said the award is a hoax to cover up the real intent of the proposition, which he suggested is to "legalize discrimination in housing, forbid the legislature, cities, counties and courts from taking action against such discrimination unless another constitutional amendment is passed and undermining the 115-year-old section of the state constitution guaranteeing all citizens the right to acquire property."

In another development, U. S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., came out strongly against Prop. 14 Saturday as a measure which "would mock the American Constitution and the American conscience." Kuchel said he feared the proposition also would endanger maximum participation by Californians in the benefits of federal housing and financing laws.

* * * *

LOCALLY, Willard Hastings, Democratic candidate for Assembly in the East Long Beach-Signal Hill 39th District, said at a Saturday night Democratic rally that only two cases of housing descrimination in Long Beach were reported in the first year of operation of the state's new fair housing act, one of which was withdrawn, the other settled by conciliation.

The Committee for a Yes vote on Prop. 14 and the Bellflower District Board of Realtors will hold an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Simms Park Gym, 16614 S. Clark Ave., Bellflower. William K. Shearer, publisher of the California Statesman, will speak.

BARRY FUND-RAISER

Citizens for Goldwater-Miller will sponsor a $10-a-plate fund-rainsing dinner at 7 p.m. Monday in the Hacienda Restaurant, 301 S. Western Ave., San Pedro.

A coffee hour for Reg Dupuy, Republican candidate for Assembly in the West Long Beach-Lakewood 44th District, will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the residence of Mrs. Michael Leffler, 6558 Dashwood St., Lakewood. Mrs. Bob McCracken will be cohostess. District residents are invited.

Vote Shift Predicted by Nixon

FARGO, N.D. (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon flew into North Dakota Saturday on a whirlwind campaign swing for Sen. Barry Goldwater and predicted a "big shift of votes" during the coming week.

The former Republican vice president said the presidential is harder to predict than any during recent years. The campaign between Republican presidential nominee Goldwater and President Johnson, he said, "has been pretty rough."

But he said he felt domestic and international events of the "past few days" have switched the campaign from personalities to issues.

Nixon made his comments at a news conference on his arrival at Fargo.

Signal Hill Driver Shot at Crossing

A 29-year-old Signal Hill man was shot through the chest late Saturday as he and several companions stopped for a traffic signal at the corner of Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue.

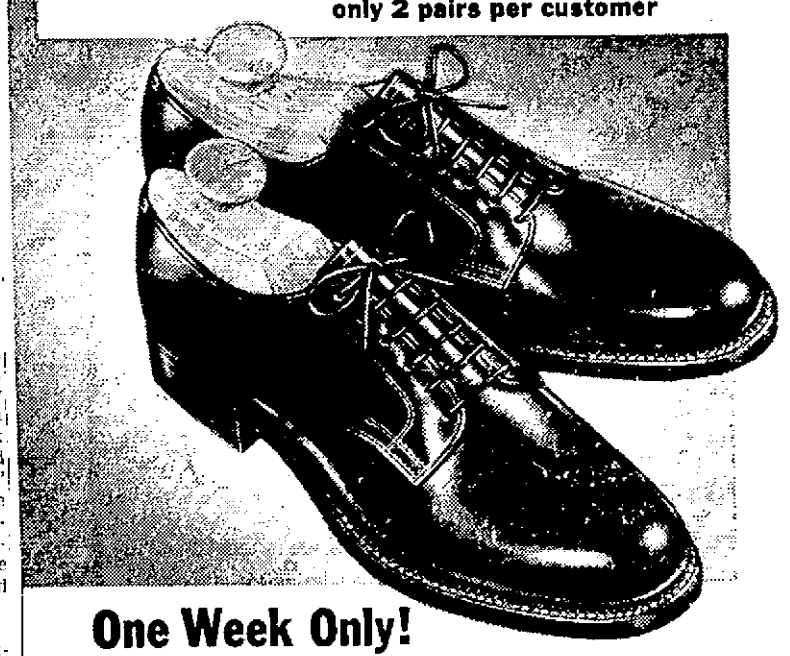

In serious condition in Memorial Hospital was Delbert Wayne Rowell, of 1958 Cherry Ave. The slug, which police believe was a .38 caliber, passed through Rowell's right chest and lodged near his spine.

Officers Rod Mickelson and Robert Hall said Rowell stopped for the signal shortly before 9 p.m. He and his companions are believed to have exchanged words with two men in the crosswalk.

Suddenly, witnesses told officers, one of the men whirled, drew a gun, and shot Rowell from a distance of about 10 feet. The two then fled north on foot on California Avenue.

Involvement of FBI in Politics Alarming Angle of Jenkins Case

By FREDERIC W. COLLINS
I, P-T Washington Bureau.

WASHINGTON — One of the more disturbing aspects of the Walter Jenkins affair is the new evidence it has provided that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is being brought — whether or not against its will — into politics.

This city is full of credible stories about President Johnson's obsessive interest in FBI reports on individuals, in and out of public life, whose activities engage Mr. Johnson's attention.

Now, in the stretch drive of a presidential election campaign, the FBI has been called upon by Mr. Johnson to make a report on any security aspects in the case of Mr. Jenkins, a close Johnson assistant whose arrest twice on morals charges brought into the campaign the issue of how the White House safeguards national security information.

* * * *

AND ON THE basis of an investigation lasting barely more than a week, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has said no information was obtained that Jenkins had "compromised the security or interests of the United States in any manner."

Assuming, as everyone is inclined to, that this is the absolute truth, the question still remains what reliance can be placed on an FBI report carried out in such a short time, at such a time, and with the intent from the beginning that it should be made public. (According to UPI, Mr. Hoover sent flowers to Jenkins in the hospital, with instruction that his card show up plainly).

Why should Mr. Johnson have ordered the FBI report with the intent of making it public?

* * * *

WHAT HUMAN being would expect Mr. Hoover, under the circumstances, to have come in with a report — for the public, 12 days before the election — that Mr. Jenkins had indeed compromised the national security or interests, if that had been the case.

And another inescapable question: If the election prospects did not seem so certainly to be in Mr. Johnson's favor, or seemed certainly to favor Barry Goldwater, what then would human nature expect Mr. Hoover to do?

Actually, a finding that Mr. Jenkins did not compromise the national security is almost completely irrelevant to the real issue, which is not Mr. Jenkins guardianship of national security information, but Mr. Johnson's.

Unfortunately, and tragically, the behavior of which Mr. Jenkins was accused is of a sort which bitter experience in many governments has demonstrated can lead to extortion of secrets by blackmail.

* * * *

LET IT BE assumed that Jenkins, as he says, would lay down his life before revealing any such information. Matters are not supposed to be permitted to reach such a critical stage. Every time a deviate is kicked out of a British ministry, there is an uproar in this country about the sieve-like nature of British security procedures.

Which leads to another point. For whatever reason, the fact remains that the FBI did not follow through on Mr. Jenkins after it connected him up with the 1959 arrest. Is it to be supposed that Mr. Hoover, already under criticism from the Warren Commission, would be eager to come in with a report saying that a security lapse had in fact been a consequence of its failure to follow through on the first Jenkins case?

MR. JOHNSON personally went out of his way to offer reporters confidential information on Don Reynolds, the insurance man who, in the Bobby Baker case, asserted that Jenkins had sold him some unwanted advertising time on the Johnson TV station in reciprocity for Johnson's purchase of a life-insurance policy.

Mr. Johnson appears to have had an FBI report on at least one Republican convention speaker, a member of Congress, who was inveighing against "immorality in Washington" on convention TV.

He is said to use FBI reports for bedside reading the way Eisenhower read westerns.

The idea that Mr. Johnson regards the FBI as his personal agency for investigation and surveillance is not to be taken lightly.

much-decorated military man.

After his demotion, they added, he won further decorations and was promoted to master sergeant before leaving the service.

* * * *

THE WOMAN told Air Force officials in 1959 that the officer had been making indecent proposals to her over the telephone.

Acting under instructions, the woman set a trap for the officer who was arrested. He was subsequently allowed to resign his commission, but permitted to retain an enlisted man's rating.

The sources said that in his attempts to regain his commission the former officer contacted as many as 20 other officials on Capitol Hill. He was identified as a native of Texas which apparently explained why he included Johnson's office in his pleas, the sources said. It is not unusual for constituents to get their senators or representatives to aid them in pleading cases with the government.

Dean Burch, Republican national chairman, issued a statement Saturday asking the White House why the FBI report on Jenkins did not mention the Air Force officer. But the sources said it was apparent that the incident was included in the FBI report.

* * * *

IN ITS report Thursday on Jenkins' arrests, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said an eight-day investigation of his background showed that Jenkins had "limited association with some individuals who are alleged to be or who admittedly are, sex deviates." But the report stressed that there was no evidence that he had "ever engaged in improper acts with them."

The report also said that there was no indciation that Jenkins "has compromised the security or interest of the United States in any manner."

Asked specifically whether it had investigated Jenkins' handling of the officers' case, the FBI said it had "no comment."

A spokesan denied earlier reports that it had confirmed a newspaper story indicating Jenkins had "pressured" the Air Force to reinstate the officer.

The dead included six passengers and the express conductor.

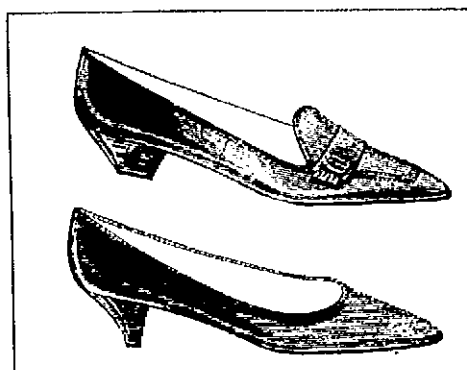

Soviets Launch Cosmos No. 49

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union Saturday launched another Cosmos satellite, 49th in its series of unmanned Cosmos satellites designed for space exploration, the Tass news agency reported.

It was the third Cosmos launching this month and followed by 12 days the successful 24-hour flight of the spacecraft Sunrise with three persons aboard.

Tass said Cosmos-49 was in an orbit with an apogee of 291 miles, a perigee of 156 miles and an orbital inclination to the equatorial plane of 49 degrees.

Efficient Efficiency Experts Unsnarled Tokyo's Traffic

(John Dixon of The Independent, Press - Telegram Sports Department has completed his assignment in covering the 1964 Olympics. Here he looks at Japan's answer to the mass transportation puzzle which has found no solution in Southern California.)

By JOHN DIXON
I. P-T Staff Writer

TOKYO — Tokyo, a delightful, mammoth toy store of a city, has solved its transportation problems.

This pyramid of 10,600,000 persons can advance from one part of the city to another more quickly and with less expense than inhabitants of New York, London, Paris, Rome or Southern California. And it's more fun.

The puzzle, solved by efficiency experts who really are efficient, is composed of trolleys, trains, buses, subways and monorails.

* * * *

ALL OPERATE on stopwatch schedules. "Pushers" make sure of that.

Prides of Japan's rapid transit scheme are a Walt Disney monorail and a science fiction train.

The $55 million monorail, completed in 17 months, trims travel time between the Ginza (downtown) and the airport from 90 minutes to 15.

The 65 mile-an-hour flyer, part of the $3.5 billion Olympic Games construction program, carries 500 passengers on an every-10-minutes schedule.

It's more comfortable and scenic than its Disneyland predecessor. The coaches ride on rubber tires atop a concrete rail. The heavily cushioned seats swivel, enabling passengers to get a 360 degree panorama of Tokyo and the bay.

The Tokyo-to-Osaka line commenced operations Oct. 1, and except for the fellow who set an Olympic record of being locked in the men's room for 2½ hours, there hasn't been a complaint.

* * * *

THE TOKAIDO line connects Japan's two largest cities, 322 miles distant, in four hours. Time will be cut to three hours after 12 months of trials.

Since the superexpress "Hikari" reaches a top speed of 125 miles an hour, track and train design are unique.

Cars are equipped with air springs, and are air tight. The double tracks are one mile long instead of the 25 yards standard on other lines to insure a smooth ride.

There's built-in safety, too.

Grade crossings have been eliminated. Directions to the crew are given by radiowave, and if ignored, the train is automatically halted. Switches operate by remote control. Substations are equipped with seismometers, and power is automatically cut if an earthquake of a high magnitude is recorded.

* * * *

ABOUT 50,000 passengers a day are paying between $6.25 and $14 to ride the streamliner.

The subway is expensive, 10 cents, while the local trains vary between 5 and 10 cents. It's possible to ride 55 miles to one of the Olympic sites for a nickel.

But a foreigner will encounter some difficulties.

The Japanese are too helpful. They go out of their way to give me directions, and I go out of my way trying to follow them.

Taxis are as exciting as the roller coaster and just as cheap, 28 cents for a mile and a quarter.

Taxis, it is said, are listed in the telephone book under "Kamikaze." Perhaps Japan would have won the war if Tojo had used taxis instead of tanks. The drivers all think they're jet pilots, with no one else in the sky.

* * * *

GRAB A cab here and odds are that you will wind up at a police station. Not for a complaint, but for information.

The streets have no names, the houses no numbers.

In some districts there are numbers, but the houses are numbered in the order they were built. At 3-chrome 456, Mr. Doe may live live next door to 3-chrome 789 instead of 458.

In desperation some neighborhoods band together and have maps drawn. They post it on a signboard, but this is of little help to the struggling foreigner. The map is in Japanese.

PROBERS REPORT

Research-Fund Balance Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional subcommittee proposed Saturday that the federal government try to correct what it called the vastly unequal dollar distribution of research funds to the states. More than half the money goes to California, New York and Massachusetts.

But the subcommittee also warned that any attempt at correction must not penalize those institutions and areas which, due to their own wisdom and effort — as well as their favorable locations — have "built the kind of research competence to attract federal grants and contracts."

The report made by a House space subcommittee, was based on a long series of hearings on the geographic distribution of federal research and development funds.

* * * *

THE SUBCOMMITTEE said that in the 1963 fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1963, California received $3.8 billion in contracts or 38.4% of all the research contracts awarded by the Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, and other agencies.

New York received $917 million in contracts or 9.2% of the total. Massachusetts received $452 million worth of the contracts or 4.6% of the total.

The top three were followed by Maryland and the District of Columbia. Pennsylvania, Texas, Washington, New Jersey, Florida and Missouri.

The subcommittee noted, however, that if the statistics are reviewed from a different angle, the share of California, New York, and Massachusetts does not seem so great.

For example, the subcommittee said, when population is taken into account, California ranks third in the amount of research funds per capita, Massachusetts ranks ninth, and New York ranks below the national average. Nevada is first with $346 of research funds for every resident of the state.

Despite this, the subcommittee still viewed the situation as out of balance and made several recommendations, including these:

1. The White House should call a government-industry conference to consider ways to achieve a more even geographical distribution of federal funds.

2. The Office of Science and Technology, with the help of other agencies, should draw up criteria that would indicate to the federal government when an institution seems to have potential for growth into a first-rate scientific and technological center.

3. The National Science Foundation should receive extra funds for the purpose of insuring the existence of at least one major center of research and technology in each region of the nation.

4. Agencies should place a reasonable emphasis on developing new centers of technology and science.

5. Institutions that now have government-financed scientific equipment should share this equipment with qualified scientists from other institutions.

Schools in Virginia Cancel All Dances

ACCOMACK, Va. (AP)—All dances, including the traditional junior and senior proms, have been stricken from the list of activities in Accomack County schools.

Oliver C. Greenwood, superintendent, declined to comment on the reason the school board took the action. Two high schools in the county with previously all-white enrollment integrated this fall for the first time.

Popcorn Munchers Say Johnson Has It in the Bag

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—President Johnson has popped into a commanding lead in what may well be the most unscientific political prognosis since Aunt Agatha called the shot on Cal Coolidge on the basis of an aching corn.

The presidential Popcorn Poll shows Johnson ahead of Barry Goldwater in 43 states, with 78% of the popular vote. It has Goldwater ahead in Arizona, Louisana, Mississippi, Maryland and Utah, with Oregon and Wisconsin even.

* * * *

DONT LAUGH. It may sound corny, but the nation's theater-going munchers and fireside poppers haven't missed yet.

Pollster Jim Blevins, who claims to be the world's leading popcorn vender, started it all in 1948, but was almost forced to abandon the poll before the second feature began. His idea was to decorate his popcorn bags with the Democratic donkey and Republican elephant and decide who would win the forthcoming election by counting the number of bags sold.

The Popcorn Poll showed Harry S. Truman would win, while other—more scientific—polls were predicting a victory for Thomas E. Dewey. To the wonderment of everybody except the popcorn-eating public, Truman won.

Blevins hit it on the nose again in 1952 with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. When Eisenhower ventured for a second term four years later, the popcorn poll not only called his victory, it forcast all 48 states correctly.

* * * *

RICHARD NIXON jumped to an early 2 to 3% popular vote lead in 1960, but that quickly shifted to John Fitzgerald Kennedy after the first of the television debates. Kennedy held the Popcorn Poll lead right on through his victoly. Johnson's margin has been increasing as the count progresses this year.

"We've never attached any scientific significance to it," says popcorn mongul Bevins, "But it has been uncanningly accurate. It just happens to work. I realize it may be just as wrong as can be this year."

There are a number of reasons it should miss. Children —those who can write—joyously cast their ballots right alongside adults.

Blevins has switched to ballots instead of Republican and Democrat bags because "it's harder to eat about four million bags after an election, particularly Nixon bags." He now places ballots in supermarkets, as well as theaters.

* * * *

MULTIPLE voting is another unscientific practice.

"There's no law against stuffing a popcorn box" Blevins says.

One thing going for the poll is the huge sample. Blevins expects to use most of the 20 million ballots he had printed for the 1964 election. He has spurned responses by offering a trip to the inauguration as a prize for the guess closest to the winning vote.

"How did you know?" Kennedy scribbled on a congratulatory note to the 1960 winner.

Blevins refuses to say whether he's a Democrat or Republican.

"I'm a poll taker," he says.

University of Iowa Drops 'State'

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The state university of Iowa was given approval to drop "state" from its title.

Dr. Howard Bowen, university president, asked the state board of regents to adopt the change, saying in common usage the word "state" is generally dropped.

One purpose of the change is to avoid confusion with the name of Iowa State University at Ames.

U.S.-State at Odds on Driver License Issue

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—May a person whose state drivers' license has been revoked drive a government vehicle with a federal license?

The question of federal versus state jurisdition is pending in U.S. District Court.

It arose when an Army Corps of Engineers employe, Denton C. Hippensteel, 23, of Mobile, was stopped by state troopers Oct. 7 and charged with driving while his Alabama driver's license was revoked.

After consultation with U.S. attorneys, Hippensteel filed for removal of the case to U.S. District Court.

The petition contends Hippensteel, although without a state drivers' license, had in his possession at the time of his citation a valid U.S. vehicle operator's license.

7 Protestant Leaders Hit Political Tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven Protestant leaders Saturday issued a statement deploring "attacks on personalities and the use of base insinuations which have marked the presidential campaign to date."

"We remind both parties and their candidates that no party and no person has a monopoly on Godliness and morality," said the statement.

It said the "morality issue" has a place in political debate, but should not be used to avoid discussion of "the great public issues," including poverty, race, and peace.

"These are issues of morality of the highest order, and must concern the moral conscience of every thinking citizen," the statement said.

It was signed by The Right Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church; the Rev. Edler Hawkins, moderator of the United Preshyterian Church in the U.S.A.; The Rev. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; The Rev. Norman J. Baugher, secretary of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren; The Rev. Ben. M. Herhster, president of the United Church of Christ; Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, president of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church, and Rev. A. Dale Fiers, executive secretary of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

Fire Fatal to Taos Woodcarving Artist

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — A renowned New Mexico woodcarver, Patrocino Barela, 62, burned to death early Saturday in his small workshop and home at Canon, two miles east of Taos.

Barela has been featured in "Who's Who in American Arts," "Life" and numerous art magazines. He specialized in carving wooden santos, and his works are collectors' items in New York and Europe.

Coffee May Stir Latin and U.S. Row

By PETER KNOX

LONDON (UPI) — Coffee could cause a major row between the United States and Latin America unless the U.S. Congress moves quickly to satisfy its southern neighbors.

Trouble has arisen because the outgoing 88th Congress failed to pass legislation making the United States a fully operative member of the London-based 59-nation International Coffee Council.

The council is the governing body of the 1962 international agreement between all the world's major coffee producing nations — Brazil, Colombia and other Latin American nations predominate — and the consuming countries.

• • • •

ITS AIM IS to equate supply and demand through a quota system so that prices remain stable. This is no easy task and already in its 18-month life the council has been the seat for a hectic tug of war between interests representing the growers wanting a higher return and the housewives wanting cheaper coffee in the shops.

So far an uneasy peace has been maintained. Now the attitude of Congress on U.S. membership threatens to rock the council's foundations.

• • • •

THEY SAID THAT the United States imports about half the world's coffee and without its full participation in the council the organization would be virtually inoperable.

Latin American sources here have made it repeatedly clear that if this happens the United States would face a real crisis in its relations with the alliance for progress nations.

There is one body of opinion inside the producers' camp at the coffee council that favors telling the United States flatly that coffee prices are going to have to rise if Latin American economies are going to stand on their own feet and living standards there are going to go up to adequate levels.

Another, and perhaps more powerful group, however, urges caution.

• • • •

THEIR ARGUMENT is that it is of primary importance to keep both the American housewife happy and the United States in the international agreement.

These sources recognize that these are twin problems — many United States citizens and congressmen have an innate hostility to international commodity agreements which savor of price-fixing arrangements, and they take coffee costs as a criterion for judging living standards.

They fear that if prices go up too fast then housewives will limit buying, while at the same time congressional resistance to full membership of the agreement will be increased.

Sensing this problem, other members of the agreement are not pushing the United States too hard on the membership issue, and, for the moment, are soft pedalling the dispute over prices.

unfortunate and unpleasant distressing situation that probably resulted from intense overwork and he has my sympathy and my understanding, and his wife and their lovely family have my prayers and best wishes."

Johnson talked about Jenkins and Baker, the former secretary to Senate Democrats, during what was billed as an "informal and unrehearsed" question-and-answer session with six young Democratic supporters.

Asked to discuss "charges of corruption in your administration, specifically Jenkins and Baker," Johnson said that almost any administration has "improprieties or mistakes."

"Robert Baker was an employe of the Senate for some 10 years," Johnson said. "He was a very faithful and dedicated and competent employe during the eight years I was (Senate Democratic) leader. I worked very closely with him.

"He came in early in the morning, he worked late. He was very devoted to the Senate."

Baker resigned a year ago when his complex outside business ventures came to light. The Senate Rules Committee still is investigating his activities for any sign of conflict of interest, but the latest inquiry has been postponed until after the Nov. 3 election.

The President said Baker has been criticized for "some outside interests" and noted he has been investigated by the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Senate committee.

"I am sure that if there had been any laws violated that the matter will be presented to the proper authorities. In our own American way, with the sense of justice we all have, Baker will be called to account and his side of the case will be heard and appropriate action will be taken.

"I have urged the FBI to and I have asked the people with whom I have discussed the matter to present to the FBI any bit of information they had that would indicate a law violation."

MURPHY AT 'WINGS' BANQUET

State's 'Firsts' Hit by Murphy

in New Delhi and Brussels, captivated foreign observers with the "bright and shining face of America."

MURPHY alluded to his former career as a song and dance man in the movies—"I was a good one"—and promised his audience he would give "the best performance of my life" as a United States senator.

As in recent previous speeches here, Murphy charged California is Number 1 in crime, unemployment and taxes; new industry is not attracted and old industry is trying to get out. He said he would work, as a senator, to repair and restoring the bracero act. That act, expiring in December, threatens a 30% loss in our largest industry, he said, unless measures are taken to assure the crop-harvesting labor supply the bracero program provided.

Murphy charged again that aerospace and electronics contracts are going to other states at California's expense, for "immoral and dishonest political experiency."

Blasting "managed news" in the administration, Murphy said the time may be here when we should say, "Look, Mr. Government, we're entitled to know the truth; we can handle it."

He said he is making "no such claim" that Sen. Pierre Salinger is a carpetbagger, adding, "he came in such a hurry he didn't even have a bag."

He accused Salinger of borrowing his stands for free enterprise and for a crash program for desalting seawater, and remarked, "I felt I was getting through to this boy, but then I realized it wouldn't do any good—he can't vote!"

Goldwater Assails HHH as Socialistic

"Look closely, my fellow Americans," he said. "At this curious crew who would run your country. My opponent calls them the camp of unity. What a curious camp. Here you find unity of bosses, bosses of big cities, bosses of big unions and bosses of big business. Here you find the corrupt, the immoral, the power-mad and the radicals of the left."

The senator's motorcade into Corpus Christi was delayed when his convertible top refused to come down. While another convertible was wheeled into place, Goldwater played catch with a small boy who had a football and shoot hands with 50 or 60 persons who had gathered.

THE motorcade looped around the downtown streets of the city by the Gulf of Mexico. Crowds were sparse, looking to be only about normal for a Saturday afternoon.

There was scattered applause and a few cheers, but mostly silence. LBJ signs outnumbered Goldwater signs along the route. There were few of either kind.

Once inside the Municipal Auditorium, it was a different story. The crowd overflowed the 7,000 capacity and was wildly enthusiastic.

Goldwater encountered more technical difficulties when his microphone was temporarily dead.

"This is as dead as some of Lyndon's programs," he quipped. He began with reference to the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, promising to keep it in operation if elected.

same speech he had in Austin, attacking Humphrey and what he called the "socialistic program" of the ADA.

CONTENDING that the ADA and Humphrey opposed censorship which would eliminate pornographic literature from newsstands, he said:

"I think we have to have some censorship in this country, and I think most Americans agree with that."

"The second man is just as important as the first man," Goldwater said, adding that Humphrey had voted with the ADA during most of his Senate career.

In Austin, Goldwater told the crowd he did not plan to talk about "your fellow Texans," but when he mentioned Johnson's name there were loud boos.

act of his would ever "touch off a nuclear war which could kill 300 million people in its first exchange."

One admirer at Chattanooga shouted at the President: "This (appearance) is going to turn the tide in Tennessee."

Tennessee Thousands Hail Chief

Johnson, McKeldin said: "In our hearts we know we're right."

Making the evening even happier for Johnson was news that the Baltimore Sunpapers had endorsed him. He is the first Democratic candidate to win their backing since 1932.

Johnson was halted during his armory speech to an overflow crowd of 10,000 by a group of Goldwater demonstrators. But laughter spread through the crowd when he told the pickets:

"I'm glad we can welcome our friends. They come to our meetings because they like to associate with good people. We need everyone we can get. We welcome them all."

He campaigned earlier in the day in Tennessee, drawing some of the greatest crowd turnouts in the state's political history.

Gov. Frank Clement said the estimated quarter of a million persons who greeted Johnson at Memphis was "the largest crowd ever to greet any candidate for political office in the history of Tennessee." Another estimated 35,000 persons turned out at Chattanooga.

He asked residents of the Volunteer State to give him an overwhelming election triumph to assure the world that Americans reject "campaigns of hate, campaigns of fears, campaigns of smear."

Suspect Stabs Compton Police Officer; Jailed

A Compton policeman was stabbed Saturday night while arresting a man suspected of stealing a carton of cigarettes.

Officer Paul R. Herpin grappled with the suspect for 15 minutes before he was stabbed in the right leg.

Booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, strongarm robbery and resisting arrest was Charles Eves Weatherford, 22, of 711 E. 126th St., near Compton.

Officer Herpin said Weatherford had taken the carton of cigarettes from a clerk in a market at 2019 N. Wilmington Ave.

The officer said about 30 persons watched while he attemtped to subdue the suspect. Herpinw as treated for a three-inch gash at Physicians and Surgeons Hospital and released.

LITTLE HANDSHAKING

Goldwater Use of TV Shrewd

By BILL BROOM

I. P-T Washington Bureau.

WASHINGTON—Out of sight of the politicians and pundits, but in full view of scores of millions, Sen. Barry Goldwater is running a campaign Republican strategists count on to bring him from behind in the 1964 Presidential election.

More than any candidate in history, Goldwater is relying on television to reach the American voter.

Almost $5 million—approximately 40% of the total GOP presidential campaign budget—will be spent by election day to project his face and voice into the nation's homes.

An unexpected windfall within the past four days will enable the party to buy even more television time than originally scheduled.

Since the Federal Communications Commission ruled Goldwater was not entitled to "equal time" to respond to President Johnson's message to the nation on the Soviet leadership shift and Chinese nuclear explosion, an avalanche of contributions has poured into GOP headquarters. It came in response to National Chairman Dean Burch's appeal last Tuesday.

THE FIRST day's mail brought 30,000 letters and 3,000 telegrams containing about $300,000. Astonished by the response, Republican headquarters expect Burch's 12-minute appeal will eventually produce almost $1 million. The mail room can't open the letters as fast as they come in.

The Goldwater television campaign—a shrewd mixture of 30-minute speeches before large audiences, five-minute informal chats, and short spot announcements devised by GOP Public Relations Director L. Richard Guylay—was budgeted for $4 million at the start of the campaign.

Published estimates of the total Goldwater campaign budget range from $10 million to $12 million.

THE MAIN emphasis in Guylay's programming was placed on the one-minute and 20-second spots.

The average audience for one of the 30-minute shows is 7 to 10 million, although Goldwater's telecast last Tuesday on morality in government doubled that number.

The five - minute "piggyback" programs are wedged into the final segments of regularly scheduled network shows, which have been compressed to make room for them. The five-minute shows, a Guylay brainstorm in the 1956 campaign, are considered particularly effective.

Confronted by 30 minutes of uninterrupted political palaver, the average American viewer often changes programs. But in the final five minutes of his favorite program, there is usually no other place to go.

The same holds true for the one - minute and 20-second spots. Scheduled right, one spot can reach 20 to 40 million persons. The GOP's time buyers are able to saturate with spots in those states where Goldwater's chances are considered best, thus following the dictum he issued at the start of the campaign, "to hunt where the ducks are."

EARLY IN THE campaign, Goldwater's television shows concentrated on a wide variety of issues. The GOP National Committee's research showed nearly everyone in the country knew his name, but few knew what he looked like.

A recent newspaper survey reported Goldwater had gained voter favor with the TV appearances. His mild manner, soft voice and general appearance caused many viewers to revise their original estimates which had reflected President Johnson's description of him in a September speech at Atlantic City as "[illegible]ting and raving."

"Now I've seen Goldwater on TV, I like some of his ideas," a Pennsylvania housewife was quoted in one report.

The heavy reliance on television helps to explain some of Goldwater's radical departures from the traditional patterns of campaigning.

HE SELDOM draws big crowds, or discusses local issues, and his entrance into many cities has been accomplished in relative solitude. There is little effort by advance men and local party officials to drum up big street welcomes.

Nor does Goldwater set great store on hand-shaking, baby-kissing and other antics from the folklore of electioneering.

Much effort is concentrated on packing the halls, arenas and football stadiums in which he usually delivers the day's major speech—usually over local, state or regional TV.

As a result, there are really two Goldwater campaigns—the subdued and at times indifferent criss-crossing of the nation for personal appearances and the carefully worked out soft-sell over television before millions.

Hard of Hearing?

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Many who have tried this new and proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in certain cases, they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple and painless and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given.

If you have a hearing loss no matter how slight or how bad, it may be helped. Why not find out?

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you, be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination. And if you see no improvement from the first treatment, you are under no obligation to return. Assure your appointment by calling 591-1303, 2067 Atlantic Ave., L.B. Dr. H. L. Hutchings, D.C., director.

Famed Sculptors Plan Italy 'Mount Rushmore'

CARRARA, Italy (UPI) — An international team of sculptors ranging from Henry Moore to Pablo Picasso is going to fulfill a daring dream of Michelangelo and turn one of Carrara's white marble mountains into an Italian Mount Rushmore.

Italian sculptor Nardo Dunchi, who started the idea, says things are all set, everyone has agreed to join and work about 6,500 feet.

is going to start next spring and last one or two years.

The idea is to sculpt the magnificent Carrara marble right where it is — on the mountain face. Grandiose groups of statues, large enough to be seen from ships in the Ligurian Sea far below, will spring up on three peaks of Mount Sargo and Mount Maggiore at an altitude of DUNCHI ackuowledges that the idea is not new. It has been done at Mount Rushmore, S.D., where the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt are sculptured on the granite face.

But his inspiration, Dunchi says, did not come from Mount Rushmore, but rather from Michelangelo. The great renaissance artist used to come to the Carrara quarries to select the marble for his masterpieces, and he was the man who toyed with the idea of a colossal statue on these mountains.

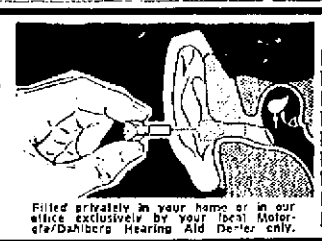

Just how long the work will take, Dunchi says, is hard to tell.

"Predictions are impossible," he says. "Perhaps one year, perhaps two. We will have to cut the mountain faces and then build the scaffoldings. We will have a lot to do. Cutting and quarrying difficulties will be greater because we will not always be able to use explosive charges."

'POLICE SERVE YOU'

Bumper Strips Free

To "help counteract subversive influences attempting to undermine law enforcement agencies" the Motor Car Dealers Association of Southern California is distributing orange and black auto bumper strips.

The strips remind "Your Police Serve and Protect You."

Marion Johnson, vice president of Harbor Chevrolet and an association director, said the strips are being distributed free by all association members.

"WE ALSO hope the strips will help build additional public confidence, support, respect and regard for the men who protect our lives and property," Johnson said.

Johnson presented a supply of the stickers to Chief of Police William J. Mooney. Chief Mooney said the stickers would be available at the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway.

The chief expressed the department's appreciation of the association's effort and said, "It is a very worthwhile and needed civic endeavor."

BUMPER STRIPS supporting public interest in the police department are offered free to the public. Marion Johnson, of the L.B. Motor Car Dealers Association, displays bumper strip; Police Chief Wm. J. Mooney approves.

Space Craft Exhibit Set for Travel Show

An "out of this world" exhibit of replicas of vehicles that launched the USA into the Space Age will be a feature of the World Travel Show and Film Festival Nov. 6-15 in the Long Beach Arena.

The 10-day exposition will feature everything in travel.

James E. Webb, administrator, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has assembled the space travel exhibit said Producer T. H. (Skip) Cregar.

Show visitors will inspect facsimiles of scientific satellites such as the Vanguard series and the later Explorer vehicles.

Application satellites to be seen include the communications satellites—Telstar, Relay, Courier and Syncom — and the outer space mechanical weathermen—Tiros and Transit.

Other space probe vehicles to be on view include: Pioneer, Ranger, Mariner, the Project Mercury manned-space vehicles, the Gemini and Apollo model space-craft.

Adult admission to the World Travel Show is $1.75 and children under 13 years of age will be admitted for 75 cents. Show hours are 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. on weekdays, noon until 11 p.m. on Wednesday and Saturday and noon to 8 p.m. on Sunday.

Atomic Fuel on Sale for First Time in U.S.

By FRANK CAVEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — For sale: Wonderful atomic fuels, government surplus. Excellent for heat and electricity (also makes bombs, but this leads purchasers to prison).

Theoretically, such an advertisement could be written today by government officials as a result of a new law affecting ownership of nuclear fuels, such as especially processed uranium.

But you won't be able to buy any at your neighborhood shopping center. So drop any thoughts you might have of picking up a bag of the stuff, along with the groceries—or to build a do-it-yourself atomic bomb in your basement.

* * * *

EVEN QUALIFIED American purchasers—such as big utilities—must have a license from Uncle Sam to buy and use the stuff. And they'll be subject to periodic federal inspection to assure against improper use of the fuel, even though they own it.

Furthermore, say government spokesmen, you need have no fears that America's nuclear fuels will be sold in large quantities to foreign governments, even friendly ones.

All this has to do with the new law ending 18 years of mandatory government ownership of these revolutionary fuels which are used to power nuclear reactors, or furnaces, and thus produce electricity.

In the relatively near future, private firms which operate reactors — and have hitherto been allowed only to lease the fuel from the government—will be able to buy and own it outright.

THE NUCLEAR POWER industry will thus operate like any other business in the free-enterprise field. Some critics of the old system contended that the leasing arrangement—under which fuels were made available at relatively low cost—amounted to government subsidy of the nuclear power industry.

The new law—which has undertones harking back to the thunderous blasts of A-Bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945—is designed to:

—Encourage expansion of the young but steadily growing nuclear power industry.

—Reduce the cost of electricity produced from the atom. The cost is already very close to that of power produced from coal in areas where coal costs are high—and as low as coal-produced power in some parts of the world.

—Assure continued vitality for America's uranium mining industry. Due to recent cutbacks in the production of fissionable materials for weapons, uranium mining faced an uncertain future after 1970.

—Rid the taxpayers of the burden of financing a constantly growing government stockpile of uranium for leasing to the nuclear power industry—an inventory which might have reached $4 billion proportions by 1960.

* * * *

WHEN THE ATOMIC Energy Law—The McMahon Act—was passed in 1946, one of its key provisions was mandatory government ownership of all fissionable materials, even own or operate a power reactor capable of making significant quantities of such materials. Industry had to limit itself to small reactors under close federal supervision.

* * * *

SINCE 1954, supplies of fissionable materials have greatly increased. Great strides have been made in developing civilian nuclear power and in getting costs down.

And so, with the Atomic Energy Commission among the prime supporters, the new law was passed late in August.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Johnson Seeks More Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson Saturday called for more tax cuts in the first of a series of his own blueprints for a prosperous America. He said the reductions should begin with excise levies on consumer items.

He also urged business and labor to hold the cost-price line.

In a statement issued under the caption, "Maintaining Prosperity," he said it was the first of 10 which he will release in the next few days to outline his position on some of the most important economic issues facing the nation.

5 Yanks Die in Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist guerrillas shot down a U.S. Air Force transport loaded with ammunition Saturday. The five Americans and two Vietnamese aboard were believed killed.

A U.S. military spokesman said rescue craft flying over the flaming wreckage of the C123 provider transport saw the aircraft burning and the ammunition aboard exploding.

Their deaths would bring to 302 the number of Americans killed in South Viet Nam, 212 of them in combat.

Ikeda May Resign

TOKYO, Sunday (UPI)—A panel of doctors reported today that Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda must undergo prolonged medical treatment and cannot continue to lead Japan's conservative government.

Masayoshi Ohira, Ikeda's closest associate in the ruling party, said the prime minister may announce later today his resignation or appointment of an acting prime minister. The prime minister entered the National Cancer Center Sept. 7 with a pre-cancerous throat tumor.

Meningitis Increase Seen

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Californians can expect a rising number of meningitis cases until the peak of the current cycle is past, a Los Angeles County health officer said Saturday.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland said no large outbreaks are expected in the civilian community, although continued outbreaks may be expected in military establishments.

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP)—A 17-year-old Army recruit died Saturday of meningitis. He was the 15th fatality among 89 meningitis cases at the Army training base this year.

The latest victim was Pvt. Jack C. Thomas Jr. of Camarillo, Calif. His parents were with him when he died.

The Army has halted the training of more recruits at the base on the Pacific's shore near Monterey until the meningitis outbreak is ended.

Admits Setting 4-Fatality Fire

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—A 22-year-old woman has admitted setting a fire that killed four young children in their Chester home early Saturday, police said.

Chester Detective John Taylor said Miss Gloria Virginia Paskings made the admission in a verbal statement to him.

Miss Paskings lives about four blocks from the three-story home of Luther Roberts Sr., 28, father of the children who died. According to Taylor, Miss Paskings said she and Roberts had been living together off and on for the last five years.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Brokers See 900 Level Soon for DJI Average

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices were firm last week, but trader enthusiasm was somewhat cooler as evidenced by the narrow range of price movements and lighter volume.

The early part of the week saw a continuation of the upswing which came after traders recovered from news of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's resignation. The Dow-Jones Industrial average advanced 2.67 Monday and 5.29 Tuesday — touching a new peak of 881.50.

Profit-taking trimmed some of the week's gains on Wednesday, Thursday and the early part of the final session. The Friday session was shortened by 90 minutes in memory of former President Herbert Hoover.

* * * *

VOLUME contracted a bit to 23,825,545 shares from 25,666,990 shares the week before and compared with 30,355,050 shares in the same week last year.

On the whole brokers considered it a fairly good week. They felt the advance to a new peak so soon after the prior week's disturbing domestic and international events was a particularly good sign.

One broker said the net psychological effect of the previous week's events was to "shake traders out of their lethargy and prove that there still is plenty of speculative interest around."

Most feel that the Dow-Jones Industrial average is within shooting distance of the 900 level and may reach the long hoped-for peak before or soon after election day.

Their hopes were buoyed further by the incoming third quarter earnings reports and predictions of fourth quarter profits. Dividend increases and stock splits will also add to upward momentum, they say.

THE ONLY really gloomy propect is that the long General Motors strike may spread its effect to other industries. Some GM suppliers already are beginning to feel the pinch.

Dow-Jones Industrial average rose 4.08 on the week to close at 877.62. Rails added 2.44 to 224.28, but utilities slipped 0.78 to 153.93. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.31 to 85.14.

Of the 1,481 issues traded, 756 advanced, 233 to new 1964 highs while 538 declined, 40 to new lows.

Chrysler took first place in the active list with a gain of 1¼ at 61⅜ on 411,300 shares. The stock dipped at first Thursday after the company announced lower third quarter earnings, but later gained after declaration of a regularly quarterly cash dividend and a stock dividend.

Container Corp. of America was second with a loss of ⅛ at 34⅛ on 273,700 shares. Texas Gulf Sulphur was third with a loss of 2⅞ at 59 on 267,700 shares. Automatic Canteen was fourth with a gain of 3 at 18⅛ on 267,500 shares.

* * * *

WESTINGHOUSE Electric, the previous week's volume leader, was fifth with a loss of 1¼ at 43 on 267,500 shares, apparently on profit-taking. Xerox was also among the most active. It dropped 6⅞ despite news of higher nine months earnings.

Ford and General Motors were also active. Ford held unchanged while GM pushed ahead 1⅞. American Motors also held unchanged.

Steels were generally firm. Youngstown Sheet rose 1¼ and U.S. Steel and Bethlehem rose fractions. However, McLouth dropped 1⅝ and Continental Steel gave up 2⅛.

Du Pont jumped 4 and Eastman Kodak advanced 3⅜, both on earnings news. IBM tumbled 9⅜ and Control Data gave up 5⅛. Litton slipped 1¼, but Beckman rose a point .Motorola lost 1, but Magnavox gained 2.

Mission Corp., a big gainer the previous week, dropped 3 on profit-taking. Union Oil of California advanced 3⅞. Sinclair eased 1⅝. Pure Oil, which announced the results of an independent audit of its assets — prompted by a number of take over bids—skidded 3½. The report showed the company's assets were worth substantially more than even the highest bid.

* * * *

ANACONDA rose 2½ and Kennecott Copper added 2. Toward the end of the week, Kennecott reported its third quarter earnings slashed sharply by strikes.

Aircrafts turned downward after the Defense Department reported it expects military expenditures to be about $700 or $800 million below the current fiscal budget estimate. North American Aviation dropped 2⅛, Douglas 2, General Dynamics 1¼, McDonnell 1⅝ and Lockheed 1½.

Pullman rose 5¼ on a dividend boost. Norfolk & Western pushed ahead 8½. The stock had a large short interest position according to the latest report released last week.

Columbia Broadcasting dropped 3. In the final session it was reported that the baseball commissioner would move to block Columbia's acquisition of the Yankees baseball team. The commissioner later denied the report.

* * * *

AIRLINES staged a selective rally and American advanced 3⅝, National and Western 1⅜ each and Trans World 2¼.

Liggett & Myers rose 1⅞ on higher third quarter earnings. American Tobacco gained 1⅜ onits record third quarter profits statement.

American Broadcasting picked up 3⅞. Cosmat climbed 4⅛. Western Union advanced 2⅛.

Taft Broadcasting rose 4. Corning Glass dropped 4½. General Foods shed 3. Goodrich advanced 3.

Prefers They Not Use His Name

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—How would you feel if you were awakened at 4 a.m. and heard a voice on the phone saying brightly, "Hello, I'm Kelly Castleberry, candidate for the House of Delegates."

Would you vote for Kelly Castleberry?

That's what Castleberry is worried about. He says someone is calling about 60 persons a night and playing one of Castleberry's taped political speeches.

The candidate from South Charleston is worried that he is losing votes.

The phone company is investigating.

CAL-STATE'S HOMECOMING

Not-So-Old Grads Return

This is homecoming season when the ivy-covered colleges throw open their gates to welcome back the Old Grads. Freshfaced fraternity members listen uncomprehendingly as "brothers" the age of their fathers discuss the Big Game of 1934. Egg-bald oldsters are introduced to take a bow for the Class of '98.

But what do you do if you are a new college like California State College at Long Beach? What if the ivy has scarcely started down again from the roof eaves and you can't claim anybody older than the Class of 1950?

You hold homecomings just the same. Who cares if there is no one around to replay the Big Game of 1934? The homecoming queen and princesses are just as pretty, the floats just as colorful and the football game just as hard-fought.

CAL-STATE will celebrate homecoming Saturday with a full schedule of events including a parade, a rally and bonfire and a football game between the once-beaten Forty-Niners and Cal-Poly (San Luis Obispo).

To set a proper mood, noted singer Mel Torme and popular jazzman Dave Pell and his Octet will perform Friday night at 8:30 at a Coronation Concert in the Men's Gym on campus.

During this concert, the identity of the Forty-Niner homecoming queen will be announced and she will be crowned by Torme.

THE CSCLB homecoming this year falls on Halloween, so the theme chosen for the celebration is "The Hauntless Forty-Niners."

JAMES RUSSELL

DAVE PELL

MEL TORME

The homecoming parade will begin at noon Saturday on Second Street in Belmont Shore and will proceed from Park Avenue to Claremont.

A pre-game rally and bonfire will be held in Veterans Stadium beginning at 6:15 p.m. Saturday. The rally will feature a costume contest. It will be followed by the football game at 8 p.m.

CAL-STATE Long Beach—known for most of its career as Long Beach State College—registered its first students in 1949. Classes at first were conducted in converted apartment houses on Anaheim St. Later, the college moved to its present campus on a hill on E. 7th Street.

When the college first opened, it was estimated that it would eventually have an enrollment of 7,000 students. This fall, some 17,400 students registered for classes and the college is not slated to reach its peak enrollment until 1970.

Despite its relatively short existence of 15 years, the college has produced plenty of alumni to celebrate its homecoming, said James Russell, president of the Alumni Association.

More than 12,500 students have received bachelor's degrees and 3,307 have received master's degrees. The college has recommended 7,669 students for teaching credentials.

Berkeley Enrollment Near Maximum

BERKELEY (AP) — Enrollment at the Berkeley campus of the University of California is up to 27,431, almost to the permanent ceiling. It tops by 675 last autumn's registration.

The maximum is 27,500 students set by the state master plan for higher education, Chancellor Edward W. Strong said.

Plant Held for Plant Thefts

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Police held Johnny Plant on suspicion of grand larceny in the theft of $1,000 worth of plants from a nursery.

Navy Red Cross Director Named

Willard B. Merrick, field director for the American National Red Cross since 1940, arrived in Long Beach to serve in that capacity at United States Naval Base, Terminal Island.

He will assume duties this week in the Red Cross field director's office in Building 111 at the base, which is on call 24 hours a day seven days a week, staffed daily by four assistant field directors and three stenographers.

Last week, Merrick made calls on the military at the base and in the area, and at Red Cross chapters to learn about his new assignment. He also established his wife and 9-year-old son in their new home at 1853 College Circle.

* * * *

MERRICK came to Long Beach from the U.S. Naval Air Station, Lemoore, Calif., where he had served two years following four years at the port of embarkation in Bremerhaven, Germany. He had been stationed earlier at this busy port from '46 to '49, also in Bamberg and in Kassel, Germany.

Services in the United States included five years at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., and two years in Ft. Lewis, Wash. Four years' Army service in 1942-46, another year during the Korean War, and a year with the Red Cross at Thule Air Force Base in Greenland complete his activities from 1940.

"The Red Cross field service office on the Naval Station handles an average of 4,200 cases a month," said Merrick. "These services are given to all military personnel based here whether in port or at sea. They involve liason with more than 3,600 Red Cross chapters across the nation in meeting family crises of the men, counseling, issuing of hardship grants or loans, reports to be used by military command in granting emergency leaves."

* * * *

MERRICK REPORTED that his other responsibilities are with the Red Cross blood banks conducted on the base, on ships in port, and at the Long Beach Chapter, and issuing of blood as needed; also with the United Crusade campaign.

"Red Cross operates on contributions only," he siad. "We are conducting a vigorous campaign in this new combined fund campaign, involving Red Cross and all the community agencies with which our personnel and their families are vitally concerned."

Tanganyika Police Catch Odd Idlers

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanganyika's new dragnet to collect the unemployed in town and ship them back to the country has caught some odd idlers: A European salesman who was stopped in his new car and freed only after strong protests and a beaching American in swim trunks who has freed from a village jail only after the U.S. Embassy could be contacted.

Officials conceded police were over-eager but pronounced the anti-vagrancy drive generally a success.

Veterans' Parade Set for Nov. 8

Maj. Gen. Frederick E. Leek, USMC, will be grand marshal of the Veterans Day Parade, this year honoring the Marine Corps and the American Legion, in Long Beach Nov. 8.

Gen. Leek is the commanding general, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, El Toro.

The parade will include 125 units — military, veteran and other organizations.

Long Beach is one of the five cities in the nation designated by the Department of Defense and Veterans Administration to hold Veterans Day parades.

The three hour parade route, according to Fred Nessler, director, will start at 1 p.m. Parade route: Ocean Boulevard, from Alamitos to Pine Avenues; Pine to Broadway and west on Broadway to Chestnut.

Churchill Exhibit Draws Thousands

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "Winston Churchill Exhibition" here has attracted an average of 1,000 persons daily since it opened a week ago, its sponsors reported.

The exhibition includes four of Churchills paintings, a set of first editions of his books and a series of some 300 mounted photographs — some on public view for the first time — which are arranged chronologically to give a panoramic impression of Churchill's life.

The exhibition, set up in the Hallmark gallery here, is open free to the public and will continue through November. It was set up as a tribute to Churchill who will be 90 on Nov. 30.

Wilson Asks Socialism, Science Unite

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson knew all along that he wanted to become prime minister of Britain. His life represents one sustained drive to the goal he has now reached.

How long he can remain in office—or how soon he may have to call a new general election—is problematical, since his Labor Party was returned to power earlier this month after more than a decade in opposition by only a razor edge majority in the House of Commons.

The slim majority raised some doubts as to how stable a government he can form and whether he can put through his program.

Once regarded as something of a left winger, Wilson now takes a personalized, no-nonsense view of politics. Britain with her boom and slump economic cycles needs to increase production, boost her exports and become more competitive in a world she no longer dominates.

• • • •

WILSON BELIEVES old slack attitudes must be abandoned by both managers and workers. This is his theme on this subject:

"There are too many restrictive practices — yes, on both sides of industry. We can't afford them any more than we can afford unofficial strikes."

Those are strong words. He will face the test of making them stick.

Wilson often speaks of "the marriage of science and socialism." He means by this that Britain should modernize to take full advantage of automation and the whole field of new production techniques. His friends say he has an almost boundless confidence in the benefit of scientific progress.

Labor Party doctrine calls for state ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange—the taking over of "the commanding heights of the economy." But the party does not hammer this old socialist theme so strongly now."

• • • •

IT HAS PROMISED to renationalize Britain's steel industry. Otherwise Wilson has made only a careful, minimal commitment to state ownership. He is not particularly interested in wrangling over political philosophy. His eye is fixed more on practical results than theory, his associates say.

"What is wrong with our society is that those who make the money are more regarded than those who earn the money," he said recently. "We want to create a society in which the useful people are given precedence in our system."

There is a puritan streak in Wilson's thinking. For generations his family was steeped in religious nonconformity and radical politics——a special mixture which runs through the whole British Labor movement.

• • • •

WILSON WAS born March 11, 1916 in industrial Huddersfield. His father, Herbert, still alive, was an industrial chemist. Wilson went to Wirral grammar school in Cheshire and then to Oxford University where he was a brilliant student and an average marathon runner.

He won a seat in parliament in the great 1945 Labor Party victory in the national elections and had a rapid rise inside the Party. After holding junior ministerial posts he entered the cabinet of Labor Prime Minister Clement Attlee in 1947 as president of the Board of Trade. That made him Britain's youngest cabinet minister in more than a century.

During the Labor Party's 12 long years in opposition beginning in the early 50's, Wilson helped shape the movement's economic and foreign policy. He was elected party leader in February, 1963 following the death of Hugh Gaitskell, a man with whom he often found himself at odds.

Frozen Sperm Seen Saving Human Race

By TERRY SATTORIA

Frozen-sperm banks must be developed to help save the human species from a "creeping biological deterioration."

This was the pronouncement of Hermann J. Muller, world-famous geneticist and Nobel Prize winner, when he lectured before a group of Cal State, Long Beach, biologists.

By utilizing artificial insemination with sperm from people who possess qualities of social compassion, innate intelligence and robust physical health, the human race can be bettered, he believes.

* * * *

"HUMAN genetic betterment is important," Dr. Muller declared, "because humans — through no fault of their own—are suffering from biological deterioration because of advances in medicine and industry."

He said that because of technical achievements in medicine and industry, natural selection no longer can work to weed out those genetic characteristics which are harmful to the species.

* * * *

ARTIFICIAL insemination is the answer to bettering the human species, he said.

Muller, who is in his 70s, won the Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine in 1946 for discovering that X-rays cause mutations. He now is doing research at the City of Hope medical center in Duarte, and has an honorary position at Indiana University.

Artificial insemination, he said, would have to be "a democratic process in which the prospective parents had a say in who would be the donor."

"As is done now, in cases of artificial insemination," he said, "the physician is the sole person who knows the identity of the male parent."

He added that today, when artificial insemination is practiced, it is usually a clandestine affair where the receiving parents desire secrecy so they can both be recorded as natural parents.

In order to do this, the parents must have a second doctor deliver the child. This doctor cannot know the facts. Otherwise, the apparent father must go through legal procedure of adoption.

"But," said Muller, "this should not be the case. The prospective parent should be able to help pick — through education, counseling and expert advice — an individual who will contribute the most desirable characteristics to the child."

* * * *

AND THEREIN lies the plan for human genetic betterment.

Dr. Muller proposes that banks be established to store sperm for 20 years or more. This can be done by keeping the substance in glycerine lowered to the temperature of liquid nitrogen.

"In 20 years," he said, "the individual who donated the sperm would probably be dead and his attributes could be measured by the record he made when alive."

* * * *

MULLER said the characteristics to look for to better the species are an interest in mankind, robust physical and mental health and high intelligence.

"These are all qualities that, if perpetuated in the human species, would undoubtedly result in a betterment of human characteristics, and save us from genetic deterioration," concluded Muller.

Sawdust Slide Kills L.B. Man

A sawdust avalanche landslide in a huge lumberyard silo was blamed Saturday for the death of a Long Beach man.

The body of Frank Valdez, 36, of 2428 W. Wardlow Road, was found at 2:30 a.m., buried about 20 feet down in the 60-foot-deep bin at the Sun Lumber Co. in San Pedro. He was a truck driver for the Long Beach Shavings Co.

Firemen theorized that Valdez had climbed into the bin to loosen a large clot of sawdust, and was buried when it broke loose in landslide fashion.

PHILIPPINE DANCERS AT FIESTA

Fishermen's Fiesta Gala Cruise Today

San Pedro's annual three-day Fishermen's Fiesta draws to a colorful close today with an international folk-dance festival and a parade of the local fishing fleet through Los Angeles Harbor.

The multinational dance festival, replete with native costumes, is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Skipperette Cathi Vilicich and mates Luana Madrid and Suzanne Butler will ride the lead boat in the parade beginning at 12:45 p.m., following addresses by Gov. Brown and interdenominational church services aboard the USS Keyes.

WHY PAY EXECUTIVE PLACEMENT FEES

Are executive placement fees really necessary? Is it absolutely essential to commit a percentage of one's annual income for securing a new job? Shouldn't this fee be paid by the company seeking the man? Aren't changes made without any kind of placement fee involved?

Obviously, the answer to the latter is yes. Many individuals do make satisfactory job changes without paying placement fees. Most people would rather not . . . and believe it or not most companies feel the same way. Today's budgets and profit margins are too tight to allow for unnecessary expenditures.

Third parties, however, have to be compensated for their efforts and fees must come from one side or the other. For the man earning $10,000 to $50,000 per year, the placement fee usually ranges from 10% to 20% of annual compensation. Why then pay $1,000 to $10,000 dollars for a position a man can normally secure on his own? It's true the company involved in some cases will pay the fee, but, in many others the fee is deducted from the offer made to the man. In either case the individual ends up paying the fee.

As professional Executive Career Managers, we feel it isn't necessary for individuals to pay placement fees. Even the best of positions can be secured without a percentage commitment. Naturally, we must be compensated for our efforts and our approach to the fee situation is within the limits of everyone interested in securing increased responsibilities, growth opportunity and higher pay.

We are limited by the hours in the day and can work only with highly motivated and qualified individuals. Our service is unique and can be confidentially explored in a preliminary interview without cost or obligation. A phone call will set a specific date. ADVANCE APPOINTMENTS ONLY and NO RESUMES, please . . . we prefer people.

British Youth Target of No-Smoke Drive

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The poster shows a father smoking a cigarette as he helps his son with his school homework.

"Don't set a bad example," it says.

This is one of many posters the British Ministry of Health is using in a campaign to stop the smoking habit before it starts—in the young.

The British government started its crusade against smoking in 1962 when the Royal College of Physicians reported that a non-smoker of 35 has twice as much chance of living to 65 as a heavy smoker.

THERE WAS a dramatic drop in consumption of tobacco that year. But already almost as many cigarettes are sold fast—and for cash with being smoked as there were before the report, "Smoking and Health," was published.

So the emphasis of the official campaign to discourage smoking—a long-term project of health education, as it is called — has shifted from adults to youngsters from 10 to 18 years old.

Not that the ministry of health and various other organizations are giving up on the adult smoker. The Royal College of Physicians has organized 18 anti-smoking clinics at hospitals. The Central Council for Health Education sends lectures to Rotary Clubs and any other group which wants to hear the case against smoking.

YOUR miscellaneous items sell fast—and for cash with an inexpensive Classified Ad.

Bolivia Pays Up Part of U.N. Dues

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Bolivia has paid $37,609 on $118,990.40 it owned in back dues to the United Nations. A delegation source said it was enough to avert loss to Bolivia's vote in the upcoming General Assembly.

Smog May Exist in Deep Space

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smog may be a nuisance in deep space as well as on earth.

Assume engineers succeed in perfecting space cabins free of dangerous or noxious gases.

There might well remain, on space flights of long duration, the problem of "trace contaminants."

According to Dr. L. O. Rutz, biotechnologist of the Douglas Missile & Space Systems Division, these contaminants in the course of time might accumulate in a sealed space cabin until they created a pollution problem compared to smog on earth.

Trace contaminants consist of gas molecules given off in minute quantities "by everything from paint to paper clips." On earth, they get lost in the atmosphere. In a sealed cabin they could build up to tear-jerking levels if precautions were not taken to curb them.

DR. RUTZ is trying to learn more about trace contaminants. Using equipment once employed by the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District to analyze smog-laden air, Douglas research workers are studying spacecraft materials to discover which generate the smallest amounts of trace gases.

Space physiologists have long been wrestling with the problem of cabin air conditioning. This concerns amounts of gases much larger than those involved in trace contamination.

An astronaut using 1.45 pounds of oxygen a day will produce 1.53 pounds of carbon dioxide in the same period. Carbon dioxide concentrations of more than 1% in air may be dangerous.

Then there is the much more poisonous carbon monoxide. Dr. Charles G. Wilber of Kent State University said in a recent issue of the magazine BioScience that smoking probably will be forbidden aboard spacecraft.

One cigaret a day in a space cabin atmosphere would produce a fatal amount of carbon monoxide in a period of several days.

WILBER mentioned many biological problems on which more research is needed before man undertakes long space voyages.

What will be the effect on man of "the deathly silence of space"? How do you dispose of body wastes, and how do you free the cabin atmosphere of the unpleasant odors which emanate naturally from the human body?

If a crew member dies, what do you do with his remains? Answer these and other tough questions, Wilber said, and you still have problem X to worry about.

"This," he said, "is the problem no one ever thought of until it occurred.

"In spite of detailed plans and careful analysis of the situation, invariably in long continued operations problem X arises.

"Problem X could be devastating to the mission of space explorers."

Modern Dental Plates
Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates. Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Rivals Halted in Homage to Hoover

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

The grand old man of the Republican Party, former President Herbert Clark Hoover, died in New York City last week at the age of 90.

He was stricken last Saturday with bleeding in his upper gastro-intestinal tract and failed to rally.

Passing of the nation's 31st President and one of the world's most revered humanitarians, tempered a presidential election campaign that hourly was growing more bitter.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson and GOP nominee Barry M. Goldwater and their running mates joined in national homage to the elder statesman at a funeral service in New York and later in Washington.

Friday the body was taken to Washington to lie in state until today on Lincoln's black-draped catafalque in the Capitol rotunda. Interment was to follow at West Branch, Iowa, where Hoover began life as the son of a blacksmith and later was to receive the depression-born scorn of the nation and world acclaim as a friend of the hungry.

The last two living ex-Presidents — Harry S Truman, 80, and Dwight D. Eisenhower, 74—were unable to attend the ceremonies. Truman was recuperating at Independence, Mo., from injuries suffered in a bathtub fall. Eisenhower was being treated in a Washington, D.C., hospital for a severe case of laryngitis.

* * * *

BUT DEADLY infighting continued to feature the campaign.

GOP National Chairman Dean Burch demanded the three major television networks give Goldwater free and equal time to counter Johnson's recent nationwide report on the significance of Red China's first atomic bomb and the ouster of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

JOHN M. BAILEY

DEAN BURCH

Both Demanded Equal Television Time

They refused after the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) classed the speech as spot news, not a political diatribe as claimed by Burch. But NBC gave Burch 15 minutes free time. He blasted Johnson, then appealed for GOP campaign contributions.

This led Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey to brand Burch's remarks political and to demand equal time to answer. He was turned down.

The GOP sued in federal court for a reversal of the FCC's dictum. The decision is due this week.

Another hassle concerned a Republican campaign film on morality in the White House and among Americans in general. Goldwater publicly repudiated it after the Democrats secretly obtained a copy, plus a complete transcript of the remarks of those who planned and produced it in Hollywood.

* * * *

CALLED "choice," the movie started off with a beer can being thrown from a speeding black limousine—an obvious reference to an incident during one of President Johnson's Texas vacations last summer.

Then it showed a girl in a topless bathing suit, seminude dancing girl, pictures of girlie magazines, street riots, neo-pornographic pictures, and wildly twisting teen-agers.

The movie was conceived, a news release said, by "Mothers for Moral America" and was designed to show the nation's moral decay since Johnson took office.

In contrast, Goldwater was portrayed against a background of sequences including Valley Forge, hard-working Americans, astronauts, covered wagons and patriotic school children, with movie actor Raymond Massey as narrator asking, "How did it happen?"

Democratic Chairman Bailey denounced the film as "a sickness" and "a smirking effort to introduce smut into living rooms in a desperate grab for votes."

The bipartisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee called on GOP officials to "repudiate the film or accept full responsibility." NBC had been scheduled to televise it, but balked until some scenes were expunged though copies were shown in other parts of the country.

GOLDWATER personally stepped in and ordered the movie withdrawn until it could be edited. He said it "was not appropriate in its present form." In Los Angeles later he told newsmen, "I will repudiate it—I do repudiate it" because its racial rioting shots could start trouble. He previously had previewed the movie in Philadelphia. He said he thought a film on the morality issue could be made and would be useful, but that the over-all effort put into "Choice" could not be saved by editing.

The battle typified the tenor of the campaign as the standard-bearers and their running mates covered a lot of geography.

In Philadelphia, for example, Goldwater continued his attack on morality and cited the dead Hoover as a leader who "never had the slightest hint of scandal around his life."

Johnson, at Akron, Ohio, said he does not believe in "muck-raking and slanderous comments"; that he "had never been quite so desperate—never so far behind—never had to cling to a sinking raft." He added that he "thought the people were wise enough . . . to judge for themselves what they see and hear. . . ."

* * * *

HE ALSO discussed the case of his former top aide and confident for 25 years, Walter W. Jenkins, who was hospitalized the previous week after being arrested on morals charges.

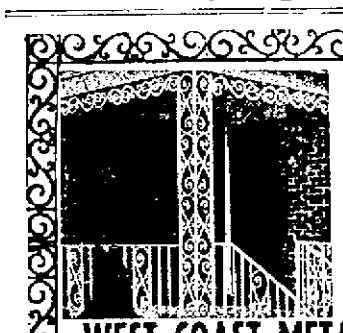

A short time later FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover—in compliance with Johnson's orders—submitted an investigative report which said intensive inquiry had absolved Jenkins of any security breaches, through blackmail or otherwise, in performing his high-echelon White House duties.

Goldwater cited the case during a California whistle-stop tour and accused Johnson of "lax security" measures.

The new Kremlin leaders pledged they would struggle for peace, friendship and cooperation with all nations and unity in the Communist world—this last an obvious reference to rebellious Red China. They continued downgrading Khrushchev despite worried satellite demands that they explain why Khrushchev was fired.

President Johnson drew a swift rebuff when he appealed to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to sign the nuclear test-ban treaty and stop polluting the atmosphere.

EVERY political campaign produces its special terminology.

This one has given us "backlash" which is supposed to help Goldwater, and "frontlash" which is supposed to help Johnson.

And such words as hater, bigot, trigger-happy, hip-shooting, wheeler-dealer and crook have flashed through the vituperative murk.

Nuclear push-button, extremism, mainstream, phony and faker have shown up along with such old-timers as "soft on communism," creeping socialism, galloping reaction, demagoguery, double-talk and glittery generalities.

The wags have had a great time with Goldwater's covered wagons, 13 colonies and so on, and Johnson's speeding limousine, beer cans and beagle ear-pulling. The Jenkins case has given the gutter humorists a field day.

And Bert Martin of Lakewood comes up with the comment that a "political dinner is the only place in the world where they eat the bull and then shoot it."

THAT State College "peach tree fund" is beginning to grow.

It's the program for purchase of flowering trees to be financed by contributions from area people and to be planted in profusion on the State College campus.

The objective is the purchase of 300 trees, and contributions from $1 up are being accepted. Contributions should be sent to Flowering Trees, 6101 E. Seventh St., which is the State College address.

One interesting contribution of the week came from the Dorcas Sewing Circle of the First Baptist Church. The check was for $12 and the contribution was made in memory of Mrs. Myrtle Long.

How about joining this good project?

GETTING BACK to the popularity of words and terms, have you noticed how prominent "awesome" is nowadays.

Things aren't big, colossal, stupendous, impressive, tremendous or massive any more—they're awesome.

Presidential responsibilities are awesome, the migration to the West is awesome, the nuclear threat is awesome, man's probing probes for the stars is awesome.

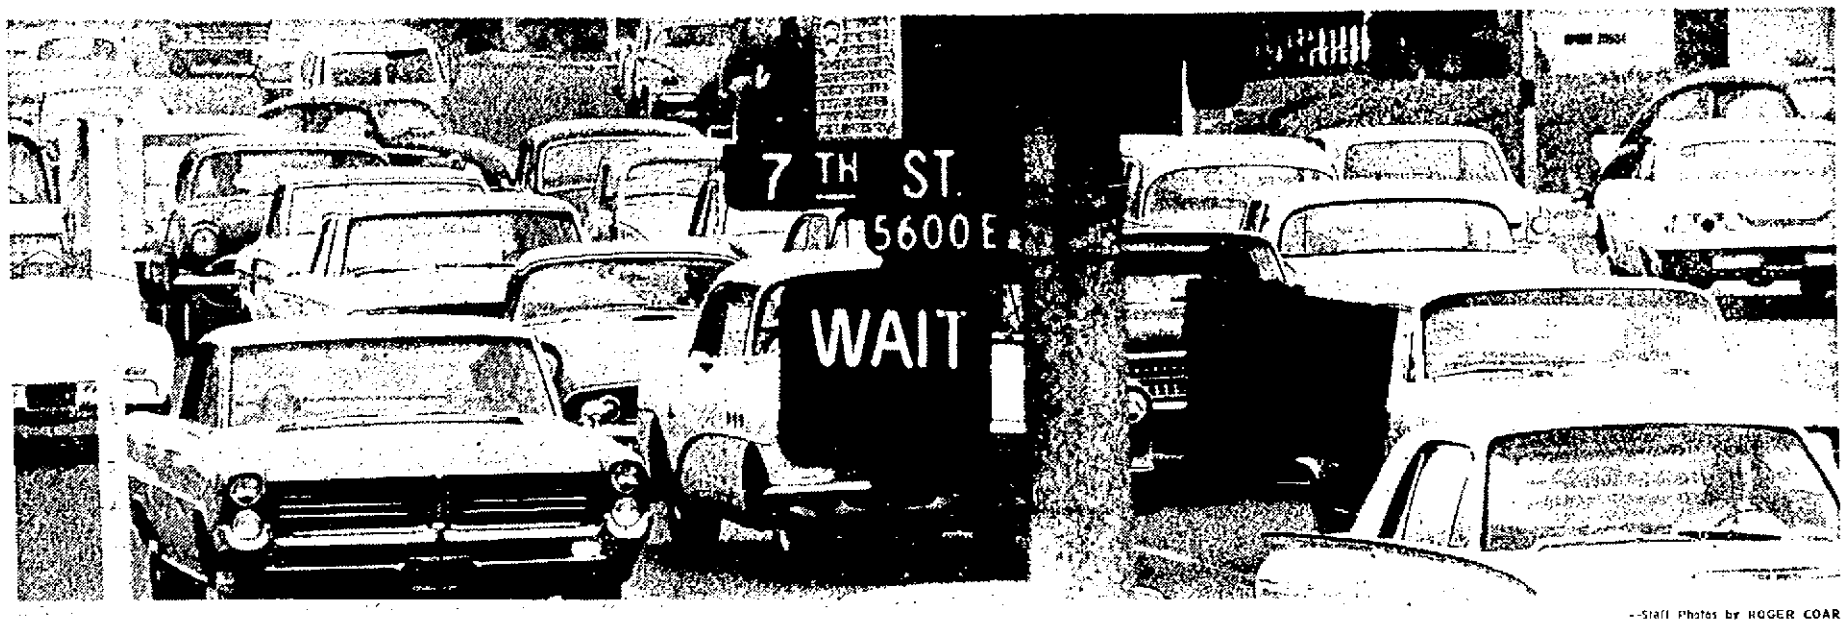

And, by golly, I guess they all are.

READER took note of item here the other day about disappointing income for the Palm Springs Tram to the top of Mt. San Jacinto and suggests that the tram might get more business if the rates were lowered. It might get more business but would it make more money?

According to this correspondent, the tram ride is $4 per adult and something around $3 for children. She said the ordinary cost to her family would be $20.

She did go, however, on a day when the rate happened to be cut to $1. "We loved it," she writes. "It is beautiful and cathedral-like on top."

HEADLINE over an item about a straw ballot on State College campus was misleading, according to callers. It indicated the ballot—which favored Johnson—was taken among members of a Republican Club. Turns out the Republican Club sponsored the poll—the participants were all of those who wished to mark a ballot — not just Republicans. The idea seems to be if only Republican clubbers voted, the result would have been different.

PACIFIC COAST FREEWAY

Route Meeting Here Tuesday

By DON OHL

A major step toward solving the daily east-west traffic jam in Long Beach will be taken Tuesday when members of the State Division of Highways meet with City Council to discuss routes for the Pacific Coast Freeway across town.

The meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. in the Council chambers. Mayor Edwin W. Wade said no testimony will be accepted from the public. He explained that this meeting is being held so that highway officials can give information to the council.

A public meeting, at which all who wish may testify, probably will be held in November or December and likely will be conducted in the Municipal Auditorium.

UNDER DISCUSSION Tuesday will be some 18 possible freeway routings between Los Cerritos Channel at the east edge of Long Beach to Normandie Avenue in Harbor City.

The portion under discussion is an 11.5-mile section of a major California freeway of 113 miles which is being built from the Ventura Freeway north of Oxnard to Capistrano Beach in Orange County.

First phase of construction of the Long Beach segment is tentatively scheduled for 1970-71 but there are many steps which must be taken before traffic actually can roll on a completed highway.

HERE IS THE procedure which will be followed between now and the time the freeway is completed:

Following Tuesday's session, information developed will be studied by highway officials. A public meeting will be announced and held in Long Beach. All information developed will be studied by Highway Division headquarters and the Highway Commission itself.

A recommendation of the best route will then be made to the Highway Commission by the State Highway Engineer. If additional technical data is

Proposition 14

A FEW BALLOT PROPOSALS in California history have been debated with as much heat as has been generated by Proposition 14. This issue, and the Rumford Act which No. 14 would knock out, have split the people of California into warring factions, denouncing each other in bitter terms. In an atmosphere so clouded with vituperation, there is all too little illumination.

Although the issue involves a delicate balance of fundamental values, angry partisans refuse to concede that anyone could disagree with them on honorable principle.

It is time to point out that it is possible to be for Prop. 14 without being a hater or a racist. It is possible to be against it without being a Communist dupe or a mongrelizer.

BRIEFLY, PROP. 14 is a measure to amend the state constitution so as to prohibit the passage of laws limiting a person's right to refuse to sell or rent his residential property to another person.

This proposal collides with and would nullify the Rumford Act, which prohibits discrimination in most residential housing transactions because of race, color or religion.

On one side is the right of a citizen to dispose of his property as he sees fit; on the other side is the right of another citizen to buy or rent property without being turned away because of his skin color or creed.

THE IMMEDIATE ISSUE involved in Prop. 14 is the question of constitutionally prohibiting anti-discriminatory housing legislaton of any kind. We have our doubts about the advisability of thus closing the door to any such legislation. Competent legal authorities have told us that Prop. 14 may be invalid under the 14th Amendment to the federal Constitution.

But at the same time we have no enthusiasm for the Rumford Act which Prop. 14 would nullify. This act was passed in the closing hours of the legislative session under pressure conditions, including a sit-in in the Capitol.

We agree that some of the major criticisms of the Rumford Act are valid, such as the charge that it imposes on the accused the requirement of proving his innocence of discriminatory motive. The very fact that it precipitated such as an extreme proposal as Prop. 14 and that 14 is conceded a good chance of passing is prima facie evidence that the Rumford Act was not properly prepared for public acceptance.

In view of serious questions as to theory and detail in the Rumford Act, we feel this legislation should be given a complete reexamination with a view to correcting its harsher features and weaknesses, or even repealing it and starting all over again. This should be done if Prop. 14 fails at the Nov. 3 voting; it should be done if Prop. 14 carries (as now seems likely) and is found unconstitutional.

AFTER CAREFULLY WEIGHING the problem, we have decided to refrain from an outright recommendation on Prop. 14. We do not want to be put on record, through a "Yes" recommendation, as supporting a measure which shuts off all legislation in a sensitive field and may be unconstitutional. A "No" recommendation would be interpreted as defense of the Rumford Act, which we do not want to defend in its present form.

We suggest to the voter that he carefully study the reasonable arguments on both sides (ignoring emotionally pitched labels and appeals) and then make a conscientious decision. To help avoid confusion we conclude with this explanation:

If you believe there should never be a law affecting a person's choice of a buyer or renter in disposing of his property, and you want to kill such laws already passed, vote Yes on 14.

If you want to retain the Rumford Act, or at least want to keep the door open for improved legislation in the field of housing and discrimination, vote No on 14.

THE WORLD'S WEEK — By Wallmeyer BOB HOUSER

DAVID LAWRENCE

Hoover Victim of Circumstance

WASHINGTON — The late Herbert Hoover revealed in his published memoirs that in a speech at a Gridiron diner here on Dec. 12, 1931, he had said:

LAWRENCE

"A revered President, long since dead, once told me that there was no solution to this relation of the White House to the press; that there never would be a President who could satisfy the press until he was 20 years dead."

Maybe it will not take 20 years to evaluate the relationship of Mr. Hoover to the press or the significance of his public policies. Indeed, a close reading of what happened under the adminstrations of Mr. Hoover and his successor, the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, should be required today not only by members of Congress but by all others who are concerned with the economic problems that face America in the next decade.

There will always be a debate as to whether Mr. Hoover was as effective in his four years as President as he might have been. There will always be a dispute as to whether, in July 1932, when he claimed the depression was really beginning to show signs of ending, there were indications of a recovery movement.

But, after the 1932 election, there is no doubt that one of the tragedies in American history occurred when there was a lack of cooperation between the outgoing Hoover administration and the incoming Roosevelt administration from election day on Nov. 8, 1932, to inauguration day on March 4, 1933. As a result of the lack of public confidence, including rumors that the new administration would devalue the dollar in terms of gold, the nation was engulfed in a "bank holiday." All the banks in the country were closed for 10 days after Roosevelt's inauguration. The "New York Times" on July 16, 1934, said in an editorial:

"The change for the better in the last half of 1932 is beyond dispute. That this evidence of revival of confidence was suddenly reversed in April 1933 is equally true."

This very week the "Washington Post," in an editorial analyzing the Hoover administration, said:

"Mr. Hoover always insisted that the bottom of the depression was reached in June or July, 1932, some months before his sweeping defeat, and there is an abundance of data to support that view. The panic which followed in March, 1933, was undoubtedly related to the long period of uncertainty between the election and the inauguration and to President-elect Roosevelt's refusal to cooperate with the defeated administration in taking emergency measures.

"In part, therefore, Mr. Hoover was the victim of circumstances over which he had no control. Even if he had had the flexibility and disposition to propose the New Deal in 1931 or 1932, it is probable that it would not have been enacted."

There are many lessons to be learned from a study of what has been called "The Great Depression." Despite all the glowing tributes to the "New Deal," the fact remains that it did not solve America's economic problems. Thus, for instance, while the 12,060,000 unemployed in America in 1932 was 23.6% of the labor force, the figure went up the next year to 12,830,000, or 24.9%. By 1935, it had been reduced to only 20.1%, and in 1938 the figure was still 19%. Thus, there remained 10,390,000 Americans without jobs five years after the Roosevelt administration had come into power.

The biggest unsolved problem of the depression in the "New Deal" years—and, indeed, it remains today one of the weaknesses in our present economic structure—was job creation.

Mr. Hoover will long be remembered as a great humanitarian — an honest and sincere man who did the best he could in the presidency against heavy odds.

VIRGINIA KELLY

Nitze Visit Here Will Be Crucial

L.P-T Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze expects to visit Long Beach for one day about the middle of December. He will visit MinePac and will inspect the Long Beach Naval Shipyard at the request of Defense Secretary McNamara.

KELLY

A spokesman for the handsome Navy secretary said Mr. Nitze, if invited to do so, will speak before a representative Long Beach group.

He will also spend a day at Point Mugu.

Secretary Nitze looks forward to his visit to Long Beach. He feels he has a commitment to the city.

The official reason for cancellation of his scheduled visit in October is the pressure of work on the Navy budget which must soon be presented to Defense Secretary McNamara.

Unofficially, some administration advisers admit there is another reason. There has been so much bipartisan political opposition to Secretary McNamara's policy (announced in 1963) of closing some high-cost and low-efficiency shipyards that it was decided to hold in abeyance further inspection of shipyards until after the elections.

Secretary Nitze's inspection will have a crucial bearing on the future of the shipyard.

A brilliant planner and analyst in the present and past three administrations, he is one of Secretary McNamara's closest friends and most influential advisers.

Secretary Nitze, regarded as one of the principal architects of defense policy, has also won trust and praise of Navy admirals.

One of these flag officers said, "The best way to make a case for a shipyard with Nitze is to show him efficiency and economy."

This is in accord with Mr. Nitze's recent statement at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He said he did not think the yard is doomed but that unemployment and other considerations were not the Navy's prime concerns in assigning new construction. He said, "I think everyone recognizes that our job is to maximize national defense at a minimum cost."

He did not quail before a bipartisan group pleading for the Brooklyn yard. They included Sens. Keating and Javits; the entire congressional delegation from Brooklyn; Mayor Wagner and Robert F. Kennedy.

Rep. Celler, 42 years in Congress, vowed that Congress will pass new legislation requiring all new construction and repairs to be divided equally between private and public yards.

Sen. Keating said three destroyer escorts are being constructed in Portugal. "This means money and jobs for Portugal but nothing for our shipyard workers," he said.

Robert F. Kennedy said the economic effects of possible layoffs will be taken into consideration by the administration, if not the Navy.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Go to the Parties, Mr. Brezhnev

OUR ACE KREMLINOLOGISTS are having a terrible time figuring out who's in charge of Russia these days. At first, they thought it might be Mr. Brezhnev, mainly because he's the new head of the Communist Party. But then it turned out he wasn't much of a party man.

As they gravely noted, Mr. Brezhnev was "conspicuously absent" from the very first party the new regime gave in the Kremlin, a reception for Cuban President Dorticos.

TRUE, MR. BREZHNEV'S PICTURE appeared on the far left in a line of posters several days later, a clue of tremendous significance, assuming the poster men didn't louse things up. But then he failed to appear at all at the big party celebrating the liberation of Kiev from the Germans 20 years ago. And every ace kremlinologist shook his head worriedly, frowned and said, "You know what that means."

Certainly we do. The meaning is clear to all us longtime students of Soviet affairs. But, personally, I'm worried. For there's just the remotest, possibility it could mean that Mr. Brezhnev doesn't like parties. And, if so, disaster lies ahead.

First, Mr. Brezhnev will face grave domestic problems at home.

"Oh, how nice," says Mrs. Brezhnev, opening the mail at the breakfast table. "The Mikoyans have invited us over for a reception. Goodness, don't we owe them?"

"Bah," says Mr. Brezhnev. "Soggy canapes, warm champagne. We will spend a quiet evening at home curled up with a good book, like 'The Use of Non-organic Fertilizers in Increasing Borscht Production.'"

"You never take me anywhere," wails Mrs. Brezhnev. "You're ashamed to be seen with me. You don't love me. The spark has gone out of our marriage. My mother warned me. . . ." And so on.

This will tend to make Mr. Brezhnev a little irritable. Like most men faced with domestic problems, he will grow more adventurous away from home. In about a year, I figure, he will be calling up our State Department, which will refer him down through channels to one of our ace kremlinologists, perhaps Mr. Entpossel.

"Listen, Entopossel," says Mr. Brezhnev, "if you Americans don't knock off aid to Outer Kurdistan, I am pushing The Button—or my name isn't Leonid Brezhnev!"

"How do you spell that?" says Mr. Entpossel.

"B-r-e-z . . . What do you mean, how do I spell it? This is Leonid Brezhnev, the leader of world Communism."

"Brezhnev . . . Brezhnev . . ." says Mr. Entpossel. "Hmmm. Sorry, old man, but I don't find the name among those who attended the opening of the Moscow Girl Pioneers Cookie Sale. Nor the Festival for Falkland Freedom. Nor . . . Must be some mistake."

"Mistake!" roars Mr. Brezhnev. "I am pushing The Button!"

"Look, whoever you are," says Mr. Entpossel. "Is this call collect?

SO I HOPE THAT IF Mr. Brezhnev is in charge, he will reform and become a good party man. For how will we know that he's the man with the fate of the world in his hands unless he gets out there and whoops it up nightly? Yes, sir, I'm sure that'll make each of us feel much more secure.

Election Night Count: Horserace That Never Was

I, P-T Political Editor

BEHOLD THE PALE horserace—election night vote counting. It's no horserace at all. The horserace in fantasy. And the American people have, for years, been hoodwinked by election night reporting.

This declaration was made this week by Paul Funkhouser, of Louis Harris and Associates, Inc. (the polling firm) and a member of the CBS Vote Profile Analysis team. His words stemmed from the elementary truth that "when the polls in the state have closed, the election is over—candidates have already won."

HOUSER

The hoodwinking came about as radio and then television, in past years, reported the count of votes as it came in from county court houses, first one candidate ahead and then the other ahead.

Funkhouser underlined the hoodwinking phase of such reporting by noting California's experience in the primary last June 2. He noted that on that night "all three networks declared, that in their editorial judgment, all evidence pointed unquestionably to the fact that Goldwater had won. Yet for the next 12 hours the two major wire services reported the vote count showing Rockefeller ahead."

The headline from the San Francisco Examiner the next day: "TV Pratfall—Fast Count. Rockefeller Sweeps Into the Lead."

Funkhouser's elementary truth rises: Rocky, of course, never did sweep into the lead. It was only that more Rockefeller returns were in at certain hours of the night.

Analysis in the past was made on votes as they were counted; predictions from those analyses were sometimes wrong.

THE SUCCESS of Vote Profile Analysis in projecting the June primary winner was that it selected 42 precincts so carefully in terms of geography, urban-suburban-rural, by ethnic groups and otherwise, that those 42 represented a miniature profile of the state's 33,000 precincts.

In that system also lies the anticipated speed and success of election night reporting No. 3. The three networks, ABC, CBS and NBC and the major wire services, Associated Press and United Press International are joining forces for the report under NES (Network Election Service.)

NES is calculated to provide not only quick results but, when the computers and analysis are applied, to project winners and to describe how the victory was put together.

TV network spokesmen have agreed at length in defense of reporting carefully scientific projections on winners election night, despite some criticism that such premature intelligence would influence voters in other parts of the nation who may not have cast their ballots.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, say the spokesmen, there is no proof that any voters are influenced one way or another. In the second place, the critics variously say the early projections create a bandwagon stampede for the leader, create an underdog sympathy for the lagger, or create a reluctance to vote at all in view of the apparently settled outcome.

In summary, the network people are bound and determined the nation will this Nov. 3 experience the fastest, most accurate election reporting in history.

Traffic Signal Timing Criticized

EDITOR:

Long Beach, an "international city," resembles a small Southern one-horse town in respect to the timing of many of its traffic signals. In most one-way streets of any sizeable town, traffic signals are systematically timed so as to keep traffic moving. Not so with 6th and 7th Streets in Long Beach.

What are the reasons for this ineptness in our traffic control?

Graveyards Take Too Much Space

EDITOR:

I am dismayed by the morbid funerals and barbaric pomp we go through when anyone dies. And the large graveyards around the country that could be used for homes for the living, and not storage yards for the dead.

I've traveled this world over and have seen millions of acres of good earth put to that use.

The only people of this earth that have enough brains to dispose of the dead in the cleanest and most sanitary way are the people of India.

We pay out thousands of dollars a year to have the trash moved away from our homes and burned up. So why not the human trash? Then there would be no fuss, no bother. All we would have to pay is $1.50 every two months and not the $1,000 to $2,000 we pay to get cried over.

EDITOR:

In all my life (and I am over 75) I have never heard a presidential candidate so vilified, lied about, misquoted and slandered as Sen. Goldwater.

The radical left, the A D A, the pinks have sure done a wonderful job of taking the spotlight from their activities and blaming everything on what they call the radical right.

Debate Issue: Should Doctor Mix Politics With Medicine?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently we published an article by staff writer Jack O. Baldwin quoting a letter circulated by two local physicians among their colleagues. The physicians' letter urged doctors to stock their waiting rooms with free political books. In an editorial in the same edition we criticized doctors fur feeding their patients propaganda with their prescription. The article and the editorial drew a large volume of comment from readers. Space limitations and the fact that many of the comments were repetitive prevent the use of all the letters in full. Here, however, are representative excerpts.)

EDITOR:

Your editorial and article about doctors brainwashing patients really hit home. It happened to me a couple of months ago. A woman on an examining table covered by a sheet is really a captive audience.

Perhaps dependent, easily-influenced patients will accept whatever the doctor says. In my case, I was merely annoyed and decided to change doctors. I suspect that will be the more common reaction with adults.

In the long run, shoving political opinions down unwilling throats will reduce both a doctor's case load and his party's possible total vote.

IF IT IS NOT ethical for a doctor to discuss politics in his office, then who sets the standards of ethics that allow labor unions to commit their members to certain platform, that permits college professors to brainwash the impressionable students concerning political views, management to influence electoral outcome, newspapers to control political propaganda, and government workers to assist in passage of legislation favorable to them?

Are we as physicians, who are interested in the free practice of medicine, different and, therefore, not permitted to voice our opinion concerning a problem dear to the heart to every American?

DREW PEARSON

Professors Have Rugged Time in Politics

WASHINGTON — Some of the political pros would have you believe that the halls of Congress should be reserved for the lawyers, the professionals, and that professors should stick to the cloistered halls of the colleges. Not so in actual practice.

PEARSON

Some of the toughest and most successful members of the Senate come straight out of the university, and this goes for other political jobs, such as Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, former Harvard professor; McGeorge Bundy, former Harvard dean, and so on.

The congressional profs, furthermore, may have deserted the Ivy League halls, but they have never deserted education.

During the closing days of the last Congress, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., former Dean of the University of Oregon Law School, staged a one-man filibuster which brought a badly-needed $5,000,000 to the overcrowded, under-staffed District of Columbia schools. He threatened to hold Congress up till he got the money, and he got it.

Most people have forgotten that Morse, one of the most hard-hitting members of the Senate, spent much of his life as a teacher. The top Senator on the Democratic side, Mike Mansfield, is a former history professor at Montana State University. He is up for re-election this time and will win easily.

The most famous professor in the Senate is probably Paul Douglas, D-Ill., who has taught economics in some of the foremost colleges in the nation and jumped from the University of Chicago into the Marines at the age of 50, then into the Senate.

Some professors have been given a hard time, simply because they were professors. Dr. Frank Graham, former President of the University of North Carolina, and one of the finest scholars ever to serve in the Senate, was crucified when he ran for re-election. His opponent circulated a photo in which he was shown shaking hands with a Negro. Graham was defeated.

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., one of the brightest of the new Senators, and a former history professor at the University of Wyoming, has been attacked and maligned by right-wing groups simply because he has generally voted for liberal legislation. The John Birch Society has made him its No. 1 Senate target. McGee has taken the beating philosophically and it now looks as if he would win.

Political ridicule heaped on the average professor when he runs for Congress is worse than on the average candidate. When Prof. Tom Bonner of the University of Omaha dared run against Rep. Glenn Cunningham, right-wing Republican of that city, he was so pillored that he retired. Bonner's opposition to a powerful congressman became embarrassing to university authorities, and Bonner moved to the University of Cincinnati.

* * * *

DESPITE this discouragement, one of the bright new candidates on the election horizon this year is Royce Hanson, professor of government at American University in Washington, running as a Democrat in Western Maryland.

Hanson is unique in that he has already been active in Congress. He played a backstage part in one of the most important filibusters of last session when a little band of liberals succeeded in blocking Sen. Everett Dirksen's delay of the Supreme Court's reappointment decision.

"Our real problem is making democracy work in the cities," says Prof. Hanson, "rather than in the rural areas."

This was why he helped support the Supreme Court's decision to adjust the rural balance in state legislatures.

"Second, we need a revision of congressional procedure. There is no sense in voting a budget for one year at a time. No successful business firm plans its financing that short range.

VISITS TO BASE, HARBOR CRUISES

Navy Week Celebration Starts in L.B. Tuesday

Los Angeles and Orange County Navy personnel will begin hosting Southland civilians and vice versa in observance of Navy Week.

In the Long Beach area, the celebration will start Tuesday with an open house at the naval station on Terminal Island and a civic banquet honoring Kenneth E. BeLieu, assistant secretary of the Navy.

Visitors will be conducted on tours at the station, refreshments will be served and motion pictures of fleet operations will be shown.

There will also be harbor cruises, and the public will be welcomed aboard the aircraft carrier, the USS Bennington, berthed at Pier E.

* * * *

MORE THAN 800 persons have made reservations for the Navy Day banquet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the International Ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel. BeLieu will be the principal speaker. Entertainment will feature the Long Beach Municipal Band and stars of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Association.

Rear Adm. Ralph K. James (ret.), former chief of the Bureau of Ships and former commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, will introduce the speaker. Ranking officers of the armed services in the area will attend.

BeLieu, a highly decorated veteran of both World War II and the Korean conflict, is assistant secretary for installations and logistics. The dinner honoring him was arranged by the city's Armed Services Commission.

ALSO ON Navy Day three Long Beach theaters —the Roxy, Palace and Imperial — will admit all service men in uniform free between 3 and 5 p.m. Tuesday. The Nu-Pike will admit service men free to all rides from 6 to 10 p.m.

Orange County Council of the Navy League of the United States will go all-out in a four-day celebration of Navy Week beginning Friday.

Highlight of the celebration will be four Navy ships, including the aircraft carrier USS Bennington, which will anchor off Newport Beach and entertain visitors during open house hours Saturday and Sunday.

Charles Thomas, former Secretary of the Navy, now head of the Irvine Company, is honorary chairman of the event, designed to honor the Navy and Marine Corps.

* * * *

FESTIVITIES will begin Friday with a Navy League banquet at the Disneyland Hotel in honor of Gen. C. H. Hayes, assistant commander of the Marine Corps. A special Navy League award will be made to Col. Evans Carlson.

Navy shore boats will transport visitors from the Balboa Pavilion to the Bennington and her escort ships, two destroyers and a missile launching ship from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Monday a special inspection and briefing for Orange County educators is scheduled aboard the Bennington.

Fourth grade pupils from the Washington Elementary School in Whittier, with their teacher, Mrs. Linda Upton, inspect the newly opened exhibition of giant carnivorous dinosaur at Los Angeles County Museum. The rare fossil is an Antrodemus valens, a ferocious predator of 130 million years ago.

130 MILLION YEARS OLD

County Museum Displaying Dinosaur's Fossil Remains

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Dinosaur means "terrible lizard," and the 130-million-year-old specimen now on display at Los Angeles County Museum certainly lives up to the description.

The fossil remains of a 25-foot-long Antrodemus valens, discovered in an excavation near Cleveland, Utah, are being shown in the museum's main entrance exhibition area.

When it roamed the earth the Mesozoic area, from about 200 million to 60 million B.C., the Antrodemus was one of the most feared of the dinosaurs.

It weighed from two to three tons, walked upright and used its powerful forelegs for grasping and tearing its prey, according to Dr. J. R. Macdonald, curator of paleontology.

* * * *

UNLIKE SOME of its contemporaries, the Antrodemus was a flesh-eater, Dr. Macdonald said.

The name Antrodemus describes the hollow backbones of the animal, while "valens" is Latin for strong, he explained.

The word dinosaur was coined in 1842 by the British paleontologist and anatomist Sir Richard Owen to describe the fossil specimens, which then were just being discovered.

The current museum specimen was discovered in a quarry near Cleveland, Utah, which has been the source of more than 1,000 bones, representing about 40 different kinds of dinosaurs.

It is a composite specimen, with bones from several individual animals and casts from other originals where bones were missing.

* * * *

DR. MACDONALD emphasized that the "bone" is not original bone. Over the millions of years, the original bone was replaced by chemical elements from the earth and from ground water—one of the processes of fossilization.

The current specimen was prepared over a 14-month period by Leonard C. Beesom, senior museum preparator, and Michael K. Hammer, museum preparator, under the direction of Dr. Macdonald and Dr. Shelton P. Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology.

To Speak Tuesday

Formerly manager of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's worldwide satellite-tracking network, Thatcher is the second speaker in the series on "The Move Into Space," sponsored by the City College forum department. He is also one of the top technical advisers in communications satellite developments.

* * * *

TRAINING EXPLAINED

Colonel Claude J. Norton, commander of Long Beach's 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, explains fundamentals of Civil Air Patrol training to CAP Cadets Susan Daugherty and Gordon Tipton. Long Beach Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol, official Air Force Auxiliary, is located on the Air Force portion of Long Beach Airport and meets on Wednesday nights from 7:30 to 10 in building T-424.

Higher Inspection Fees Asked for Bigger Stores

Fees charged by the Long Beach Health Department for inspection of larger food stores and liquor stores will be increased under one of a series of amendments pending before the City Council's ordinance committee.

City Manager John R. Mansell recommended the changes as a result of what Health Department officials described as defects in the inspection ordinance adopted nearly two years ago.

The present schedule provides for an annual $10 inspection fee for grocery stores, liquor stores and delicatessens regardless of size.

* * * *

OWNERS of "Mama and Papa" stores have complained that their larger competitors should pay more. Mansell and Dr. I. D. Litwack, city health officer, agreed.

Under the proposed amendment, the $10 charge will be retained for stores under 2,000 square feet. A $20 fee will be levied in the 2,000-4,000 square-foot category, and $30 for establishment of more than 4,000 square feet.

According to officials, 139 of the 310 stores now subject to inspection will pay higher fees. Added annual revenue to the city is estimated at $2,270.

Other amendments backed by the manager and health officer will make it easier for the Health Department to collect fees promptly and will also extend the charges to a few additional businesses.

* * * *

ONE PROPOSAL will impose a 10% penalty for non-payment of the inspection levy within 30 days after the due date. A similar penalty already applies to business licenses.

A $5 inspection charge is recommended for temporary concession stands set up in parking lots of shopping centers and along parade routes.

About 40 retail bakery trucks, inspected by the state until recent legislation transferred this responsibility to cities, will be charged a $10 annual fee.

HEALTH RESORT VISITED

Cortina Tours Glen Ivy

By BILL EMERY

Pick an American Plan resort to drive to in a snappy European import and the combination makes for an intriguing weekend . . . especially when the resort is being operated by a Dane . . . from Long Beach.

We picked up our motorlog car last weekend from Herb Baldwin, owner and manager of Plaza Motors at 17439 Clark Ave. in Bellflower . . . a Cortina GT English Ford, and set out to discover Glen Ivy Hot Springs resort just 14 miles south of Corona on State Highway 71.

With the new San Diego Freeway east of Long Beach still suffering from growing pains, we chose to drive out Westminster Boulevard to the Newport Freeway north to the Riverside Freeway and south at Corona on 71 to Glen Ivy. The trip takes less than one hour.

We arrived in time to check into the Ming Room, a spacious room annex decorated from the Ming Dynasty — China—and proceeded to dinner.

Meal after meal became an experience in gastronomical delight and we came to appreciate the talents of the kitchen with a head chef on deck 20 years and assistant for 15 years.

The best way to describe this resort is that it carries a family air about it. Even the guests pick up this feeling and run with it. Some of them are so loyal to the resort they come almost every weekend.

At Christmas time many gather here for a family get-together and exchange gifts.

Thus is the feeling that predominates at Glen Ivy. You can fly in (as many do on the 2300-foot landing strip) or drive in from Corona or Elsinore. The benefits are excellent food, stimulating baths in three varying hot pools, a variety of bath and massage services for both men and women and a multitude of recreational activities.

ENGLISH FORD

We drove our English Ford Cortina GT coupe on down to Elsinore where the lake is filled to the camping grounds and activity at a new high level. This is the car that was proclaimed by the Swiss motoring annual as "International car of the year" because of its outstanding performance, reliability and versatility in competition around the world.

In announcing the award, the editor pointed out that no other car in any production class has ever won so many victories in so many different events in so many markets of the world as has Cortina.

Competition-modified Cortinas have racked up more than 200 national championships in 23 countries to date. The one event that seemed to clinch the top award was the dramatic victory of a stock Cortina in the 1964 East African Safari Rally, described as the world's meanest, muddiest event.

It lasts four days and covers a 3,188-mile course through the mountains and jungles of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The 94 starters in this year's Safari dwindled to 21 at the finish—and five of these were Cortinas, finishing first, second, third, tenth and fifteenth. Cortina won first second, third and fourth in its class in this event.

The Cortina is a roomy 5-seater built tough to give many years of practical motoring with outstanding dependability. It has a 4-cylinder, overhead valve, 1500-cc engine that develops up to 84-hp.

The transmission is 4-speed all-synchromesh standard equipment . . . with an automatic optional. Cortina offers a 2 and 4-door sedan, a GT, a station wagon and a compact Anglia delivery van.

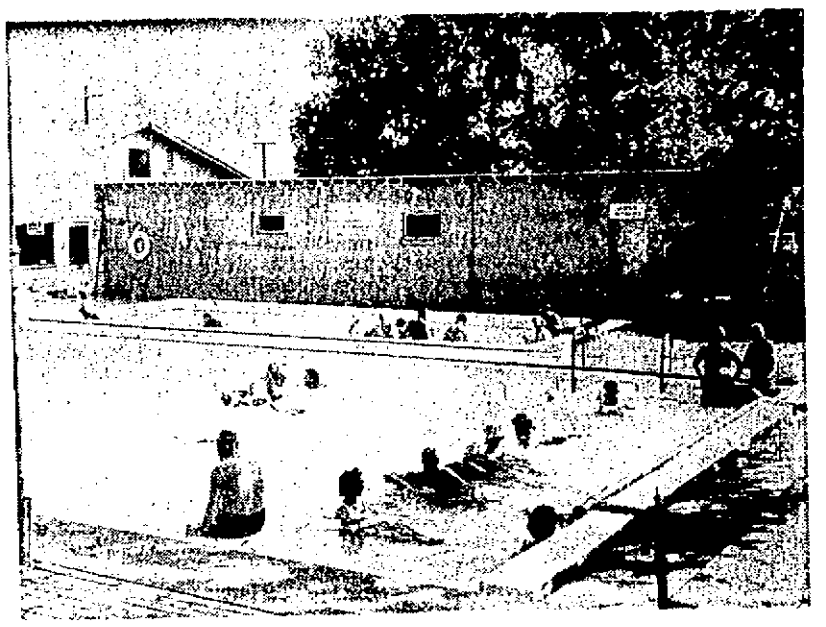

The Cortina 2-door lists for $1845 and the GT model with the high performance engine at about $300 more.

With a top speed of over 100 mph, the GT model gets an easy 28 mpg of gasoline on the road. It cruises comfortably at high speeds with amazing engine silence. For a compact, the GT has surprising comfort and roadability.

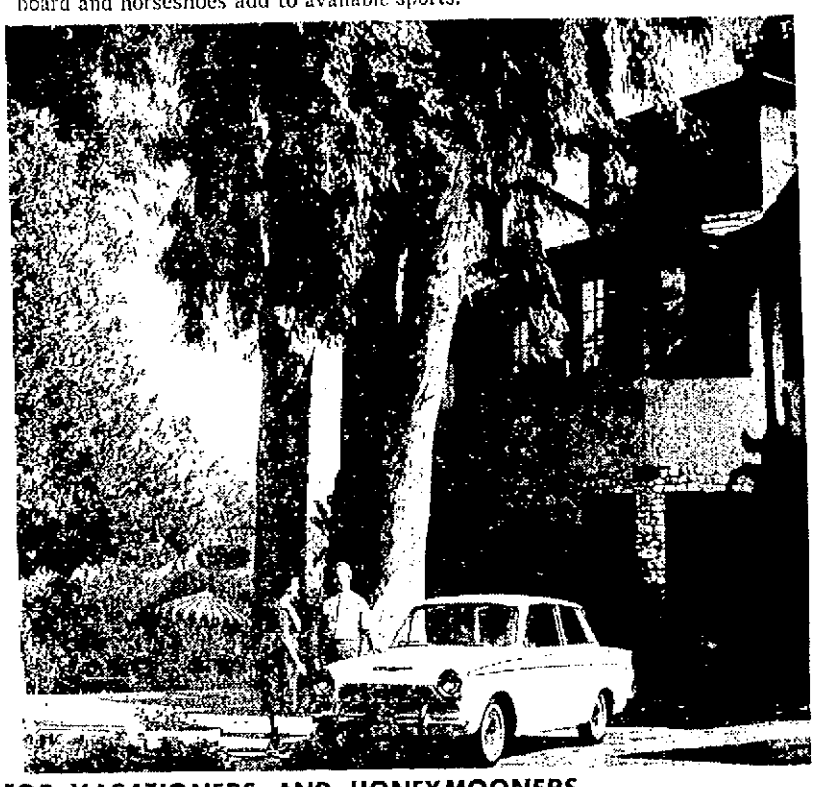

RESORT HOSTS CORTINA

Alex and Florence Springborg, former Long Beach residents, welcome motorlog Cortina party to Glen Ivy. Alex, a member of Long Beach's El Bekal mounted patrol, is a familiar participant in Southland parades with his Palomino "King." Duke, the St. Bernard dog, is a mascot of Glen Ivy.

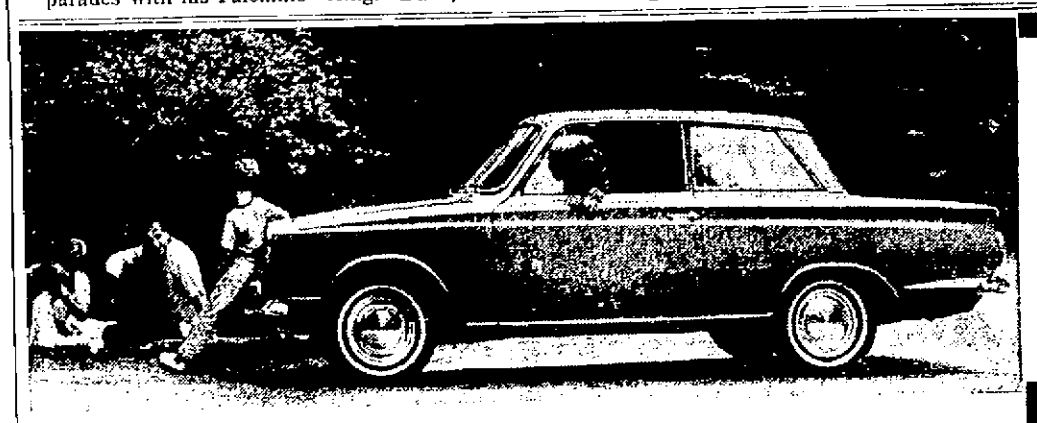

THREE MINERAL POOLS

Over 200,000 gallons of hot mineral water daily flow through three pools at temperatures varying from 109-degrees F to 90-degrees. Tennis, shuffleboard and horseshoes add to available sports.

FOR VACATIONERS AND HONEYMOONERS

The famous smorgasbord served on weekends is an experience you will long remember. Hotel and cottages are reasonably priced on the American plan.

FILM PREVIEWS

Films Debut Wednesday

Three new films opening Wednesday in area theaters are "Behold a Pale Horse," "The Lively Set" and "Malamondo."

Dealing with the aftermath of the Civil War in Spain, "Behold a Pale Horse," features regory Peck, Anthony Quinn and Omar Sharif with the Spanish Pyrenees for background.

Cast of the Fred Zinneman produced-directed film includes Paoloa Stoppa, Mildred Dunnock and Raymond Pellegrin.

The story deals with a guerrilla leader (Peck) who has been soughtb y a police captain (Quinn) for 15 years, and the trap laid to capture the guerrilla, warned of the danger by a priest (Sharif).

* * * *

YOUTHFUL stars, catchy music and auto racing blend in "The Lively Set," in color with James Darren, Pamela Tiffin, Joanie Sommers, Doug McClure and Marilyn Maxwell.

The story is about a school dropout, an automotive engineer who needs more education to reach his goal. It also features the new Chrysler turbine engine automobile.

In the lead roles, James Darren and Pamela Tiffin and Doug McClure and Joanie Sommers are teamed. Miss Sommers makes her acting debut as a night-club singer.

Others in the cast are Marilyn Maxwell as Darren's mother; Charles Drake as his father; Peter Mann, Caroline Wells and five internationally known auto race drivers—Mickey Thompson, Duane Carter, Billy Krause, James Nelson and Ron Miller.

Singer Bobby Darin not only wrote the screen score but contributed five of the tunes sung in the film by Darren, Miss Sommers, Wink Martindale and the Surfaris.

* * * *

LACK OF MORAL stability of youth is portrayed in "Malamondo," dealing with brawling and bacchanalian times of some of today's misguided and amoral youth.

Filmed in many countries of modern Europe, its subject is that sector of the world's youth, many from wealthy families, who are caught up in a maze of frustration and despair and uncertainties.

Andriano Celentano, Rome singing rave, plays role in the film, which has a foreword by Bertrand Russell.

PAMELA TIFFIN and James Darren, young lovers of "The Lively Set.

De la Varre to Appear at Crest

Andre de la Varre, Academy Award winning photographer, will personally present the Burton Holmes color travel adventure, "Fabulous Spain," at the Crest Theater at 2 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

De la Varre photographed the picture last summer on a 15,000 mile tour of Spain.

ON SEAL BEACH STAGE

Boyea Racial Play Powerful

By VERA WILLIAMS

Samuel Boyea's powerful play on race relations, "A Lie a Century Long" was presented by the Actors' Company in its world premier Friday night in the Peppermint Playhouse in Seal Beach.

The audience left the theater after the play saying "This should be on Broadway!" or "This would make a fine movie. Everyone ought to see it."

As an experiment, Boyea, drama critic of The Independent, Press-Telegram, chose an all-Caucasian cast to present his play about Harlem.

Larry Johns directs, and Kay Carroll is producer. The acting is of professional caliber.

* * * *

BOYEA, born in British Guiana, well knows the struggles and heartaches of the family who are the core of his play—Gladstone and Victoria Lettman, immigrants from British Guiana rearing their children in the Harlem jungle.

"Lie" is the new American tragedy of choice: wealth of choice or misery of choice, and Boyea, Johns, their actors and stage crew present it well.

Liz Casey, president of the Hollywood-Beverly Hills NAACP, brings compassion and vital force to the role of Victoria. Edwin Gangel, who looks and acts something like Cary Grant is Gladstone, who, after 30 years, clings to the memory of his Guiana plantation.

Sue Sabas, a striking Texas-born redhead, is a fiery Satia, torn by her love for her parents, her weakling brother and her passion for Domino, Harlem prince of darkness.

Frank Coresentino, well on his way to a career on stage and television, is the distraught Dred, "hooked" on dope. Celeste Clinton plays Raquel, appealing and pregnant Puerto Rico girl; Phil Di Gioia is a breezy Domino.

SMALLER roles are handled capably by Michael Nash as the bug exterminator; Darlene Chaffee, as "club" member; Val Rodriguez, physician. Mary Jaco and Michael Nash present the Three Kings' Day Chorus.

The theme song, "A Lie a Century Long", music by Carlo San Paolo, words by Sue Sabas, is sung by Di Giota.

Linda Gorchester is in charge of the sound. One of her best effects is the simulated heartbeat of an unborn child which become the heart-cry of all Harlem, all mankind.

The play will not be given today, but hereafter will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through November at the Peppermint Playhouse, 124 Main St., Seal Beach.

DAN O'HERLIHY

He'd Settle for Bit (Better) Role

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Dan O'Herlihy's precisely the kind of Irishman you don't expect to meet . . . when you're going to interview one who's had tremendous movie and TV success and is entitled to get roaring drunk and do some boisterous bragging.

He was quietly drinking tea when we got together, he spun no Irish yarns, and when we discussed his great role of Air Force chief in "Fail Safe," Dan O'Herlihy said:

"Henry Fonda is the finest actor I've ever worked with. Even talking about him makes me jealous. He can do anything and everything.

"When he did the 'hot line' scene from the White House, everybody was too stunned to applaud. I asked him how he did it. He smiled and said, 'It came out almost as good as I wanted it to.'

"Almost! It was fantastic!"

* * * *

O'HERLIHY is top-billed in the picture which would have made it proper for him to say something about his own performance.

"It's the first picture I've starred in that is going to make a mint," is the closest he would come to it.

O'Herlihy, father of five—Olven, Gavan, Cormac, Lorcan and Patricia—and a product of Dunlaghaire, Ireland, who gave up architecture to act, will drink, but not a lot.

"And I've never sen a leprechaun," he said, "I think there's a connection between these statements. If the Irish drank less, they would see fewer leprechauns."

* * * *

HE COMES from a resolute Irish family. His mother came to the U.S. recently to live with Dan and his wife in Hollywood.

An airlines stewardess asked his mother if she wanted to see a movie.

"No, I'm saving my eyes for my Dan's films," she said.

A few years ago, his brother Mike asked Dan for fare to come to American.

"Find your own way over like I did," Dan said. Mike got a 28-foot sailboat and made his way to the U.S. by way of Azores, sold the boat, went to Hollywood and became a big Hollywood director.

* * * *

DAN, WHO made a potful from doing the TV series, "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters," recently turned down the third largest role in James B. Harris' "The Bedford Incident," which would have meant co-starring with Sidney Poitier and Richard Widmark.

"It's one of the best scripts I've ever read but the part didn't strike me as being me," Dan said.

"But there's a much smaller role, that of a German U-boat commander, which appeals to me more . . . and you should hear my German accent! I wish you'd ask Mr. Harris to offer this Irishman that smaller role!"

* * * *

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Robert Morse notes that some shows in theaters that serve liquor have received mixed notices: "The critics hate the shows, but like the drinks."

* * * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A visitor to the World's Fair feels sorry for U.S. Steel. "They spent $2,000,000 to build that Unisphere and haven't sold a single one yet!"

Independent Oil Group Will Meet

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An annual strategy session for combating two old problems—oil imports and federal efforts to control wellhead prices of natural gas—will be held the next three days by the nation's independent oil operators.

Oilmen from nearly 40 states are to attend the 35th meeting of the 7,500-member independent Petroleum Association of America.

The Houston meeting comes at a time the association's traditional position as chief Washington spokesman for the nation's independents has been challenged at least indirectly by some operators from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Differences of opinion on the most effective method for controlling imports broke into the open at the association's mid-year meeting in May in New Orleans. These differences also figured prominently in the September annual meeting at Fort Worth of the 4,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

* * * *

THE NATIONAL Association favors curtailing imports by strengthening the mandatory controls program administered by the Interior Department.

The Texans long have advocated a tariff or indirect duty as the best way to limit imports. This position is supported by the Liaison Committee of Cooperating Associations, a group headed by J. A. Mull Jr., Wichita, Kan., and representing 26 state and regional trade associations in 23 oil states.

Earl W. Turner, executive vice president of the Texas association, said at Fort Worth the Texas independents are proud of the national association but concerned over its reluctance to accept the failure of the mandatory controls program.

"LIAISON HAS a very key role in bringing about the pressure needed for obtaining improvements," he said. "We've been called radicals rocking the boat but we have no alternative—we must back a program that will bring definite relief."

The national association's imports policy committee meets in preliminary session Monday morning. Tariffs probably will be discussed but the committee is expected to recommend Tuesday that the association continue to seek mandatory controls program revisions that would slash imports quotas some 250,000 to 300,000 barrels a day.

The Natural Gas policy committee is expected to recommend Monday reaffirmation of plans to place before Congress in January a bill that would remove wellhead prices from the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

Two such bills have been approved by Congress, only to be vetoed by Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

MOST CONGRESSIONAL and industry leaders have indicated efforts for passage of a third bill will require direct support from the White House.

Both President Lyndon B. Johnson and Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republican nominee, supported the old gas bills in the Senate. Neither has made public comment on the issue, however, during their current presidential campaign.

H. A. (Dave) True, Casper, Wyo., will make his presidential report at Monday's opening general session.

Other speakers include Lt. Gen. W. O. Senter, who is in charge of Defense Department purchases of petroleum products; Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., and Rear Adm. O. P. Lattu, director of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas.

Spanish Soldiers

MAULEON, France (AP) — A blizzard caught a company of Spanish soldiers in the Pyrenees Saturday and four of them froze to death. A dozen others were missing while the remaining 61 found their ways to safety or were rescued.

French helicopters recovered the frozen bodies of four soldiers and evacuated six others with cases of frostbite.

Freeway Route Meet Tuesday

needed it will be obtained before the engineer makes his recommendation.

The commission will then notify the city that it intends to consider the location of the freeway at a specified meeting. The commission may on its own, or at city request, hold an additional hearing before adopting a route.

* * * *

FOLLOWING adoption of a route, actual designing of the freeway will be started and a freeway agreement will be made between the state and city regarding closing of streets, placements of utilities, etc.

After that, detailed design will be completed, rights of way certified, appraised and acquired as funds become available. The right of way then will be cleared and construction started.

The whole process from now to completion likely will be between eight and 10 years.

The approximate route for the Pacific Coast Freeway was adopted by the state legislature. The precise alignment will be set, by law, by the Highway Commission.

* * * *

THE STATE already has constructed segments of the Pacific Coast Freeway south of Oxnard and near Capistrano Beach. Other sections of the route have been adopted, but not yet built.

Highway officials say they are concerned about the construction of the freeway through Long Beach because of congestion of local east-west streets now existing and because additional congestion will be created when the San Gabriel River Freeway finally reaches the Garden Grove Freeway next year.

Studies by both state and local highway engineers show that east-west streets in Long Beach from Pacific Coast Highway south to the Ocean carry more than 150,000 cars daily.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH it is too early to tell the exact effect of the newly completed San Diego Freeway section through the community, it appears that only about 25,000 cars will be diverted to that route from the 150,000 daily count.

By 1980, just a few years after completion of the new freeway, it is expected by conservative estimates that cross-town traffic will be approximately 200,000 cars daily. It is estimated that some 100,000 of these vehicles would use the new freeway still leaving 100,000 on the local city streets.

Issues that are bound to arise in connection with freeway construction here concern effect on land values and on city taxes.

* * * *

IN A "Final Report of the Highway Cost Allocation Study, Part VI," submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Commerce in 1961 these comments were made:

"Although the influence of highway improvements on land values may extend for miles on either side of a major highway improvement, values of land adjacent to the highway ordinarily increase faster than those of land farther from the highway."

In a compilation taken from 183 study areas along freeways, the report found that the annual rate of value increase for land along freeways ranged (for various classifications of land) from 6% to 18% or "from 2 to 6 times the current annual growth in gross national product."

* * * *

PROBABLY the most significant impact—because of the amount of land so used—is the effect on residential property.

"The general tendency," the report said," is for residential properties adjacent to a highway of modern design to increase in value faster than properties more removed from the facility . . . Values of residential properties do not, of course, always exhibit immediate gains from highway improvements . . . Highway proximity in some instances adversely affects the usefulness of land for residential purposes.

"Benefits which established residential areas can derive from improved highway service may be indicated by such changes as shorter travel time for work and shopping, additional people making use of the area for residential purposes, and increases in land values . . . How residents feel about a highway facility provides an important indication of the highway's social and economic impact on a local community. The negative effects of highway improvements are often immediately apparent and therefore overstressed. On the other hand modern highway facilities are quite acceptable to the major portion of residents in areas served by these facilities."

Regarding tax effects the report said "the acquisition of property for highway use ordinarily has the immediate effect of removing some property from the tax rolls. However, longer range effects of highway construction on tax revenues have proven to be generally favorable."

Lions Give $1,000 to Girl Group

West Long Beach Lions Club will present a $1,000 check to Long Beach Council of Campfire Girls at dinner at 7 p.m. Oct. 29 at the Chandelier Restaurant, 4205 Atlantic Ave. The money will go toward construction of an Adirondack cabin at the Campfire mountain camp at Running Springs near Lake Arrowhead.

The cabin will be the first of 26 new units, planned to replace tents at the camp.

Ed Young, chairman of the boys and girls committee of West Long Beach Lions Club, will present the check, which will be received by a Campfire Girl. Mrs. Joan Finn, new executive director, and Mrs. John Gerhardt, Council president, also will be present.

Grabowski Leads Illini Over Bruins

Rose Bowl Hero Rips, Snorts for 3 TDs, 171 Yards

By JEROME HALL
I.-P-T Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — If you have ever wondered what an Illini is, it's a two-legged animal that gobbles up yardage and eats up opposing football teams.

The University of Illinois pointed one of its animals at a bunch of nice fellows from UCLA Saturday and the result was 26-7 triumph for the Big Tenners.

There was nothing fancy, nothing tricky about this Illini animal, but few of the 68,727 spectators that filled Memorial Stadium here were interested in the finer points of the game.

They flocked back to the campus on Dads Day to see victory in any form it might come, for the previous home game for the Illinois team had been a 26-0 embarrassment by Ohio State.

* * * *

FULLBACK Jim Grabowski, a 211-pound piledriving bruiser who made the difference in last January's Rose Bowl victory, gave them what they wanted. Grabowski ripped and snorted through the nice fellows from UCLA, a total of 27 times. He gained 171 yards and scored three touchdowns on gallops of 33, 8 and 4 yards.

The other Illini TD was a two-yard center squeeze by QB Fred Custardo whose short stabs at the line on option plays gave him 53 net yards and made him the day's second-leading rusher.

Custardo would have been a much bigger hero if his teammates had not dropped so many of his passes.

His teammates did better with Bruin quarterbacks' passes, as a matter of unpleasant fact. The Illini intercepted three on Larry Zeno and one of his understudy, Steve Sindell.

Zeno ran for 48 yards and completed seven of 19 tosses for 107 yards.

While Illinois was clearly superior, the Bruins got none the best of it in luck and had two drives stopped inside the four yard line, one of them in the end zone on a penalty. Without Grabowski, it would have been an even match. He was unanimous choice of the press as back of the game.

* * * *

ILLINOIS coach Pete Elliott called Zeno "phenomenal. He not only made some fantastic throws, he runs exceptionally well." Elliott disclosed that he made a major adjustment at halftime, calling off the red dog rush "so everybody could go where Zeno was going." They did.

The Illini got the ball on the Bruin 38 the first time and ended up on the 38 four plays later. Three plays later Zeno threw into the arms of a blue-shirted Illini linebacker at the Bruin 46 but a field goal try from the 31 failed.

Not until nearly a quarter of the game had elapsed did the Illini cash in. It was after a 26-yard Bruin punt into a stiff wind. The victors went 54 yards in nine plays. Grabowski got the TD on an 8-yard run through the middle, standing straight all the way.

The Bruins got on the scoreboard for the first time in 10

Fertig Outpasses Morton; Bears Pass Out, 26-21

By DAVE LEWIS

Craig Fertig, whose passing had been subject to strong criticism in recent days, fired his fourth touchdown aerial of the game with just 50 seconds remaining to give the Trojans of Southern California a breath-taking 26-21 victory over California Saturday at the Coliseum before 48,105 fans.

The game-winning pass, a 22-yard bomb to Rod Sherman, who grabbed the ball between two Cal defenders in the end zone, climaxed an unbelievable comeback by the Trojans and kept them in strong contention for the Rose Bowl bid.

The Trojans appeared to be dead with 4:35 left to play when a two-point conversion try failed, leaving them a point shy of the Golden Bears, 21-20.

And they were all but buried when Fertig was spilled back on the USC four-yard line with just 2:05 left in the game.

* * * *

THE FINAL GASP seemed imminent seconds later when, with only 1:56 to go, Troy was faced with a not-too-promising 4th-and-5 situation on its own 23. But Fertig, cool in the face of threatened disaster, hit Fred Hill for 18 yards on the do-or-die play to pick up a firstdown and breathe new life into the Trojan War Horse.

From there, Fertig passed 21 yards to Mike Garrett and 22 yards to Hill as the Bears reeled under the growing momentum of the Trojan onslaught. Then he hammered home the knockout blow with his strike to Sherman after finding the primary target on the play, Hill, hopelessly covered.

The ballots already had been collected in the press box naming California's Craig Morton "back of the game" when Fertig picked the Trojans off the floor and carried them 96 yards on six straight completions in the quick time of one minute and 15 seconds to cap one of the most spectacular collegiate games ever played in the Coliseum.

* * * *

MORTON HAD ONE of his greatest afternoons as he hurled touchdown strikes of 6 and 45 yards to flankers Jerry Mosher and Neil Bradley, scored a third TD himself on a five-yard run, and passed for a two-point conversion in completing 18 of 28 aerials for 219 yards.

But Fertig's fantastic final flurry of passes not only nullified the brilliant performance by the great Bear quarterback, it shattered three Trojan records and equalled another as the son of the Huntington Park police chief wound up hitting 21 of 28 for 371 yards, including touchdowns of 44 and 22 yards to Sherman, 25 yards to John Thomas, and 45 to Garrett.

This broke Jim Powers' previous highs of 19 completions for 293 yards against Washington in 1949, bettered Russ Saunders' long-standing one-game total offense mark of 282 yards against Idaho in '29, and equalled Pete Beathard's record of four TD tosses against Wisconsin in the 1963 Rose Bowl.

California outplayed the heavily-favored Trojans most of the way. The Bears twice were frustrated on drives that carried to the USC three-yard line. Still they might have salvaged the win but for the fact that Tom Blanchfield missed two field goal attempts from point-blank range—the 10-yard line in the opening moments of play, and the 17 at the outset of the third period.

* * * *

OUTSIDE OF THEIR four scoring sorties, Troy was only able to cross the midfield stripe three times. USC punted after reaching the Cal 46 in the first quarter, rolled to the Bear 22 in the closing moments of the first half on Ron Heller's 45-yard run only to have an interception break up the threat, and moved to the 40 early in the last period before fumbling the ball away.

While a satisfying victory, it was a costly one for the Trojans as they now gear for the invasion next Saturday of the Washington Huskies. Defensive star Tom Lupo apparently was lost for the season with torn ligaments in the left knee. Long Beach's Denis Richman suffered a possible fractured fibula in the right leg, and Thomas was carried from the field with an injured left knee.

49ers Drub Mats, 24-0

By AL LARSON

Buoyed by Shelly Novack's record 94-yard touchdown run on an intercepted pass, Long Beach State rolled to its fifth victory in six starts by defeating San Fernando Valley, 24-0, Saturday night in CCAA play at Monroe High field, Northridge.

The Matadors lost all heart when Long Beach's defense pilfered five passes. It marked the first time in season that Valley State has been shut out. The Matadors' record is 4-2.

Coach Don Reed's 49ers were unable to break the Matadors' defensive key for better than 20 minutes, but quarterback Jerry Otterson generated a sudden spark and L. B. struck for two touchdowns late in the half to grab a 14-0 intermission lead.

* * * *

FULLBACK Bob Boozell kicked a 24-yard field goal in the third period and Novack capped the scoring with his scintillating 94-yard scamper. The 49er defender snatched Max Choboian's aerial on his own 4. It was a futile goal-ward race for three Matadors

Vikes Win Fifth in Row

By GARY RAUSCH

Relying on a stubborn pass defense and quick-hitting offense, Long Beach City College staved off numerous second-half rallies to gain its fifth consecutive victory, 22-14, over a spirited L. A. Valley team Saturday night.

A crowd of 5,500 at Monarch Field watched Valley's fine quarterback Dudley Schusterick attempt to knock the Vikings off their No. 2 national rating with a continuous aerial barrage.

The 5-11, 170-pound Miami, Fla., transfer, who prepped at Birmingham High, let fly with 34 passes and completed 12 for 276 yards and one touchdown.

But four of his tosses were duds, picked off by white-shirted Vikings. Tony Sutera pilfered three, one in the second period and two in the third, while Pat Cashman got the fourth with 1:27 remaining in the game.

Not enough credit can be given Cashman and Bob Stiles for the excellent job they did in covering Schusterick's favorite target, Bill Hayhoe, who at 6-7½ is nearly a foot taller than either of the defenders.

The Vikings extended their lead to 22-0 late in the third period. Culotta fumbled to Jack Hale at the Valley 31. Quarterback Greg Barton, after faking handoffs to Marv Motley and Elwood Stewart, lobbed a 22-yarder to split-end Ron Drake for a first down on the 9.

Two plays later, Motley followed blocks by co-captain Fred Convertini and Tom Ammirato on a nine-yard TD sweep of right end. Barton hit Jack Tucker with a swing pass for the PAT.

The Monarchs finally got on the scoreboard 53 seconds into the final stanza with Schusterick and Culotta combining on a 61-yard pass and run play after a Viking punt. It was Schusterick's ninth TD pass of the year.

Barton suffered his third interception of the campaign on the next series and the surging Monarchs

The Sunday Sermon

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Irrepressible Beans Reardon, the legendary umpire, has just returned from a month's tour of Europe and (as if you didn't know) proclaimed the highlight was the Munich Beer Festival. Seconds to the motion were made by Bob Wenke, the attorney, and Arthur Edwards, the paint and hockey baron. Naturally, Reardon had one comment, however: "The Germans drink beer all day, but there's a reason. The stuff's weak."

BEANS REARDON
Days of Beer & Roses

. . . Reardon might have been a bit prejudiced. He's August Busch's western Budweiser representative. In such a capacity, Beans naturally supported Busch when we asked him what he thought of the St. Louis mogul's action in firing Bing Devine (baseball's general manager of the year) and letting his World Series championship manager, Johnny Keane, quit cold.

. . . "The club was down in midseason," boomed Beans, "and the owner had to do something. Devine was going to be fired or quit of his own accord at the end of the season, he he just was fired before the season was over. I think Devine's firing—no matter what kind of ball club he had built—spurred the Cardinals. The players were shocked and expressed their sentiments to Bing personally. That shock won them the pennant."

. . . It's Reardon's opinion also that if the Cardinals hadn't fired Devine, they wouldn't have been shaken from the lethargy that gripped them since the season started.

KEANE'S JUMP to the Yankees didn't bother Reardon. "Keane's going to New York is no big loss to St. Louis," declared Reardon. "You wrote this before you were back in St. Louis during the season and I've heard it, too—that Keane wasn't too popular with the players. The Devine incident spurred the players, not Keane. The Cardinals' new manager, Red Schoendienst, is really popular in St. Louis. If he can handle those guys—and I think he can—there's no loss. You've got the same ballplayers, with a manager they like. I think the Cardinals can win it again—without Keane."

. . . Keane IS a hard taskmaster. With this knowledge, one wonders how he will fare next season with pin stripe prima donnas like Joe Pepitone, Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle—with Ralph Houk and Yogi Berra, his predecessors, in the background yet! Next season looms interesting, indeed.

. . . Postscript: Wasn't that a corking line unleased Saturday by Branch Rickey, the ousted Cardinal ancient who was supposed to be in back of the "Durocher for Manager" campaign before the Redbirds started their drive? "Even in my most incoherent dreams," wailed The Branch, "I would never advocate that Durocher be hired as manager." (And what's that adage about rodents deserting a sinking vessel?)

CLIENT'S CORNER:

. . . "What kind of snow job is Bill Brundage trying to pull on Friday night college football (channel 13)? Last week he emphasized that Harbor JC had the inside track to the Jr. Rose Bowl, plus reiterating seven times Harbor is fifth in the nation in ratings. Not once did he mention Long Beach City College. Bless her heart, the Jr. Rose Bowl queen said Long Beach 'was right in there' when Brundage brought the subject up with her. Brundage certainly gives a pretty sad display of biased reporting." (signed) Dr. John A. Saylor, 5406 Village Rd.

(His stooges apparently forgot to tell Bill that Long Beach has ranked above Harbor in national ratings ALL SEASON—and is in a far tougher league. Also—and not incidentally—the Metropolitan Conference, by its own vote, turned down channel 13's telecast invitation!)

. . . "Our Bellflower Pop Warner League football team has been designated to go to Hawaii to represent the U.S. Dec. 19. The designation is wonderful, but we need $3,000 for these boys from Long Beach, Lakewood and surrounding areas to make the trip. They're selling candy and doing everything possible to raise the money. But they need more help and would appreciate any contribution from anybody. The coach is Carroll Price (TOpaz 9-7256, 6399 E. Florence, Bell Gardens). I'm just a team mother trying to help." (signed) Alma Levers, 5853 Silva St., Lakewood (TOrrey 7-0164).

. . . "In this drastic time, I cannot understand how people can feel as they do. In all sports, both black and white players are in such close harmony that viewers cheer and praise both. But why is it that after sports events are over, these same spectators are so against colored people being granted equal rights? The white people should take inventory and be ashamed, for if they can pat them on the back and cheer for them in sports, why can't they continue this same feeling and want them to be granted equal rights in other matters? I hope this letter will be published. It may be effective in making people realize that the colored people are human beings and not just FIGURES in the sports world." (signed) Harold F. Gutrow, Long Beach.

(I agree wholeheartedly with you sir. I also hope your letter might produce a needed change of heart.)

Blades Lose to Seattle in Last Period

Totems' 4-2 Win Regains Lead in WHL Scramble

SEATTLE (AP)—The Seattle Totems regained first place in the Western Hockey League Saturday night when they downed the Blades, 4-2.

Seattle, with a one-man advantage, got its first goal with 4½ minutes gone in the first period when Bill Deneen connected from 15 feet out. Guyle Fielder made it 2-0 a little more than two minutes later.

Midway through the period, the Totems had trouble clearing the puck and Norm Johnson controlled it in front of the Seattle net. He slapped it in for the first Blade score.

* * * *

WITH JUST 40 seconds gone in the second period the score was tied. Harold White got the goal after he and Willie O'Ree got away on a two-on-one break.

Jean Marie Cossette took a long lateral pass from Bill MacFarland, faked Blade goalie Jack Norris, and put Seattle in front for good at the 14:57 mark of the third period. He was knocked down as he shot by Howie Young of the Blades.

With Young in the penalty box, Bob Barlow got away on a power play to score the final goal.

CAL FIELD GOAL FOILED BY TROY
First-period field goal attempt by California's Tom Blanchfield (21) is blocked by two Southern California Trojans, including end Dave Moton (82). No. 47 is USC's Ernie Pye. Trojans rallied to pull out 26-21 victory at Coliseum.

The TD came 3:13 into the final period.

Ernie McBride's 42-yard romp got L. B. moving with 12:18 elapsed in the second period.

The 49ers came right back with Otterson completing passes of 29 and 31 yards to McBride and Pat Brosnan to set up Dick Degen's TD burst up the middle.

The victory was LBSC's first in two conference outings and evened Valley's league record at 1-1.

* * * *

AFTER FINDING the groove, Otterson wound up connecting on 10 of 19 attempts for 170 yards. In a backup role, Dave Thompson was 0 for 5.

Choboian was Valley's big show, gaining 39 yards on rollouts and completing 11 of 24 passes. The only trouble was four of his pitches wound up in enemy hands. His replacement, George St. John, was 5 for 15 with one interception. Long Beach's five interceptions matched a school record set against Fresno last year. The 129 yards returned was a school mark.

Brosnan was L. B.'s favorite target again pulling in four passes for 82 yards.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT this was the best we've been scouted in two years," said Coach Reed. "They took everything away we like to do (referring to L. B.'s outside game). They played perfect defensive ball for 20 minutes.

"On the other hand, this had to be one of our best efforts since they were able to contain Willie Martin on sweeps. Interceptions led to three of our scores and what was more important, it took them out of scoring zone and put us in good field position."

Celts, Hawks Win, Remain Unbeaten

Compiled From Wire Reports

Boston remained unbeaten in the Eastern Division (3-0) and St. Louis won its second without a loss in the Western Division of National Basketball Assn. play Saturday night.

The shooting of Sam Jones and a typically tenacious defense keyed the Celtics to a 131-103 victory over Baltimore, while center Zelmo Beaty was the hot man for the Hawks in their 126-86 rout of Philadelphia.

Jones, who topped all scorers with 28 points, hit 11 in the first period as the Celtics took a 30-23 lead they never relinquished. A 12-0 spurt in the third period iced the game.

Beaty, a key figure in the Hawks' drive for the title, tallied 23 points and rebounded well. Old pros Cliff Hagan and Bob Pettit had 19 and 18 points, respectively.

In the only other game, the Detroit Pistons beat the New York Knicks 118-108 in overtime on the 30-point performance of second-year man Eddie Miles from Seattle University.

The Knicks had a 15-point lead at one time and led 102-100 with 13 seconds left in regulation play until the Pistons' Ray Scott deadlocked the score, forcing the overtime.

USC--

Feelings ran high throughout the game and reached a boiling point after Cal regained the lead, 21-14, early in the fourth quarter when Moton and Cal's Jerry Walter mixed it up briefly and were ejected from the game.

Cal served notice it would be a tough nut for the Trojans to crack by taking the opening kickoff and moving 77 yards on the ground to the USC three before Blanchfield's first field goal attempt was blocked by Moton.

* * * *

ONCE THE BEARS broke the scoring ice late in the second half on Morton's six-yard pass to Mosher, developments unfolded at a machinegun-like pace.

Because Blanchfield missed the conversion, the Trojans were able to take a 7-6 lead into the halftime intermission on Fertig's 25-yard aerial to Thomas with just 1:41 left and Dick Brownell's extra point.

It appeared as if the Trojans were ready to crack the game wide open when they jumped into a 14-6 advantage midway in the third period on Fertig's 44-yarder to Sherman.

But the Bears came back to tie it up with a 77-yard drive. Morton carried it over from the five at 12:17, then passed to Mosher for a two-point conversion to make it 14-14.

As the period drew to a close, the Trojans went for the yardage on 4th-and-1 at midfield, but Fertig missed the first down by a foot on the Cal 49.

* * * *

THAT LEFT the door open for Morton to propel the Bears into a 21-14 lead with a 45-yard aerial to Bradley.

Fertig's 45-yarder to Garrett closed the gap to 21-20 with 4:13 left, but USC missed a two-point conversion that would have gained the lead. After being penalized back to the eight for taking too much time, they still elected to go for two points and Fertig's pass was knocked down.

Lakers Shove More 'Gold' Into Hand of UCLA Star

By DOUG IVES

Walt Hazzard, the sleight-of-hand playmaker from UCLA, has struck gold again!

Clutching the gold medal he won in Tokyo in one hand, Hazzard held more gold Saturday in the other in the form of a Lakers contract. He was signed at Los Angeles International Airport.

HAZZARD

Hazzard no more than grabbed his suitcase on his flight home from the Olympic Games than general manager Lou Mohs grabbed him and thrust a contract into waiting palm.

Terms of the pact were not revealed, of course, but it's obvious the Lakers rewarded their No. 1 draft choice handsomely.

The man who led UCLA to the national title will have only today to savor the financial rewards of being a pro since he'll be initiated into Lakers drills Monday and Tuesday.

Then on Wednesday, Hazzard returns to the L.A. Sports Arena floor that was the scene of his greatest moments as the Lakers launch a six-game home stand against Baltimore.

WONDERFUL WALT won't be shoved into the rough NBA grind with abandon, but he'll see some action against the Bullets Wednesday and Thursday, according to coach Fred Schaus.

What kind of NBA future does Schaus predict for his prize rookie? A golden future, what else!

RECORD PASSING PERFORMANCE

Fertig Cites Gripes of Wrath

University of Southern California quarterback Craig Fertig said he turned in his record passing performance against California because he was "griped" by previous criticism of his tossing ability.

In the dressing room after USC's stunning come-from-behind 26-21 victory, Fertig said he would let the outstanding aerial statistics of the game render his reply to critics.

"I've been taking some criticism this past week and it griped me," said Fertig, who passed for four touchdowns and a school-record 371 yards. His performance statistically outshone that of the great Cal quarterback Craig Morton.

Morton, in contrast to Fertig's dazed delight over the outcome of the game, was obviously bitter at the defeat in the last 50 seconds. He muttered under his breath as he stomped into the dressing room.

"I'm glad everybody enjoyed it but us," said coach Ray Willsey of the losing Bears.

"It was an emotional experience for us to let this one get away from us the way we did," Willsey added, explaining he would not try to pinpoint any major break in the game.

"It was a great one for us to win and a tough one for them to lose," coach John McKay of the Trojans said. But McKay stressed the expense of the victory. Ends Tom Lupo and John Thomas both apparently will be lost for the remainder of the season because of injuries and Lupo will be operated upon today.

"We had so many injuries all our interior linemen were going both ways most of the game," added McKay.

Halfback Rod Sherman, who made up for a costly fumble by catching the game-winning touchdown pass with 50 second left, was the secondary target on the decisive play. Fertig disclosed he looked first at end Fred Hill and then threw high to Sherman, who leaped at least two feet to bring the ball down in the end zone.

"I saw it all the way," Sherman said.

WYNN

Man to Man

McGEE

By JERRY WYNN

MILWAUKEE—The No. 1 Ram killer on the Green Bay Packers isn't Jim Taylor or Paul Hornung or Bart Starr.

Max McGee is the name, and when Maxie (The Taxi) wheels into action against the Rams, his touchdown meter zooms full-tilt.

A popular, fun-loving nine-year veteran from Tulane, the 6-3, 205-pound star receiver has been one of the central figures in the success and spirit of the recent Packer dynasty.

Do you consider the Rams your cousins, Max?

"I like to play the Rams especially in L.A. I like the warm weather and they have had problems with their right cornerbacks for a long time."

Does the Rams' 3-2-1 record this season come as a surprise to the Packers?

"No. We thought they were one of the better teams. This is a very strong division. There are no weak sisters."

Ed Meador of the Rams says they need a step-ladder to defend against you. What advice do you have for him?

"He must be thinking of Boyd Dowler. He is 6-5. Ron Kramer and I are only 6-3."

Which defensive back in the league gives you the most trouble?

"Dick Lynch of New York calls me his pigeon."

What makes Bart Starr such an outstanding quarterback?

"He has a good head, tremendous desire and never gives up."

Zeke Bratkowski was one of the most popular players on the Rams. Has he helped the Packers?

"Yes he has. We feel OK with Zeke in the game. He throws very well."

Do you think Vince Lombardi is sorry he traded Jim Ringo?

"That's hard to say. Jim was a great center. Caffee, who we got in the trade for him, will be a great linebacker."

Green Bay has lost twice to Baltimore. Can the Colts be stopped from winning the title?

"Yes, I think so. They still have to play the Lions twice and the Vikings, Rams and Bears again. But we know we will have to win all the rest of our games to catch them."

With your roommate, Paul Hornung, you are known as Green Bay's most eligible bachelors. Aren't the girls in Wisconsin interested in marriage?

"Yes, but we aren't."

Are the Packers going to beat the Rams today?

"It looks like we win every other one, so it's our turn today. But it won't be easy."

The Rams had better set up a dragnet if they hope to stop Green Bay's runaway Maxie (The Taxi) McGee.

Beavers Rip Orangemen for 5th Win

Spot Syracuse TD in First Period, Then Romp, 31-13

PORTLAND (UPI)—Oregon State gave Syracuse the first touchdown and then buried the eighth-ranked Orangemen, 31-13, Saturday with its greatest offensive show of the season.

Sophomore quarterback Paul Brothers passed for two touchdowns on plays of 44 yards to Yen Erketich and 39 yards to Cliff Watkins and scored another touchdown on a 1-yard sweep.

	OSU	Syracuse
First downs	15	13
Rushing yardage	23	135

Passes	9-13	9-17
Passes intercepted by	1	0
Punts	6-39.7	6 28.0
Fumbles lost	0	1
Yards penalized	33	55

Watkins tallied the other touchdown on a 13-yard run and Steve Clark kicked a 23-yard field goal and four extra points.

The Beavers, ranked in a tie for 19th nationally, had scored only 49 points in their first five games despite a fancy 4-1 record.

Syracuse struck first on a 55-yard pass play from quarterback Walley Mahle to halfback Floyd Little with less than five minutes gone and then found itself trailing 31-7 by the time it got a second touchdown on a 2-yard run by fullback Jim Nance.

Brothers completed 9 of 12 passes for 176 yards, many of them to wide-open receivers.

Oregon State ..... 14 10 7 0—31
Syracuse ..... 7 0 0 6—13

Berry Blanks Huskies

SEATTLE (AP) — Brilliant Bob Berry pitched the Oregon Webfoots to an early touchdown Saturday and then turned matters over to Casey's Commandos — the defensive unit — to squelch every enemy threat and hang up a 7-0 football victory over Washington. It was Oregon's sixth win without a loss.

Nicknamed for Tim Casey, junior defensive linebacker, the Commandos intercepted four Washington passes, recovered two fumbles and twice stopped the fearsome battering ram of Washington on the Webfoots' one-yard line.

West

So effective was the Oregon defense that Washington never got beyond its own 34 in the first quarter and did not enter Oregon territory until late in the first half.

Soon after the opening whistle Oregon launched its tally march at its own 27 with an 11-yard pass from Berry to Corky Sullivan. Dennis Keller scooted 16 yards and another toss to Sullivan put the ball on the Washington 26.

Washington was penalized 15 yards for roughing Berry, and then the Webfoot quarterback tossed to Lowell Dean on a tackle-eligible play good for 14 yards and a touchdown. Herm Meister kicked the conversion.

Stalled in its ground attack, Washington went overhead in the second half and powered to the Oregon 8. Fullback Jeff Jordan smashed the line for seven but the ball popped into the air and Oliver McKinney smothered it for Oregon on the 1.

Late in the game quarterback Jim Sartoris hit Jim Lambright with a pass that put Washington on the Oregon 27, but Ron Martin intercepted the next pass at the Webfoot 1.

Vandals Turn Into Avengers

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—The University of Idaho avenged four decades of nearly constant defeats at the hands of Washington State University Saturday with a solid 28-13 victory over the Cougars.

Fullback Ray McDonald, a 6-4, 232-pound sophomore, scored three times as the Vandals won this traditional clash by their biggest margin since a 19-3 victory in 1924. Only twice since then had Idaho won—in 1925 and 1954.

Vol Defense Holds LSU to FG Tie

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Underdog Tennessee threw up a ferocious defense and Louisiana State — seventh ranked collegiate football team in the nation — had to go all out to salvage a 3-3 deadlock with the Vols in a rugged Southeastern Conference game Saturday.

LSU's defense was equally as fierce. The Tigers held the Tennessee offense to minus yardage after intermission.

Jarring tackles by both teams' lines kept the ball flying through the air as backs fumbled. Bobbles set up the field goals for both LSU and Tennessee.

Tennessee got a 3-0 lead on Fred Martin's 28-yard field goal and it stood up until three seconds before the half-time break with leftfooted kicker Doug Moreau booting one from the 21 for the Tigers.

Last-Period FG Wins for 'Bama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama, the nation's No. 2 football team, came from behind twice Saturday to grind out a 17-14 cliff-hanger victory over 10th-ranked Florida.

The Crimson Tide did it with a last-period 21-yard field goal by David Ray and booming runs by fullback Steve Bowman, who scored two touchdowns.

Florida's Gators were knocking on the Alabama goal line with seconds remaining in the game. Florida's Jimmy Hall tried a desperation 20-yard field goal as the game ended, but the ball wobbled off to the side.

Black Passes Tar Heels to Victory

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—North Carolina whipped winless South Carolina 24-6 Saturday behind Gary Black's passing and the vicious power running of Ken Willard.

Black scored two touchdowns and passed for one in leading the Tar Heels to their third victory in six games overall and their second against two defeats in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Helping to round out the easy victory was the Tar Heel defense, which yielded only one first down in the first half while the offense jumped in front 17-0.

Ga. Tech Escapes Upset Wave

ATLANTA (UPI)—Quarterback Bruce Fischer fired an eight-yard scoring pass to end Mike Fortier Saturday to give sluggish 9th-ranked Georgia Tech a 7-6 victory over winless Tulane.

Tackle Billy Schroer preserved the Yellow Jackets' undefeated record in the second period when he blocked Don Bright's attempted conversion. End Lanis O'Steen stole a pass by quarterback Jerry Priestley and returned it 20 yards for the Tulane touchdown.

Tulane fullback George Cortez fumbled on the first play of the third period and Tech's Steve Copeland grabbed the ball on the Green Wave 34. The Yellow Jackets needed eight plays to drive in for the touchdown.

Butkus Named Game's Line Star

quarters of competition dating back through Notre Dame and Syracuse to the Stanford game when they put together a 55-yard drive in the second period to tie the count at 7-7 all.

THE MAJOR gain in the drive was a 24-yard pass from Zeno to end Dick Witcher. Fullback Paul Horgan, who gained 36 yards on 8 carries for the day contributed a 15-yard run to the drive. The scoring play was a Zeno pass from the three that Witcher grabbed on the rear end zone line.

The Illini took the ensuing kickoff 80 yards in six ground-gulping plays, including another standup bolt through the middle by Grabowski to the end zone from 33 yards out.

The 6-point halftime lead was expanded to 13 points the first time Illinois got the ball in the third period. The Big Tenners drove 41 yards, again because of a wind-shortened punt. The Bruins made them grind it out in small pieces and had the Illini with a fourth down on the two when Custardo squeezed through guard for the score and then kicked his second conversion.

WITH THREE interceptions against Zeno, coach Bill Barnes dispatched his second quarterback, Sindell, into the game in the third period. On third down Sindell threw the ball for a bullseye into the middle of the big No. 50 on the jersey of all-America linebacker Dick Butkus, his sixth interception of the season. Butkus was voted top lineman in the game.

That pass ended Sindell's combat for the day.

Zeno came back to try some more and actually drove the team to the goal line and across, but didn't get any points. At the one-inch line he wiggled into the end zone after a 63-yard march, but the Bruins were offside. From the five on the next play they were guilty of holding, setting them back to the 20. The drive ended with Zeno sprawled on the 25.

found the Beer City fans wanting, but the Packers expect a record crowd of 47,500 at County Stadium. Television kickoff time on channel 2 is 11 a.m.

Green Bay, stung to its proud core by its three defeats (by a total of five points), is expected to take its wrath out on the visitors. For coach Vince Lombardi still has the soundest, if not still the strongest, club in football.

Jim Taylor, Paul Hornung and Tom Moore all are averaging more than four yards per carry and the bruising Taylor is the No. 4 leading runner in the league.

Quarterback Bart Starr, who has enjoyed some of his greatest days against the Rams, is the No. 3 ranking passer and his 60.5 completion percentage is by far the best.

No other club can boast of three stronger receivers than Ron Kramer, Boyd Dowler and Ram-killer Maxie (The Taxie) McGee.

Why, then, have the Packers lost?

1. Injuries to such key players as Jerry Kramer, Henry Jordan, Taylor and Hornung. All but Kramer are ready today.

2. Hornung's much-publicized place-kicking failures which necessitated a hurry-up call for help this week to Long Beach's master instructor, Ben Agajanian.

3. Improvement of their conquerors, Baltimore and Minnesota.

With Dick Bass still hobbled by a knee injury, the Rams today will have to rely on the passing of Roman Gabriel — and Big Gabe will be banging into the pride of the Packer defense, its backfield.

Coach Harland Svare again will start six rookies. It's probably a good thing. The older Rams have learned to respect Green Bay. The kids should be looser.

So Lester Josephson meet Mr. Jordan; Bucky Pope try that "Whittensomething," and Aaron Martin, your man is McGee. And better keep your fingers crossed. Lineups:

Huarte, Snow Set Irish Records

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) —Second-ranked Notre Dame smothered Stanford 28-6 with a brutal defense and loosed the passing of John Huarte and running of Bill Wolski for their fifth successive football victory Saturday.

Wolski smashed for three touchdowns, but it was the record-breaking passing barrage of Huarte and Notre Dame's defense, the nation's best against rushing, which enabled the Irish to win their first five in a row since their last unbeaten season in 1953.

Huarte, completing 21 of 37 tosses for 300 yards—including a 54-yard scoring shot to Wolski for a 9-0 lead in the second quarter—enabled end Jack Snow to establish a Notre Dame season record for pass receiving yardage of 595 in only five games.

Snow failed to grab a scoring pass, but speared eight Huarte tosses for 113 yards topping the Irish season pass reception total of 523 yards by Jim Kelly in 1962.

(Huarte prepped at Mater Dei in Santa Ana and Snow attended St. Anthony High in Long Beach).

Stanford was thwarted by the hard-rushing Irish defense until—with less than four minutes left—Ray Handley hit Dave Lewis with a three-yard scoring pass, capping a 32-yard drive.

Handley, the nation's leading rusher with a 106 yard average in five games, was held to 43 yards on 19 attempts.

Huarte's 37 pass attempts and 21 completions set a record at the Irish school which produced such famed passers as Angelo Bertelli, Johnny Lujack, Bob Williams and Ralph Guglielmi.

In the first half, Stanford failed to register a first down. The Indians, who upset Notre Dame 24-14 last year at Palo Alto, wound up with only four first downs.

Lions' Front Office Called 'Playboys'

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Most members of the Detroit Lions, 19 of whom were handed $100 fines earlier this season, are not pleased with the off-the-field exploits of the front-office staff.

"We get fined over something trivial and then have to watch that bunch of playboys live it up and embarrass the organization," says one respected Lion veteran. . . .

Anything goes when you win, but it's another story when you lose. Allie Sherman's off-the-field activities, mainly his many appearances on TV, are not sitting well with his New York Giant palyers. . . .

YOGI BERRA
No Peace Corps for Him

The old joke "the World Series was for the Birds" was revived by the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL, who were badly hurt by the baseball players. . . .

It cost the football Cardinals nearly $100,000 in revenue when their game with the Colts had to be moved to Baltimore because of the Series. Season ticket holders were given refunds.

And when they returned to Busch Stadium for their next home game last Sunday, 6,000 "dispossessed" season ticket holders had to watch the contest on closed-circuit TV in the nearby Washington University fieldhouse because their seats in the temporary field stands had not yet been erected. . . .

Las Vegas promoters of the ill-fated Joey Giardello-Hurricane Carter middleweight title bout were $16,000 in the red when the match was cancelled last Monday and figured to drop at least another $7,500.

However, they were willing to go ahead and absorb the loss—guaranteeing payment to everyone within 60 days—until the pay-TV people, reportedly near bankruptcy, jumped at the chance to pull out of the picture!

THERE WERE SEVERAL "raps" against Yogi Berra as Yankee manager, but the main ones were that he did not think quick enough and was indecisive during a game, and he couldn't control the players, who flouted his authority and "got away with murder."

Incidentally, after he was "kicked upstairs," Yogi was immediately contacted by Sargent Shriver and offered a top spot in the Peace Corps, but Berra declined. . . .

Even Del Webb got a chuckle out of the gag: "CBS fired three vice presidents when the Yankees lost the Series."

But in a serious vein, Webb told us last week that after CBS purchased 80% of the Yankees, the network chief wanted him and Dan Topping to run the club for them for a minimum of 10 years.

"However, that's too far in the future and they finally cut their request down to five years," Webb said. He then revealed that while Topping signed a contract as president for that period, he would not tie himself down with a similar pact.

This immediately led to speculation that Webb, as rumored, ultimately would sell his remaining stock in the Yankees and buy into another club—presumably one on the Pacific Coast!

Iowa QB Snookered by Purdue

IOWA CITY (UPI) — Purdue's alert Boilermakers intercepted two Iowa passes and pounced on five fumbles Saturday to survive a record Hawkeye aerial assault and eke out a 19-14 Big Ten victory.

Iowa quarterback Gary Snook hit on 26 of 49 passes for 310 yards, but his throwing led to his team's undoing, even though his 27 completions tied the Big Ten mark set by Iowa's Olen Treadway in 1959. His 49 attempts bettered the old standard of 42, by Mark Taliaferro of Illinois in 1962, and his 310 yards total bettered the 306 posted by Tom O'Connell of Illinois in 1952.

The Hawkeye quarterback's favorite receiver, flanker Karl Noonan, caught 10 passes for 127 yards to set an Iowa single-season mark of 43 catches for 634 yards.

Purdue scored its winning touchdown on a pass interception. Defensive end George Catavalos intercepted two of Snook's aerials, grabbing one of them on the Iowa 29 and flashing in for what proved to be the margin of victory.

Top-Rated Buckeyes Romp, 28-3

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Top-rated Ohio State, alert and ferocious on defense, stuck to power football Saturday to win its fifth consecutive game, 28-3, over game but out-manned Wisconsin.

Fullback Will Sander scored two touchdowns, both on short plunges, to cement the Buckeyes' position as No. 1 major college football team before a homecoming crowd of 84,365, third largest in Ohio State's history.

Ohio State scored twice in the first period and added two more touchdowns in the fourth to wrap up its third Big Ten victory.

Wisconsin, which dropped its third game in five starts, battled the Buckeyes on even terms in the second and third periods.

Ohio State's explosive attack struck quickly for its first-period touchdowns. Linebacker Tom Bugel blocked an attempted quick kick on third down by the Badgers, and Ohio State took over on the 11. Flashy sophomore halfback Bo Rein carried twice, the second time a six-yard smash for the touchdown.

With Rein and Sanders leading the way, Ohio State drove 47 yards in seven plays for a touchdown the next time it had the ball.

Wildcats Need Match for MSU, 24-6

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State, starting with a 17-point first-period scoring spurt, passed over and powered through Northwestern for a 24-6 Big Ten football victory Saturday.

MSU quarterback Steve Juday passed for two touchdowns and ran in for another.

Juday hit the mark early with passes to his favorite target, sophomore end Gene Washington, and added another end zone flip to Dick Gordon.

Northwestern, held to minus eight yards rushing in the first half, went over from inches out in the final quarter for a consolation score.

Unbeatens Meet in Jr. Football Headliner Today

The Long Beach Junior Football League season reaches the halfway mark today with the two undefeated teams colliding.

Jordan High Field will be the site of the game between the North Long Beach Bulldogs and the Lakewood Cougars. Both teams hold wins over the Belmont Bears and the Los Altos Rebels.

Meanwhile, the Bears and Rebels battle at Wilson High.

The B squad games will start at 12:30. The Los Altos Rebels' B squad is proving to be the surprise team of the group. The Rebels scored an upset victory over the Lakewood Cougars last week.

REGAIN BROWN JUG

Wolves Survive Scare

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) —Michigan survived a last-quarter surge by Minnesota and regained possession of the Little Brown Jug for the first time in five years with a 19-12 Big Ten football victory Saturday.

Minnesota, which penetrated Michigan territory only two times in the first three quarters, scored twice in the final period and made the score close.

A 91-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass by Kraig Lofquist gave Minnesota its final points. The Gophers marched to the Michigan three-yard line minutes later but lost four yards on a fourth-down running play and Michigan took over.

Before the last-quarter surge, it appeared the Wolverines would gain an easy triumph.

Sooners Strike Back, Rout K-State, 44-0

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—The Oklahoma Sooners, stung by three straight defeats, took out their frustration on helpless Kansas State Saturday, 44-0.

The Sooners, smashing through porous Kansas State defenses at will, rushed and passed for 519 yards and turned the game into a rout with three fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Halfback Tommy Pannell got Oklahoma off and running when he scored one touchdown and uncorked a 55-yard scoring bomb to end Ben Hart to spark the Sooners to a 23-0 halftime lead.

Substitute quarterback Bobby Page, who started last year but rode the bench until Saturday, scored twice to ignite the fourth-quarter surge.

Starting quarterback John Hammond and fullback Jim Grisham also scored and end Allen Bumgardner blocked a Kansas State punt for a safety to complete the rout.

PITT TO BE TIED

Middies Bank on Orr

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Navy spotted Pitt two touchdowns, then fought back behind an aroused defense and the passing of Roger Staubach Saturday for a 14-14 tie.

Staubach, who completed five passes in five attempts in Navy's drive for its second touchdown, threw to Skip Orr in the end zone for two points and the tie.

After Pitt scored the first two times it had the ball, racing to a 14-0 first quarter lead, Navy came to life when James Freeman intercepted a desperation pass by Fred Mazurek on the Navy 32.

The Middies then drove 68 yards in 12 plays with Kip Paskewich going in for the TD from the two. Fred Martin's conversion attempt was wide.

Army Dominates Play, but Field Goals Win for Duke

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) —Mark Caldwell booted two second-period field goals and unbeaten Duke survived a persistent last-half attack by Army Saturday to hand the Cadets their fourth straight loss, 6-0.

Caldwell's three-pointers capped sustained drives of 75 and 58 yards by the Blue Devils.

The Cadets controlled the ball throughout the last half, holding Duke, ranked 15th in the nation, to only one first down and 11 plays from scrimmage.

But Caldwell's kicks of 26 and 24 yards proved to be all that Duke needed to win its first game from Army since the series began in 1944. The Blue Devils had lost six in a row to the Cadets.

One Army drive was stopped at the Duke 18.

Huskers 'Defense' Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) Undefeated, fifth-ranked Nebraska, the nation's greediest ground-gainers, turned instead to a stickout defense Saturday to defeat Colorado 21-3 in a Big Eight game.

Only the slippery running of Nebraska's Frank Solich, a wisp of a fullback at 159 pounds, kept the Cornhusker offense moving as Colorado's frugal defense stiffened at crucial moments.

Nebraska's stern defensive line, averaging 223 pounds a man, held the stumbling Buffaloes to only two yards total offense in the first half and set up one of the three touchdowns with a fumble recovery. Colorado did not get out of its own territory in the final half.

The win was Nebraska's sixth this season in the Cornhuskers' drive toward their second straight Big Eight title. The loss was Colorado's fifth in six games.

Nebraska's sophomore quarterback, Bob Churchich, opened his passing offense in the second half. He completed 10 of 16 throws in the game for 162 yards.

South African Golfer Tops Nicklaus by 3

Legrange Blows 7-Stroke Lead, but Rallies in Masters

MELBOURNE (AP) — Cobie Legrange, a young South African, rallied from an incredible last-round slump Saturday and beat Jack Nicklaus and Bruce Devlin by three strokes in the Wills Masters tournament.

Eight shots ahead of the field with only nine holes to play, Legrange lost seven strokes on seven holes as Nicklaus, the big belter from Columbus, Ohio, put on pressure. Then he birdied the last two holes to win with a 72-hole total of 277.

Nicklaus, Legrange's playing partner, missed a simple putt on the last green and slipped into a second-place tie with Australia's Devlin at 280.

* * * *

ARNOLD Palmer, the other American star who came here for the tournament, went into Saturday's final 36 holes tied with Legrange for first place. His game lost some of its sharpness and he finished with rounds of 73-72, tying Kel Nagle of Australia at 282.

The 22-year-old Legrange, virtually unknown until he began playing in Britain this year, had rounds of 68-69-68-72—277. He was 15-under-par for the 6,755-yard, par 73 course.

Afterwards Nicklaus called him "the best of the young players I have seen around at the moment."

McGowan Leads by 8 Shots at Corona

CORONA—Front-running Jack McGowan increased his lead in the $40,000 Mountain View Open to eight strokes Saturday by shooting a six-under-par 65 for a 54-hole total of 199.

Although he had never won a PGA tournament before, McGowan made a farce of his competition at the end of three rounds and his 14-under-par mark for 54 holes tied the best marks of the year. The eight-stroke lead also was the widest margin in a tournament this year.

McGowan had only one bad hole all day. On the 10th he hooked an iron shot into a trap and bogeyed the hole. But he more than made up for that with seven birdies and nines of 32-33 over the par 36-35 course.

Tied at 207 were Jacky Cupit, who shot a par 71 Saturday, Jack Rule with a 70 and Dick Sikes, who posted his third straight 69.

Cupit had been only two strokes back of McGowan but the Largo, Fla., pro's continued par-busting rounds proved too much for the home course player.

Back of the threesome tied at 207 came Charles Coody with 208 while Howie Johnson, who had been tied with McGowan the first day with 66, followed with 209. Tied at 210 were Bud Holscher and Lou Graham.

Asked what factor was responsible for his shooting the three par-busting rounds of 66-68-65, McGowan attributed them to better control of his temper.

"I have finally realized that I can't hit every shot squarely and that I must be able to control myself when I miss one," the 30-year-old golfer said.

In Saturday's round he hit all his shots squarely and straight down the tight course and his putting continued brilliant. He required only 27 putts for the round.

AGGIES STILL WINLESS

Baylor Rallies, 20-16

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Baylor University trailed for fifty-five minutes Saturday, then used the passing of quarterbacks Terry Southall and Mike Marshall to defeat the winless Texas A&M Aggies 20-16 and thrill a homecoming crowd.

The Aggies, in losing their sixth in a row, were knocking at the Baylor goal line with less than a minute to go. But an Eddie McKaughan pitchout was fumbled and Baylor recovered to hold on to its narrow margin.

The Bears, chalking up their second Southwest Conference victory against one loss, netted 229 yards passing including a 13-yarder by Marshall to end Harlan Lane for a touchdown in the fourth period.

Texas A&M built up a 16-6 lead going into the fourth period on touchdown runs of two and nine yards by Jim Stabler and Bubber Collins, plus a 20-yard field goal by Glynn Lindsey.

The 13 points run up by A&M in the first 19 minutes was the most points the Aggies had scored in any game this season.

Cathedral Holds Off St. Anthony

By RICHARD ESQUIBEL

Cathedral High's favored Phantoms withstood a strong passing exhibition by Paul Snow Saturday night to beat St. Anthony, 20-12, in a Catholic League encounter at Cantwell High.

Snow passed 58 yards to Don Nathe for a first-period score, but Cathedral came back to lead 13-6 until Snow's aerials sparked a 62-yard drive that he capped on a plunge from the one. The kick failed, however, leaving the Saints trailing, 13-12.

Cathedral put the game on ice by scoring the next time it had the ball and kicking the conversion, but St. Antony gamely tried to come back, marching to the Cathedral 20 before an interception halted the threat.

Ulysses Allen scored twice for Cathedral, which now is 2-1 in league. St. Anthony is 1-1.

moved 59 yards in nine plays. Two passes to Bayhoe and a 26-yard to bomb to Van Fontno carried to the 4. Wes Sylva slashed in from the 1 on fourth down and Jim Stewart caught Schusterick's two-point pass to cut the LBCC lead to 22-14.

Long Beach gained only 83 yards in the second half and lost the statistical battle 378-298. Stewart was the Vikes' top ground gainer with 89 yards in nine carries.

Barton, who completed 10 of 18 for 130 yards, spearheaded the Vikings' first scoring drive. The former Millikan High fireballer carried the Vikes 65 yards in seven plays with passes of 10 and 15 yards to Earl McCullouch and 25 yards to Gil Mendoza. Stiles smashed over from the 6 with 32 seconds left in the first period.

Motley, LBCC's leading rusher, entered the game early in the second quarter and reeled off a 12-yard sprint to spark a 92-yard drive. Broken field runs of 33 and 30 yards by Tucker and Stewart put the ball on the 2 where Motley slipped over for the second TD.

Texas Edges Rice on Field Goals, 6-3

Houston (UPI)—David Conway kicked two field goals Saturday night to lift Texas' sputtering Longhorns to a 6-3 squeaker over defense-minded Rice.

It was the first time Texas had beaten Rice in Houston since 1952.

It was a kickers' night, punctuated by quick kicks, deep punts and three field goals that were all the scoring the teams could muster.

Turbo Jet II Shows Class in Grass Win

Gun Bow Second, Turf Debut Spoiled in 'Man O' War'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barclay Stable's Turbo Jet II, an Irish colt with a flair for grass racing, went to the front in the stretch at Aqueduct Saturday to win the $111,800 Man O'War Stakes by three-quarters of a length and spoil Gun Bow's debut on the turf.

It was the sixth win in 11 races for Turbo Jet and his fifth stakes win this year, all of them over turf courses. He picked up a winner's purse of $72,670 and paid $20.30, 6.20 and $4.50.

Gun Bow, backed down to 3 to 4 by the crowd of 47,108, paid $3.20 and $2.90 while Knightly Manner, who closed strongly, paid $6.90.

* * * *

GOING ABROAD took command at the head of the stretch and romped to a 2½-length victory in the $126,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup handicap.

Going Abroad, owned by E. and H. N. Seltzer, returned mutuels of $4.20, $3.20 and $2.40. Intercepted paid $5 and $3, and Olden Times paid $2.40 to show.

Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Marshua won the 30th and richest running of the $96,090 Selima States at Laurel and ruined a bid by Wheatley Stables' Queen Empress to wrap up the 2-year-old filly championship.

Marshua's supporters among the crowd of 15,930 collected $11.80 to win and $2.20 to place.

Heads Will Roll Among Russ Olympians

It Was Shear Disgrace for Losing Girl Javelin Star

TOKYO (AP)—The Russians' performance at the Tokyo Olympics was their worst since the Helsinki Games 12 years ago and heads will probably roll when the team returns to Moscow.

The Kremlin has demanded an explanation and that's an ominous sign.

Not only did America's amateur athletes collect more gold medals than Russia's state-supported contestants but they practically beat Russia in the total medals count, something that hasn't happened since 1952, in the Soviet Union's first Olympics.

Even the Soviet satellites — the Poles, Czechs, Romanians and Hungarians —outshone the Russians in dozens of events.

That must have hurt.

No Russian heads have rolled so far. A head of beautiful hair has been the only sacrifice to Russian wrath in Tokyo.

Elvira Ozolina, former Olympic javelin champion, chopped off her shoulder-length chestnut hair in partial atonement for her disgrace when she placed a dismal fifth in the finals here.

But Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party's official organ, gave due warning of worse things to come when it declared that Soviet sports fans "have the right to demand detailed explanations" for Russia's disappointing performance.

Even ordinary people are wondering what happened to the Russians. There are several possible explanations to choose from. Moscow itself blames overconfident Russian coaches.

The top Soviet track and field coach, Gabriel Korobkov, blames the poor high school track and field program and facilities at home. He says Russia's sports veterans are aging and the high schools aren't producing replacements fast enough.

The Russian athletes themselves have no excuses. They say they are not disappointed and they cite the Olympic code which says it's more important to participate than to win.

The Chinese Communists haven't spoken up on the subject so far. On the basis of past statements, they will probably blame it all on the "decadence" of Soviet society. They claim it took the wrong turn when it abandoned tough Stalinist—and Chinese Communist — principles for the softer approach to life advocated by former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev.

49ers to Fete 6 Olympians at Banquet

Long Beach State College will toast its six Olympians Friday night at a banquet in the college cafeteria.

LBSC's Argonaut Club will honor high jumper John Rambo, diver Linda Cooper, fencer Les Bleamaster, volleyballer Sharon Peterson and water poloists Ron Crawford and Chick McIlroy at the prime rib dinner starting at 6. The public is invited.

Track coach Jack Rose will serve as toastmaster. Reservations ($2.75) may be made by contacting the 49ers' Student Activities Office, GE 5-1161, Ext. 515. Deadline is Tuesday afternoon.

IT'S A START

Brian Bernou of Castro Valley leaps over the Marine Stadium starting line in his Chrysler-powered SK boat for a quarter-mile trip in Long Beach Boat and Ski Club's Boat Drag Championship time trials Saturday. Elimination heats will be run in Marine Stadium today.

Andre Sets Rapid Drag Boat Pace

By DAVE TAYLOR

A dark horse already is in the home stretch as 172 of the world's fastest drag speedboats scurry to get off the starting line today in Long Beach Boat and Ski Club's World Championship Boat Drags at Marine Stadium.

Rene Andre of Valinda, Calif., christened his new Hallet, gas-blown Chrysler-powered unlimited hydro Citation by rocketing over the quarter-mile course at 131.19 to put one leg into a world's record at time trials Saturday.

If Andre can back that time up in final elimination heats today, he'll chalk up a world mark shading the 125.17 mile-an-hour straight gas record set last year by Joe Graffio of Downey in Rudy Ramos' Golden Thing.

craft Citation weighs in at 1,100 pounds — about 400 pounds less than perennial record contenders Banzai and Golden Thing.

* * * *

WITH ANOTHER run like his Saturday time trial heat, Andre is also odds on to take the meet's top eliminator title and the championship crown.

Saturday's record-nudging time trial was reportedly Citation's maiden run, and the first lap that Rene Andre had ever taken in racing competition.

Though no one had seen Citation run before Saturday's qualifier, observers already were touting her as the boat to beat early last week. Boasting to be the lightest hydro of its kind, the shallow-

Tiny Drivers Capture Big Sulky Races

Del Insko and George Sholty, two of the smallest drivers in harness racing, struck for the little people Saturday at Hollywood Park, splitting the co-featured races. Insko captured the $15,000 Stepping Stone Pace in a stunning upset with Henry T. Adios and Sholty took the $10,000 Little Company of Mary Trot with Speedy Count.

Insko, at 5-3 and 120 lbs., brought Henry T. Adois storming from far back in the nine-horse Stepping Stone field to pass Tarquinius and Meadow Skipper and stave off a late rush by Fly Fly Byrd to hang up the fastest mile race of the season, 1.57 flat.

* * * *

SHOLTY, 5-2 and 115 lbs., urged Speedy Count to a rapid 1.58 4/5 victory in the supporting trotting feature and was favored to take both ends of the double-header, when his pacing mount Tarquinius went off as the even-money choice of the crowd of 20,776.

Golfer Patty Berg to Hold Clinic Here

Patty Berg, one of the world's foremost women golfers, will give a one-hour clinic Tuesday at Recreation Park at 1:30.

At approximately 2:30, Miss Berg will tee off and play from five to nine holes. There will be no gallery charge and the public is invited. The exhibition is sponsored by George Lake's Golf Shop and Wilson Sporting Goods.

Red Smith's Views of Sports—

Olympic Drama Hit Peak in High Jump

TOKYO—Four stretcher-bearers in hospital white popped out of the tunnel beneath the stadium on the dead run, moving a lot faster than the footracer who came reeling drunkenly down the home stretch, staggering, gasping, going almost to his knees, but clawing erect again and tottering on.

He floundered across the finish line, clasped hands overhead in salute to the applauding thousands and pitched sideways onto the turf, doubled up to clutch a pair of calves where the muscles were tied in knots no Boy Scout ever learned.

Swiftly the four meatmen wrapped him in blankets, stretched him on the litter, and bore him away. He rode on his back, a fist upraised in triumph.

This was Abraham Fores, of Puerto Rico, who runs for the Pioneer Club of New York, and he had just nailed down 55th place among 58 finishers in the Marathon. Nothing could better epitomize the glorious wackiness of the Olympics where, as Baron Pierre de Coubertin didn't quite say, "The most important thing is not to win but to take part and live."

Yet even if you're not one of the dedicated who would turn his back on Brigitte Bardot to run 26 miles, 385 yards, for the pure, ennobling of it, there still are moments in this sweaty festival when the entertainment soars to dramatic peaks never scaled by Liz Taylor, or even the Three Stooges.

There's been more than a few such moments since this global turnverein started and a raft of them came Wednesday when the fungoodies — the classic 1,500 meters, the practically scared Marathon, the relay finals.

Above all, there was the high jump, the most theatrical of all the confrontations of America and Russia, the final moment of truth for John Curtis Thomas. Moment of truth? Well, it was a moment that was four years in the making, a moment that ran on almost five 5 hours.

As everybody knows, John Thomas of Boston was humanity's greatest jumper until the Rome Olympics of 1960 when Russia's Robert Shavlakadze and Valeriy Brumel beat him back to third.

After that Brumel came to America and Thomas went to Moscow and they kept jumping and Brumel kept winning. Long John of Boston could still leap higher than any other American, Englishman, Moroccan, or Mongolian born of woman, but he couldn't, as the saying goes, get arrested in Russia.

Coming up to the final he had hooked up with the Soviets nine times and lost eight, beating Brumel once indoors in Los Angeles when they cleared the same height, but John had the fewer misses.

So now they laid it in on the line, and of course nature corned it up the way nature has been doing right along on this show.

Darkness fell, the moon came up, the Olympic torch blazed against the velvet blackness, and as the crossbar crept up past seven feet, five jumpers remained in contention — Thomas, Brumel, Shavlakadze, a Swede named Sig Pettersson, and John Rambo, a bloomin' basketball player from Long Beach, Calif.

It was 6 p.m. and the 15,000 or so still hanging on in National Stadium had moved to seats in the curve of the oval closest to the jumpers. They'd been at their interminable business since 2 o'clock, pacing restlessly between their widely separated turns, doing knee-bends and sit-ups, lounging on heaped-up blankets and ignoring one another with almost unnecessary ostentation.

At 7 feet, 1 inch, Brumel sailed over on his first attempt. Thomas missed on his first try, pulled on pants and two jackets, and took a lonely walk. He was clear down at the far end of the infield, the length of a football field away, when Petterson, Shavlakadze, and Rambo missed for the second time.

Thomas peeled down to his union suit, wasted the littlest time possible on the liturgy of prepraration, and sailed over like a bird. He took another walk while Petterson struck out on his third try.

Shavlakadze, defending Olympic champion, obviously wished he didn't have to make that third and final attempt. Finally, he jumped, missed, and was out.

Now Rambo had his last chance. All high jumpers have little tricks to relax themselves before a leap. They left their arms hang loose and wiggle hands at the wrists, kick high as the Rockettes, do splits.

Rambo turns his back to the crossbar and bows from the waist as though facing Mecca. With arms hanging straight down, he pats palms together a few times. Then straightens, turns, and goes for it. He missed and was out.

Now it was head and head, Thomas and Brumel at 7 feet 1¾. (They raised the bar here only three-quarters of an inch at a time, which is like pulling a tooth with forefinger and thumb.) Brumel kicked the bar going up on his first try. Thomas knocked it off on his first try.

Brumel slapped the bar with a hand on his second ascent, Thomas seemed clear for an instant, but his chest brushed the stick and brought it down. On his third and last, Brumel laid his abdomen smack on the bar for a clear miss.

Thomas had been pacing in little circles near a little canvas lean-to where Rambo was resting on blankets. He tossed aside the towel draped over his shoulders in lieu of a jacket got ready quickly. If he could make it this time, he'd win. If he missed, Brumel would take it because the Russian had fewer faults.

Thomas squared his shoulders, went for it, hit the bar hard. Brumel was the winner in fewer misses. Thomas was licked, but he hadn't been out jumped.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

California sportsmen learned last week that Gov. Edmund G. Brown is prepared to resist vigorously any unreasonable attempt to legislate restrictions on rifles and shotguns used by hunters. They also found out that Brown thinks California's firearms laws are among the best in the nation.

However, they also heard that Brown is deeply concerned over the fact that there are numbers of persons in the state who buy or possess concealable weapons without legitimate reason.

Brown's feeling on firearms were read to the jam-packed hearing held in Sacramento by the Assembly Committe on Criminal Procedure. Brown's spokesman, John S. McInerny, suggested that mail-order sales of concealable weapons be prohibited within California. Out-of-state sales would not be affected.

Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch proposed that persons buying concealable firearms through the mail from another state be required to file purchase orders with California officials.

The suggestions took a large number of sportsmen by surprise. They had gone to the hearing fully expecting to hear proposals for the registration of all firearms, or perhaps even stronger measures. Some of those present asked for more time to study the proposals.

ASSEMBLYMAN RICHARD DONOVAN, Chula Vista Republican, tossed in a bit of comedy. A member of the committee, Donovan appeared attired in a bright-colored shooting jacket to demonstrate his broad background of experience on the subject. He said, "I'm an old handloader."

Donovan, a former police official, criticized some sportsmen's groups for a "very negative attitude." He said instead of merely opposing all firearms regulations, they should offer suggestions of their own.

Most sportsmen present said they thought that present firearms control laws are adequate. George Divani, representing the Associated Sportsmen of California, said, "any additional legislation should be aimed at misuse or illegal use of present laws."

Judge Hilliar Comstock, representing the National Rifle Association, noted that Lee Harvey Oswald was not deterred by a law prohibiting the firing of a gun in Dallas when he killed the late President Kennedy.

It appears to this writer that Donovan's attitude made sense. Far too many sportsmen and fishing and hunting clubs go beyond the right to bear arms in their feelings. They should give some thought to the suggestion that concealable weapons be registered when bought, whether in state or out of state. The City of Long Beach has such a law, requiring a dealer to record such a sale and give the city a carbon copy.

ONE HUNDRED AND THREE authors of the United States, Canada and Mexico have pooled their writings and the 770-page book, "Waterfowl Tomorrow," is now available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., at the ridiculously low price of $4.

This magnificent volume, if printed by a private company, probably would cost three or four times that amount. All of the authors donated their work as a labor of love.

The purpose of the book is to call to the attention of duck hunters and bird lovers the plight of North American waterfowl, but the chapters go far beyond that in dealing with every aspect of ducks and geese.

In addition to the 103 writers, dozen of others helped with special research work and photographs and drawings. J. P. Linduska, whose name has been associated with the outdoors for many years and with a vast quantity of publications, edited the book. He deserves the congratulations of all for his fine job.

Linduska says: "Most of the information in the book is in print for the first time. It brings together nearly everything known about waterfowl habitat and related factors in management. It will help the public to a better understanding of problems facing this resource."

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The Long Beach Casting Club begins its annual fly-tying classes at 7:30 Tuesday night, with groupings for beginners and advanced students. The classes are open to the public. In fact, the club encourages outsiders to enroll. There is no cost except for equipment and materials.

The instructors, headed by Allen Lowe, have devised an interesting set of flies for the 25 weekly classes this year and most of the patterns can be used in this area and other parts of California.

Bart Peterson, one of the instructors and a real artist, has drawn a set of charts for the classes and those should be of great value to the students.

The class is open to men and women and juniors.

Members of the Long Beach Sportsman's Club learned with grief Friday that one of the club's former presidents, E. H. (Zeke) Kennedy had died suddenly while on vacation at Isabella Lake.

Kennedy, a lieutenant in the Long Beach Police Department, had seen 27 years of service as an officer. He had been an administrative investigator for three chiefs of police in that period. He was certainly one of the Sportsman clubs stalwarts and will be sadly missed by that group. His wife, Miriam, and a mother and sister survive.

Falcons at San Fernando

By TOM QUINTANA

Still having a chance for first-place in the standings, the Long Beach Falcons start the second round of action in the Western Football League today when they meet San Fernando Valley at 12:30 in San Fernando.

Valley moved into first place last week with a 14-7 victory over previously unbeaten Orange County. The All-Stars' record is 4-1 after the first round.

Long Beach goes into the contest with a 3-2 league slate. Although the Falcons beat Chino Institute, 7-0, in an exhibition last week, they have lost to Valley and Orange County.

Clay-Liston Rematch on Closed TV at Aud

The controversial heavyweight championship rematch between titleholder Cassius Clay and ex-champ Sonny Liston will be shown via large screen television at Municipal Auditorium.

Clay and Liston clash Monday night, Nov. 16, at Boston Gardens.

Tickets, priced at $6 and $5, tax included, go on sale Monday at the Long Beach Arena box office. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

This will be Clay's first defense of the title he won last Feb. 25 in Miami Beach. Liston couldn't continue after the sixth round.

Reservation can be made by calling HE 7-2255.

L.B. Rockets Play Angel Rookies at Blair Today

The Long Beach Rockets will try to make it two league wins against no losses as they meet the Angel Rookies at Blair Field at 1:30 today.

Larry Bradshaw, former Gardena High star, and Ed Waldinger, who last year made life miserable for the Rockets, will probably share mound duties for Al Zunega's young Angel prospects.

Manager Jack Graham, who never believed in breaking up a winning combination, will counter with Casey Cox and Terry Richards. The two Rocket hurlers shut out the Scoremaster Braves, 5-0, last Sunday while giving up 10 hits.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A MAN IN THE LONG BEACH AREA

Frankly, it may take months to find him. But, we're willing to wait . . . the opportunity is that important.

Here's a quick "profile" of the person we're looking for. Chances are he's between 24 and 42. Education . . . college or equivalent. In all likelihood, he's now in a junior-executive position . . . well liked, making good progress. But, he has a problem. He knows he's capable of doing better . . . feels "trapped" by a salary structure which is good, but not good enough.

If you fit this general description, we'd be happy to talk to you about this salaried opening in our organization which will be available in 6 to 8 weeks. It may require several interviews . . . will certainly require exhaustive tests. But should you turn out to be the man we are looking for . . . we can promise it will be well worth your time and trouble.

To pursue the matter further, write us a letter outlining your business experience, age, marital status. (If you prefer, phone 378-4261).

WE'LL CONTACT YOU AND ARRANGE A MEETING

HAS DONE
SOMETHING ABOUT IT
Our records reflect that many buyers are looking for going businesses that we are unable to supply. They have their roots planted outside of this area and cannot come to us so we're going to them. We've opened another spacious office (Valley Business Sales) 11502 E. Valley Blvd., El Monte, serving the entire greater valley. A third office is forthcoming. "Strictly Business" so sellers now more than ever, if you REALLY want to sell your business it will be the next thing to a "cinch" that our gang will get the job done for you. A phone call will bring us on the run.

BUILDER'S DREAM

If you can afford a custom built home built to standards you have never seen before—and in the $60,000 price range—then call us. 3 bedroom & den home constructed by hand-picked men & materials, beyond description. Such things as gold anadized frames on all sliding glass doors, lavish Roman tub constructed of solid onyx. Beautiful selection of imported tile & terrazzo. Carpeting of the most luxurious description (you'll sink to your elbows!). Unusual design in anodized brass makes the fireplace unique in it's setting. Hand-rubbed black walnut paneling & kitchen cabinets. Exotic figure "8" pool enhanced by attractive rock decking & wall enclosures. Over spent on professional landscaping alone. These are but a few of the many outstanding, most unusual features you will enjoy owning. Exclusively, shown by appointment only. Call HA 5-1214- 4100 Bellflower Blvd.

WHY?

'YES' ON PROPOSITION 14

14	SALES AND RENTALS OF RESIDENTIAL REAL PROPERTY. INITIATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT. Prohibits State, sub-division or agency thereof from denying, limiting, or abridging right of any person to decline to sell, lease, or rent residential real property to any person he chooses. Prohibition not applicable to property owned by State or its subdivisions; property acquired by eminent domain; or transient lodging accommodations by hotels, motels and similar public places.	YES	X

GET BACK YOUR RIGHTS

CALIFORNIANS SHOULD HAVE FREEDOM OF CHOICE

That Long, Long Arm . . .

YES Vote Will restore to California property owners the right to choose the person or persons to whom they wish to sell or rent their residential property.

YES Vote Will abolish those provisions of the Rumford Housing Act of 1963 which took from Californians their freedom of choice in selling or renting their residential property.

YES Vote Will amend our California Constitution so that the only way future legislation could take away the freedom of choice in selling or renting of residential property would be by vote of the people.

YES Vote Will halt the State Fair Employment Practices Commission's harrassing and intimidating the public and property owners in the excercising of their freedom of choice.

YES Vote Will end State Police power over the selling or renting of privately owned residential property.

YES Vote Will restore rights basic to our freedom — rights that permit all persons to decide for themselves what to do with their own property.

The Rumford Forced Housing Act's police arm is long and strong.

It can reach almost any Californian — almost anyone who owns or rents a place to live. Owner. Tenant. Yes, and neighbor, too!

First, it reaches the owner. It takes away his right to choose his tenants or buyers.

Then it takes a tenant's or buyer's right — the right to choose his neighbors.

If the owner insists on his freedom to choose, the long arm can reach out and make him pay a fine up to $500; and further insistence by the owner can make him subject to contempt of court penalties.

If a tenant advises the owner to use freedom of choice, the long arm can reach the tenant with the same penalties.

In the matter of giving advice, even the neighbor must beware. That same long arm can put the neighbor in the same penalty box as the tenant!

Your 'YES' Vote on Propostion #14 Will

- RESTORE your Freedom to Sell or Rent your Property to Anyone YOU Choose
- STOP Police State Practices
- PROMOTE Friendly Community Relations
- RESTORE Constitutional Protection to Homeowners
- ELIMINATE Tyranny of a Bureaucratic Commission
- REMOVE Risk of Heavy Economic Losses

Former L. A. County Tax Assessor

READ THE AMENDMENT ★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

Neither the State nor any subdivision or agency thereof shall deny, limit or abridge, directly or indirectly, the right of any person who is willing or desires to sell, lease or rent any part or all of his real property, to decline to sell, lease or rent such property to such person or persons as he, in his absolute discretion, chooses.

'Person' includes individuals, partnerships, corporations and other legal entities and their agents or representatives but does not include the State or any subdivision thereof with respect to the sale, lease or rental of property owned by it.

'Real property' consists of any interest in real property of any kind or quality, present or future irrespective of how obtained or financed, which is used, designed, constructed, zoned or otherwise devoted to or limited for residential purposes whether as a single family dwelling or as a dwelling for two or more persons living together or independently of each other.

This Article shall not apply to the obtaining of property by eminent domain pursuant to Article I, Sections 14 and 14½ of this Constitution, nor to the renting or providing of any accommodations for lodging purposes by a hotel, motel or other similar public place engaged in furnishing lodging to transient guests.

If any part or provision of this Article or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the Article, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end the provisions of this Article are severable.

Defensive Driving
It is to drive with a confident attitude that one can drive without ever having a preventable accident. It requires a constant alertness for the illegal and reckless errors of other drivers, and the willingness to make timely adjustments in one's own driving so that those illegal acts and errors shall not involve one in an accident.

More And Better Steel Produced At Area Plants

MOLTEN STEEL POURED INTO NEW VACUUM DEGASSING CHAMBER

Two Torrance steel plants have announced manufacturing improvements increasing the output of one and producing higher quality specialized steel for the other.

U. S. Steel's Torrance Works says that later this year it will start phase three of its program to increase output. This step calls for converting and improving the current 8-pass rolling mill to a 10-pass mill with higher delivery speeds.

The first step of U. S. Steel's modernization program was the construction of a new reheat furnace and mechanical handling units for steel billets. Step two, now underway, is the installation of equipment to improve intermediate processing sections of the 12-inch mill.

* * * *

OF INTEREST to local oil drilling operations is Armco Steel Corp.'s new vacuum degassing installation.

This process, developed a few years ago for commercial application, produces stronger, cleaner, more uniform steel by removing hydrogen gas from the molten metal as it is poured into an airless chamber. This eliminates the minute internal cracks in steel which grow larger in service and eventually cause failure of the metal.

Basic equipment used in the Armco process is a vacuum-type steel chamber enclosing the ingot mold into which molten steel is poured. The chamber is connected to a vacuum pumping unit which draws off the air, including the hydrogen gas.

"The combination of carefully selected raw materials, precisely controlled electric furnace melting practice, and final teeming in vacuum, produces steels possessing the consistency and reliability demanded by modern steel users," W. R. Patterson, Armco general superintendent said.

Steel-Reinforced Concrete Pilings Made in 500-Foot Molds at San Pedro

By DICK EMERY

SAN PEDRO—There's a waterfront factory here which makes steel-and-concrete piling faster than Grandma bakes cookies.

The steel forms, or molds, are so long that workmen at one end use a walky-talky radio to talk to workmen at the other.

Around steel cables taut as violin strings, they pour fluid concrete made with seven and one-half sacks of cement, 94 pounds per stack, to a cubic yard of mix. That's two sacks more than standard mix and it makes extra-tough concrete. When the concrete has set, they steam it dry in a 10-hour steam bath.

* * * *

A WHEELED concrete mixer rolls beside the long form, pouring mix. Bulkheads separate one pile-to-be from the next, so that five 100-foot piles can be made in each mold from one pouring.

"We can pour on Friday and drive the pile on Monday," project manager Bill Bates said. "We start the steam cure three hours after the concrete has set, and steam 12 hours at 150 degrees."

The plant, Harbor Precast Co., covers five acres at 2100 Wilmington - San Pedro Road, on the north bank of a harbor slough which extends west from L.A. Harbor's West Basin. For five years the plant has been turning out concrete piling for harbor and bridge construction and for piers and buildings.

* * * *

RIGHT NOW the plant is making 18-inch diameter octagonal piling for Berth 218, on Terminal Island east of Fish Harbor, a project needing 172,000 lineal feet.

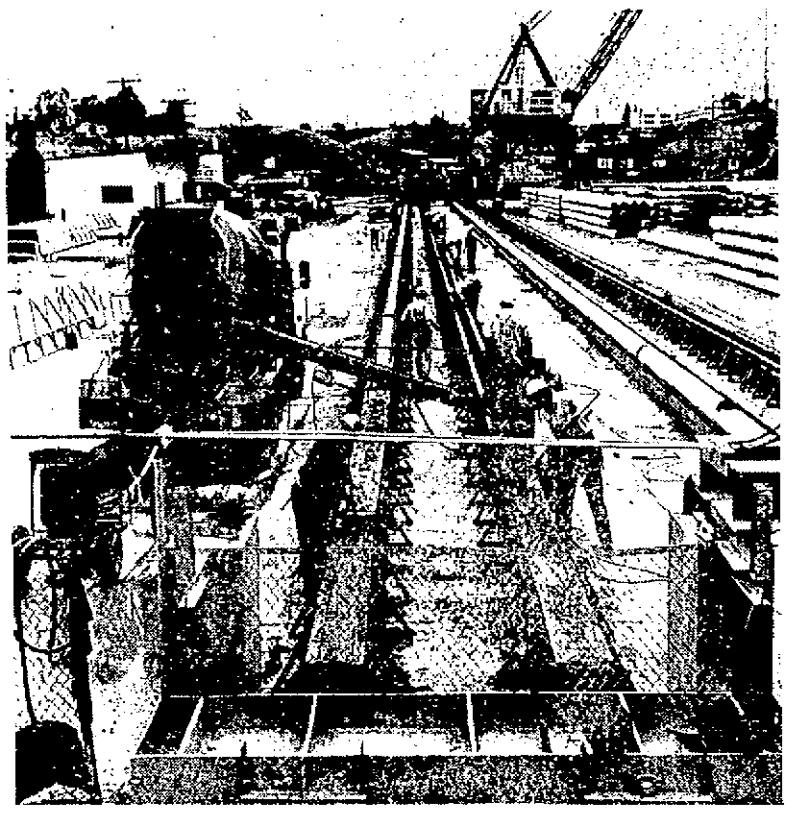

Each pile contains 16 three-eighths inch high-tensile steel cables, each cable under 14,000 pounds stress. Finished, the 18-inch diameter pile weighs 280 pounds per foot.

"It may cost three or four times as much as wooden piling, but in the long run it's cheaper," Bates said. "The bugs can't eat it. It takes punishment without breaking. Even in sea water these will be good for 30 or 40 years."

* * * *

THE PLANT built 300 piles for Huntington Harbour. Stacked in the yard waiting delivery are 210 14-inch round piling for a boat marina at Playa del Rey. When the present order for Berth 218 is filled next month, the plant will start work on other orders.

"We'll make 200 for a pier at Hermosa, and 168 deck slabs, too. Then we'll make 300 big ones for a pier at Oxnard, and 99 girders for a Long Beach Freeway bridge, and then a batch for a Dominguez Channel bridge."

MAKING FIVE 100-FOOT PILINGS PER MOLD

Over-all view of Harbor Precast Co. yard at San Pedro shows long molds in which up to five 100-foot concrete pilings can be poured at once. Distance is so great workers use walkie-talkies to contact men at other end. Finished pilings are stacked at right.

THEY'RE HEAVY TO MOVE

Precast plant worker stands on stack of 98 foot piling to assist as big crane moves piles weighing about 14 tons each.

Liberal Policies on Compensation Cost Employers

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third and final part of a series written by Staff Writer Ray Duncan of the Pasadena Independent Star-News on the increasing costs of California Workmen's Compensation.)

By RAY DUNCAN

Workmen's compensation insurance in California may be creating a worker class of "industrial untouchables."

Or so say its critics. They refer to recent expansion of the law to include the concept of "the continuing injury."

This is the heart ailment, or back-ache, or similar slowly-arriving injury, which is often associated with growing older. But these conditions are treated in many compensation cases as being caused by the worker's job, in whole or in part.

This is one of the gravest complaints of employers who feel the system is over-reaching itself in assuming fantastic new burdens of social welfare.

Some of them say this policy has the reverse effect from what was intended. In the long-run, it handicaps the heart-patient worker in getting a job, for it makes him a serious hiring risk. Employers concerned to protect their good insurance record, and its lower rates may refuse to take any worker with a previous heart problem. Cancer and epilepsy patients may be similarly excluded.

Says one employer, "Suppose I interview a healthy-looking job candidate and I learn he has a heart history. I might as well hand him a big hunk of money right there, and save myself a lot of trouble."

Michael R. Tillisch, claims manager for a major compensation insurance company, says, "Let's assume an employer's company has 500 people on the payroll. Let's assume these people are an average of the population as a whole. This could mean that approximately 2.5 of them will die this year of heart disease. If each of these deaths was held to be compensable, and each employe had a wife and dependent child, the total cost of those claims to the insuror or the company would be $52,750!"

THE LIBERALIZATION of the law, employers say, has been partly introduced with the help of a paragraph in the Labor Code itself. It is a small paragraph with immense implications. It says:

"The provisions of . . . this Code shall be liberally construed by the courts with the purpose of extending their benefits for the protection of persons injured in the course of their employment."

Employer-lawyers say this "liberally construed" phrase originally was intended only to apply to the language of the law. But now it has been extended to apply to the testimony itself. Lawyer Douglas A. Campbell, who is himself a former referee, says that evidence of doubtful meaning now is often automatically construed in the worker's favor.

"In case of a tie," says one angry industrialist, "the worker always wins." And cases of an apparent tie are surprisingly frequent.

"I sit and listen to the testimony," says one referee in Los Angeles, 'and I hear two doctors discussing the injury. One doctor is a witness for the injured worker, and the other for the employer. Both doctors are men of good professional standing. But under oath they testify the exact opposite of each other, though they are discussing a simple ailment. And I'm supposed to say which doctor is right. I'd like to throw up my hands and say, "It's a tie!" but I can't."

Veteran Realtor Predicts Good Times Ahead for LB

By MARK CLUTTER

"Laugh when you're going uphill. Cry when you're going down."

This aphorism sums up the business philosophy of Max Livoni, 50-year veteran of the real estate business.

Livoni, 69, is laughing now because he sees good times ahead for the real estate business in Long Beach.

"It's going to be rough for the next six or eight months," he said. "We are on the uphill climb. There is no place to go but up. There are many vacancies here, and Long Beach has the lowest rentals of any comparable area outside of the Deep South.

"All this will change because Long Beach is the ideal 'bedroom city.' This is a place to live. We have three advantages over most communities. We have rapid transportation on the freeways, a beach and clean air."

Urban renewal, Livoni believes, will be the salvation of the downtown area. "There is a trend toward downtown living," he said. "The development of multiple-family and high-rise housing will revitalize downtown."

Livoni backs his optimism with action. At an age at which most businessmen have retired, he is expanding his business. The Livoni Realty Co., located at 1101 Atlantic Ave., has opened a branch office at 3825 E. Seventh St., and is planning to open another branch soon in North Long Beach.

Livoni began his career a half century ago in Nebraska. He has been in business in Long Beach for 33 years. He is widely known here. In addition to being past president of the Board of Realtors and the Apartment House Managers Association, he is a former city councilman and a member of the American Legion, the Elks and Kiwanis.

"I have a positive philosophy of business," he aid. "I believe in service to the client. Give the client the right deal and you hold him. I am proud of the fact that 70% of our business is repeat business.

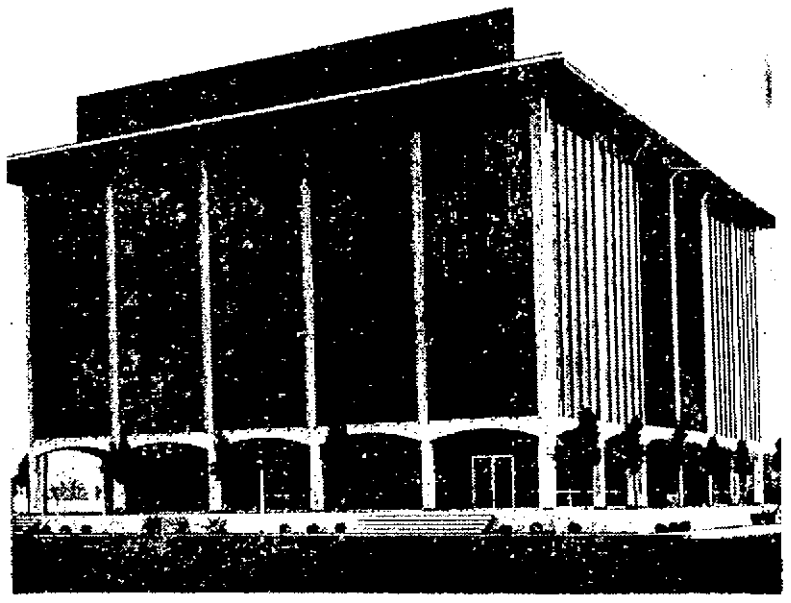

"Real estate is a wonderful career. There is never a dull moment because there is al-

New Office Building Open

CASUALTY INSURANCE CO. STRUCTURE SURROUNDED BY PARKING

The cutting of a ribbon signaled the official opening of Casualty Insurance Co's. office building at 1477 South Manchester in Anaheim.

The office building with such luxury features as an interior landscaped courtyard, fountains, and exterior walls of porcelain, faces on the Santa Ana freeway and is immediately adjacent to Disneyland.

Cameron Dorsey, exclusive leasing agent for the structure, revealed that the second floor will house the headquarters of Casualty Insurance.

The building, surrounded by four acres of parking, is the first phase of a $2½-million complex that will include additional office facilities and a major restaurant.

Realty Board to Hear of New Concepts

William K. Wittausch, manager of housing research in the Stanford Research Institute's Southern California Laboratories, South Pasadena, will speak on "New Concepts in the Housing Industry" at the Long Beach District Board of Realtors breakfast Tuesday.

Wittausch formerly carried out U.S. housing assignments in Guatemala, Germany and Austria.

The realtors will also observe Navy Day at this breakfast meeting and have invited the mayors and city councilmen of Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill and Seal Beach to attend. Also as honored guests will be Captain William P. Tanner, United States Navy at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. Captain Tanner has been in the Navy more than 24 years and assumed command of the Naval Air Station Los Alamitos on August 24th, 1964.

Officers Elected

Don Hyde, 1537 El Prado, Torrance, is the newly elected president of the Management Club at U.S. Steel's Torrance Works.

Other officers include James R. Hinds, vice president and Brice E. Geisert, secretary-treasurer.

Broadway Store to Open New Floor Monday

Furniture Section Expanded

By DAN LUCHSINGER

Official opening Monday of the brand new third floor of the Broadway Long Beach, in the Los Altos Shopping Center, will make the store "A complete department store like the other Broadway stores where customers have a one-stop shopping trip. Now they can buy everything they need for their home, family and children here," Bill Favaro, store manager, said.

The new third floor is of unusual design. It features massive arches at the building top, extending the roof five feet beyond the walls, and is so designed that it will blend with the current architecture of the center as well as that planned in the immediate future.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHT of the new floor is the added furniture department. Tastefully decorated with excellent lighting, it now offers Broadway customers a full line of furniture in various styles.

Other departments including china, glass, silver, gifts, sporting goods, toys, the sewing center and photo studio, have been moved to the new floor and expanded.

The new floor, was a complete addition built on top of the original building constructed several years ago for another department store operation.

"We needed the third floor so this store would conform to the rest of the Broadway style stores," Favaro said. "When you buy someone else's building, you have to alter it to fit your needs."

* * * *

AND NOW the third floor is completed, Favaro said the store's other floors will be remodeled to provide new fixtures, refurbishing and relocation of other departments. The store will remain open during these alterations.

Also included in the store's expansion plans is an auto and tire service center, scheduled to be built adjoining the store and completed in the spring.

When the Broadway expansion is finished the store will have approximately 50 per cent more selling area, total store space growing to 140,000 square feet.

Computer Talk Scheduled Here

The Long Beach Chapter of the Systems and Procedures Association have planned an interesting October meeting at which Dwight E. Goode and Conald C. Isenberg will explain just how computers work.

Goode will give a talk on the workings of a computer with diagrams to explain how computers store information, retrieve it and present compiled information to the machine's operator.

Isenberg's address will explain examples of how to program computers, how to talk to them, and finally what you can expect a computer to do.

Compensation Case Benefits Up 100%

erees is seldom called into question. They are experienced lawyers who take a civil service examination to qualify in this complex medical-legal field. Richard Bancroft, an attorney writing a study of the system in the California Law Review, noted that referee jobs are much sought after, that 'referee competence universally commands practitioner respect," and that they are the highest paid hearing officers in the state. A referee now gets $16,212 a year after three years.

The salary, at least, is not such as to make him too closely akin to the average working man.

California has approximately 85 referees. This is a slightly varying number, divided between a northern and a southern panel based at San Francisco and Los Angeles, with many smaller outposts in addition.

They work under the supervision of the seven members of the Industrial Accident Commission, a body composed mostly of non-lawyers, who are appointed by the governor. The commissioner and referees function under the Department of Industrial Relations.

The fact that commissioners and their superiors are governor-appointed, has led to the complaint by many employers that the regime of Gov. Edmund G. Brown has had an unduly liberal influence on compensation matters.

Further appeal is available to the higher courts. But employers claim that "galloping liberalism" is also evident there. One analyst of this trend recently wrote, "It isn't easy to determine whether the Legislature, the administrative system it created or the judiciary has been the most significant liberalizing force in the California compensation system."

Most employers believe the referees and commission are ahead of the courts in this respect.

But Gordon Winbigler, assistant presiding referee of the Los Angeles panel, has another opinion. He points out that among about 100,000 decisions by referees during the past 2½ years, only 15 have been finally reversed by the Court of Appeals. This indicates, he feels, that referees are not out of line with other California judicial thinking.

Many defenders of the system see it like this:

'Of course it is true that interpretation of the law have become more liberal in recent years. But this trend also appears in the Legislature, which has amended the law many times in a liberal direction, and in the courts. We simply live in a more liberal time."

THE LIBERALIZATION at the Legislative level has brought heavy increases in benefits. They have gone up 100% (from $35 a week maximum in 1954 to $70 a week today for temporary disability payments) and 75% (from $30 maximum in 1954 to $52.50 today for permanent disability payments). Yet many critics of the law, particularly those in labor circles, say it has not kept up with the times in living costs.

At the same time, the rates which employers pay to finance the system have risen sharply. They have been changed 43 times, of which 23 were increases, 18 were decreases, and two made no overall difference in cost. The last six changes have been increases.

The rising costs are not entirely due to changes in philosophy. Medical costs for training injured workers have risen rapidly. Hospital costs alone have gone up 122% in the past 10 years.

But the liberalizing philosophy has proved costly, too, but spreading the area of coverage.

For example, California recently awarded $20,500 in compensation benefits to the survivors of a football player at Cal Poly who was killed in an air crash on his way with the team to a game—on the ground that he held an athletic scholarship, which made him a contract employe of the school.

And another worker received a compensation award for the loss of a finger while using a power saw at home on his own pursuits—for reasons too complex to outline here.

Other interpreations have been more bizarre. An insurance trade magazine, The Independent Adjuster, reports the case of a good-looking California woman of 35 who fell and injured her back while working as a domestic. She received workmen's compensation benefits of $37.75 per week, but "apparently this was insufficient income, so she went into business for herself, and was doing quite well until arrested."

At this point an unkind insurance man demanded that Mrs. X reimburse his company for the disability benefits it had been paying her, and which he felt she had collected illegally because she was doing other work.

BUT THE COMMISSION ruled in her favor, the magazine reports. They pointed out that "the parties to the illicit act did not intend that the man should assume the rights and duties of an employer under California and federal law," and she was therefore not legally employed, and was not inviolation of her status as a disability benefit-receiver.

Not all attacks on the law are coming from employers. Organized labor has expressed several dissatisfactions, but from a different point of view. Labor leaders say the law is inadequate in what should be one of its most important functions, the rehabilitation of the disabled worker to help him get back into productive work.

Many neutral observers agree with labor on this point, though this again might add to the cost of the compensation system.

Labor also says the law's coverage is inadequate for the better-paid workers whose needs are far greater than the present maximum weekly benefits for disability. Labor also has criticized the cost-loading factor allowed insurance firms, as unnecessarily high.

As for complaints that the system is unfair to employers, a Los Angeles labor attorney says:

"The employers and the insurance companies are spoiled. For years they had it all their own way. Then the depression came along and drove a lot of good lawyers into compensation practice, and now there is a real workers' bar, and things have changed."

Employers would like to see the law changed so that politically-appointed commissioners would be less closely related to the referees making judicial decisions. And even within the present law structure, they feel, there is a need for public pressure to force a return to fair control.

FEW WANT THE LAW abolished, few want any drastic changes in its structure, and few are backing any proposed alternate system. The only alternate which seriously threatens the system today is a federal take-over under Social Security. Some say that the California law is old-fashioned, in that it is not designed to handle the burdens that are being thrust upon it by a welfare-minded society and that some alternate program with a broader financial base may eventually be necessary.

But employers say their growing chorus of disapproval is aimed at saving the law, not destroying it.

Lawyer Clopton says the present compensation crisis reminds him of "a Brinks truck overturned in the middle of the street, with coins rolling out for everyone."

Lawyer Warren Hanna has warned California employers that today they "are like a frog. If you drop a frog in boiling water he will immediately jump out, but if you put him in cool water, then gradually increase the temperature, you can cook him before he knowns he's in serious trouble. This is what has been happening in these compensation cases. Many of us don't realize we're really in hot water, and it's getting hotter by the minute."

Foothill Village Townhouses Open in Park-Like Atmosphere

FULLERTON TOWNHOUSE READY

Giant scissors for a giant grand opening are in style for the Foothill Village Townhouses today in Fullerton. Participating are the developers from left to right John M. Driggers, H. R. Brookman Jr. and W. E. Flaharty. Furnished models located on Placentia just north of Chapman will be open daily.

The architecturally designed Foothill Village community in Fullerton will have its grand opening today, according to Ted Crosbie, division manager of the Forest E. Olson Inc., realtors, who are handling the sales.

Considerable research has been undertaken by the developer, H. R. Brookman, Jr. to determine what the buying public is seeking in townhouse living.

"The result," Crosbie states, "is one concept . . . quality." Foothill Village community with its park-like atmosphere of trees and shrubbery offers the residents a source of constant satisfaction rather than a source of continuing chores. Provided is all upkeep for the beautifully landscaped grounds, swimming pools and other recreational facilities. Exterior painting is done to protect the beauty and condition of the homes in the community. The owner pays a proportionate share of maintenance costs by a monthly charge.

THE LARGE recreational building provides many facilities for large and small group gatherings, plus swimming pools, playgrounds and putting greens.

Features include built-in range and oven dishwasher and disposal, individually controlled air conditioning and heating, fireplaces and private patios. Of particular note is the luxurious nylon filament carpeting throughout which, when coupled with the complete insulation of outside walls and ceiling, give meaning to the quality concept.

Foothill Village Townhouses start at $18,900, offer a wide range of plans and settings including two, three, and four bedrooms and two and three baths. Financing is available at 6% for 30 years.

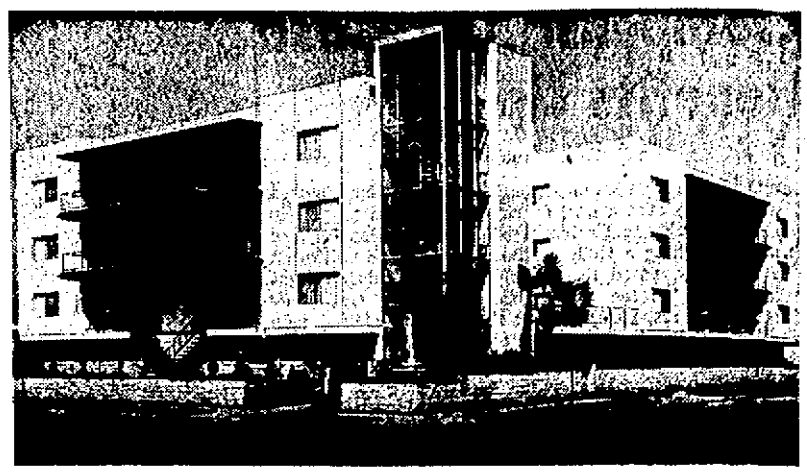

The $2,200,000. condominium has been developed by H. R. Brookman, Jr., John M. Driggers and W. E. Flaharty.

Furnished models located on Placentia, just north of Chapman in Fullerton, will be open daily.

Home Savings Lists Earnings

Home Savings & Loan of Los Angeles has announced third quarter earnings of $5,269,129, a 50% gain over the same 1963 quarter.

The Ahmanson family-owned company also said gross assets for the 12-month period ending Sept. 30 increased $304,130,708. The firm's total assets are now reported at $1,796,088,708.

ANOTHER HARRIS ROGERS DEVELOPMENT OPENS SALES TODAY

Villa Fontana Own-Y our-Owns Open

Formal opening of "Villa Fontana," own-your-own apartment building at 1625 Appleton St., will be held today.

Southern California Edison Co. will be hosts for the open house. Refreshments will be served from 1:00 until 5:00 p.m.

Built by Harris Rogers, these units offer the elegance, economy, and convenience of apartment living, plus the comfort, security, and independence of owning your own home.

The apartment homes are attractively priced starting at $13,750 for one bedroom. Two bedrooms with 1¾ baths and private terraces are offered for $18,000 and up.

Unique features of the building includes a spacious inner court and a tastefully decorated lobby. The glass enclosed, winding stairway contributes to the architectural picture.

Two decorated models, furnished by Carl's, are on display daily from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

The all-electric units have been awarded the Edison Co. Medallion for excellence.

Distinctive One-Story Cypress Homes Appeal

A SOMERSET HOUSE

Wall-to-wall carpets, large and attractive gas-burning fireplaces and wide walls of glass contribute to the luxurious appearance of Somerset Homes in Cypress, Western Orange County. The big, comfortable homes are priced from $27,500 with up to 1652 square feet of living area.

"Live low and like it" is the theme for a series of new homes being offered in Cypress, Western Orange County.

The new homes are the Somerset distinctive one-story series priced from only $27,500 for up to 1652 square feet of actual living area.

Within the Somerset series is the wide-spreading, leisure-plan home called The Sycamore. All on one floor are its four bedrooms and two baths, its exceptionally large family room and rare atrium—glass-enclosed outdoor-in-door garden room.

"WE'VE DESIGNED this home for the family that wants typical California living . . . a sense of ranch-style relaxation, a freedom from the Eastern two-story plan," said a representative of the builders.

"Living low and liking it," he added, "are many Californians who consider one-story living typical of the west. They wouldn't go up and down stairs all day for anything . . . and here, they don't have to."

Everything is at hand in this new Somerset home. The kitchen has all the labor-saving built-ins, from gas range and oven to sparkle-rinse dishwasher. Luxurious wall-to-wall carpeting is reflected in the ample dressing mirrors of the master bedroom. Everywhere are convenience outlets for telephones, television, extra power demands.

Part of the "living low and liking it" theme is expressed in the exterior landscaping that goes with each home; it is distinctive and richly Californian.

To visit the attractive homes, take Carson to Moody, then turn South to the models only a short distance from Los Alamitos Country Club.

Homes Are Designed for Mature Families

With grown up children away from home, parental responsibility diminishes. A family no longer needs extra room and parents begin looking for freedom from daily responsibilities of gardening and maintenance.

The Cape Series, new garden condominium homes in Newport's Back Bay, meet the needs of those who are accustomed to gracious living but who want more freedom to enjoy life. They can now escape the monotonous chores that accompany upkeep of a single residence dwelling.

Parents who have reached the point in life where leisure time is within their grasp will find that the South Oaks Corp.'s Cape Series offers an ideal home to meet their needs.

* * * *

QUIET surroundings desired by the mature are assured in this exclusive community. Your neighbors at the Cape Series are contemporaries, old enough to appreciate unruffled seclusion and young enough to enjoy life.

The charm and simplicity of New England's Cape Cod sets the architectural mood for the Cape Series. The crisp contrasts often seen in Southern California was dismissed by the South Oaks Corp., builders.

While the Cape Series design is rooted in Old New England, along the shores of Massachusetts, the achievement is refreshing.

* * * *

INVITING, traditionally-styled homes, covered with hand-split cedar shake roofs, are set among spacious landscaped malls to provide maximum privacy and serenity.

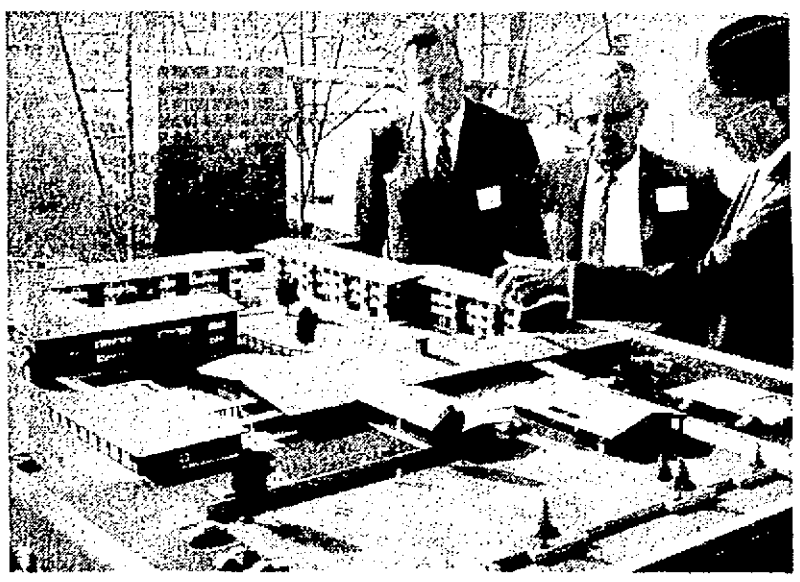

Most plans feature built-in glass front china closets. Experienced home seekers are in agreement that deluxe provisions like these and many windows which provide light and fresh sea are rarely seen in new homes.

Long Beach Plants Fill Asia Orders

Two plants in Long Beach have filled orders for $90,349 in foreign aid program exports to South Viet Nam and Pakistan, the Agency for International Development reports.

Rachel Laboratories Inc. sold $85,750 worth of medicinal and pharmaceutical products for South Viet Nam. Techno Electric Manufacturing Co., furnished $4,599 worth of equipment for Kakistan.

MODEL UNVEILED

Friends Church Organization Building Homes for Elderly

Construction is under way in Stanton on Quaker Gardens, a $3,500,000 resident home for the retired and elderly — the first California Friends Home to be built, and a most complete retirement center.

This unique project, which will place emphasis on active community participation by its residents, is located on a seven acre site at 12151 Dale Street in Stanton, where that community borders Garden Grove.

More than 120,000 square feet of area in six buildings housing 171 apartments including suites, semi-suites and single units are scheduled in the Quaker Gardens' master plan which also includes a chapel, an infirmary, recreational areas and a personal services area.

* * * *

THE MASTER PLAN for Quaker Gardens calls for facilities to be built in the shape of a rectangle around a completely landscaped center mall, which will be interlaced by covered walkways between the main buildings.

According to Lloyd W. Halvorson, executive director of California Friends Homes, a nonprofit corporation, the facility will be completely non-denominational and open to individuals of all religious faiths.

Quaker Gardens, in its full Life-Care program, will offer complete service for personal needs, complete medical care, and hospitalization, if needed, Halvorson said.

* * * *

THE RETIREMENT facility, located on the site of a former orange and avocado orchard, will be built entirely of reinforced brick and steel, by M. J. Brock & Sons, Inc., general contractors, and is expected to be completed in the fall of 1965.

One feature of Claude Senefeld's design is an impressive entrance-way highlighted by a large covered patio and a reflecting pool and fountain, flanked by subtropical plantings.

A chapel with a seating capacity of 120 and featuring an additional meditation area will be located near the Quaker Gardens' entrance.

Two three-story buildings house the apartments, surrounding the court yard. Barber and beauty facilities, personal service area and a clinic facility also are included in these buildings.

The entire project is sponsored by the California Yearly Meeting of Friends Church, the state organization of Friends.

Mesa's R. R. Lowe Gets New Position

Rodger R. Lowe has been appointed vice president and director of the Consulting Division of Mesa Scientific Corporation, it was announced by Vernon D. Walker, president.

Formerly engineering vice president of Mesa, Lowe's new responsibilities reflect the corporate reorganization resulting from Mesa's recent acquisition of Systems Programming Corporation, Santa Ana, Calif.

His experience prior to joining Mesa Scientific includes posts as senior staff consultant, Norden Division, United Aircraft Corporation, research project engineer for the Electronics Division, National Cash Register Company, and project engineer, Electronic Engineering Company of California.

Lowe hold a degree in theoretical physics from the University of California at Los Angeles.

Offers Immediate Occupancy

Immediate occupancy in one of Orange County's outstanding family residential-recreational communities, Holiday Village in Huntington Beach, is announced by Jack Scougall, sales manager.

Holiday Village is ideally located at Brookhurst and Adams, a site that is only a few minutes drive from such outstanding recreational areas as city and state public beaches and Newport Beach.

In Costa Mesa is Mesa Verde Country Club. Free membership in this exclusive golf club is now being given Holiday Village new home buyers.

The minimum down payment is $495 and garden-patio homes are priced from $14,990 to $17,490, states Scougall. The purchase is backed up by Kaufman and Broad's five-year warranty, only such guarantee in California.

Two, three and four-bedroom homes are available. Purchase price includes built-in oven and range, washer and dryer, refrigerator, fenced-in patio and wall-to-wall carpeting. A new special feature is an exclusively designed 200-square-foot panoramic bedroom suite with library and lounge combined in some models.

AT HOLIDAY VILLAGE, trained professionals take care of the maintenance, such as exterior painting of your home, plus the care of the landscaping, public areas and recreational facilities of the community.

Maintenance is directed by the homeowners' association, to which all families belong, each family unit having one vote in the administration. A nominal monthly assessment fee pays for the maintenance.

Home living is planned for families with children over 13 years of age. A key part of this program is the family recreation center, which offers a large swimming pool, a putting green and a clubhouse for social and educational activities. Free and full use of this facility is part of the basic purchase price.

Lytton Profits Up ½ Million

Lytton Financial Corporation has announced earnings of $4,000,108 for nine months ended Sept. 30, up $556,108 over the same period a year ago.

This is $1.86 a share based on 2,148,283 shares compared to $1.83 last year on fewer shares. Outstanding shares have increased with a 414,393 common stock offering last May.

Bart Lytton, corporation president, announced the holding company's recently opened subsidiary loan associations have posted good gains. He cited the record of the Oakland regional office which, in less than 20 months of operation, has accounted $15.5 million in deposits.

Albert Cowen Named to New Insurance Job

Albert S. Cowen has been appointed insurance consultant manager at Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s district office at 3655 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach, according to district manager Elmer C. Krauel.

A. S. COWAN

In 1961 and 1962, while a consultant at the local office, Cowen sold over one million dollars in life and health insurance coverage to Long Beach area families. In December 1962 he was appointed a member of the management team of the company's Norwalk district, his position immediately prior to this assignment.

In his new assignment, Cowen will have immediate supervision over a sales staff which will serve the basic insurance needs of Metropolitan policyholders and the public in this area.

Edison Honors Three Employes for Service

Three Southern California Edison Co. employes from Long Beach marked company milestones recently.

Bert B. Mahaffie, 2180 Termino Ave., and Mont. F. Palmer, 4429 Hazelbrook Ave., each received 35-year diamond service pins. Ross Carrington, 1654 E. 64th St., retired after 20 years service with the firm.

Mahaffie is a first operator in the southwest substation division and Palmer is a watch engineer at the Alamitos steam station.

Carrington, who was with Edison's steam generation division, plans to use his retirement to travel extensively.

Many Extras Included in Dutch Haven Homes

IN DUTCH HAVEN HOME
A large dining area adjoins the living room in this model of a Dutch Haven Homes. The homes are offered in four different developments in Orange Co.

All four Dutch Haven communities in Orange County: Newport-West, Marina Series, Sunny Hills West and the College Series, offer a wide selection of luxury features included at no additional cost in the initial selling prices.

Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, states that quite a few of the features are of "custom quality" and are usually found only in homes costing far more than those currently offered by Dutch Haven.

Features included in Newport-West homes are: complete Medallion kitchens with built-in dishwasher, range, oven, range hood and disposal, full-sized beach lots, decorator designed fireplaces with log lighters, overhead boat doors on garages, wood shake or single roofs and forced-air heating.

Newport-West homes at the beach are priced from $21,950 and include two-story three and four bedroom homes with family room and up to three baths. VA No Down, FHA and Cal-Vet financing is available.

At the Dutch Haven Marina Series, features include complete built-in Medallion kitchens with dishwasher, range, disposal, oven and range hood, family room, decorator fireplace, wood shake roof with large overhangs, master bedroom suite and forced-air heating.

The Marina Series is priced from $18,950 with three and four bedroom homes with up to two baths. VA, Cal-Vet and FHA financing is available with just $95 move-in cost to Vets.

Underground utilities throughout are featured at Sunny Hills West, along with massive two-way fireplace with log lighters, complete Medallion kitchens, oversized view lots, sunken living rooms and up to 2400 square feet of living area.

* * * *

SITUATED in the picturesque hills overlooking the Fullerton Valley, Sunny Hills is one of a very limited number of executive communities where veterans may select a home on VA no down terms. FHA and long-term conventional financing plans are available.

Ranging from three to five bedrooms with family room, dining room and up to three full baths, the homes are priced from $29,950. Split level, two-story, and single level floor plans are offered.

Outstanding features at the Dutch Haven College Series in Huntington Beach include oak floors throughout, Medallion kitchens with dishwasher, oven, range, disposal and range hood, separate formal dining areas, sunken living rooms, custom fireplaces with log lighters, double door entries, wood shake or shingle roofs with large overhangs and forced-air heating.

Single level and two-story plans are available with three or four bedrooms and family room and up to three baths. Prices start at $20,950 with VA No Down, FHA and Cal-Vet financing offered.

Dutch Housewife Contest Winner

A Dutch-born housewife with a penchant for 18th century furnishings has won a 700-entry interior decorating contest at Fairway Park, East Long Beach area housing community it was announced by H. C. Pease, marketing director for builder-developer Robert H. Grant & Co.

She is Mrs. Harry Maaskant, 10491 Barbara Ann St., a native of Holland and the wife of a U. S. importer.

"Mrs. Maaskant has had no previous experience in interior decorating," said Pease. "She used her own good sense —and also put to use some sound advice from her husband!"

* * * *

SECOND and third winners in the contest are Mrs. James H. Harvey and Mrs. Harold I. Hudson, Pease added. The contest was open to all 700 families in Fairway Park.

The two-story, four-bedroom, three-bath homes occupied by the contest winners feature hardwood floors on raised concrete foundations, sunken living rooms with slate entries an wood-burning fireplaces with gas log lighters.

* * * *

THREE OTHER floor plans range in size from three to five bedrooms, and prices begin at $24,250 with minimum down on VA, FHA or conventional terms.

Four furnished models are open daily and may be reached by taking the Los Alamitos off-ramp from the newly-opened San Diego Freeway north to Spring St. and turning right, or by driving east on Spring to Cerritos.

Contractors Build Educational Role

The Associated General Contractors have announced plans for a general expansion of their educational program directed toward the development of skilled workers and management men for the construction industry.

Through the expanded program, the association will offer more college engineering scholarships, seek to broaden the college curriculum of construction type classes, and promote apprenticeship programs in the construction trades.

Pacific Sands Has Only 28 Homes Left

Chances to buy a better house are being reduced at the rate of more than one a day at Pacific Sands Imperial, according to Bob Hardesty, director of marketing for Deane Brothers, builders-developers of the walled-in residential-recreational community in Huntington Beach.

After two months of sales, only 28 homes remain out of the original 97. Some of the 28 still available have the Garden Kitchen, an exclusive feature developed after several years of research by Deane Brothers, and considered a major spur to the accelerated sales.

The Garden Kitchen is an exciting example of indoor-outdoor living that is both practical and handsome. It literally puts the homemaker and her family in the center of the patio.

THIS WAS achieved by running gold anodized sliding windows the length of the area over the work counters, which separate kitchen from patio. Biggest structural component between the areas, other than the counters, is a 4x4-inch corner post.

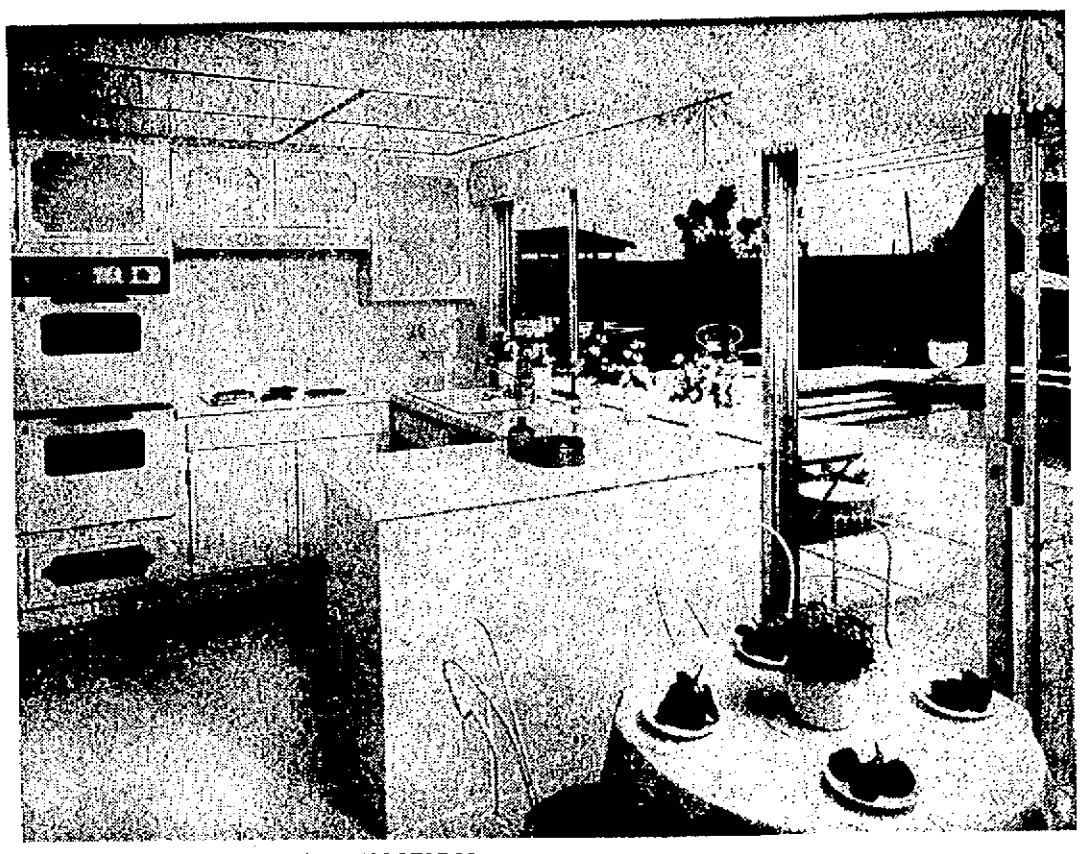

Whether windows are open or closed, the kitchen and patio merge into a visual unity. On the patio side of the window, a wide counter runs along under the window, providing a handy outdoor snack bar.

The Garden Kitchen is no "casual vacation kitchen." Its decor reflects a polished elegance in its color scheme of white and gold.

The one and two-story homes of Pacific Sands Imperial come with three, four and five bedrooms and two and three baths. The variety of 13 exterior designs eliminates "look alikes." Some of the homes feature sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, wet bar and a private front entry court.

Prices at Pacific Sands Imperial range from $18,950 to $27,600, terms 10% down to a 30-year first trust deed.

The private beach community is on Adams between Beach Blvd. and Brookhurst Blvd., next to one of Southern California's finest beaches, offering swimming, surfing and sun bathing.

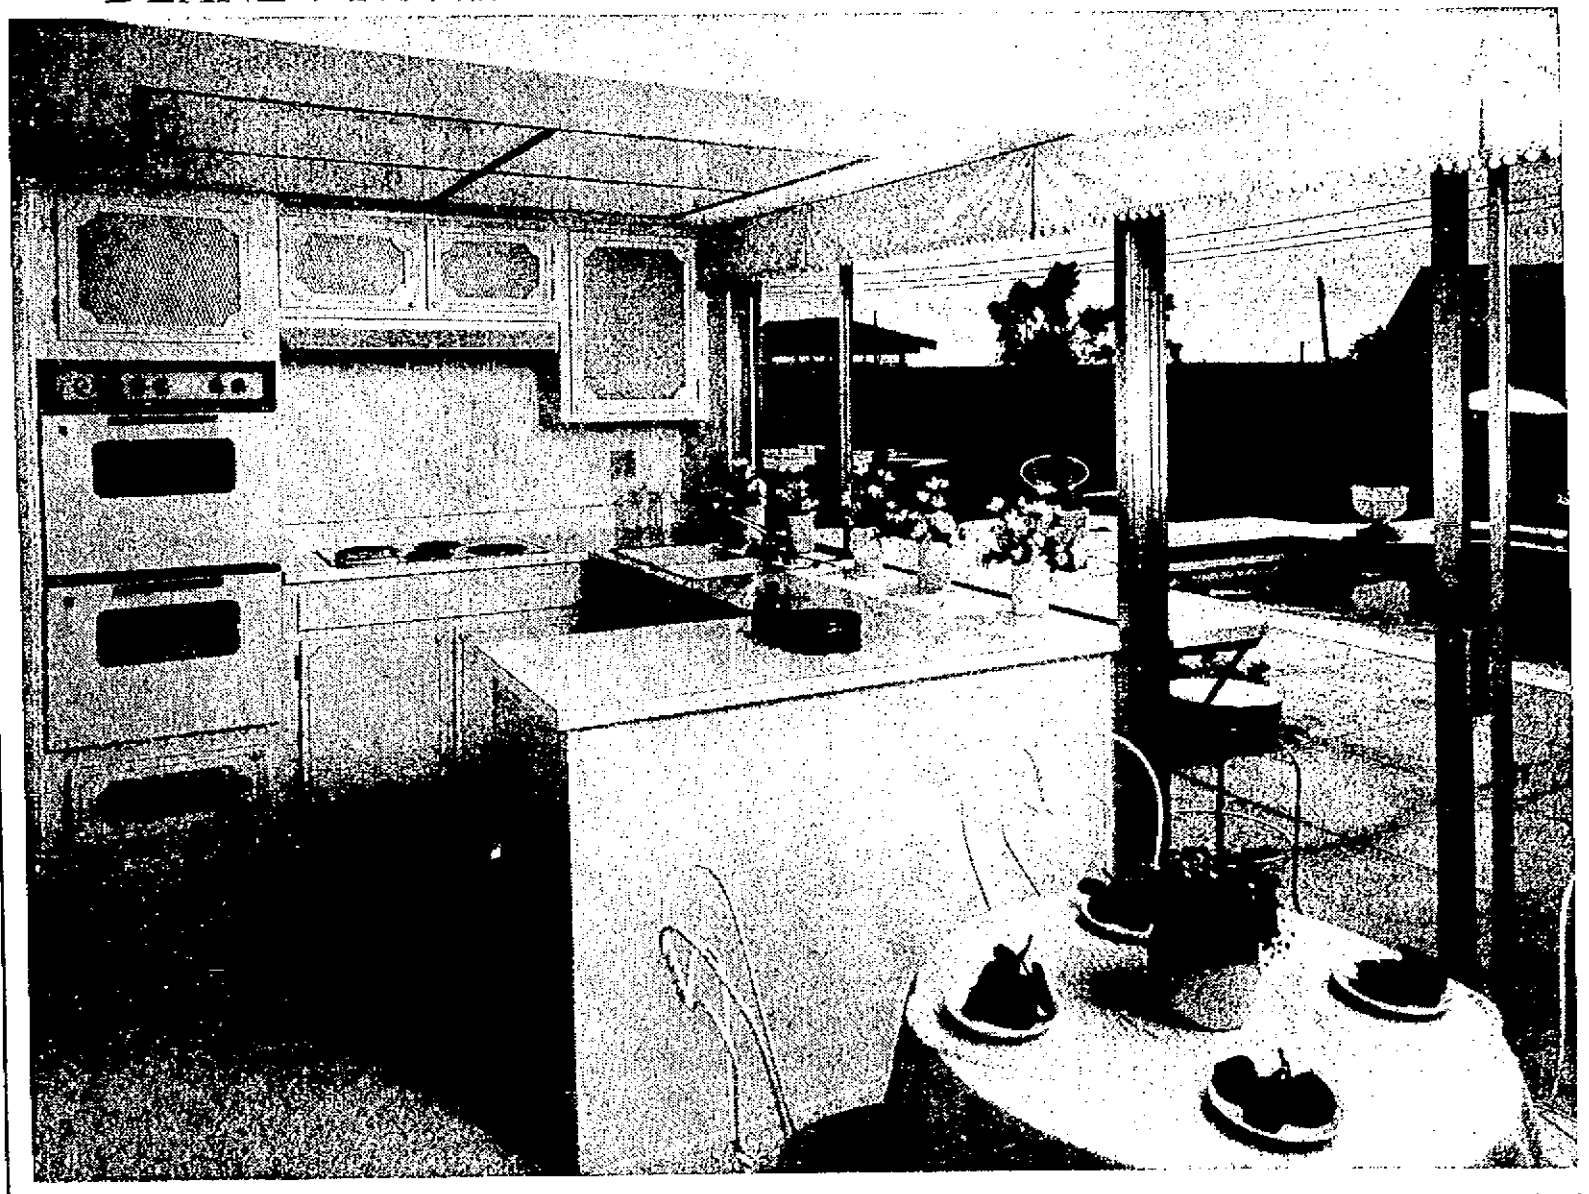

INDOOR-OUTDOOR COMBINATION

This Garden Kitchen was photographed at one of the model houses at Pacific Sands Imperial, private walled-in beach community in Huntington Beach. Swimming pool is an optional feature. Both sliding glass door and sliding window above kitchen counter are open, creating an actual physical unity between kitchen and patio.

Wall-to-wall carpet, landscaping, sprinklers, and big, second-story Bonus Room are all included in payments of less than $160 per month at Del Cerro in Tustin. The Big Del Cerro homes are in eighth unit with terms as low as $690 down. Site is on Red Hill Ave. at First St. in Orange County's choice new home area. Large rooms are featured as shown here.

Two Country Square Locations Now Available for Home Buyers

"Value is the key to home ownership today," reports Theodore C. Bentley, developer of the highly successful Country Square and Country Home Fair homes in Cypress and Diamond Bar.

"With rising land and construction costs, subdividers must provide an incentive to home buyers. We, at Country Square deliver houses at the lowest possible cost per square foot."

Bentley is known to build a big house with all the features of custom houses but by careful management and cost control, the homes are sold at prices and terms that anyone can afford.

• • • •

COUNTRY Square, a truly fine place in which to live, has opened a new development of spacious, custom-quality homes designed especially for gracious, suburban living that fits well into the carefree atmosphere of Southern California homemaking.

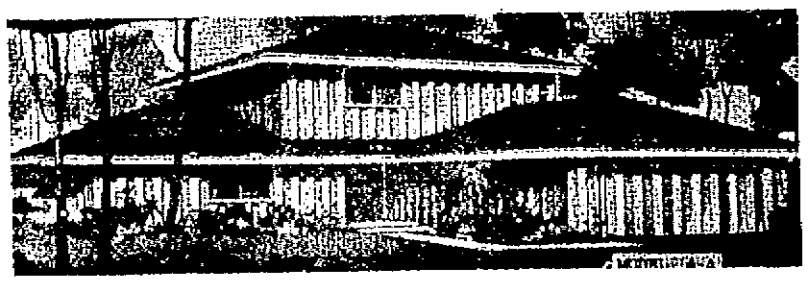

Discriminately located in the heart of Western Orange County, Country Square offers easy access to some of the Southland's most famous recreational facilities such as Knott's Berry Farm, Disneyland and Los Alamitos Race track and Golf Course.

• • • •

AVAILABLE at the Cypress homes are modern luxuries that include: raised foundations, hardwood floors with up to 1800 square feet, and excellent 30 year conventional financing.

Forced air heating, marble top pullmans, sunken living rooms, wood burning fireplaces, built-ins, garbage disposals, dishwashers, walk-in closets, beautiful entries, private balcony — in two-story homes, paneled kitchen cabinets with magnetic locks, laundry area in garage and laundry area in garage and many other surprises.

There are five types of homes from which to choose, according to R. Dickson Miles, exclusive sales agent.

FOR GRACIOUS SUBURBAN LIFE

Country Square and Country Home Fair in Cypress and at the Diamond Bar Ranch offer large homes at a moderate price. This is one of the two-story models at the Theodore C. Bentley developments.

Hansen Appointed

Harold Hansen, of Long Beach, regional director of sales of American General Life Insurance Co., has been named sales coordinator of his firm's agents for the Western Health Insurance Association.

Money Back Guarantee on Home in Del Cerro

Buyers in the eighth and final unit of the Del Cerro homes in Tustin will move in on a "money back guarantee," the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons explained.

Now, the home buyer may occupy a new home, find out the advantages of near by schools and shopping and live with the knowledge that the full down payment will be returned at the end of one year if the home or area is unsatisfactory, the pioneer building firm explained.

• • • •

DEL CERRO homes are priced from $28,950 and are available for as low as 5% down. Monthly payments are less than $160 per month with prices that include wall to wall carpet, built ins, and the second story "Bonus Room."

To reach Del Cerro from the Los Angeles area, take the Santa Ana (San Diego) Freeway South thru Santa Ana to the Red Hill off-ramp in Tustin. Go North on Red Hill Ave. just one mile to the Del Cerro models.

From Long Beach, take Seventh St. straight through to Santa Ana. Just past Main St. in Santa Ana take the San Diego Freeway South. Get off the Freeway at the Red Hill Ave. turn-off. Go North (left) one mile to models.

Bellflower's newest financial institution, The Bellflower National Bank, will be housed in "temporary" quarters depicted here. Scheduled for opening shortly after Jan. 1, the new bank will be on the west side of Bellflower Boulevard midway between Alondra Boulevard and Harvard Street. Permanent quarters will be built about 2½ years later at Bellflower and Alondra when lease expires on present building site. Dr. C. M. Brakensiek is chairman of the board of new bank and Charles Victory is president.

13 Underwriters Make Star Club

Thirteen Long Beach area field underwriters have been named members of New York Life Insurance Company's 1964 Star Club.

They are LaVern C. Bell; Max T. Bramble; Curtis H. Goodenow; William T. J. Harris, CLU; LeRoy M. Hoffman; Walter W. Loucks; Raleigh A. Parker; Daniel E. Parr; all of Long Beach; Charles E. Allen, of San Pedro; Robert C. Brown, of Los Alamitos; George D. MacDonald and Boyd G. Peyton, of Lakewood; and Arthur I. Zahler, of Seal Beach.

Membership in the Star Club is based upon outstanding 1963-64 sales records, according to Charles F. Edwards, CLU, regional vice president in Los Angeles.

Seal Beach Leisure World Final Unit Nearing Sellout

MANY ACTIVITIES OFFERED

Shuffleboard courts are popular in the luxury clubhouses of Ross W. Cortese's pilot "people-over-52" community, Rossmoor Leisure World at Seal Beach where the 400-mark was reached last week in the 15th and final mutual of 502 manors. Here, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wenk try their skill at the game. Golf, swimming and lawn-bowling are other sport attractions at the thriving community of nearly 11,000 persons.

Luxury accommodations are nearing sellout point, C. Robert Moon announced.

Moon, vice president of New Horizons, Inc., national sales corporation for Leisure World communities, in making the announcement said that the 400-mark was reached this week. There are only 502 manors contained in the unit being built on the last available land at the popular community of nearly 11,000 residents.

Seal Beach Leisure World is a thriving, self-contained "city" with a giant shopping center, a golf course which is played all day long, three bustling clubhouses and a swimming and therapeutic pool complex.

SHUFFLEBOARD, lawn-bowling, cards, all forms of dancing, adult education courses, the activities of some 84 church groups and social clubs, ceramic and lapidary shops, sewing rooms and wood-working shops — all make Leisure World a place for a happy, active "new way of life" for people over 52 years of age.

The $710,000 Medical Center is located in the heart of the community. It is adjacent to the 2500-seat amphitheater.

To make full use of the last available land, Unit 15 contains some second-story view manors, the first to be built in the community. Eight luxury styles are available.

ONE-BEDROOM member-ownership manors are priced from $12,595 to $12,995. Two-bedroom Unit 15 manors are priced from $14,395 to $16,495. The average monthly payment is $145, subject to modification. All loans are insured FHA at 5¼% interest.

Leisure World's western boundary is the Long Beach city line at Los Alamitos Boulevard and Garden Grove Boulevard.

Anaheim Showcase Homes Highly Popular With Buyers

HOUSE OF TOMORROW

William Krueger, developer, points with pride at The Futura, one of the many elevations available at Showcase Homes in Anaheim. The progressive architecture and modern planning is responsible for the tremendous sales response according to Frank McFarland, right, of McFarland & Mattocks, sales agents.

McFarland and Mattocks, sales agents for Showcase Homes at 8401 Kingsley St. in Anaheim announced that sales have now passed 2½ million.

President Frank McFarland gave coordinatio and training as a big reason for the successful sales record. He stated, "Proper pre-planning, the advantage of the builder and sales force working together from the initial concept towards a quality product coupled with a constant sales tralning program resulted in the Showcase Homes moving at a phenomenal rate."

In the first four weeks Showcase Homes were on sale, McFarland's sales force sold 97 homes.

McFarland and Mattocks has been established for 12 years. Of the sales force of 35, many have been with the organization since its inception.

FRANK McFARLAND believes in staying abreast of the current trend in real estate. To keep their sales force informed M&M has a regular monthly seminar sponsored by Thomas Osborne, president of the Orange Coast College faculty. Osborne is a well known consultant in real estate sales and marketing. He brings in speakers to present various aspects of sales technique to the sales personnel.

"In the field of real estate" states McFarland, "10% of the people make 90% of the money. It is therefore mandatory to stay informed on all matters including financing, construction, sales technique and a thorough knowledge of the product."

Showcase Homes, which may be financed with as little as $495 down, start at $21,050. The furnished models are one mile east of State College Boulevard, just off Lincoln.

Fiberglass Bathtub Receives Approval

A one-piece fiberglass bathtub, manufactured by Superior Laminates Inc. of Orange, has received the general use recommendation of the Western Plumbing Officials Association.

J. S. Ross, vice-president of Superior, said the approved bathtubs each have a three-wall wainscot, made of fiberglass-reinforced polyester resin with gel-coat finish.

'Total Convenience' Kitchen Attraction at Homes

"A woman's work may never be done, but a 'Total Convenience' kitchen at Premier Homes makes it easier." So says Frank McFarland of McFarland and Mattocks Inc., sales agents for Premier Homes in Huntington Beach.

"Total Convenience" kitchens are the ultimate in completeness, according to realtor McFarland. Every modern essential and luxury is built in and included in the sales price. Premier's "Total Convenience" begins with independently controlled double ovens. The homemaker may bake in one oven while broiling in the other.

Electric range, disposer, range-hood and dishwasher are also included in the Premier Homes kitchen package. All the built-in appliances are from a nationally-known manufacturer. Custom-finished hardwood cabinets and ceramic tile counter tops are designed to provide for two of today's main home-buyer preferences.

McFARLAND said that buyer research had strongly indicated a desire for even more built-in items in the modern home. At Premier Homes, the "Total Convenience" approach provides a surface-mounted food preparation center, complete with built-in mixer, blender and knife sharpener.

Premier Homes are offered in three and four bedroom, two bath models, all with a family room. Prices start at $23,400. Premier Homes offer VA no down and FHA minimum down terms and 29 and 35-year loans are available. There are no second trust deeds.

Visitors to Premier Homes take the San Diego Freeway to its terminus at Bolsa Chica Road. Drive south on Bolsa Chica to Warner, and turn left on Warner to Premier Homes model showcase. Visitors taking the Santa Ana Freeway turn off on Beach Boulevard (Hwy 39) and drive south to Warner, turning right to Warner to Premier Homes.

BOOST PREMIER HOMES

Builder William Rousey, right, looks on as sales agent Frank H. McFarland checks off the "4 Ways Better" formula for Premier Homes in Huntington Beach. "4 Ways Better" applies to kitchens, construction, custom extras and pricing. Three and 4-bedroom Premier Homes are priced from $23,400.

Take Note of 'People of Note'

By ELISE EMERY

Curtain-raiser for Long Beach Symphony's 1964-65 season will be a "Season in Miniature" dinner next Sunday evening, Nov. 1, at the Elks Club.

The event, sponsored by Long Beach Symphony Association and the Symphony Guild, will honor conductor Lauris Jones and guest artists for the coming concerts.

At a recent meeting of representatives of the sponsoring groups in the Herman H. Ridder home, Sue McDonald, manager of the orchestra, said, "This will be a light-hearted preview of the season and as many of the guests artists as possible will be there.

"The pubic is invited—in fact, URGED—to attend.

"Although the dinner will he a jolly occasion, we want it to be more than that. It is the first announcement of our season, the most ambitious we have ever attempted, and we hope that the 'Season in Miniature' preview will stimulate so much interest that everyone attending will rush to buy tickets and to induce their friends and relations to do so. It is an unbelievably good season, especially for piano fans."

MRS. McDONALD'S enthusiasm is shared by Mottell D. Peek, president of Long Beach Symphony Association, and Mrs. Robert Westmyer, president of Symphony Guild.

At the dinner, Mayor Edwin W. Wade will introduce city and county dignitaries. Members and leaders of music, art and drama groups have been invited, and violinist Camilla Wicks who will be guest artist for the season's first concert, will attend with her husband.

Pat Brown of Magnolia Theater will introduce "People of Note" from the orchestra personnel, who will respond with musical notes of their own.

Representing the string concerts, Alayne Armstrong, cellist, will play "The Swan" from "Carnival of Animals" by Saint-Saens, and Craig Nies, winner of last year's Student Musicians Competition, will play as a reminder of the Furjanick Award concert.

OTHERS also will be spotlighted on the dinner program. Mrs. Kirby Wharton, vice president of Hurok Concerts, will speak informally about duo pianists Luboshutz and Nemenoff, who will appear here in April; Dallas Keller, soloist from the Mormon Choir, will present a group of songs; Harriett Wood and Barbara Moore will play a harp and flute duo by Mozart to emphasize the all-orchestra concert which will climax

Crocs 'n Snakes Rock Fashion World--AND

They're in a Flap Over Elephant Ears

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

If you take the fine leather we're having with even a grain of nonchalance, you haven't met Arthur Edelman, wife Teddy and their co-traveler, Noah the Boa.

Once you've exchanged a few words with the Edelmans (and a hiss or two with Noah), you fast know a thing or two about the hides—and the seek—that make today's leather industry one of the most exciting in New York's fashion jungle.

In California the past three days to make a series of personal appearances at May Co. stores, this effervescent team is known throughout the fashion world for unique and revolutionary innovations in leather design.

Winners of the National Shoe Retailers Mercury Award and the Coty American Fashion Critics Award, they currently are rocking the style world with sensational crocodiles and reptiles, lizards and cobras—all artfully turned into colors so vibrant and startling they'd shock a chameleon.

What's more, the pace-setting Edelmans are putting everybody in a flap over elephant ear skin, a pebbly-surfaced leather that comes straight from (where else?) an elephant's ear.

"WE THINK THIS new skin will be trumpeted all over the fashion world," predicted Edelman, a hunk of gregarious manhood (6-feet-6) who could charm a snake—and does.

"Snake is the greatest fashion story afoot this season," Edelman continued, whereupon he introduced Noah, a writhing 10-foot boa constrictor (very much alive) who proves to be quite a conversation piece wherever he goes.

And where he goes is almost everywhere with the globe-trotting Edelmans, who take him along to prove "that snake IS, indeed, making fashion hiss-tory."

Noah, we're told, is an expert traveler. Edelman carries him in an inconspicuous muslin sack. "When we travel he just curls up at my feet and goes to sleep. Of course, if fellow travelers knew what was in the sack, the shrieks would probably wake him up."

EDELMAN believes consumers are more geared for fashion excitement and individuality than are the manufacturers.

"American women have given up yesteryear's cookie-cutter sameness. They want individuality in their clothes—and they're willing to pay for it."

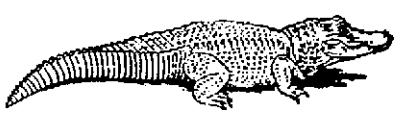

"To meet the demand, we need at least 800,000 cobra skins—and more manufacturers who'll give women the fashion excitement they're clamoring for."

Meanwhile, the Edelmans keep on beating the bushes of the Amazon country, of Africa, Argentina, India and the swamps of Florida and Louisiana ("our best alligator skins come from the USA") to keep pace with the nation's rising demand for quality and exotic leathers.

During these trips, Noah minds the lobby of the Edelmans' offices—Fleming-Joffe Ltd. in New York City—where the floors are suede and the walls are leather (or is it vice versa?)

Besides Noah, the Edelmans have five children (ages 2 to 12), four horses, a llama, a poodle named George and hordes of guinea pigs.

About the snakes: "They're just to keep us inspired," the couple jested as they departed—probably on another safari to find some undiscovered beauty that's only skin deep.

THE LEATHER-LOVIN' Edelmans — Teddy and Arthur—snapped at May Co. safari press luncheon. Thigh-high boot, fashioned of Edelman-tanned leather and designed by Paris couturier Roger Vivier, was purchased by Liz Taylor and a duchess or two, says 6-foot-6 Edelman.

People Are on the Move—Hawaii to Milan

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

BACK AT the "old homestead" at Sixth and Pine and wondering where all the time went during a really marvelous wandering-around-Hawaii vacation.

We (spouse, Norman, and myself) flew over and returned aboard the Lurline—a luxurious way to float if ever there was one and, in my opinion, a wonderful way to return to home port without the too great shock of suddenly being in Oahu and then, quick as jet time, on the mainland.

What did we like best? Hard to say, there was so much to enjoy. Meeting people from all around the world at Waikiki, there on vacations or business stopovers, was stimulating. Taking flights to Kauaii, Maui and Hawaii and sightseeing like good, old fashioned tourists should, was great. Loved stay at Coco Palms on Kauii where Polynesia as you dream about it really comes true—in fact entire island; Maui was least favorite although it certainly has its points; Hawaii was great, from Hilo around to the Kona Coast where we stayed at Kona Inn, a delightful place.

Kept running into Long Beach people. At the Naniloa in Hilo we were rounding hotel corridor and bumped right into Wilbur Snively. Saw the Dickles, Charles and Virginia, as paths crossed in Honolulu (they were on delayed 25th wedding anniversary trip) and had completely unexpected encounters with Ida and Herb Beuhler at the new Outrigger Canoe Club and with Virginia and Morgan Stivers and Ethel and Kenyon Wells.

We rendezvoused with Norm's brother and wife, Mel and Middy, briefly in Honolulu and later in Maui and traveled on together to Hawaii. We took rent-a-cars every place and were free as birds to stay as long —or move as fast—as we liked. All told—smashing good time.

When you go, allow time to take the boat at least one way. It's super cruising.

ALWAYS PART of the scenery that makes Hawaii so attractive is seen below at Kalapaki Beach in front of Kauai Surf Hotel, Kauaii.

Hawaii's many attractions offer great variety.

NOTES AND memos have stacked up on my desk sky high (well, ceiling high, anyway) during absence so will try and make use of what I can of doings, comings and goings of people.

Learned, for instance, that whilst I was enjoying Polynesia Muriel Trostle was on a scouting mission in New England, enjoying the autumn foliage but not the chilly rain. She decided to remodel her kitchen in keeping with the rest of the house which is Colonial Cape Cod. So husband, Bud, agreed to baby sit and sent her off to study, in person, the antique paneling and Colonial kitchens. In Nantucket a must was visiting the whaling museum. An ancestor of Bud's, one Christopher Hussey, was the first whaler there and his portrait hangs in the museum. While East Muriel (what woman wouldn't?) saved time for a shopping spree in New York and a visit to Washington, D.C.

"LOVED IT all," say Helen and Frank Reagan of their long, lovely cruise aboard the Mariposa to the Islands of the Pacific (Tahiti, Bora Bora, etc.), on to New Zealand and Australia and then to Hawaii. Here they "jumped ship" to enjoy more of Honolulu and flew home all too few days ago to suit them.

WITH CAMERA at the ready—and ready to use it at the drop of a scenic view around any bend in the road—Ray and Dolores Stricklin toured the back country of the Monument Valley region, Grand Canyon and Oak Creek Canyon — all thrilling areas for photographic enthusiasts. They returned, with visits to Mesa Verde area and Bryce Canyon tucked into their travel tour as well.

FUNNY THING that the Scripps College alums and husbands didn't mind the near 100 degree temperatures in Phoenix at all during annual informal reunion at Camelback Inn. But this week here, they, like rest of us natives, grumbled and mumbled about the weather. On trek were Betty and Joe Kesler, Hildreth and Walter Von Kleinsmid, Marcella and Russ Maurer and Jo and Dr. "Orv" Hastings. Helping them enjoy Arizona's warm hospitality—the pool, the pitch and putt golf course and being lazy as they liked.

FRESH BACK in the U. S., meaning as fresh as the oils she mixes on her palette, is well known artist Lucille Brown Greene, who spent the summer in Italy teaching art. She is in New York, where she plans to take a studio with room enough to swing a brush. She'll remain there until February before returning to teaching duties at Santa Monica City College. Lucille sold her home in Long Beach; hasn't decided where she'll settle on return.

AFTER SEEING the neighborhood all over Europe, Alice Neighbors is again mingling with neighbors here. She returned Sunday after a five-week holiday that took her to Denmark (flew SAS to Copenhagen), Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Austria and France (flew back Air France from gay Paree). She visited Lil and Col. Bill Haycock, now stationed in Heidelberg, and together they drove the autobahn to Berchtesgaden. For the Haycocks' many friends here, Alice reports they are just as full of fun as ever. They'll be transferred back to U. S. next June so cross fingers and hope Uncle will send them here.

ONE THING Laurel and Rolland Truman's baby daughter, Trina Maureen, an October arrivee, will never lack for is competent legal and medical advice. Mama is known professionally as Laurel A. Weibel, M.D., and Dad is a superior court commissioner, currently sitting as judge pro tem in Inglewood and recently on temporary assignment in Long Beach.

"DOWN UNDER" in New Zealand after being afloat across the Pacific is Mrs. J. E. Brooks on the 42-day South Pacific cruise aboard the Monterey. Next the Fiji Islands then Hawaii and home, arriving in San Francisco Nov. 1st.

THE DESERT season is off and sunning. Among localites at Shadow Mountain Club for opening festivities were Nancy and Bill Brooks, Hart and Rufus Davis and Myrtle and Harry Hackmeister. For the sojourn they all stayed at the Harts' place at the Sand Piper. Enthused as always about the desert, Nancy and Bill leased a place for the winter at Shadow Mountain on the first fairway of the golf course with terrific view of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

ALL SET for high flying vacation is sparkly Vickie Monroe, pictured below in New York air terminal prior to flight to Milan, Italy. It's vacation time for her. Matter of fact, from what I've been writing about, hasn't it been for just about everyone?

Poised for flight—Miss Monroe goes to Milan.

SIXTY DOLLARS A COURSE

. . . And Worth the Price!

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—To get to the name-dropping at once . . . the handsome, engraved invitation with the famous gold seal said:

The President and Mrs. Johnson request the pleasure of the company of
Mr. and Mrs. Pett
at dinner
on Monday, October 5, 1964
at eight o'clock

There were other cards enclosed, specifying black tie, noting that the dinner was in honor of the President of the Philippines and Mrs. Macapagal, suggesting we respond to the social secretary at our earliest convenience and, on arrival, directing us to present a blue and white card at the southwest gate of the White House—a card which said in rather firm letters "not transferable."

One's first reaction to such mail is that it must be a gag. Then, having established that it isn't, one gets terribly excited, one tries to hide the excitement under a blanket of blase banter (e.g., "I don't think I can make it Monday; that's my bowling night."), one finds every opportunity at the office, on the train, on the phone, in the street, on the golf course and at neighborhood crabgrass seminars to steer the conversation around to Monday night. And, exorably, one's wife starts spending money as if one had just been elected—not invited—to the White House in a landslide that found a grateful Congress doubling the presidential salary.

At the office, the reactions to my casually persistent display of the dinner invitation were mixed. The secretaries squealed. The boys made jokes:

"Does that mean you have to have them over?"

"If it's a bottle party, don't bring your Old Gurglehaimer."

"Don't tip the waiter. He may be a Secret Service man."

INVITATION in hand, I called my mother, my father, my brothers, cousins who couldn't remember my name and, of course, my collegiate daughters who became so excited they forgot to ask for anything. My mother's reaction was singular; she seemed to have trouble understanding that it would not be just the Johnsons and the Petts sitting down to an intimate dinner.

Meanwhile, my wife was shopping. Would you believe it, she found a patriotic merchant who sold her a long gown for "only" $140 and the prescribed 16-button length white kid gloves for $35? What with shoes, accessories, travel and hotel expenses, it was already clear that this dinner would cost us about $60 a course. It was worth it.

We arrived at the southwest gate in a procession of long black cars (I had selected a yellow cab to set off my wife's turquoise dress). Showing our ticket, we were directed to drive around the oval drive along which the President frequently holds his walking news conferences.

Our coats were taken by maids in the beautiful ground floor Diplomatic Reception Room, the one Jacqueline Kennedy had covered with striking wallpaper of early American scenes. We were directed up a marble staircase to the first floor lobby, where the first in a procession of nine-foot military officers in white dress jackets took over. He escorted my wife, with me trailing behind somewhat vaguely, past the Marine Corps Orchestra in their scarlet tunics, down the corridors to the elegant East Room. Here, another nine-foot officer startled me by announcing us. At such moments, one wishes desperately one had a longer, more elegant name preceded by at least the rank of group commander.

THE EAST ROOM, like the rest of the wondrous house this night, was warm with light, with sparkling chandeliers, fresh flowers, gay guests and music. A waiter materialized quickly with a varied tray of drinks and, at a silent command from Mrs. Pett, Mr. Pett passed over the martinis in favor of dry sherry. (By the Pett infallible scientific measuring service, there proved to be time for two and a half drinks during the cocktail hour.)

Sherry in hand, we wandered through the rooms. In the lovely, rich Red Room, we noticed a Monet presented "in loving memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy by his family." In the Green Room, Mrs. Pett wouldn't let Mr. Pett sit on Daniel Webster's sofa. It took great effort to win her permission to use the ash trays.

Back in the East Room, we were asked to form a receiving line along the wall. Then, suddenly, that moment of magic when an officer announced "the President of the United States," and they played "Hail to the Chief," and Mr. Johnson walked in with Mrs. Johnson and their guests. As we waited our turn in the receiving line, the Johnson daughters, Lynda and Luci, came by and introduced themselves, with a quiet, disarming straight-forwardness, and their teen-age guest, Gloria Macapagal, the daughter of the Philippine President.

As we waited, the woman ahead of me asked her husband, "how do you pronounce Macapagal after a martini?" When our turn came, an officer announced our name and again I wished we had a longer one with at least the rank of sergeant major. But the introduction went off smoothly and the Johnsons and the Macapagals were warmly cordial as they greeted the untitled, one-syllable Petts.

* * * *

FROM THE receiving line, we passed down the corridor to the State Dining Room. Because of the long guest list, 206 in all, (don't tell mum) that room and the Blue Room were used for dinner with tables of Ten. Luckily, we had President Johnson with us in the State Dining Room, where, under the Healy portrait of Lincoln, he sat with Mrs. Macapagal, Dean Rusk, Jim Farley and others. Mrs. Johnson had Mr. Macapagal at her table in the Blue Room. At her table, Mrs. Pett had former Gov. Robert Meyner of New Jersey, cartoonist Bill Mauldin and several Texans. At his table, Mr. Pett charmed Mrs. Meyner, Mrs. Mauldin, one Puerto Rican business man and several State Department people.

One thing I noticed at once. Few people used the handsome white match books with the words "The President's House" on them. The trick was to appear casual about slipping them into your pocket as a souvenir along with the engraved menu bearing the Presidential Seal.

Dinner, of course, was first class: vol au vent of seafood Newberg accompanied by Krug Johannisberg reisling; roast ribs of beef and Yorkshire pudding with Beaulieu Beaumont pinot noir; green salad and mousse of roquefort and glace Macapagal.

Without introduction, President Johnson rose to salute American friendship for the Philippines and its president. From the Blue Room, via a public address system, President Macapagal toasted President Johnson. It was, all agreed, quite charming.

After dinner, we were served demi tasse and liqueurs wherever we happened to be, in the corridors or other rooms. Then back to the East Room, one third of which was occupied by a stage for a performance by the Harkness Ballet. Just before the performance, Lynda Johnson came in to kiss her parents good night and to apologize to their guests for leaving. She was getting up early the next morning for the start of her mother's whistlestop tour.

* * * *

ON LEAVING, Lynda asked her mother, "will you wake me tomorrow morning?" Her mother's answer was inaudible to the straining ears of the Petts, but then the daughter said, "If you don't, how will I get up?" The problem, as far as could be discerned by the Pett intelligence service, seemed to be left hanging there as Lynda Johnson made her farewells and Mr. Pett, the big spender from Long Island, quietly vowed to send her an alarm clock for Christmas.

Shortly after midnight, the Johnsons went up, leaving unanswered a question which had been troubling the Petts: Does one thank the President and First Lady for a lovely evening? About 20 minutes later, we left, out the North Portico, along the graceful curving drive leading under the elms to Pennsylvania Avenue.

Sinking back in her cab, Mrs. Petts observed, "They seem like such nice people."

"I think we ought to get out of our social rut and see more of them," said her husband.

Auxiliary to Honor President

A reception and luncheon honoring Mrs. Lyle F. Murphy of Long Beach, president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the California Medical Association, will be held at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Cocoanut Grove at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Murphy is a member of Southeast District 10 of the auxiliary which she served as president in 1953-54. She was president of Los Angeles County Medical Auxiliary 1958-59.

Featured speaker for the day will be Nicholas P. Dallis, M. D., author of the cartoon strips "Rex Morgan, M. D.," "Judge Parker" and "Apartment 3-G." His topic will be "The Image of the Doctor." Dr. Kallis resides in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Records for Records

The record industry has produced nearly 1,000 long-playing records containing serious compositions by more than 250 American composers, almost 5,000 jazz albums; more than 100 long-playing records of performances by original casts of hit musicals and revues on and off Broadway, as well as background music from dozens of motion pictures. All this is in addition to the hundreds of albums devoted to American folk, country and western music and the thousands of records of current popular music.

Wigs, Chigs, Hairpieces and Postiches

And Now--Wash 'n' Wear Hair!

A SWITCH in Hairdos

HAIR UP TONIGHT, down tomorrow . . . that's the quick-change artistry that takes a fashion-conscious lady around the world, around the clock. Above, the top-knot chignon, a perfect foil for formal evenings . . . right, the pony tail look for exotically casual evenings at home . . . just two of many hairdos possible with Reid & Meredith's "living chignon." Available at Broadway Stores.

After a Fashion

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Get set, ladies, for a big to-do about a new synthetic fiber designed to solve most hairdo bugaboos.

It comes in hairpieces and postitches, wigs and chigs (that's what they call chignons in the trade) all currently heady news at The Broadway.

This "better than hair" fiber is four times stronger than the variety you grow yourself and is 10 times more manageable.

It can be washed out in a light detergent, won't mat or tangle and looks so much like hair you can't tell which twin has the phony.

THE FIBER is called D-40, which doesn't mean much to fashion-conscious femmes, and has a formula as long as your arm, which does mean a lot to the quality of the new product.

The idea started with that world-famous California swimsuit designer Rose Marie Reid, who's worked with synthetics a long time, and son Bruce Reid, a market analyst who'd been dealing mostly with aircraft.

Now he's head over heels in "hair-craft," turning out synthetic tresses with the help of partner Garry Meredith and Union Carbide, which developed the fiber.

Together they have set out to solve, one by one, all the hair problems women flip over. His instincts being for things practical, young Reid felt that the synthetics, when fashioned into wigs, should be more manageable than a woman's own hair and easier to care for than a real hair wig. "Why put something difficult to handle back on their heads?" he asked sensibly.

Further, he told his mother that to be economically profitable, wigs should be made of stuff that comes by the yard, like the fluffy bathroom rug upstairs.

And that's exactly how the wig component is being manufactured, at break-neck speed, in a plant in New England.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, here in Long Beach, a young stylist from New York named Bruce Keller and his assistant are turning a lot of heads with their new synthetic dos at the Broadway's Los Altos store.

Keller mixes and matches switches that exactly tone into a customer's own tresses (red hair is the most difficult to match, he says), while his assistant cuts and styles wigs that are ready and set to go in jig time.

"This new fiber is the answer for the woman who's coif collapses on a rainy day (it's unaffected by dampness), whose hairdo is gone with the wind or a swim, who's schedule sometimes gets too busy to squeeze in a hair appointment," said Keller.

The wigs are permanently curled, come in 20 popular colors, require only do-it-yourself care, can be washed and dried like a pair of hose and flipped into a variety of hair styles.

Woven into a stretch cap, the man-made hair won't fall out and is light as air (full wig weighs only two ounces).

Furthermore, a boon to ladies on the go, they can be turned wrong side out and tossed in handbag or suitcase. And for any world-traveler or stay-at-hometowner, that's going some!

WIGS FOR HAIR STYLES In a Hurry

NEW BEAUTY IS yours in minutes with R&M's revolutionary "better than hair" wigs. Permanently curled, they require no set, no rollers, no pin ups. Available in 20 popular shades, new fiber sets pace for hairdos that are wash 'n' wear, can be toted in handbag or suitcase, won't collapse in rain or fade in suds or sun. With more density, more body, more luster than human hair, wigs can be whisked into variety of coifs by do-it-yourself hair stylists. Styles shown here were demonstrated at The Broadway, Los Altos.

Mrs. Richard A. Jordan

Mrs. Allan R. Cooper

Mrs. Jack Leroy Hawker

Newlywed Jordans, Coopers, Hawkers Honeymooning After Church Rites

Jordan-Shinar

In a gown of peau de soie and tiered Chantilly lace, with applique trim of sequins and seed pearls, Barbara Anne Shinar exchanged wedding vows with Richard Allan Jordan in St. Joseph Catholic Church during a 10 a.m. ceremony Saturday.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Shinar, wore a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones and for her flowers carried stephanotis and white roses. Her cousin, Miss Bernadette Lisecki of Huntington Station, New York, was maid of honor.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jordan. His brother-in-law, Warren Mittura of Concord, was best man and ushering the 200 guests to their places were Jerome Shinar and Jerry Schierer.

A graduate of St. Anthony's High, the bride is now attending Long Beach City College as a nursing student. Her husband is a graduate of Lakewood High and LBCC. She is a member of Newman Club, Iota Chi at LBCC and of the Student Nurses Association of California. He belonged to Newman Club at LBCC and is also affiliated with Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Naval League.

Following a honeymoon in Northern California the couple will reside in Long Beach.

Cooper-Vandemoortel

Two hundred guests attended the Saturday afternoon wedding of Louise Marie Vandemoortel and Allan Ralph Cooper at St. Cornelius Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Vandemoortel of Long Beach, Mrs. Neil Cooper of San Bernardino and the late Mr. Cooper.

The bride chose a formal gown of satin backed crepe with a bell skirt and chapel train. Her illusion veil was held by a large white rose.

Members of the bridal party included Judith Vandemoortel, maid of honor; Richard Blanchard, best man; Cynthia Russell, Mary Ann Vandemoortel, Quinten Wight and Clifford Klave.

The new Mrs. Cooper graduated from Millikan High School. Her husband attended Santa Monica City College.

On their return from a wedding trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will reside in Santa Monica.

Hawker-Singleton

St. John's Lutheran Church was the setting for the Friday night marriage of DeVonna Kay Singleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Singleton and Jack Leray Hawker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hawker.

The bride wore a floor length satin gown with lace applique. Her veil fell from a crown of pearls. Mrs. Richard Richardson was her matron of honor. Daryl Platt served the bridegroom as best man.

Other members of the bridal entourage included Judy Krogh, Mrs. Virgil Schmidt, Ron Watkins and Harold Dial.

The couple graduated from Jordan High School. They will reside in Bellflower on their return from a wedding trip.

Oswald Jacoby

Experts Can Err, Too

Every bridge player has an occasional blind spot. The most famous case is that of a great expert who was playing a seven spade contract with nine trumps to the ace-queen-ten. Dummy (North) held three to the jack. He went over to dummy and led the jack. East showed out, and our hero promptly conceded down one, and complained about the bad breaks.

Today's South also had an expensive blind spot in the play of the hand. He won the heart lead with the ace. He drew trumps with two leads, stopping in his own hand, and led his singleton diamond toward dummy.

West produced a low diamond. South moaned, groaned and muttered to himself along these lines, "Decisions, decisions, decisions. Any lead but a heart, and I would have no problems."

Then, he looked at East, West and the ceiling for awhile and finally played dummy's nine of diamonds. East played the king and led a heart and another slam had gone to never-never land.

WHAT was South's blind spot? The hand was a lay down, irrespective of who held the minor suit kinds. South should have gone up with dummy's ace and continued the suit. If East played the king, South would ruff; if East played low he would discard his losing heart.

The Powers of Fashion--AND

An Out-of-Style Show

RACQUETY ANNE, circa 1918, will score a style hit at Petroleum Club Wives fashion show.

Fashions through the centuries—from the age of bloomers to the era of bikinis—will sweep down the ramp at Petroleum Club Wives fashion show luncheon on Nov. 4 at the Petroleum Club.

It'll be a John Robert Powers production and though some of the styles will be dated (everything from Gibson Girl to World War II canteen cutie dress), the event will be anything but old hat.

For example, the show's director, make-up expert William Fitzgerald, will demonstrate the latest cosmetic tricks—using a subject from the audience.

INCLUDED in the John Roberts Powers entourage will be top-flight mannequins (there are 15 authentic costume changes), makeup artists, hairstylists and wardrobe experts.

Also, there will be door prizes: a money tree, a Mr. James hat.

Mrs. Robert Ziebarth, chairman of the event, is being assisted by Mmes. Harold Beach, Stanley Hamilton, John Messerschmitt, Joseph Vaseutine, Earl Sechrest and William Benoist.

Tickets are available from club members.

WHY GROW OLD?
You'll Awaken 5 Pounds Lighter in Just a Week

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How would you like it if you could go to sleep tonight and wake up a week from now five pounds slimmer? Well, you can't do it quite that way but you CAN do it almost as pleasantly, as those of you who have been following my Trick and Treat Diet this week know.

So many women who are not very much overweight are likely to allow from 5 to 8 pounds to spoil an otherwise pretty silhouette.

Here are the menus for tomorrow.

MENUS FOR SUNDAY

BREAKFAST
One-half grapefruit, one teaspoon sugar
One slice toast, very lightly buttered
Two slices crisp bacon
Coffee, one teaspoon sugar

DINNER
Consomme with parsley
Celery and carrot sticks
One-half medium broiler (one to one-half pound chicken or one good slice roasted chicken)
One medium baked potato seasoned with salt and parsley
One-half cup cole slaw
Peaches, two halves, one tablespoon syrup

SUPPER
Egg omelet (with one teaspoon butter)
Eight ounces skim milk
Three saltines

Some of you may have missed the diet this week or missed a day or two. If those day's newspapers are missing, I will be glad to send you the complete diet in booklet form. If you would like to have it send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Sidelined Soon Enough

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a college instructor. He's wonderful in almost every respect, but he's a nut on sports. He's 27 and I'm 26. He was raised on a farm and his dad never let him go out for sports in school because farm chores came first. He's on two softball teams, and when he isn't playing, he's practicing. When softball season is over, it's football. After football, it's basketball. (He plays golf in between, and he's good at everything.) He likes hockey, too. Don't tell me to find myself something to do. We have two boys. One is two years old and the other is three months. I try to be a good kid and go to watch husband whenever he plays. I sat in the bleachers at a hockey game when I was a week overdue with my second, and chased my 18-month-old all over the gym.

Abby

Someone called my husband to be on a bowling team and I overheard him say, "My wife is unreasonable when it comes to sports!" I ask you . . . WHO is unreasonable?—SPORTS WIDOW

DEAR SPORTS: Your husband! Be patient. Time will sideline him soon enough, and then he'll learn you're the best sport he has.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see your apology for lambasting the clergyman for asking the bride if she were pregnant when she and her fiance came to him to discuss their marriage plans. This is a standard question now, and I am sure the clergyman meant no personal offense. If a priest learns that the only reason a couple is getting married is to give a child a name, he will recommend a civil ceremony rather than a religious one.—INFORMED

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: You disappointed me when you "begged forgiveness" for criticizing the clergyman for asking the bride if she were pregnant.

If a clergyman had asked ME such a question in the presence of my fiance, my fiance would have asked him to take his collar off and step outside. When an innocent person is accused of shoplifting, and is subjected to the humiliation of a search, he has a case against the store, you know. I am not a thief, and no one has the right to ask me to prove that I didn't steal something. The principle is the same.—ST. LOUIS WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have been kissed quite a lot. My problem is when a fellow kisses me for the first time, should I pretend I don't know how to kiss very well, or should I let him know that I do?

I don't want him to think I have had too much experience along this line, and then again, I don't want him to think I haven't had any. Can you help me?—SIXTEEN

DEAR SIXTEEN: Just do what comes naturally. But don't overwhelm him in the first act or you'll have nothing for an encore.

DEAR ABBY: A psychiatrist once told me that a man who beats his wife was probably beaten by his mother (or a female figure of authority) when he was a child. If more mothers knew this they wouldn't be so quick to hit their sons.—EX WIFE-BEATER

His Hat's Off to Crown With Kumquats

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Chef of the Week

Those who know him best cite his two most outstanding characteristics:

One, he's just plain ebullient when it comes to travel. Two, he has always wanted to be an admiral, hence his devoted activity in the Navy League. Presently he's on the executive board.

Vocation-wise, today's Chef of the Week B. Jerome Young is vice president-manager of the Bank of America, Third at Long Beach Boulevard branch.

Young was born in Evansville, Ind., but accompanied his family to Long Beach at the age of two. Their home and environs, at Fourth and Linden, accommodated a corn field, some cows and a few chickens. It was before the days of the breakwater, too, and he and his brother, "Chef" Valle G. (Bud) Young, could enjoy breakers 18 feet high.

Their dad had a furniture store on Broadway, the present site of the California Bank.

• • • •

YOUNG LEFT his mark at Long Beach schools, which included the Daisy Avenue, the Atlantic Avenue, Carroll Park and Poly High, before enrolling at U.C., Berkeley. He majored in money-and-banking at its College of Commerce.

Upon graduation, his dad took him by the hand and introduced him to a banker. He got the message and has stayed-put ever since. He started as a messenger with the old Bank of Italy, which later became Bank of America.

After mastering the jobs of bookkeeper and teller, he was sent to manage the Bank America at Cherry and Anaheim, in 1933. In 1949, he was promoted to his present position.

• • • •

A MEMBER of the Long Beach Rotary Club, Young belongs to the Signal Lodge of Masons and is a Knight Templar. He also serves as secretary of the Community Rehabilitation Board.

"B.J." and his wife, Doris, have two sons, "B.J. Jr." who is in the insurance business, and Gilbert, a member of the Space & Research Department of North American.

Fishing and gardening do rate some of his attention—that is, when he can be torn away from the travel folders. Having just returned from a trip to Europe, he's now perusing the "Down Under" literature.

The fact that he's hatless, really doesn't indicate that he is not a serious cook. (Who would dare don a chef's cap when up a kumquat tree?) He grows 'em, and has included them as a garnish for his Crown Roast of Lamb.

DOUBLE CROWN ROAST OF LAMB

This is actually two lamb rib sections, consisting of 14 ribs, sewed together. It weighs about 4 to 6 pounds, and provides 7 servings (each the equivalent of a double lamb chop) with no leftovers. Have your meat dealer cut meat back from ends of ribs and cut off back bone.

We basted this roast with a spicy orange sauce as it cooked, and just before serving heaped an Indian rice pilaf into its center. The rib ends are decorated with preserved kumquats; fresh fruit and more kumquats garnish the serving plate.

To cook the meat, arrange crown on a rack in an open pan. Insert a meat thermometer into the thickest part of meat. Cover ends of ribs with foil to protect them from burning. To hold roast in shape, set a small heatproof bowl in its center. Put into a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) and roast for 2½ to 3 hours, or until the meat thermometer registers the degree of doneness you like—about 170 degrees for medium, 182 degrees for well done. During the last hour of roasting, baste several times with this orange sauce: Heat together 1 cup orange juice, ¼ cup finely chopped chutney, ½ teaspoon curry powder, and 1 stick cinnamon; simmer 10 minutes.

Rice Pilaf, Indienne. Melt ½ cube (¼ cup) butter or margarine in a heavy 2-quart pan; saute 1 large onion (finely chopped) until golden. Add 2 cups rice and continue cooking, stirring often, until lightly browned. Add 6 cups boiling chicken stock and these spices tied in a cheesecloth bag: 1 stick cinnamon (broken); 12 each whole peppers, whole cloves, and whole cardamom; and 2 peeled cloves garlic. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Add 1 cup golden raisins and simmer 5 minutes longer, or until tender.

Spoon part of this pilaf in center of roast, serve the rest in a separate dish. Sprinkle top with ½ cup lightly toasted blanched almonds and 2 chopped green onions. Serves 8.

To garnish and serve roast, cut away excess fat from center and remove picks, if used. Have ready 1 container (about 1 lb.) preserved kumquats and 3 to 4 cups of fresh fruit—we used fresh melon spears and grapes. Cut a cross in the ends of the 14 kumquats you'll need to decorate ribs; mix remaining kumquats with fresh fruits to garnish the platter.

'Stay In School!'

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

This is for all young boys and girls — DON'T SETTLE FOR JUST A HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION. If you cannot go to college, go to a trade school. I know, from experience.

I graduated from high school and took a job with a small firm. After 10 years they went out of business. I soon found out I didn't have enough education and was too old for most jobs. I had to live with and depend on a relative for food and shelter, and soon she became cold and distant where she was once a very warm friend. I finally found a job taking care of an elderly couple which didn't pay much but did give me a little money.

It's a terrible thing to be dependent on someone who is continually reminding you that they have to pay the bills. I'm grateful for her taking me in but when I marry the man I'm going with, I doubt if I ever go back to visit her.—UNEDUCATED

DEAR UNEDUCATED:

Dropouts, take heed! In this age of specialization, it is almost mandatory that one learn a trade or profession. There seem to be more people than jobs and only the best qualified will find work.

You can be made to feel very small when you have to depend on another for food and shelter; even those who may not be reminded of the fact feel "beholden," and their pride takes a beating.

UNEDUCATED, perhaps you can repay your relative for all she did for you—you should if you can, you know. Also, if and when you have to help someone through a difficult time, remember how she felt and act accordingly.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 21 and need help desperately with my marriage. My husband brings home $52 a week and spends $30 of it for food—fruit and vegetables, no meat. You can see there is very little left for bills, rent and all the other expenses of a household.

I would like to work but he refuses to let me. He is 21 years older than I and already has a family. I would like a family, too, but he won't have it—thinks it would end up in divorce like the first one.

Well, this marriage is going to end in divorce unless he changes and soon. I don't want to live alone but I'm rapidly losing all my love for him. About all he cares about is eating! — A BIRD

DEAR BIRD:

Did you marry this man with your eyes closed? Surely you knew how much he made, how he liked to eat, that he already had one family before you married him! If you didn't, you were pretty stupid.

Besides, marrying a man twice as old as you was asking for trouble sooner or later. As a husband and father he had already failed once, and you should have thought long and hard before you married him.

Yes, I expect your marriage will end in divorce but I can't put all the blame on him — you shouldn't have married him in the first place unless you knew all about him and were willing to take him as he is.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My 17-year-old son has been dating a mature 12-year-old girl for three months and wants to marry her. My mother is against the whole idea—thinks they are too young. I say that the aged aren't equipped to make modern-day decisions.

What do you think? (We are financially able to support these young people.)—MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

Good Heavens! I would say your mother is much better equipped to answer your "modern day" problem than you are!

They most certainly are too young to marry and why should you want them to? Your being "able to support" them is very bad for them—they should support themselves—for their own good.

How in the world can you even consider for one minute, your son marrying a girl 12 years old! She is just a child, no matter how "mature" she seems. She has years of school ahead and lots of fun, and so has your

Mothers like you are rare, I'm happy to say.—M.M.

Ballet Billed at Shrine

Today at 3 p.m., the famed Leningrad-Kirov Ballet will appear at Shrine Auditorium in a gala performance which will include high lights from "Prince Igor," "Bayaderka," "Giselle," "The Nutcracker," "Gopak," "The Snow Maiden" and "The Gossips."

The full-length "Swan Lake" is scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. The gala performance of excerpts will be repeated Thursday night.

The West Coast premier of the fairy tale ballet "Raymonda" will be given Friday. "Sleeping Beauty" is scheduled Saturday at 3 and 8:30 p.m.

* * * *

IN THE final ballet next Sunday at 3 p.m., four Long Beach children will perform with other area youngsters chosen for roles as birds, snowflakes, grasshoppers and dwarfs in "Cinderella." Performing with the 120 members of the Leningrad-Kirov company will be Laurie and Nancy Ichino, 4301 Keever Ave.; Christy Mills, 3843 E. Broadway; and Suzanne Rosecrans, 329 Elliot Lane. The youngsters also performed their roles in the company's opening performance Friday night.

DISCOVERED! Linnea Stevens as Lady Bracknell is horrified at finding the four young lovers played by (from left) John Furman, Linda Hummel, Bonnie Gallup and Burleigh Booker in this scene from Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." The California State College at Long Beach production opens Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. to run through Saturday. This marks an anniversary for director Dr. W. David Sievers, who in April, 1952, directed the British comedy as the college's first full-length play.

'Miss Julie' to Screen

"Miss Julie," a winner of the grand prize at Berlin and Cannes film festivals in 1952, will be shown on Long Beach Film Society's fall film series next Sunday in the Little Theater in California State College, Long Beach. Screenings will be at 5 and 7:30 p.m.

Based on Strindberg's classic study of the role of women in contemporary society, the film is a probe into the motivations of an adult woman who never had been allowed to be girl.

The companion short will be "Questioning City."

'Milk Train'

Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More" opens Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Stage Society Theater, 9014 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles.

Near-Perfection Possible

By RACHEL MORTON
L.P-T Music Critic

I suppose perfection is an unattainable thing, but near-perfection can be arrived at, I am thinking of the recent opera performance of "Andrea Chenier" by Giordano, given by The American Opera Company here in Long Beach, our first real grand opera production. How nearly perfect that performance might have been, had it not been for some bad judgment on the part of the management.

The singing voices of most of the principals were outstandingly fine. But the whole performance was marred by the enormous size of the principal soprano. Of what good is a gorgeous voice if the appearance of the heroine sends a titter through the audience on her every entrance?

* * * *

GRAND OPERA is pure illusion and the listener must be kept in a fantasy of what is going on on the stage. Also, there is no excuse for costuming that makes members of a chorus look ridiculous. The men's wigs were at all angles, some of the chorus women wore dusting caps, and the costume of L'Incredible looked as if he were about to go out for Halloween — and he supposed to be a spy! He should have looked like a thug. These are bad errors of judgment in directing which cost the company much prestige.

This failing is not confined to the American Opera Company. The Los Angeles Opera last year had a lean, skinny Falstaff, when Shakespeare clearly described him in the words of Mrs. Ford as "shaped like a barrel—a hogshead of fat!" And he drank his gallons of beer from a child's mug instead of from a flagon. These are inexcusable blunders and they are responsible for making grand opera sometimes seem ridiculous.

* * * *

THE SAN FRANCISCO Opera also makes mistakes. In some of its opera productions so many tiers of risers were used—for no reason at all—that the stage was badly cluttered and the singers had to be acrobats, as well as artists. In a deplorable performance of "Faust" with this same company, although Marguerite's simple dwelling had just been eulogized in a fervent tenor aria, and Siebel had left a bouquet of flowers at the door, Marguerite came blithlely sauntering in on the opposite side of the stage, carrying a market basket!

The Festival of Opera in Laguna Beach last summer gave notable performances, with but one exception. Because of bad casting, the soprano from New York nearly ruined "Cosi Fan Tutti" with an edgy voice and a slovenly appearance.

These things ought not to be and grand opera would become more popular if the "powers that be" used better judgment in casting and in direction.

Major and Minor Notes

Auditions for 'The Messiah'

Tryouts for the chorus of "The Messiah", which Civic Chorus will present Dec. 6, will be held today at 2 p.m. in Municipal Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd. Soloists will audition Monday at 7 p.m. in Jefferson Junior High School Auditorium. Frank Ahrold, choral director for the Recreation Department, will direct the production.

New Film Catalog at Library

An attractive, improved "Film and Film Strip Catalog" for 1964-65 has just been made available at the film section of the Long Beach Public Library, according to Miss Nina Boyle, librarian. There is a charge of 75 cents to cover the cost of publication.

In addition to the usual alphabetical, annotated list of 16mm films and a subject index, the catalog includes a section of helpful information about use of the film service: how to use advisory and preview services, how to avoid damaging film, who may borrow film, loan period, fines, etc.

THIS YEAR, at patron request, Miss Boyle has enlarged the catalog to include alphabetical listings of directors, producers and writers of films represented in the collection. Similarly there are lists of music composers, narrators and photographers. The 1964-65 catalog is easier to use than any previous one and more complete.

ALWAYS AT your call when you've a need to be filled—that's Classified ads. Dial HE 2-5959 now.

MAESTRO Mantovani, whose music bridges the popular and classical, will bring his concert orchestra to Municipal Auditorium Friday at 8:15 p.m. for the first program of Community Concert Association's 1964-65 season. Doors open at 7:15 p.m. Membership cards must be presented for admission.

Jeffrey Fiskin, native of Long Beach now studying in France, has a show of portraits and paintings at Dana Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

Some of the work has been sold, but has been loaned back to the artist for this showing.

Fiskin was graduated from Polytechnic High School as an honor student. He studied art at Pomona College, where he will continue after his return from France at the end of the school year.

His current show will hang through next Sunday.

BETZ SALMONT, special studies student at California State College, Long Beach, will have an exhibit of her sculpture at Vivian Fier Galleries, 1714 Westwood Blvd., West Los Angeles, through Nov. 7. The show will open with a public reception Monday from 6 to 10 p.m. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Salmont has studied with Meredith Olson, Fran Soldini and at Chouinard Art Institute.

On loan for the exhibit is "Owl on a Limb," a bronze done for the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rathje of Newport Beach, and a sculptured horse commissioned by Dr. and Mrs. David Joseph of Downey. Other pieces are in bronze and fibre glass.

AMATEUR artists are invited to consign their work for a charity auction to be conducted in Lakewood Dec. 12 by Tom Long, real-estate salesman - auctioneer. Proceeds from sales will be split 50-50, half going to the artist, half to charity.

Sixteen local civic organizations, primarily in the Lakewood area, have been asked to submit the name of a needy family, and the sixteen families will share equally in the auction proceeds.

Further information may be obtained by calling Long at the Ellis Schrader Realty office, 5505 Woodruff Ave.

Sculpture Exhibition Challenges Viewer

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Light, Form, and Space" is a terribly exciting sculpture show. It challenges the viewer's imagination and provokes him to look afresh at the world, visually, spatially, and conceptually. The 35 works by 18 artists were chosen and handsomely installed by Robert McMenomy of Long Beach City College faculty. It continues through Nov. 10 at the College Art Gallery, Harvey Way and Faculty Avenue.

Perhaps the most arresting piece is "Eden Blocks" by Robert Grew. Blocks and parts of a female display dummy all painted in yummy Disneyland pastels, are piled up, seemingly in random fashion. The painting is precise, in the Pop Art mode, and includes many symbols, among them lemons as well as the proverbial apple. The sweet colors enigmatically overlay a biting statement.

* * * *

ANOTHER worker in painted wood is M. K. Stussy. She constructs tall, vertical monuments from old balustrades, veranda moldings and the like. Her grey sentinel glows in black and white, while the "Queen of Brights" seems emblazoned with every strong color in the palette.

Nev's "Black Queen," on the other hand, is a small cast bronze, almost a piece of jewelry with baroque intertwinings, carefully textured tresses and an exquisite crown.

* * * *

"MOON 25" by Claire Falkenstein is much more what one would like the moon to be than scientific exploration has shown. Her moon is a complexity of void spaces surrounded by infinities of fine copper wire webs, enmeshed with jewel hunks of molten glass.

This collection reinforces the suspicion current recently that two-dimensional painting is on the wane and sculpture is in the ascendency. Like our scientists, creative artists are being drawn to the exploration of space.

Announce Contest for Playwrights

A small community theatre in Oregon this year may produce the play that will be next year's Broadway smash.

The Very Little Theatre of Eugene, Ore., an amateur theatrical group which has been in continuous operation since 1929, is conducting a Western States Playwriting Contest. A prize of $100 is offered for the winning play.

The contest is open to residents of Oregon, California, Washington, Hawaii, and Alaska, and to any student of a school within those states. The contest is now underway, with Nov. 15, 1964, the deadline for submission of entries.

* * * *

PLANS CALL for the winning play—which must be unpublished—to be produced this season as part of the theatre's regular five-play schedule. Plays are presented in the VLT's own 200-seat theater.

"Through this contest, we hope to give West Coast playwrights an opportunity to have their plays produced," said Kenneth Griffith, VLT president, "and at the same time we hope to find entertaining new plays for our audiences."

Located in Oregon's second largest city, the VLT is unique in that it receives no subsidy of any kind, and has no "patrons" or "angels." The entire operation is financed by box office proceeds.

Further information and a complete set of contest rules may be obtained by writing the theater at 2350 Hilyard St., Eugene.

BRIGHT STARS

Ambitious Season for L.B. Symphony

the season; and Florence Cole and Marvin Cloyd will offer a selection from "Have Podium—Will Travel," with a stopover at the symphony.

Lauris Jones, of course, will direct the whole program.

'Season in Miniature" will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m.; buffet dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Reservations may be made at the Symphony Association office, 1935 E. Seventh St.

ALTHOUGH this is the opening event of Symphony Week, concert season tickets already are available at the association office.

Two series are offered.

Five Sunday evening concerts will be given at 8 p.m. with all seats reserved. All, with the exception of the Luboshutz - Nemenoff program, which will be in the Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium, will be in the auditorium's Concert Hall. Season prices for the entire series are only $8 and $6 for adults and $6 and $4 for students.

The schedule is:

Nov. 15, Camilla Wicks; Jan. 24, Mormon Choir; March 14, Furjanick Award winner; April 11, Luboshutz-Nemenoff; and May 16, All-Orchestra.

A SECOND series of four Saturday evening programs will be offered at 8 p.m. in Long Beach City College Auditorium with seats unreserved. Prices are $6 for adults and $3 for students. These concerts are designed especially for family groups. A combination of the two series also may be purchased.

The Saturday concerts will be Nov. 14, Camilla Wicks; Dec. 12, Henri Temianka, guest conductor, and Jakob Gimpel, pianist; Feb. 20, Julien Musafia, pianist; and April 11, Luboshutz-Nemenoff.

Camilla Wicks, former Long Beach resident who has won an international reputation as violinist, now is living in Santa Ana, is on the faculty at State College at Fullerton and, in Mrs. McDonald's words, "is playing like an angel."

The Mormon Choir of Southern California, with Fred Davis as director, will do "Carmina Burana" by Carl Orff with the Long Beach Symphony. This will be the first Long Beach performance of this great work for chorus, soloists and orchestra.

Luboshutz and Nemenoff will play the Martinu "Concerto for Two Pianos," which was composed for them. Principal works at the all-orchestra concert will be Copland's "Billy the Kid" suite and Schubert's "Symphony No. 9 in C."

TEMIANKA will direct the combined California State College at Long Beach and Long Beach City College choirs in festival music of the Jewish, Protestant and Catholic faiths. His friend, world-famous pianist Jakob Gimpel, will be guest artist, playing Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2."

Musafia will play a Mozart and a Shostakovich concerto.

Those artists who are not on tour will attend "Season in Miniature" to meet and chat with guests whom next they may see across the footlights.

'Milk and Honey' Next on Melodyland Stage

"Milk and Honey" opens Tuesday night at Melodyland, Anaheim, with Molly Picon, Patricia Morison and Walter Cassel in leading roles. The musical will run through Nov. 8.

"Damn Yankees," starring Eddie Bracken, closes tonight.

"Milk and Honey" relates the adventures of a group of American tourists in Israel where they witness an exciting Independence Day "Hora," a beautiful Yemenite wedding ceremony with its glowing rituals and, in a whirl of exuberant dances and songs visit a "Moshov," a collective farm in the Negev.

The book is by Don Appel, music and lyrics are by Jerry Herman of "Hello Dolly" fame and staging is by Billy Matthews. Choreographer is Jack Beaber; Richard Parrinello is musical director.

* * * *

MELODYLAND producers Sammy Lewis and Danny Dare will bring back "Irma la Douce," starring Juliet Prowse, for a two-week run beginning Dec. 8. The South African dancing star broke all Melodyland box office records, playing to SRO business at each performance, when she appeared in the show in September. The entire original cast will return with her, including her leading man, Ron Husmann, and character actor Robert Ellenstein.

Seats for "Irma" are now available by mail order only to the Melodyland box office.

Goodwill Plans Annual Doll Sale

Hundreds of dolls — antique dolls, character dolls and modern dolls in good condition at reasonable prices — will go on sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the annual pre-Christmas doll sale sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Goodwill Industries.

The sale will take place at Wightman Memorial Building, 800 W. Pacific Coast Hwy., from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mrs. Stephen R. Hemmi is auxiliary projects chairman.

Dolls donated to Goodwill Industries are repaired and dressed by members of the auxiliary. Doll dresses and accessories also will be included in the sale.

Proceeds will be used by the auxiliary to assist the Goodwill rehabilitation program and to provide welfare services for the handicapped.

The Doll Club of Long Beach is cooperating at the sale and doll authorities will be present to assist collectors.

* * * *

MEMBERS of the auxiliary will meet Tuesday at Wightman Memorial Building for a business meeting at 11 a.m. followed by 12:30 p.m. luncheon and an afternoon panel discussion and program.

Mmes. Shirley Sawers of Los Angeles Opera Guild and Lois Balsley, organist, will present a musical program. Participants in the panel discussion will include Bess Bulgin, personnel department; Charlotee Hilton, medical; and Dr. Hugo Foucar, testing and placement.

Dining room hostesses will be members of Women's Fellowship of the United Church of Christ headed by Mrs. Kenneth Baustian.

AUTUMN IN YOSEMITE, when the big leaf maples turn yellow, the dogwood leaves become scarlet and the oaks show shades of ochre and red. Glacier Point, 3,214 feet above Yosemite Valley, in background.

SCENE OF SPLENDOR

Autumn's Colors Splash Yosemite

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

The copper, orange and apricot tones of the aspen, the sunshiny yellow of the maples and the scarlet of the fuchsia are racing up the steep canyons in Yosemite National Park to hail the arrival of Indian summer.

But these are only the vanguard of what is to come to this scenic wonderland. Very soon the dogwood, black oak, Indian hemp, rabbit brush and other flora of the forest will add their riotous tones of scarlet and crimson and red to the annual masterpiece that Mother Nature paints against the green backdrop of the pines and the tawny meadows of the Valley.

Because of the dry season, the richer hues are a bit tardy in Yosemite this fall. However, if predictions of some of the experts are accurate, the Park should reach its true magnificence by next weekend or the weekend thereafter.

* * * *

FIRST TO splash their yellows were the aspens along Hwy. 120, on the east side of the park. The aspens along the old dirt road above Badger Pass are turning. Many of the maples on the valley floor already are yellow masses, but others remain green.

As of now, the dogwood is spotty, but there are some plants with brilliant scarlet and crimson leaves at Happy Isles and a few long the highway between Tenaya Bridge and Mirror Lake.

Indian hemp—a plant two to four feet tall—is one of the best displays so far, producing patches of vivid yellow along the Merced River between Rocky Point and Pohono Bridge, and in the beautiful little meadow behind Yosemite Chapel.

Along the Wawona road are patches of pale Lessingia, although most of this is gone from the valley. The bright yellow of the rabbitbrush family is putting on a show on highways leading into the big playground, and there is some scarlet fuchsia near Wawona Tunnel.

* * * *

COMPENSATING for the slow arrival of the fall spectrum, the sugar pine cones this year are making a tremendous showing after some lean seasons. Some have fallen but many will cling to the trees until Spring or until a storm brings them down.

Add to all this the fragrant air scented with pine and fir, the bright mountain sky with birds flickering from tree to tree, and the sassy jay squawking as they strip the acorns.

It all adds up to a rewarding trip to Yosemite in autumn.

* * * *

WARNING: If you enter Yosemite — or any forested area at this time—remember things are tinder dry. Be extra careful against fire. Smoke only in designated spots.

And do not forget that deer remaining in the Valley the year round are in some degree dangerous to those who approach them closely. The Rangers ask that you do not feed them.

* * * *

ACCOMMODATIONS: The Ahwahnee, one of the truly fine hotels of western United States, will be closed briefly in late autumn for renovation. Also open now are Yosemite Lodge with its cafeteria and grill; and the Wawona Hotel Annex which operates on the European plan during autumn, winter and spring with a coffee shop nearby. All other hotels, lodges and campgrounds are open only during summer. It is wise to obtain advance reservations for fall visits from the Yosemite Park and Curry Co. (office in Los Angeles), which operates all these facilities.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

2 California Events Listed

Two California events, the Imperial Valley Rodeo & Brawley Cattle Call at Brawley and the Mother Goose Parade at El Cajon, are among the "Top 20" on the National Association of Travel Organization's list for November.

The Brawley event, scheduled Nov. 2-8, will be a salute to the cattle industry with parade, rodeo and Mexican fiesta. Fairy tale floats of all kinds will feature the El Cajon parade Nov. 22.

Your Big Chance to Travel Free

A tremendous gift from the travel industry can be yours at the World Travel Show, to be held Nov. 6-15 at the Long Beach Arena. It's possible with "Travel 65 Passport," a booklet containing more than $30,000 in travel gifts to be distributed at the Show.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained without charge by signing the Log Book at the first-floor counter of the Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

The booklets will not be distributed at the show.

Gifts offered in "Travel 65 Passport" include four different trips for two to Hawaii, a ski vacation for two to Colorado, a jaunt for two to New York and the Caribbean, a week's vacation for two at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, and many others.

Take the Camel Train!

By Donald C. Langley

CAIRO

IT TAKES two trips to nearby Giza to see the breath-taking spectacle of the pyramids and the sphinx, one by the sparkling light of day and one in the cool of the evening.

The daytime view is best enjoyed by camelback. One hundred fifty of the festooned "ships of the desert" are available for hire, under careful regulation of the Egyptian government tourist police.

The jogging ride is "touristy"—you won't see Egyptians riding these camels—but that doesn't detract from the fun.

An officer of the tourist police, who maintain a station near the pyramids, insists that no one has ever fallen off a camel. For those who nonetheless prefer their adventure closer to the ground there are about 30 horse carts available.

* * * *

THE TOURIST police license the drivers and see that they comply with regulations on comfort and safety. They insure that camels get their regular health inspection and that drivers do not ask for tips. They also serve as an informal lost and found department. Tourist police can be identified by their black uniforms.

It cost 40 piastres (about 92 cents) to reach Giza from the center of Cairo by taxi, and about 15 piastres (35 cents an hour for the camel ride.

The robed and turbaned guides, accustomed to a stream of visitors from every corner of the world, speak the essential words of half a dozen languages. They also have learned to operate any type of camera and they know the best spots in which to pose their camel and its rider against the pyramids or sphinx.

* * * *

JAPAN AIR LINES travel experts advise that getting good pictures in the vicinity of the pyramids is difficult. The glare of the sun is strong and backgrounds (normally the pyramids) tends to be overexposed.

It is not necessarily hot, however. The Egyptian air is light and dry and only in the middle of the summer does it become a little uncomfortable. Dark glasses are a must at all times.

Having surveyed the pyramids by camelback during the day, the tourists should return in the evening for the sound and light performance, presented every night.

* * * *

THE "SOUND" is a narration of the history of the Nile Valley. The "light" is powerful floodlighting which bathes the pyramids in various patterns and hues to underscore the narration.

The lights, which may one moment pinpoint a single pyramid in soft blue and the next illuminate them all in a glowing gold, create an absorbing sense of action, throughout the hour-long presentation.

Narration is in English three times a week. Information desks at the hotels have the exact schedule and can book package tours which cover the performance and the round-trip transportation.

Once the sun goes down in Egypt the desert cools quickly. A sweater or a top coat is necessary in all but the warmest summer months.

Mounted on a camel, a visitor to Giza prepares to see Egyptian pyramids in the time-honored way.

Gadding the Southland

For the 41st year, Anaheim will make Halloween the time of celebration with its Halloween Festival, one of several such events scheduled in the Southland.

Anaheim's festival opens Thursday and ends Saturday evening with a giant Pageant Parade that will bring out huge geysering jack-o-lanterns and such errie creatures as automated witches. There will be a kids' costume Friday forenoon and a Pumpkin Bowl football game Friday evening.

Rosemead holds its Halloween and American Heritage Parade at 10 a.m. Saturday with children up to 9 years of age, costumed, or pulling their own floats, making up the first division. The American Heritage section follows the theme of "Turn of the Century—1890-1910."

La Jolla plans a Halloween celebration Saturday beside the sea coves and caves where children will spend all day decorating downtown business windows for awards. The small fry also will have a Burning the Witch ceremony and costume party.

If you're a gadder who likes the desert, don't overlook the Imperial Valley Gem and Mineral Show at Imperial, south of Palm Springs, Friday through Nov. 1. A "gem tree" will be included among special exhibits and a field trip is planned to Cerro Pinto in Baja California.

Delaplane's Travels

"Where would I buy a man's wrist watch in Europe?

MINE IS automatic, calendar type, stainless steel and well-styled. It cost $42 from Bucherer's—they have shops in all major cities in Switzerland. This is a "house" watch. That is, it is not a brand name.

I think you do better with "house name" watches on price. (Swiss watch works are all made in one part of Switzerland and it's styling, advertising and gold casing that costs money.)

The big houses are Gubelin, Turler, Burcherer—Gubelin seems to have the leading recommendations among the Swiss.

"Where would we buy pearls in Hong Kong please?"

SINCE I don't know pearls, I'd go to the department store, Lane, Crawford Ltd. It's one price and sells Mikimoto cultured pearls from Japan. There are probably a hundred shops selling pearls. But Hong Kong is a bargain city generally. And how do you bargain on something you don't know about?

"Do you bargain in shops in Japan?"

NO. JAPANESE custom is to have one fair price. However, I would try a little bargaining in tourist shops in ANY part of the world. Tourist shops everywhere are a little high. And most places they are setup to provide a percentage to a guide —10 to 15 percent. So if you come in alone, they can knock that much off for you. So ask.

"A place to do general shopping in Paris—not a tourist shop."

THE THREE BIG department stores: Trois Quartiers, Printempts and Galeries Lafayette. All within walking distance of the Opera. One price. No bargaining. But they MIGHT have a reduction for traveler's checks.

"Any place to buy good linens in Ireland?"

BROWN'S in Grafton street, Dublin. (They have a catalogue and you can do mail order business with them.) A fine, reliable house with all kinds of excellent things. No bargaining. Reasonable prices.

"Is there any place in Mexico where you can order things by mail?"

I DON'T KNOW of any. I don't often ship from Mexico either. You lose about a third of the time. A bargaining country on everything. Many good buys but carry home whatever you buy.

"Would you suggest a place to buy gloves in Paris?"

HERMES behind the Hotel Crillon is elegant. I order by mail from Freddy at 10 Rue Auber. Quite possible both have catalogues but I don't know. Discounts usual for traveler's checks but you have to ask.

"What are the best buys in Copenhagen?"

SUPPOSED to be silver, furs and porcelain. I never did any shopping there. (I bought a lot of electricity in the night clubs and it was worth it.)

[illegible] AIRLINES IS THE WAY TO GO

LET YOURSELF GO TO A FOREIGN WORLD OF

As your jet begins its descent to the volcano-girt plateau where Mexico City sprawls, your view of the oldest city on the North American continent will be kaleidoscopic, day or night.

The ice-clad peaks of Popocatepetl and Iztaccihautl, if struck by the brilliant sunlight, will seem almost blinding in the crisp air. Cumulus clouds hang majestically over the Sierra of Ajusco and the Desert of the Lions. And, as your big airliner banks over the city before making its landing, you may catch a glimpse of multicolored mosaic walls; of skyscrapers born of cold steel and glass; of gray and red lava colonial buildings; of tumbled blocks of ancient pyramids.

Mexico City is a microcosm of Mexico today—a little world that reflects the many cultures, peoples, and languages that have created this country of vivid contrasts. Near the National University, with its buildings that are breath-takingly modern, you can see the pyramid of Cuicuilco --which antedates the Aztec era by as many centuries as the Aztecs antedate today's culture.

From a seat in the Zocalo, Mexico City's heart, you can watch women in Paris fashions and women in huipils -the standard dress of Indian women for a thousand years. You can see faces that reflect Spanish, Aztec and even Mayan heritage. You will hear the slurring slang of Mexico City, the lisp of Castilian, precise English, and Nahuatl, one of the surviving Indian languages.

For many travelers, Mexico City alone offers enough diverse enchantments to tempt them back time and again. The gourmet revels in restaurants that offer every imaginable kind of cuisine. The inveterate shopper finds hours of delight in the shops that jostle each other in winding alleys or spread their wings on broad avenues. Students of history delve into Mexico's mysterious past at the pre-Aztec ruins in Teotihuacan, or in the many museums. Art lovers gaze in wonder at lavishly adorned churches, 17th Century European masterpieces, and the works of modern masters like Rivera, Orozco, Siqueiros and Tamayo. The Capital is a city where revolutionary modern architecture stands cheek-to-jowl with humble adobe; dazzling tropical flowers spread through public gardens and private patios; sleek Cadillacs and antique taxis compete with shuffling foot peddlers on the crowded streets. There is enough to see and do, to glance at and gape unabashedly at, to keep the most avid sightseer happily footsore for as long as he can keep up the pace.

But Mexico City is only the beginning. The pleasures and treasures of this wildly varied country are too fascinating to be fully imagined, and certainly too abundant to be fully described.

HERE'S WHY WESTERN IS THE WAY TO GO!

Western is truly the wonderful way to Mexico! Our smooth-flying giant, the 720B Fan/Jet, will whisk you there with jet-age speed and comfort. It's a mere three hours and five minutes from Los Angeles, for example, to fabulous Mexico City.

And here's why we say Western's Fan/Jet to Mexico is the greatest bargain in foreign travel. 720B Fan/Jet Coach costs just $93.00 each way, tax-free.* It's a fare so low, you can't say no! Yet you're always treated as a special guest on Western, with a delicious lunch or snack.

Of course, if you prefer to fly Deluxe, there's just nothing to match Western's Fan/Jet "Fiesta Flights." Gourmet food, champagne and other beverages—a touch of Mexico in a fun-filled atmosphere that really starts your South-of-the-Border holiday off right.

Mexico is a land with a fascinating history, which you'll learn more about as you peruse this magazine. And perhaps, while we're on the subject of histories, you might like to know a little more about Western's background. Western is America's senior airline—with the longest continuous-service record in American commercial flying. In April, 1926, when Western's first flight took off for Salt Lake, we flew M-2 biplanes.

Today, we fly Boeing 720B Fan/Jets, the finest commercial jetliner in the air. And today we can fly you all the way to Mexico City many times faster than we flew to Salt Lake City in 1926!

Fan/Jet Coach fare from Los Angeles. From San Francisco, $116.70, tax-free. From San Diego, $103.90, tax-free including transfer to Los Angeles for Fan/Jet departure.*

Or, for a real bargain, fly Western's famous all-Coach Electra--only $144.50 round-trip excursion fare from Los Angeles or San Diego.

FASCINATION AND BEAUTY–JUST HOURS AWAY

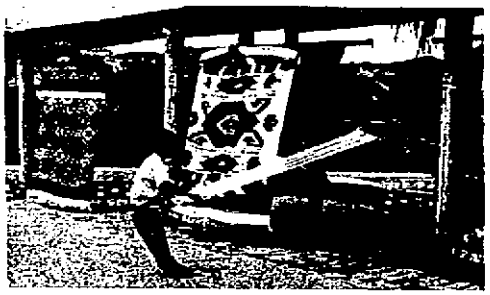

For Mexico is not one land, but many; and it's safe to say that whatever your preferences for climate, for landscape, and for activities on a vacation, Mexico has something spectacular to offer.

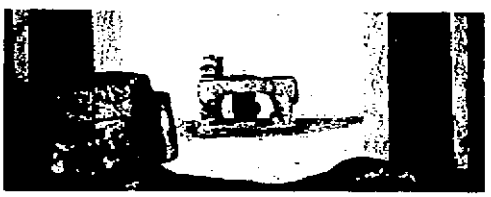

There are deserts where the dry, crisp air makes you forget that smoke-clogged cities even exist. There are tropical rainforests and jungles where the foliage is so lush as to be almost impenetrable –virtually unexplored and guaranteed to give you real adventure. There are dazzling beaches like Acapulco's, where you can rub sun-tanned shoulders with people from every country in the world–and remote, tropical beaches where you can sun and swim in complete solitude.

There are lush valleys of mangoes, papaya, melons and sugar cane; meadows filled with alpine flowers; great mountain ranges and snow-capped volcanoes; and the mist-shrouded Barranca de Cobre, which is deeper than the Grand Canyon by at least 2,000 feet.

If deep-sea fishing attracts you, Mazatlan is rated as one of the world's greatest spots–literally jumping with giant sailfish, striped and black marlin, dolphin, yellowtail, and sea bass. And if you're a frustrated archeologist, you can feed your fascination for the remote past on the remains of ancient cultures which stud the land. Pre-Aztec pyramids near Mexico City date to an era before Christ; Mayan ruins on the Yucatan Peninsula go back to the Fifth Century; while the giant Olmecan heads found near the Gulf Coast are almost 3,000 years old.

And wherever you go, whatever you do, you'll find the warmth and openness of the Mexican people adding to your pleasure. As the land varies, so do the customs, the costumes, the languages, the way of life–everything, but the genuinely friendly welcome visitors receive. And if you're a lover of festivals, you'll feel at home anywhere, because every Mexican loves a fiesta, and uses just about any excuse for a celebration.

Whether your tastes lead you to the cosmopolitan delights of Mexico City; to the sun-filled days and festive nights of Acapulco; to the ancient worlds of Teotihuacan and Chichen Itzá; or to the pleasures of some of the lesser-known areas of Mexico, we think you'll agree with a favorite Mexican saying. "Como Mexico, no hay dos"– there is no other country like it.

Western's route system has changed quite a bit over the past thirty-eight years, too. In 1926 our only route was Los Angeles-Las Vegas-Salt Lake. Today we cover the twelve Western states, Canada and Mexico–the map shows you the major cities Western serves. Whether you want to "Let Yourself Go–Mexico," on a fabulous Magic Week holiday; or to fly to Minneapolis/St. Paul or Seattle/Tacoma or Las Vegas–Western offers you fast flights and fine service. The next time you fly, let yourself go–Western!

Your Travel Agent is the Expert on Mexico
He has all the facts and figures. Tell him what you want out of your Mexican holiday, how long you plan to stay, and how much you'd like to pay. He'll work out every detail. For a holiday that's all fun and no problems, see your Travel Agent first.

FIRST DAY: Board your fast Western Airlines Jet/Prop Electra and relax. A few hours later you're in magical Mexico City! Transportation is provided to the charming Hotel Monte Cassino in the heart of the city's most elegant shopping and dining area, where your room is reserved. Your time is your own, to explore one of the world's most beautiful capitals. Perhaps you'll shop at the Museo de Artes e Industrias Populares, where you can purchase folk arts and crafts from every area of Mexico; or visit the Palace of Fine Arts, with its superb collections of Rivera, Orozco, Siqueiros and Tamayo (and where the Ballet Folklorico performs Wednesday evenings and twice on Sundays). Nearby restaurants and clubs offer gourmet food and a gay night life. SECOND AND THIRD DAYS: Free days to spend strolling the beautiful, tree-lined streets, browsing through shops with a huge variety of goods, visiting places like the National Cathedral, the largest cathedral on the North American continent; the old Zocalo, main plaza of the city, where the National Palace (with its history-laden Rivera murals) is located; the Alameda, historic park filled with flowers and fountains; the National Museum of Anthropology, with its Aztec and Mayan treasures. Your hotel can help you arrange the optional (and inexpensive) sight-seeing tours you'll want to take: the Pyramids of the Sun and Moon at Teotihuacan, impressive relics of the pre-Aztec era; the Indian Market at Toluca, largest market in all Mexico (held every Friday); University City, with its mural façades and some of the world's most striking futuristic architecture; Chapultepec Castle, once home of the Emperor Maximilian, now a Historical Museum (magnificent view of the entire city here); the Floating Gardens of Xochimilco, where the flower-decked canals are at their gayest on Sundays. FOURTH DAY: You're off to Taxco, the silver center and one of Mexico's most picturesque towns. As your spacious bus glides onto the modern highway, you may be tempted to nap; but the remarkably lovely Sierra Madre countryside will probably hold your attention for the 3-hour ride. Taxco clings to the side of steep hills; a town of cobblestone streets, red-tiled roofs, purple bougainvillea. After you check into your comfortable room at the Rancho Taxco or Posada de la Mision, your time is free to browse in the dozens of silver shops, visit the famous Church of Santa Prisca and San Sebastian, or just sit in the pretty zocalo and watch the life of the town swirl around you. FIFTH DAY: A short, 4-hour bus trip takes you along a fine highway, past eye-catching scenery, to Acapulco, fabulous "Riviera of the Pacific!" It's a true paradise of wide beaches, lapped by an incredibly blue sea; multi-colored tropical sunsets; and a night life that often lasts 'til dawn. You'll stay at the balconied Hotel Palacio Tropical, high on a hill overlooking the bay. SIXTH DAY: Your time is free to enjoy Acapulco: swimming in your hotel pool or at Caleta or Hornos beaches; exploring the less-known beaches like Puerto Marques; sunning near a thatched-roof cabaña; water skiing or skin-diving; deep-sea fishing for marlin or sailfish. There's balmy sunshine by day; evenings offer fine dining, dancing under a tropical moon, cocktails at places with spectacular views of the beautiful bays, and a wide variety of nightclubs. SEVENTH DAY: Motor back to the Capital and enjoy one more night in Mexico City. Then, Adios to a Magic Week, as you board your Western Airlines Electra for the smooth, fast flight home.

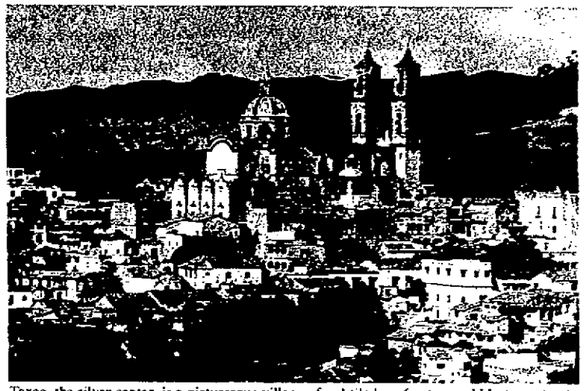

MAGIC WEEK price includes: round-trip air fare to Mexico City on Western's famous Jet/Prop Electra; all hotel accommodations (double occupancy); bus transportation to Taxco, and to and from Acapulco. All you'll need extra money for is your meals and tips; optional sight-seeing; laundry; souvenirs.

Xochimilco's flower-filled canals, where you dine on a gondola, while mariachis play.

Pyramid of the Sun at the pre-Aztec ruins of Teotihuacan, 30 miles from the Capital.

Taxco, the silver center, is a picturesque village of red-tiled roofs, steep cobblestone streets, purple bougainvillea. The spires belong to the exquisite Church of Santa Prisca.

Chapultepec Park's lovely tree-encircled lake, at the foot of Maximilian's Castle.

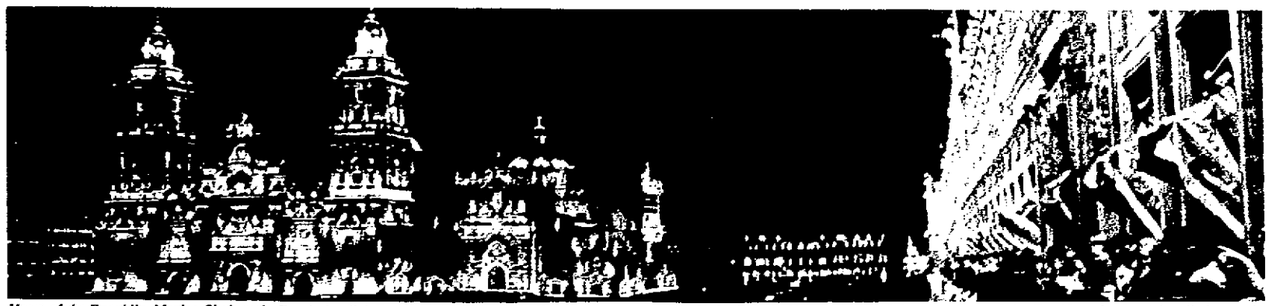

Acapulco's luxurious bay-front hotels offer visitors superb dining, and gay night life.

Ballet Folklorico offers spectacular performances Wednesdays and Sundays at the Palacio de Bellas Artes, Mexico City.

Colorful Indian Markets are great fun to shop in. The biggest is on Fridays at Toluca, which is about an hour's drive from Mexico City.

Heart of the Republic, Mexico City's main Zocalo is officially called the Plaza de la Constitucion, and is illumined most weekend nights. At left is the city's 17th Century National Cathedral. At right is the Palacio Nacional, containing the offices of the President. In the stairwells is a series of murals painted by Diego Rivera, depicting Mexico's colorful, and often tragic, history.

Shrine of Guadalupe, just outside the Capital, is the holiest in all Mexico.

View from Chapultepec Castle of the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma, in the heart of Mexico City.

The Monument of Independence on the Paseo de la Reforma in Mexico City.

Riviera of the Pacific, Acapulco is a paradise of beautiful bays, tropical flowers, year-round sunshine. This is Caleta, known as the morning beach.

View of a mile-high city, from a high-rise hotel. Restaurants and clubs in the Capital often offer a superb view as part of the menu.

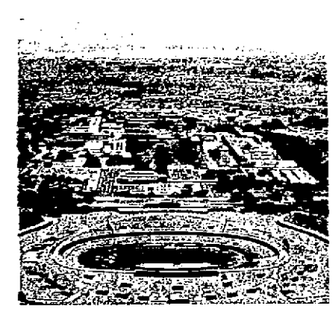

Rivera's "History of Mexico" and other famed murals can be seen at the National Palace.

Taxco's famed Church of Santa Prisca, in front of the town's picturesque Zocalo.

Acapulco has miles of sweeping beach, lapped by an incredibly blue sea.

Aerial view of spectacular University City, with the stadium where the 1968 Olympics will be held.

LET YOURSELF GO FOR THE BEST

A HEAD START TO HAPPY TOURING

Documents—three are required: a Mexican Tourist Card (available at any Western Airlines Office); proof of U.S. citizenship; a valid smallpox vaccination certificate.

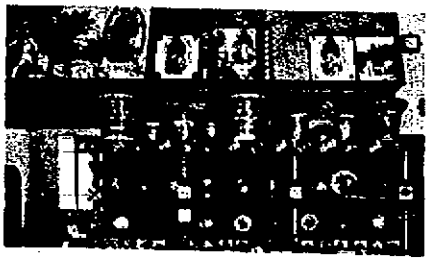

Clothing—Mexico City weather is pleasant and moderate, and this is a very cosmopolitan city; so dress well and bring a wrap. The rest of Mexico is warm, tropical and informal; light summer sports clothes are all you'll need. On Western's Coaches, you're allowed 55 lbs. of luggage; on Deluxe, 66 lbs.

Hotels—a wide selection of ultra-modern, luxurious hotels, symbolize the new era in Mexico. You'll enjoy gay, continental hospitality, superb dining, and standards of comfort and convenience that will make your visit memorable.

Money—there are 12.50 pesos to one U.S. dollar, and you can convert freely in hotels, shops and banks. There's no limit to the number of dollars you can take into Mexico. (With Western's low fares, you'll have lots of spare cash!)

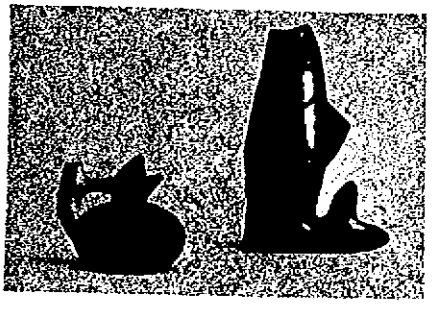

Customs—you may bring back to the United States $100 worth of duty-free goods per person; or mail back unlimited gifts of less than $10 each to different persons. Mexican law places no limit on the amount of goods you may take out of the country.

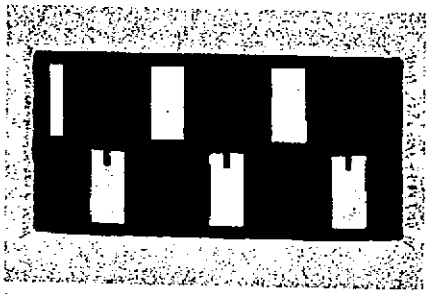

WHERE TO GO ON A SHOPPING SPREE

POTTERY

There is such great variety, at such remarkably low prices, you have only to choose what appeals to you. Wonderful, oven-proof brown casseroles, big pots, soup bowls, are available in every public market. Talavera de Puebla pottery, in rich yellow, white and blue, is found in Puebla and is of fine quality. Oaxaca has a distinctive dark green pottery that is quite strong; and a handsome black pottery as well. In Tlaquepaque, just outside Guadalajara, you will find unusually shaped, colorful pieces, both inexpensive and fascinating.

SERAPES AND TEXTILES

Serapes are a marvelous buy in Mexico, because they are almost always made of wool, are hand-loomed, and can be used as rugs, blankets or hangings. Bargaining is in order, and prices range from $8 and up. The best serapes come from Santa Ana, near Puebla, and from a spot near Oaxaca. Hand-loomed Toluca cloth is a great bargain; exquisite woolen rebozos can be bought anywhere in Mexico for about $3.50, especially in Mitla and Oaxaca; and hand-screened cloth, made into blouses, skirts and ties, are found many places in Mexico City.

LEATHER GOODS

Mexico is famous for its fine rawhide wallets, belts, saddles and other leather goods. Monterrey is an especially good center for leather. Huaraches, or braided leather sandals, can be found in nearly every market place, and good ones last a lifetime. In Puerto Vallarta they are made to measure. The fine shops in the fashionable Niza section of Mexico City have handbags and shoes of excellent quality and style.

SILVER

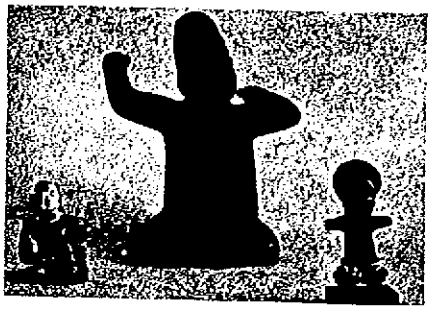

Mexico is the greatest silver-producer in the world, and high government standards guarantee that anything marked "sterling" or ".925" is at least 92% pure silver. Taxco is the silver center, and there you will find everything from simple Danish styles to traditional English patterns to native Indian motifs. Mexico City shops, of course, also offer silver in abundance. (Western's "Magic Week" Tour includes a visit to Taxco.)

BASKETS AND WOVEN GOODS

Nearly every area of Mexico has its own style of basketry, and the local market place is the place to bargain and buy. Handbags and shopping bags, bread baskets and clothes baskets, of every size and shape, are to be found for very little money. The sturdy, giant-size shopping bag in multi-color stripes is a must for carrying your small purchases, and costs less than a dollar.

FINE ART AND ARTIFACTS

There are many galleries where original paintings or good reproductions of famous Rivera or Tamayo works may be purchased. Misrachi at Genova No. 20 in Mexico City is a good starting point. Reproductions of pre-Columbian artifacts are available at most ruins.

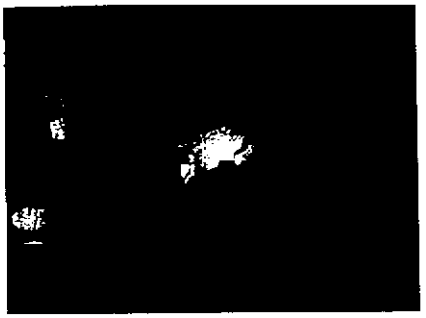

GLASSWARE

At Guadalajara's glass factory you'll find the famed blue bubble glass, as well as many modern decorative pieces. It is good, amazingly cheap, and will be well-packed and shipped for you. Mexico City's glass factory is worth a visit, too.

OF EVERYTHING IN MEXICO

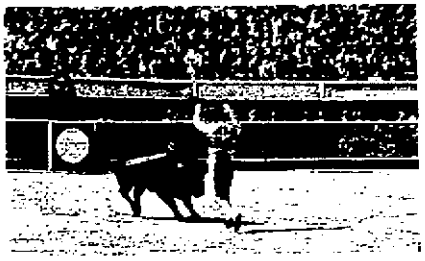

DINING AND NIGHT LIFE

MEXICO CITY offers some of the finest restaurants on the North American continent. Only a few are listed here. For superb French cuisine visit La Jena or the Derby; Mexican dishes are unexcelled at El Refugio; Yucatan food can be found at Circulo Sureste (try the "pollo pibil"); the Mauna Loa serves Polynesian dishes amid one of the world's most colorful gardens; La Scala is Italian; Czardas is Hungarian; and American restaurants range from excellent, expensive Delmonicos to the hamburgers and apple pie homemade style of Sanborn's. The Villa Fontana offers fine food to an accompaniment of violins. The penthouse restaurant atop the Tecalli Hotel is one of the best dining spots in the city, and has a magnificent view. (Monte Cassino Hotel, where you'll stay on a Western "Magic Week" Tour, is in the heart of one of the city's best restaurant areas.)

IN ACAPULCO, the Focolare is elegant and excellent; La Isla at the Hilton has charming atmosphere: the Bel Air Coffee Shop offers everything from steaks to sandwiches in a sidewalk cafe atmosphere. The Ski Club presents an unusual night water-skiing show; the Jacaranda offers a show and dancing at the water's edge; Club Bum-Bum is the tourist's delight, with a good floor show; La Perla is the famous cliff-hanging club from which to watch the diving boys. (Your Western "Magic Week" Tour includes a visit to Acapulco.)

THE PAGEANTRY OF SPORTS

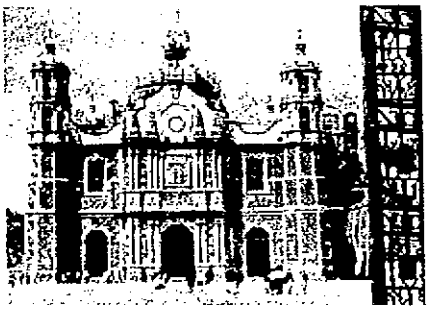

Part of Mexico's Spanish heritage, the bullfight is a spectacle not to be missed. In Mexico City bullfights are held almost every Sunday in either the Plaza Mexico or the smaller El Toreo. Fights may also be seen in Acapulco and Guadalajara.

Jai Alai, the famed old Basque game, is commonly called frontón in Mexico. Contests can be seen in Mexico City at the Frontón Mexico, and in Acapulco.

The Hipodromo de Las Americas in Mexico City is one of the most lavish race tracks in the world. The season is October to April, and tourists are admitted free upon presentation of their tourist cards.

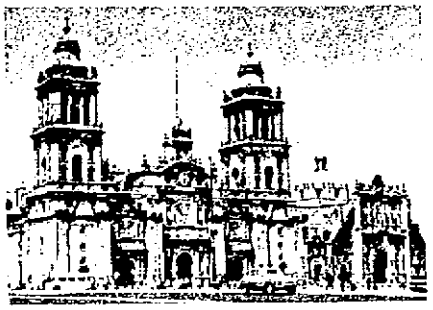

A LAND OF CHURCHES

Some of the most spectacular architecture, finest artwork, and most remarkable decorative crafts are to be found in the churches and cathedrals of Mexico. Nearly every village and town has its showplace. Only a few of the more memorable are mentioned here.

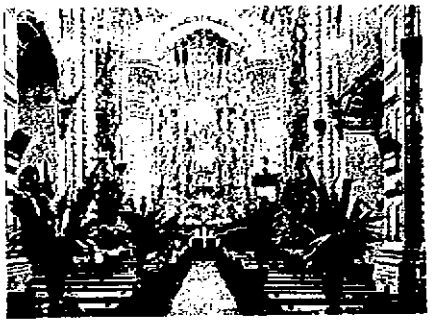

SHRINE OF OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE

In a suburb of Mexico City is the most famous Shrine in Latin America. The Virgin of Guadalupe is Queen of all the Latin Americas, and on December 12, 30,000 to 50,000 pilgrims come, some from hundreds of miles away, to pay homage. But any day of the year you can see dozens of the faithful, inching their way across the courtyard or up the aisle on their knees.

NATIONAL CATHEDRAL

Located in Mexico City on the Zocalo, on virtually the same site as the principal Aztec temple destroyed by the Spanish invaders, this is the largest cathedral on the North American continent. It was begun in 1573, completed in 1667.

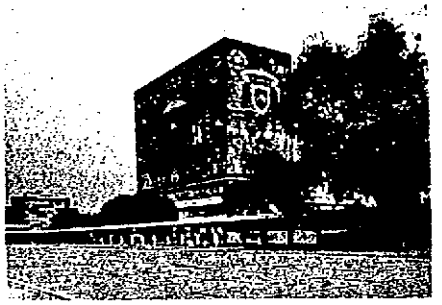

SANTA PRISCA CHURCH

This tall-towered, 200 year old church in Taxco is said to be the finest example of the ornate churriqueresque architecture in all of Mexico. It is lighted each night and makes a beautiful spectacle. One of Mexico's great religious painters, Cabrera, is credited with the fine paintings.

CHOLULA

This village, 8 miles outside of Puebla, is not to be missed if you have an interest in churches, because it has 300! Los Remedios, whose huge dome can be seen for miles, stands atop the high "hill" which was a pyramid of the Toltec era.

UNIVERSITY CITY

Just on the outskirts of Mexico City is the University of Mexico campus, 80 buildings which are among the most architecturally striking in the world. 156 architects, and the country's best painters, sculptors and designers joined to build the campus, which includes a 15-story science building, a magnificent stadium which seats 102,000 persons (this will play host to the 1968 Olympics), a liberal arts building nearly a quarter of a mile long, the world's largest swimming pool, a cosmic ray laboratory and a nuclear physics laboratory. The exterior murals by such famed artists as Diego Rivera, David Siqueiros and Juan O' Gorman are alone worth the trip.

FIESTA IN MEXICO

Almost any time of the year that you choose for your Western Airlines trip to Mexico is a good time to see a festival. Here are a few festival dates that are celebrated widely. The Day of St. Francis, October 4, (especially good festivals in Puebla, and Zapopan near Guadalajara). November 1 and 2, Day of the Dead (Mexico City, Colima, Cholula). December 12, Festival of the Virgin of Guadalupe (especially Mexico City). Christmas and New Year's festivals are spectacular everywhere. January 6, Dia de los Santos Reyes, is like a second Christmas.

LET YOURSELF GO... TOURING OFF THE BEATEN PATH

9-DAY THREE STAR HOLIDAY
$360.00

MEXICO CITY

In the dynamic, sophisticated Capital your tour includes guided sight-seeing in a private limousine; the spectacular Ballet Folklorico; a dinner at the romantic Villa Fontana; and superb accommodations in the Continental Hilton.

GUADALAJARA

You'll love this colonial city with its friendly people, its art treasures, its lovely music. Sightsee at the Glass Factory (you can buy the famous blue glass here); the Cathedral, with its 17th Century masterpiece, Murillo's "Assumption"; Cabanas Orphanage and the Governor's Palace, where Orozco's murals can be seen. Your home is the brand new Guadalajara Hilton.

PUERTO VALLARTA

Escape to a paradise where smooth beaches stretch for miles... mountains curve round an azure bay, teeming with marlin and sailfish... and a colorful village nestles among the hills. The incredibly lovely Posada Vallarta, with palm-shaded pool and private beach, is your hotel (all meals included). A boat trip to the Bay of Mixmaloya, where "Iguana" was filmed, is included.

Price includes round-trip Jet air fare from Los Angeles; all hotels (double occupancy); sightseeing and meals mentioned.

(IT-PV-9)

15-DAY MAYAN ADVENTURE
$548.10

If you love variety, this is for you! The tour takes you from ultra-modern Mexico City... to the ancient world of 5th Century Mayan ruins in Yucatan... to the lagoon-laced Caribbean retreat of Cozumel. Just the highlights are listed.

After 3 nights in Mexico City, you'll visit charming Merida in Yucatan; then motor past picturesque Mayan villages to Uxmal. The Palace of the Governors is the finest existing Mayan ruin.

CHICHEN ITZÁ

This is the heart of the Mayan empire—a world of 100-foot high pyramids, intricately sculptured temples, massive statuary, gods with names like Chac-mool and Kulkulkan. You'll stay at the deluxe Hotel Mayaland, where wild birds fly through tropical gardens.

ISLA COZUMEL

An island paradise, just a short flight from Merida. 20 miles of white sand and coral beaches stretch between rampant green jungle and a turquoise sea. After a fabulous Cozumel visit, you'll return to Mexico City for a night, then fly home.

Price includes round-trip Jet air fare from Los Angeles; air and land transfers between cities; finest hotel accommodations (double occupancy); meals except in Merida and Mexico City.

DIANE SHERRY of ABC-TV's "Bing Crosby Show" is jack-o'lantern ready for Halloween.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THERE WAS A PERIOD several years ago when actress Emmaline Henry was being considered as a housewife for TV commercials.

Despite the fact that she's never been married, Emmaline felt, as an actress, she could do a fine job of being a video spouse for the blurbs.

The soap company considering her didn't agree. They hired someone else.

Later, Emmaline was signed to play the wife of John Astin in the "I'm Dickens. . . . He's Fenster" series.

When that series was cancelled after one season, the actress was selected as the TV wife of Mickey Rooney in ABC-TV's Wednesday night "Mickey" series.

Recently Emmaline received a letter from an advertising-agency friend in New York.

He had attended a conference with executives of the soap company who had originally rejected the actress as their kind of housewife.

NOW THEY WERE in the market again.

The soap exec in charge of the conference knew exactly the specifications of the housewife he desired to plug his products. Said he:

"I want the Emmaline Henry type."

For better or worse, Emmaline now seems wedded to the image of housewife.

She thinks it's for the better.

"It's an image that has brought me a steady job in two series. I like working steady. I'm not a transient-type actress and I like being able to live in one place rather than out of a suitcase."

Emmaline also thinks the "Mickey" series is "for the better."

"Ours is a brilliant show," she claimed. "The writing is fantastic. I roar."

Sure, it's slapstick, she conceded but that's exactly what television needs more of, in her opinion.

"LOOK," SHE SAID. "I enjoy good drama but I'm not a fan of the psychological or the surgical operation.

"I don't even like hospitals.

"The provinces of the mind and body should be documentary subjects, not drama."

There's enough in the world today that is "so serious and troublesome" that Emmaline feels television should offer the opposite along entertainment lines.

The "opposite" is what "Mickey" is serving up.

"If we get an audience to watch it," said Emmaline, "this series could go for 25 years."

At the end of 25 years, Emmaline may contact her advertising-agency friend in New York and see if they still want her type for the soap commercials.

But not before.

For she's convinced that the television audience will discover "Mickey" and she'll be right at his side.

'Molestation' Drama Topic

Child molestation is the subject of this season's opening "Purex Special for Women" at 3 p.m. Wednesday, channel 7.

The one-hour drama stars Nina Foch and Martin Landau.

Miss Foch plays an attorney who is assigned by the court to defend Landau, who is accused of the crime.

• • • •

THE FACT that the female attorney is also a mother increases her reluctance to defend the accused molester.

Dinah Shore will serve as hostess for the program and other upcoming Purex specials.

These will include a drama about aging parents and a story debating whether a woman's place is in the home.

SPECIAL

DISCOVERY '64—In the same pointed black hat, cape and toothy grimace she made famous as the wicked witch of the west in 1939's "The Wizard of Oz," Margaret Hamilton joins host Frank Buxton in a probe of the "weird world of witchcraft," and takes a light-hearted look at the story of black magic, at 11:30 a.m., channel 7.

FISHERMAN'S FIESTA—The colorful 14th annual parade of the decorated fishing fleet will be described by Tom Frandsen from San Pedro in a 90-min. telecast at 12:30 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Dennis Weaver, Ricky Der and Bruce Yarnell.

A CONVERSATION with John M. Bailey—The Presidential campaign is discussed informally at 2 p.m., ch. 2, by the chairman of the Democratic Committee with CBS newsmen Martin Agronsky, Robert Pierpoint, Dan Rather.

ISSUE & ANSWERS—Perhaps Goldwater and Johnson never will share the same camera, but at 4 p.m., ch. 7, you'll see three other Presidential candidates do just that. Describing their qualifications for the office, platforms, influence of "splinter" groups, campaign issues and whether they could support either of the top-runners are candidates E. Harold Munn Sr. (Prohibition party), Eric Haas (Socialist Labor party) and Clifton DeBerry (Socialist Workers party).

HOOVER BURIAL—The funeral and interment of former President Herbert Hoover will be seen by videotape from West Branch, Iowa, at 4:30 p.m., ch. 7, and 4:45 p.m., ch. 4.

Rx FOR A NIGHTMARE—Members of the Senior Citizens Council offer their viewpoints in favoring medical care for the aged at 5 p.m., ch. 2. The non-sponsored half-hour, following a similar one last week by the AMA, is the second in a 2-part series.

20TH CENTURY—The deliberate, unsubstantiated political lie as it has been used in Presidential campaigns, and attempts to lessen this problem in politics, will be examined in "Smear: the Game of Dirty Politics," a special edition of "The 20th Century" at 6 p.m., ch. 2. How a smear is born is discussed by Walter Cronkite, Martin Agronsky and Mike Wallace through pictures, political cartoons, posters and interviews, examining lies aimed at Jackson, Van Buren, Lincoln, Cleveland, Blaine, Smith, Hoover, FDR, Stevenson, Eisenhower, Nixon, JFK and this year's candidates and at a faked composite photograph used in the Butler-Tydings Senatorial campaign in Maryland in 1950.

DECISION: 17 CROSSROADS—The three most controversial issues on the Nov. 3 California ballot are viewed by six authorities at 10 p.m., ch. 13, in the first hour of a 2-part pre-election series. Bill Johns is moderator as John Lamb (pro) and Laughlin C. Waters (con) discuss Proposition 16 for a state-controlled lottery. Debating Proposition 15, to outlaw pay TV, are William Ross and STV president Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver Jr., while Proposition 14, repealing the Rumford act, are Santa Ana Board of Realtors vice president Richard Laughlin (pro) and State Senator Tom Rees (con).

There Really Is a Regis Philbin

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The only reason anybody would interview a guy named Regis Philbin would be to find out if there is a guy named Regis Philbin.

During a luncheon meeting with Regis, you keep expecting him to deny his name somewhere between the soup and salad.

However, he never does. In fact, he adds two middle names, making it Regis Francis Xavier Philbin. More than that, no man can ask.

Regis is a puckish young man that you'll be hearing a lot about on television. So you might just as well get used to his name.

The 31-year-old Philbin has been signed to take over Steve Allen's job as host of a syndicated high-time television show. (Starts 11 p.m. Monday, Channel 5).

* * * *

PHILBIN, a soft-spoken fellow whose Irish ancestry shows through his face, was formerly host on a San Diego television station show, playing the role of an inquisitor who brought out the best and worst in people.

Sometimes the worst in people rebounded to the disadvantage of Regis, as evidenced by an angry wrestler who busted Philbin's finger during an on-camera bit of spoofing that turned serious. Regis also got a ripped shirt and torn jacket.

Then there were the times he laid bricks with a bricklaying champion, practiced flycasting with a lady flycasting champ, hosted a frog-raising contest and was master of ceremonies at an eating competition between two hungry giants.

* * * *

ALL OF WHICH indicates how far Regis has come from the days when he was "too chicken" to enter show business.

"I was such a chicken," said Regis over a cup of coffee spiked with an ice cube. "I didn't know if I had enough talent. I never took a class in speech because I was afraid to stand up and speak."

Regis' present position is not for one who is chicken, especially since television is a business in which everybody is after you with an axe.

He is an unknown name following the popular Allen who left the show to become host of CBS-TV's "I've Got a Secret."

And he follows Allen into that jungle of television — the syndication field where shows are sold to individual stations instead of aired on a major network. Whereas Allen had 32 stations when he quit, Regis starts out with 19 and a lot of confidence.

It is confidence gained in the more than 10 years that Regis worked in television, starting as a page boy and working his way up through the ranks of messenger, parking-lot attendant and writer.

And although Regis may have been "chicken", he overcame his fears to the point where he once asked Evangelist Billy Graham if anybody had ever stolen his Bible.

"Somebody had," recalled Philbin.

SPECIAL

WHAT'S THIS SONG?— That old warhorse, led in TV's infancy by Bill Gwinn, returns in a new color format at 9:30 a.m., ch. 4, replacing the defunct "Word for Word." Lorne Greene and Beverly Garland team with studio contestants, with Win(k) Martindale as host for the musical quiz.

SPOOK-A-NANNY — Donna (BevHillbillies) Douglas and Bill (Martian) Bixby join creator Walter Lantz, magician Chuck Jones, Bob Adkins and his collie and host, "Jeepers Creepers" in a special half-hour Woody Woodpecker Halloween party for the kiddies at 6:30 p.m., ch. 13.

REGIS PHILBIN — Premiere. The offbeat host of ch. 10's (San Diego) longtime series moves into the seat vacated by Steve Allen at 11 p.m., ch. 5. Seen there recently as the week-long guest of Phyllis Diller during her guestint for vacationing Steverino, Philbin now joins the rat(e) race with Johnny Carson and, next month, Les Crane for the insomniac viewers. Liberace, Mary Kaye, astrologer Sydney Omarr are opening-night stars, with Ann Sothern a week-long guest.

Oscar-Winning Jose Wants TV Series

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The varied talents of Jose Ferrer have given him an uppercase reputation in show business, but the star would be happy to latch onto a popular television series.

He guests on "The Danny Kaye Show" Wednesday (10 p.m., channel 2).

"I don't blame Shirley Booth, George Scott or Ralph Bellamy, for example, for appearing in weekly video series," Ferrer said. "People who say they 'sold out' to television are crazy.

"Most people, and this includes the press, don't fully appreciate the economic handicaps under which a prominent performer works these days. Unless you're a Kirk Douglas or an Elizabeth Taylor and make movies for your own companies, you work for a salary."

• • • •

THE OSCAR winner and holder of many stage honors is willing to hop aboard the video bandwagon, but there are certain ifs.

"I don't want too much compromise," Ferrer explained. "Producers today run scared. They buy the rights of 'Lady Chatterly's Lover' and turn it into another 'Mrs. Miniver.' I respect men like Walt Disney and Joe Levine—they don't deceive you. Their stuff may not be your dish, but you know what to expect.

JOSE FERRER
As Danny's Guest

"I see that television is doing a 'Peyton Place' series this season. It will be fun to see if it doesn't come out like 'The Bobbsy Twins.'"

• • • •

FERRER actually signed for one television series a while back, he said, but compromise and vaccilation began to drain the juice from the original concept in an effort to keep from offending anyone. He bowed out.

The star will guest on Danny Kaye's variety hour again later in the season, and he will get a chance to demonstate his all-round entertainment talents.

"People know me as a serious actor, but I'd like to play night clubs and make records," Ferrer said. "The Kaye show and a few more like it may open the door. If television can make Shirley Booth into a housemaid, maybe it can do something for me."

SPECIAL

SPECIAL FOR WOMEN—Premiere. First of three Dinah Shore-hostessed daytime dramas stars Nina Foch and Martin Landau with Suzanna Cupito, June Dayton and Vinton Hayworth in the story of a woman lawyer assigned by the court to defend a man on trial for molesting a 10-year-old girl. There's a happy ending at 3 p.m., ch. 7, but the whole sordid subject of child molesting is explored.

MY FAIR LADY Premiere—Arthur Godfrey and Bill Burrud co-host gala ceremonies at the Egyptian Theatre for ch. 13 at 7 p.m. Among those expected to be interviewed during the "live" hour are stars Audrey Hepburn and Rex Harrison, plus benefit co-chairmen Frank Sinatra and Natalie Wood.

ONE WEEK TO GO—Walter Cronkite moderates a "Campaign '64" roundtable at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, as CBS correspondents assigned to top candidates view the men, campaign and issues.

JOHN QUINN—Why television leaders had urged pre-election repeal of the "equal time" ruling is exemplified at 8 p.m., ch. 2. As a result of demands resulting from the Oct. 5 Murphy-Salinger debate, a free half-hour goes to John Quinn for the Socialist-Labor party.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON—The President, in his role as candidate, takes part in a coast-to-coast half hour political appeal at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, preempting "The Beverly Hillbillies."

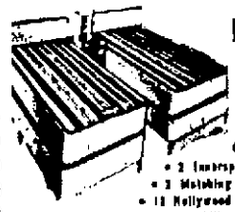

Sports Today

NFL REPORT, 8 p.m., in color, ch 5, has taped highlights of Sunday's Rams-Green Bay Packers game

WRESTLING, 8:30 p.m., ch. 5, has Dick Lane mike-side at the Olympic.

I would like to know why "Wagon Train" isn't in color this season.

We bought our color set last fall and "Wagon Train" was one of our favorite color programs.

Since there are other color shows on in the same time slot, it seems to me they'll lose a lot of viewers—including us.

Sharon Fambrough, Norwalk

There was not enough sponsor interest in "Wagon Train" to pay the added cost this season of continuing color telecasting.

The Olympic games have always been events that stir me and I always wished that I could be a part of them.

But, not having the world-wide ability to participate, I have always applauded the efforts of our unselfish youth who have won medals for the good old U.S.A.

In 1960 we were afforded wonderful coverage of these events on the TV screen at a reasonable hour.

Now we have to arrange to be at the set from 11 p.m. to midnight.

It seems to me that this Olympic games is more important than any other program and could be placed earlier in the evening so everyone can see it.

Carl B. Winkler, Artesia

While NBC-TV — who won the telecast rights for the Olympics—hasn't said so officially, they obviously don't believe "everyone" wants to watch the games.

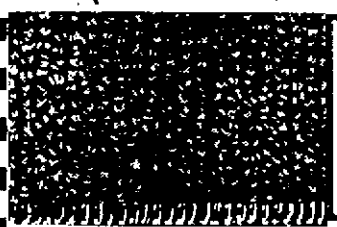

Their generally late-night scheduling keeps their regular prime-time programs intact for habit viewers.

SPECIAL

RAWHIDE—Three "firsts" in this one! It's the dramatic TV debut for singer Dean Martin . . . the first Western for prolific writer Stirling Silliphant . . . and the first role of a priest for veteran actor (his fan club just observed its 36th birthday) Ramon Navarro. For his last job before retiring, a professional gunfighter is hired to kill the town's leading and most popular citizen. Featured, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, are Laura Devon (ex-Boone) as the devoted wife who tries to dissuade him, Theodore Bikel as a newspaperman, Jack Kruschen as a bartender and Michael Ansara as the intended victim. Martin refused doubles for stunt work in segment produced by Jack Arnold, recently assigned to "Gilligan's Island."

CHRYSLER THEATRE — Four-time Emmy-winner Art Carney stars as a museum curator with a shady past in a tongue-in-cheek caper at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Balking at an offer of a million dollars if he'll steal the world's second - most - valuable painting, entrusted to his care, he then must forestall the heist by three separate gangs of thieves, led by Spring Byington, Mike Mazurki and Reginald Denny. Featured are Mark Lawrence, Eleanor Audley, Art Aragon, Roland LaStarza and, as himself, TV (ch. 9) host John Willis.

You don't need glasses . . .

You need a new WINEGARD COLORTRON ANTENNA

You need a more powerful TV antenna to clear up that picture. One that takes more of the signal from the airwaves, and amplifies it before it reaches your set. When your set receives a strong, clean signal from the antenna, your picture becomes sharp, clear, bright . . . more enjoyable.

Model for model, Winegard's new electronic Colortrons are the world's most powerful antennas. Distant stations come in clearer and sharper. Snow and interference are reduced or eliminated.

For color or black & white, you can't own a finer antenna for best reception. Priced from $64.90. Antenna without electronic amplifier $24.95 up.

OUR COVER

Rarest among athletes are the super-stars, and rarer yet are teams blessed with two. So when basketball experts sit down to isolate the five best players in the world they don't look far after the Los Angeles Lakers. Elgin Baylor (No. 22) and Jerry West (No. 44) are so good that opponents concentrate on stopping the other Lakers. Baylor and West CAN'T be stopped — except, as they were last season, by themselves. The Lakers swept to two consecutive Western Division championships in the National Basketball Association until the 1963-64 campaign, when injuries struck down their deadeye duo. But now Jerry's jumpin' and Elgin's ticking, so Laker hopes are bright. Don Hardin tells all about it on Page 7.

NEWS WEEK

History has proven that Presidential elections are not always "in the bag" until all the votes have been counted. Charles Evans Hughes discovered this to his sorrow, and so did Tom Dewey. But there were also several others who learned the hard way. Read "Squeakers in Presidential Elections" next week in Southland.

Khrushchev Feared Death by Poisoning

By Hoyt McAfee

ALTHOUGH Nikita Krushchev boasted of having a "monstrous new terrible weapon" before his fall from power in the Soviet Union, he lived in mortal fear that some enemy would slip atomic dust into his coffee or food and "shrivel" him to death! On his last fence-mending and "good neighborly" tour about Europe, I can reveal authoritative that Soviet security agents, armed with Geiger counters, preceded him everywhere. Their sole duty was to examine all food prepared for Mr. K's consumption to make sure it contained no atomic dust!

His other security guards went armed—as always—with pistols and small daggers (concealed under their coats). But the Geiger counter detail enjoyed "top billing" over them. They had the devil of a time keeping their Geiger devices under wraps and, in fact, both in Denmark and Poland intelligence agents of those countries caught glimpses of what they were doing.

Hungry? British intelligence says Khrushchev feared atom dust would be slipped in his food.

ADDITIONALLY, two alternate British agents of branch No. 5, the secret arm of England's military intelligence, watched Russian Geiger counter men test food before Khrushchev ate it. I now have an informal and authentic report of their observations as supplied by a "pipeline"—an alert, intelligent, and reliable British girl who knows whereof she speaks.

She, working with a woman British agent designated in Old Bailey Court, London, as "Miss K," not long ago helped to smash a Russian secret-spy ring. It was operating inside the British navy base at Portland. She and her female colleague kept the two key links of the espionage group under surveillance—namely, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kroger.

Other intelligence agents of branch No. 5—who are designated in official reports as "the matchless men"—shadowed master spy Gordon Lonsdale for months. Posing as an American naval attache, he quickly enlisted two "pliable" employes in his conspiracy — Henry Houghton and his sweetheart, Ethel Gee, names that turned out to be aliases.

AFTER MEETING them covertly, Lonsdale (who also carried a forged Canadian passport) would follow a roundabout route to the suburban cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kroger. From that rendezvous, he used a short-wave radio to transmit information damaging to Great Britain's security to Moscow.

That was the second big case on which my friend (I'm instructed to refer to her as Miss C) worked. It gave her considerable satisfaction, both as an intelligence agent and a patriot, to have a hand in putting the grappling hooks into spies Lonsdale, the Krogers, Henry Houghton, and Ethel Gee.

I first met the high-spirited British girl (now Miss C) during a series of magazine assignments along the U.S.-Mexico border. These called for me to go prowling with customs' agents and members of the U.S. Border Patrol's special detail. Miss C, a business secretary in Texas at that time, convinced the American agents that she could be trusted.

ACCORDINGLY, she was permitted to "tag along" discreetly in the background on some of my writing assignments with the border patrol: all of which had to do with dope, diamonds, and other forms of smuggling. What she saw and learned on those outings sold her on a career in some branch of intelligence work. Bidding us "cheerio," she returned to London. She knew what she wanted and pursued her goal with relish and determination.

After an intensive training course, she pulled a "wire" in Great Britain's Home Office. Her contact there was instrumental in paving the way for her first assignment as a female agent with branch No. 5. (An agency which, incidentally, now employs several highly trained young women agents—dedicated young women who wear an assortment of disguises to carry out their assignments.)

Now that I've explained Miss C's credentials, I wish to add that we corresponded fairly regularly as a result of the "good old days" down along the border. Her revealing comments about the recent tour of Khrushchev and his overriding fear of being poisoned by atomic dust or bacteria violate no British security regulations.

Why, the reader may wonder, did the Russian dictator harbor an all-pervading obsession about atomic dust particles? He and his inner circle had good reason to be concerned about such a danger, my informant emphasizes.

FOR HIS OWN secret agents a while back conceived and initiated the hellish method of "rubbing out" a "traitor" by sneaking atomic dust into his food or drink! This has occurred —I can reveal—in two specific instances. ("There have been other reports of it happening, but our intelligence sources have been unable to document them," Miss C adds.)

One was a hard-driving, ruthless Russian "controller" in Great Britain. For months he took advantage of the political bitterness of well-placed Englishmen (and paid them lucrative fees as well) to elicit valuable information about Britain's latest atomic and radar devices.

Sometimes by secret courier and again by powerful short-wave radio, he relayed the data to Russian intelligence in Moscow. Finally, however, the "nameless men" from Britain's branch No. 5 caught the master Russian spy, or "controller." In time, they prevailed upon him to "sing"—to bare details of the Soviet spy apparatus in Great Britain.

In return for his cooperation, the Home Office granted him asylum—and a chance to start life anew—in a small English village. Unfortunately, other Russian secret agents finally tracked him to his hideout.

WHETHER they tricked him (the defector) into meeting them somewhere and

Pockets Full of Gold

By Retta E. Ewers

SOME years ago, when gold was worth its own weight, it was often found by pure accident and when least expected.

Nature is a great prankster in her methods of hiding and revealing her treasures. Stories of men's dealing with her, and her fickleness, are full of drama and romance.

A short time ago, in Salome, Ariz., an excavation was being dug for Dick Wick Hall, famous humorist, over which he was to build his home. While excavating, a pocket of gold ore was struck worth $150,000. Search as they would, no amount of hard work in the surrounding area produced a penny's worth of gold.

Of all mines discovered in the Far West, there are none, perhaps, more dramatic in history than those in Tombstone area.

RIDING ALONE one day in the Apache Indian Territory, Ed Schieffelin, a lonely prospector, came upon the skeletons of two men. His attention to them had been drawn by the shying of his pack animal. Outstretched arms of the two men reached toward a pile of rocks, as if attempting to grasp some with dying fingers.

Ed stopped to examine a rock and found it to be rich gold ore. Nearby was an outcropping of a pegmatite dyke, in which mineral is often found. He set up claims, naming them Tombstone, because his friends had told him, "All you'll ever find will be your own tombstone."

Two years later a city of 14,000 stood on the spot; a gut-totin', rip-roarin' city destined to go down in history as the wildest town the Wild West ever bred.

Many of the great mining developments in the early West owe their origin to U.S. soldiers stationed in the Territory during the Indian uprisings.

GLOBE, a silver and gold bonanza town came about by accident. While scouting for renegade Indians, a soldier picked up a large nugget of almost pure silver. It was not an isolated piece, since the whole hill was well sprinkled with large and small nuggets. Other diggings unearthed silver, copper and gold worth millions.

Fighting and claim jumping were common occurrences. In one such happening, Ed Darnell, an Arizonan, came upon three men moving his monuments.

Shooting followed and resulted in the deaths of all four men. Before Ed cashed in, however, he wrote these words on a cartridge box: "three men jump my claim an I jump thim."

Months later a passing Indian found their remains. Subsequent testings proved the claims they fought over, to be of negligible value.

LOST MINE stories of lost California mines are legion, most famous being Dutch Oven, Lost Padres, Peg Leg, and Lee's silver lode. All are supposed to lie somewhere in the Mojave Desert.

Women as well as men, but in lesser numbers, find interest in running a test for gold.

Since the Feather River, above Oroville, was diverted to build a dam, prospectors have found gold in the dry river bed.

Most recent gold discovery in California was at Del Webb's Sun City, 22 miles south of Riverside. While excavating for a reservoir, gold ore was encountered, but of insufficient value to be profitable.

Arizonans are certain of the existence of the Lost Dutchman mine in the Superstition Mountains, and many lives have been sacrificed in trying to locate it.

After his 23rd time at exploring the Rich Hill area in Arizona, Bill Esenwien accidently discovered his bonanza. This was in 1958. He still lives there.

RUNNING OUT of supplies while prospecting an area already thought to be played out, he took a heretofore untraveled shortcut over the mountains toward Stanton. En route he landed on an almost inaccessible ledge where gravel, sprinkled with hemetite, lay all about him, fairly shrieking a message of "Gold!"

He gathered up a few samples, marked the spot, and after crawling for half a mile through cat's claw, reached his destination.

Rich Hill lived up to its name. It had produced millions and bred three towns, Weaver, Octavo and Stanton. Only Stanton remains today with a population of six persons.

Esenwien named his claim The Aurora, and the abilities of a mountain goat are needed to reach it.

RICH HILL is wealthy in other minerals and gem stones, especially garnets, finest ever seen, according to Esenwien. Black sand is radioactive, indicating uranium; sheelite is present in commercial quantities.

The prospector in this area could emerge with his pockets full of gold. But the price is high and water is scarce, so he is forewarned.

Mechanical Doctor

By G. Winston Ross and Dick LaCosta

ALMOST everyone needs a doctor at some time or other during his life. Few would quarrel with that fact. But that statement applies especially to aerospace test pilots who are required at all times to be in tip-top physical condition.

Take test pilots, for instance.

When they push past the speed of sound (762 m.p.h. at sea level), bioastronautics medical men must know precisely the amount of stress and exactly the degree of strain they experience. This information, however slight, must be recorded, evaluated and checked against known medical facts.

Moreover, at no time in world history has it been more important for medical men to know more about physical man.

CURRENTLY, man stands at the very threshold of space. Soon, he will free himself of the fetters that bind him to earth. Only then will he be able to attempt piercing the atmospheric envelope that encases him as he tries to reach the moon.

Today, both military and civilian scientists constantly check aerospace pilots with one goal in mind: Insuring that today's aerospace men will tomorrow safely land on the earth's only natural satellite, the moon.

Some 65 miles inside the heart of America's Mojave Desert, where many of the world's aerospace records are made, scientists currently concern themselves deeply with the physical condition of their aerospace test pilots.

Until recently, scientists at this wind-whipped, sand-swept desert base were handicapped by not knowing exactly what stresses and strains the pilots experienced while traveling three, four and more times the speed of sound. Even after pilots landed, three or four hours often passed before data recorded while in flight could be evaluated.

Two U.S. Air Force pilots check mechanical doctor console at Edwards Air Force Base.

IN THE PAST, pilot-performance data were recorded on tape. The result was hours of study after flight were necessary before final medical evaluation could be made.

Today's test pilot, occupied with flying supersonic aircraft, watching dozens of instruments and manually recording observable information, may not become aware of dangerous situations in time to take corrective action.

The "Mechanical Doctor," officially called an Electronic Monitoring System, can in six seconds measure the stress a pilot undergoes while in flight. Not only can the mechanical doctor diagnose the pilot's physical condition but it also can simultaneously report and detail the aircraft's stresses.

Since the system requires no computation of data, graphs, or analyses, technicians on the ground are able to warn a pilot within seconds when dangerous situations arise. Aerospace scientists predict that the mechanical doctor may in the future save the lives of any test pilots.

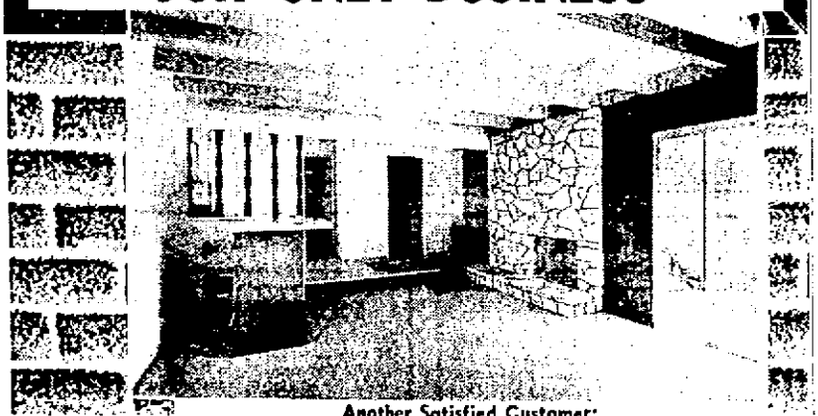

ONE ADVANTAGE of the system is that it promptly relays to scientists on the ground a pilot's breathing rate, reaction time, blood pressure, heartbeat, body temperature, and volume of air breathed. It even employs a polygraph device, similar to that used on a lie detector, to show if the pilot feels nervous or becomes anxious. Lastly, it indicates attitudes, strains and stresses affecting the aircraft—including speed, pitch, roll, yaw, skin temperature, wing flutter and strain, and susceptibility to stall.

The mechanical doctor displays physical data on the aircraft and physiological data on the pilot on separate consoles. The consoles are the only ones known to be in existence in the world today. They were developed from ideas first presented by Air Force scientists and engineers stationed at this isolated base.

Aerospace scientists, engineers and technicians now envision use of the console on future space vehicles. One particular aircraft they're concerned with is the Manned Orbital Laboratory (MOL), an orbiting, globe-girdling, boost glide vehicle. They add, without crossing their fingers, the console may even save the life of the Dyna-Soar pilot as he plunges into the earth's atmospheric envelope from outer space.

That alone would make additional scientific research on the console well worthwhile. And save the lives of future spacemen.

The Action Starts Wednesday!

Lakers' 1-2 Punch: Baylor and West

By DON HARDIN

Jerry West is one-half of the Los Angeles Lakers' one-two scoring punch. West will be back in action with hopes for a big year on the NBA boards.

Elgin Baylor is the other half of the big punch for the Lakers. Bothered by knee troubles last season, big Elgin is back looking better than ever.

LOS ANGELES LAKERS of the National Basketball Assn. have embarked upon their fifth season since moving west. Next Wednesday, following four road games, they will open their home campaign at the L.A. Sports Arena against the Baltimore Bullets. As usual, they are relying upon perhaps the most respected one-two punch in the league, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor.

This particular combo has more flavor than any in the nine-team circuit and their combined scoring averages consistently have been higher than any other one-two tandem in the league. This, plus the fact that each is personably likeable, has helped the Lakers to lead the NBA in attendance, at home and on the road, for the past three years. This is the only team ever to attract more than 10,000 for a single game date.

Baylor and West have played together for four years—that's since the Lakers left Minneapolis. Jerry was a raw rookie and Elgin was entering his third year as a prolific pro. Between the two—Baylor, a Negro, and West, a Southern white — there never has been any animosity nor jealousness. In fact, they are the best of friends.

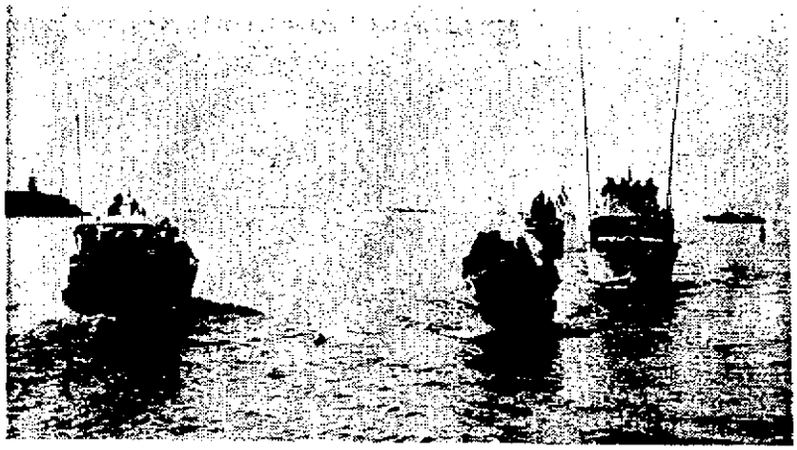

EACH IS SHY to a great extent but never fails to answer reporters' queries. Each is a good family man and under contract to the Lakers year-round, rather than just the basketball season.

Although the Lakers proved to be the most profitable club last season, owner Bob Short and general manager Lou Mohs continue to cringe because of the salaries they have to deal out to these fine stars.

When rookie West signed his first contract, it was for three years at approximately $18,000 per, plus a bonus. The salary since has skyrocketed. Baylor has been lounging around the past few years at the $50,000 mark. But, each is deserving of every dollar. Look at it this way:

In his first season at Minneapolis, Baylor averaged 24.9 points, the next season,

Search for Relaxation

There's a Boat in Your Future

California is in the midst of an aquatic sports explosion that will see Californians owning more than a million pleasure craft by 2000.

By LOU JOBST

IT IS VARIOUSLY known as the aquatic explosion, the boating boom and the recreation revolution.

Its sounds are the thunder and roar of revving marine engines, the flat slap of keels on the water, the snap and crackle of sail and the crash of a rolling surf.

It is an affluent society's attempt to handle more and more spare time—a search for relaxation that has become a frenzied industry and a sport-hobby of magnitude and scope that pose formidable political and economic problems for the future.

This mass flight to the beaches and out on the briny threatens to turn California into one continuous anchorage, a sailor's highway stretching from San Diego to San Francisco.

BOATING, the backbone of this out-of-doors explosion and already big in California, the nation's most populous state, is bound to get bigger, the experts say.

The state's 17 million residents now own about 300,000 (120,000 in coastal Southern California) boats, ranging from huge 180-foot schooners to 8- and 10-foot skiffs, or about 17 craft per 1,000 citizens.

While these figures might appear impressive in the bulk, numerically, California is only third in the nation in total numbers of boats, trailing both Michigan and New York.

Percentage-wise, on the basis of numbers of boats per people, the Golden State is way down the list, ranking number 22.

WITH 850 MILES of superb coastline and more than 2,000 miles of inland waterways, mostly accessible to trailers and cars, and a climate that favors year-round outdoor recreation the aquatic-boating industry has no way to go but up.

Up, asserts the state division of Small Craft Harbors, is going to be a precipitous climb.

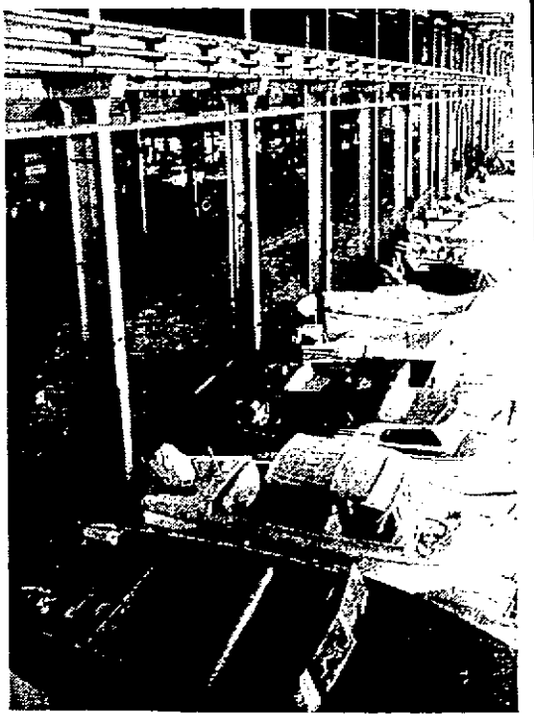

Within 11 years the California recreation fleet is expected to number some 557,000 boats, or 23 boats per 1,000 persons.

By the year 2000, only 35½ years away, there will, DSCH claims, be one million pleasure boats in use in California.

THERE IS and will be plenty of water, ranging from the open main to the landlocked saline Salton Sea and including even fresh water lakes and high altitude reservoirs. In all, the state has 340 bodies of water available to boating, but only 200 have any kind of public facilities. Projects now under way or authorized will add another 45 by 1975.

Facilities for launching trailer-borne boats fall far short of needs for the present 300,000 small craft.

Dry storage for boats is provided in the plant that formerly housed the Ford unit on Cerritos Channel.

These efforts to add boating facilities are insufficient by present standards, claims the state agency, and threaten to get completely out of hand in the future.

"In terms of cost, today's shortages in harbors and facilities amount to about $195 million at present price levels," asserts the Division of Small Craft Harbors.

BY 1975, the shortage could be about $318 million even if all the presently planned projects are completed and current programs are continued."

Dealing with basic facilities the state, according to DSCH, now has 1,420 boat launching lanes* and needs 120 more to handle the present boat population; 45,840 mooring spaces or berths and needs 28,180 more immediately; has 12,000 dry storage spots and needs about 60,000.

In little more than a decade the minimum requirements for the state will be 3,730 launching lanes, 143,800 berths and 119,000 dry storage spaces.

The South Coastal area, which includes Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego Counties, now has 250 boat-launching lanes (needs 300), and 16,220 berths and slips (needs 8,610 more). By 1975 the Southland facilities will have been expanded to 380 launching lanes and 36,000 moorings, according to the state.

IDEALLY, THE STATE envisions a system that incorporates both multipurpose harbors and harbors of refuge.

The latter, which may be full blown harbors or nothing more than breakwaters, navigation aids, dredged channels or turning basins, should be located every 35 miles up and down the coast. This distance was selected arbitrarily as the distance any small craft, the crew of which keep themselves advised of weather conditions, could travel in sufficient time to take shelter from an impending storm.

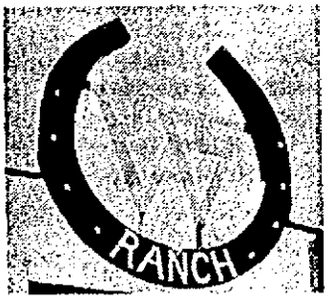

At present there are 32 such safe anchorages in the state and there is a minimum need for 49.

*(A lane is defined as a facility upon which 2,000 boats a year can be launched in an area where the boating season is six months long. In 1962, there were 2.6 million boat launchings in California.)

A Cowpoke's Legacy

In the days of silent films, a striking figure rode tall in the western saddle. His name was William S. Hart, a name perpetuated today in his home that he willed to the people for a park.

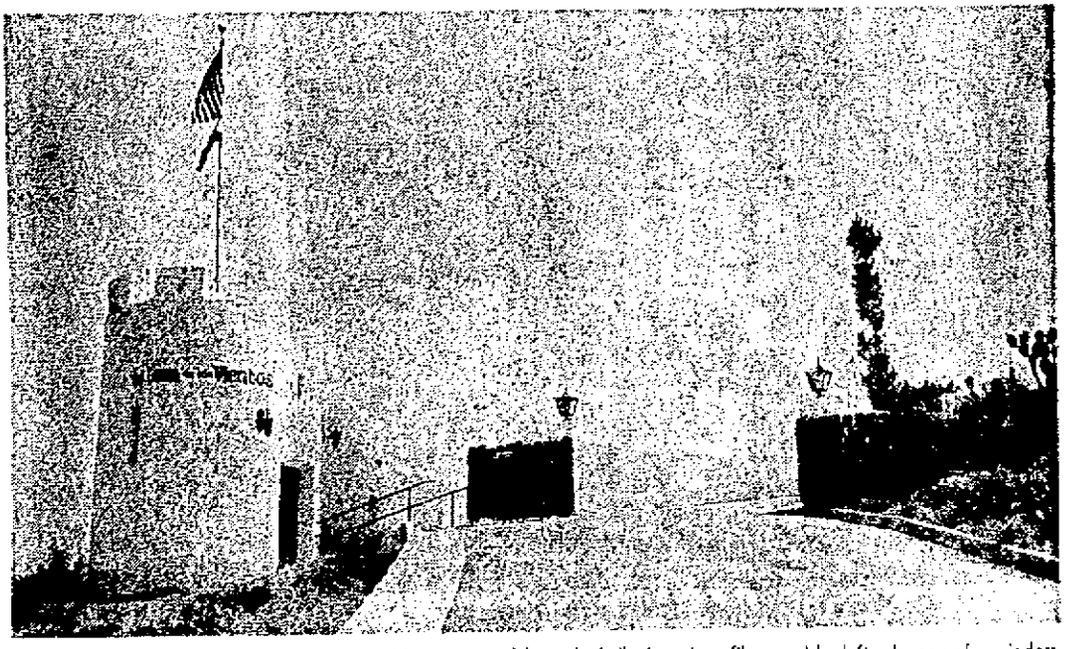

By Bill Stephens

POISED on a hill overlooking Santa Clarita Valley and Newhall is a large mansion filled with the presence of a man, who in his lifetime became a true-to-life legend.

William S. Hart's home, La Loma de Los Vientos (Hill of the Winds), is filled with movie mementos of the late silent film star, as well as relics of the Old West that Hart knew and depicted so well in his movies.

Hart willed his home and Horseshoe Ranch to the people of Los Angeles County as a park before he died in 1946. Characteristic of the actor was a remark he made before his passing, "While I was making pictures, the people gave me their nickels, dimes and quarters. When I am gone, I want them to have my home."

Warren M. Dorn, chairman of the board of supervisors, describes William S. Hart Park as "a monument to Hart, the early movie industry, and the West." The park is maintained by the County Parks and Recreation Department.

William S. Hart (top right) was a true-to-life Hollywood legend of silent western films, and he left a legacy of reminders of his heyday. Above, the entry to his estate, now a park, and his initials set into a gateway at the entrance to the ranch.

ASIDE FROM ITS purely historical interest, the park's rolling grounds, sweeping vistas, and other features provide a family searching for weekend diversions with a neat recreation package.

The 233½-acre county park has picnic facilities, a corral enclosing farm and wild animals, a cemetery for Hart's dogs and horses, a bunkhouse, trails, a barn and other points of interest.

Visitors may hike or be ferried up by bus to Hart's mansion, located approximately one mile from the picnic area, at Newhall Avenue and San Fernando Road, Newhall.

The late star's home, considered one of the finest examples of Spanish-Mexican architecture, contains oil paintings and other art by Charles M. Russell, considered the greatest American artist produced by the West. His works pictorialize Indian and pioneer conflicts, buffalo hunts, and other subjects which a reviewer has said, "preserve for us, as accurately as possible, the essence of an era that has vanished."

ALSO STORED or displayed in the home are movie props; Hart's gun collection, which includes Indian hunting rifles and a six-shooter attributed to Billy the Kid; a hunting axe inscribed "Carson 1861" (Kit Carson); furniture, Hart's library, sculpture, Sioux war gear, and art treasures.

Hart's colorful personality is reflected everywhere on the Horseshoe Ranch and in La Loma de Los Vientos.

His boyhood was spent in the West, where he learned to speak Sioux from Indian friends and where he met the frontier personalities he was later to portray on the screen with a realism and accuracy never equalled before or since.

In the middle of a successful stage career, in which he created the role of Messala in "Ben Hur" and the title role of "The Virginian," Hart recognized the potential of the infant motion picture industry.

In 1913, he arrived in Hollywood to attempt breaking into western films. At the time, westerns were totally untrue to life and poor financial risks. After a year's effort, Hart failed to find a backer for a feature-length film or a promise of a contract, but did manage to complete two one-reelers.

DISCOURAGED by his failure to accomplish more, Hart returned to New York. A telegram was waiting for him on his arrival, with an offer of a contract and the future in movies that saw him become Hollywood's highest paid performer in 1915.

His two short one-reelers, reluctantly released by the backers, proved instant successes — giving a Hollywood touch to the nevertheless true beginning of Hart's fantastic career.

His name may be dulled by time, and perhaps there are few around today who idolized the western star four decades ago, but William S. Hart was the Gary Cooper, John Wayne and Tom Mix of his time.

Hart's last movie, "Tumbleweeds," was completed in 1926. With the advent of regulating scripts and production by public relations men, Hart's independence as a producer, and his insistence on it, lost him his battle to remain in films.

"TUMBLEWEEDS" played in 11,033 of the nation's 14,000 theaters, but lost money when the industry closed the doors of first-run theaters to the star's movie.

In 1931, Hart, equipped with an excellent stage voice, recorded a prologue to a projected re-release of "Tumbleweeds," which might have brought him back into movies, bigger and more popular than ever.

Legal complications blocked the release, and Hart's voice was—like the man—to remain silent in that era of silent films which he helped shape.

How to Embrace, Hollywood Style

WHILE Bob Hope and Dina Merrill were rehearsing a kissing scene in "I'll Take Sweden," Bob's new comedy film produced by Edward Small for United Artists release, the comedian decided to "try out" the bussing style of several Hollywood personalities before picking the correct one for his role of an American business man in love with a pretty Swedish interior decorator.

1. "This will take a little thought," reflects Bob Hope as he ponders his category of embraces.

2. "Let's try the Rock Hudson style—strong and forceful!" Dina Merrill's ready to be convinced.

3. "How about Rossano Brazzi?—the continental touch." Dina thinks that might be good, too.

4. "Now the eyes closed bit—every other Hollywood leading man does this one." Dina's waiting.

5. "Let's settle on comedian style—the world needs all the laughs it can get these days."

Beautiful, and Deadly, Lady

By Isabel Macomber

SCIENTISTS BELIEVE the drug used in unethical brain washing in Communist "trials" is scopolamine, the active principle of henbane. The drug works as a cerebral sedative, and is used medicinally to calm the agonies of delirium tremens or the withdrawal symptoms of drug addiction. Henbane, a member of the nightshade family, has famous relatives.

One, Datura arborea, is handed across Southland fences as though it were a common garden - variety shrub. "Just stick a branch in the ground and it will grow," one neighbor tells another. It has white lilies eight inches long hanging from the ends of the branches. The leaves are oval, pointed at the tip, flattened at the base.

The drug stramonium whose properties are like belladonna's, except it is more relaxing to the unstriped muscle of the bronchial tubes, is obtained from it. Used in cigarettes it relieves asthmatic attacks. In the days of Nero, a Greek physician, Dioscorides, wrote: "The root being drunk with wine has the power to arouse not unpleasant fantasies. But two drams being drunk makes a man beside himself for three days and four being drunk will kill him."

PLUTARCH, writing the life of Mark Antony, said this about Antony's soldiers eating belladonna in a retreat from the Parthians: ". . . they remembered nothing in the world, and employed themselves only in moving great stones from one place to another, which they did with as much earnestness and industry as if it had been a business of the greatest consequence."

There is a story of Hannibal using mandrake to win a victory over rebellious Africans. Making a sham retreat, he left huge jars of mandragora wine. After the enemy had moved up and drunk the wine, Hannibal returned and imprisoned them.

Macbeth, king of Scotland, used similar tactics. Pretending a truce, he sent bread with wine and ale — mixed with belladonna leaves — to the enemy. Macbeth did not take prisoners, but massacred the drugged soldiers.

A BABYLONIAN remedy for toothache: powdered henbane seeds mixed with resin.

Roman Legionnaires gave a drink of mandragora wine to men about to be crucified to ease their pain.

It is believed belladonna was the drug used in the wine was also used in the midnight witches' rites in the depths of the Hartz Mountains in Bavaria to produce hallucinations. After initiation, the "witches" were rubbed with a salve made of the crushed leaves. The 13th century bishop, Albertus Magnus, said belladonna or henbane was used in brews made by necromancers to conjure up demons.

The word belladonna comes from two Italian words: bella—beautiful, and donna—lady, because Italian ladies used a drop of the juice in their eyes to give sparkle and enlarge the pupils. It did blur their vision, but they willingly suffered this.

Blue nightshade, and black nightshade, which are sometimes fatal to grazing animals, grow in the United States.

The Irish potato is a member of this family. The "eyes" and new sprouts contain solanine.

TOBACCO is also a nightshade, and nicotine a very toxic drug.

One member of the family that is now respected is the tomato. In Colonial days

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Stylings Merge in a Happy Blend

By Stella George

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Day, 3730 Country Club Drive, is distinctive for many reasons, not the least of which is the fact that it features an Early American decor with subtle blendings of other periods.

A unique decoration in the entry hall is a small black coal stove where warm, red artificial embers cast a rosy glow of welcome. A used brick fireplace is in the center of the right wall. Large windows on either side are draped in ruffled white. A low coffee table is directly in front of the fireplace, surrounded with large pillows. In one corner is a plaid chair and hassock with a tiled end table on one side and a tiny, marble-topped milk stool on the other. Lamps are milk glass.

IN ANOTHER corner of the room twin French Provincial chairs are upholstered in avocado quilted silk. The handsome lamp on the table between the chairs is fashioned to look like an antique oil lamp, with a wick inside the green glass. Beside the comfortable wing-back chair near one of the windows is a low carved chest. In the opposite corner are a small sofa and a rocking chair. Furnishings are in impeccable taste and, since the room is extra large and furniture kept at a minimum, the feeling of spaciousness is greater than ever. Mrs. Day did her own decorating.

As in most homes, the family room is the most used room in the house. At one end is a walk-in bar surrounded by four large stools. Nearby is a maple drop-leaf table and two chairs. At the other end of the room a curved sofa faces a built-in unit across the way. The latter is tailored to accommodate the TV, books, and knickknacks picked up from all over the world.

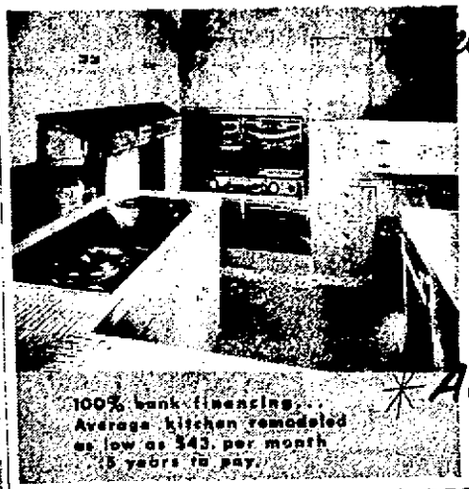

A LEATHER CHAIR and small occasional chair are on either side of the sofa with a round coffee table accessible to all three. A marbled corner table behind the sofa serves as a lamp table. The floor tile has inlaid squares of large playing cards, appropriate and interesting for this type of room. A small desk and chair are near the windows. A swordsman from England is on the wall above. Shelves, holding more treasured knickknacks, line the large windows which face the garden.

The sunny yellow kitchen is modern with every fine appliance. There is a dining area at one end and the front windows face the street. The bedroom wing is at the other end of the home.

The garden has a delightful country atmosphere. Just outside the door in the family room which leads to the patio and garden is a tomato vine which has climbed to more than six feet in height. Full grown trees shade the ping pong table. Shrubs and plants flourish in abundance.

TV and records are handy in this convivial corner of the family room. A novel idea is seen in the playing cards design set into the floor tile.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Cholesterol No Sure Test

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

YOUR cholesterol level in the blood is no sure-fire diagnostic test, a new study indicates.

Researchers at Baylor University's medical school found that 8 of 10 patients suffering from hardening of the arteries had cholesterol levels within normal range.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance occurring naturally in the body. Some physicians think that excessive levels of cholesterol in the blood may lead to heart attack or stroke as a result of contributing to thickening of the arteries.

MANY OF the pneumonias in children and young adults are caused by a micro-organism known as Mycoplasma pneumoniae, a government scientist reports.

The organism caused pneumonia in about 3% to 10% of persons infected by it, says Dr. Robert M. Chanock of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. However, many persons harbor the organism without experiencing symptoms.

Tetracycline antibiotics are effective against the organism.

MEN WHOSE JOBS require little physical activity develop fewer cancers, a 15-year study of 60,000 workers discloses.

On the other hand, these same men—managers and clerks—have a high rate of death from coronary heart disease.

The finding is that of Dr. P. G. M. Schram of the occupational health department of the Dutch Postal and Telecommunications Service. The report is in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for doctors.

MEN, ARE YOU troubled with heartburn? Have a doctor check it out, of course, but don't panic.

It may be only your belt, notes Dr. G. H. Jennings in the British Medical Journal.

Examination of elderly men complaining of heartburn often discloses nothing significant except "a pink zonal indentation around the upper abdomen, due to tight trousers or the wearing of a belt."

If this is the case, try suspenders, suggests Dr. Jennings.

BIRTH CONTROL pills can sometimes cause liver damage, University of Helsinki researchers report in the British Medical Journal.

Seven women who already had undergone the menopause were given the drugs for 28 days. In every patient the drugs "provoked liver injury," the researchers found.

The doctors now think the effect of the drugs on the livers of younger women should be studied in detail.

BOYS—at least in Argentina—have a faster daily hair growth than do girls, researchers there report.

A new study described in the Journal of Investigative Dermatology also discloses that boys aged 3 to 9 years have thicker scalp hair than girls of the same ages.

Reptile Shoes a Hit for Autumn

FEET FIRST into fall comes the elegant new pretender to the fashion footwear throne, Congo Crocco. And just in time to show itself off proudly in the wildest season for reptile shoes and boots in many a moon. Congo Crocco is a soft, supple leather embossed to resemble the real thing so cleverly that only a real crocodile would know for sure. Fits into a budget so beautifully you might very well walk away with a style for every occasion, and a color to match your mood.

Fleming Joffe, one of America's most creative leather tanners, has developed Congro Crocco exclusively for the shoes shown here in these latest fashion plates from Brown Shoe Company.

The easy life calls for pants . . . and pants mean boots, to complete the picture. A great way to carry off the long leggy look is with Miss America bootshoes, the slip-on variety that just meet the cuffs of slim tailored, sharply creased pants.

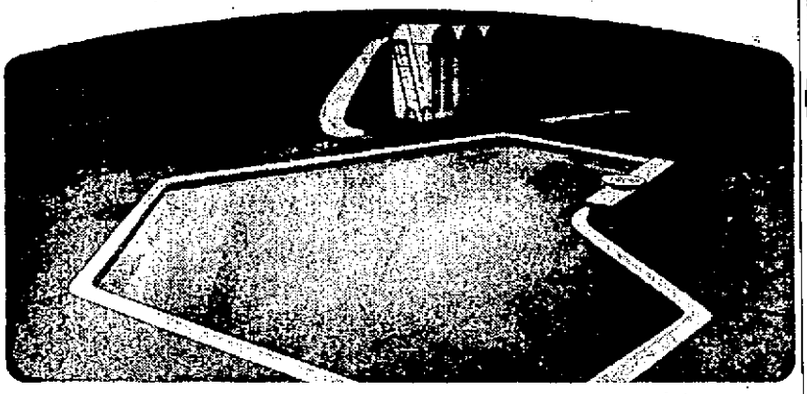

The plush touch for skirts that move, move, move can be found in gleaming black Congo Crocco Naturalizer pumps—especially attractive with the latest hand-finished maple heels.

The walking shoe? Air Step and Congo Crocco make an exciting combination. Lots of crocodile-y touches in a traditional walking shoe to go with gently shaped daytime fashions.

Another great daytime look combines school girl appeal with smashing sophistication. Softly tailored skirts or shifts that bare the knee accent the active, casual life. They should be worn with brilliant colored textured stockings. The logical shoe? Congo Crocco slip-ons by Life Stride to finish it off with a flair.

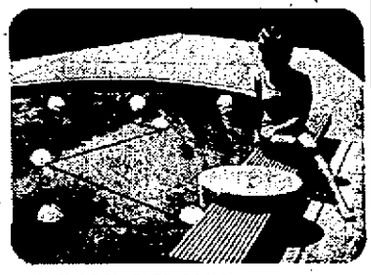

Young and breezy is the feeling when you wear a simply styled Congo Crocco flat. Risque has them in many hues and colors—made to match with fall's newest fabrics.

Of course, the grade school set goes for Congo Crocco. Buster Brown's T-straps in Congo Crocco get A-plus for fashion.

Quick and Easy Cherry Dessert

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Cheery Cherry Crisp simplifies preparation of desert. Serve with a rich dairy topping.

WE DOUBT if there is in existence a simple recipe for making a dessert as good as this Cheery Cherry Crisp. Excellent when served warm or cold and "as is" . . . it is especially designed (and exceptionally good) to be served warm topped with whipped cream, dairy sour cream or softened vanilla ice cream.

Recipe makes 8 to 12 servserved as a snack or as a regular dessert.

Cheery Cherry Crisp

2 cans pitted sour pie cherries
½ cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1 package yellow cake mix (standard size)

Pour cherries and juice into 9x13-inch pan. Cut butter into dry cake mix with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles corn meal. Sprinkle evenly over cherries. Bake in moderate, 375 degree, oven 30-35 minutes or until top is crisp and lightly browned. Serve warm topped with vanilla ice cream, whipped cream or dairy sour cream.

Topping Note: Whipped cream may be flavored with almond extract if desired. Children seem to like ice cream best on this, and the adults who have tasted it liked the dairy sour cream.

Wine, Anyone?

America is becoming wine-conscious. And it's no joke that Fred Beck—gourmet, wine taster and pixie—is doing more than a little to bring this about.

Consider "The Fred Beck Wine Book" (Hill & Wang, $4.95) a happy book just out, in which he presents not only the basic facts on wine, but also fascinations dear to tender, wine-loving hearts.

Not only does Beck reveal the secrets of a wine judge, but gives the reader a descriptive trip through dozens of California wineries and what to look for in each. And he lays his Mark Twain touch upon California vintages, the "storied wines of France," of lordly price, the wines of Germany, "the happy wines of Italy," "the noble wines of Spain," and lush and mellow wines of Portugal. No wine buff would swap his book for the most expensive magnum of champagne!

Recipe of the Week

WHEN IT'S TEATIME for Mrs. Frances J. Lenden, Box 1191, Oakland 4, Calif., she has a recipe that she prizes, and this recipe wins the $5 prize as best of the week. Here it is:

Delectabites for Tea

½ cup shortning, part butter
¾ cup light brown sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg
1 cup all purpose flour, sifted before measuring
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
2 cups puffed rice
½ cup chopped pecans

Mix the shortening and sugar until light and fluffy then add flavoring and the egg and beat thoroughly. Sift the dry ingredients together three times and stir into the egg mixture. Fold in the puffed rice and nuts. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet, flattening each with a fork. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 minutes.

If you prefer crisp cookies, let cool on cookie sheet, otherwise lift out carefully while still hot and let cool on heavy paper. Makes 2½ dozen.

A She or a He, Ship's a Ship

By Lou Jobst

THERE is no more pithy question than: Why is a boat a she and not a he?

People have been pondering the point almost from the moment the first man climbed aboard a floating log and paddled away from the bank.

And like most great unresolved issues there are nearly as many different views as there are viewers which is exactly what the American Merchant Marine Institute learned when it tossed the question to the public some time back.

THE ARGUMENTS ranged from the ridiculous to the erudite and included both punning and punditry.

A ship is a miss, claimed those with a salty command of the King's English, because it (opps) she is dressed like a lady. The feminine garb school points out that a vessel wears stays (ropes), jewels (small blocks), combings (hatch edges), laces (riggings, short section of sail rope called earrings), and bonnets (engine and boat covers).

The ship also has a waist (amidships) and is the center of much bustle in port where her agent is called a husband.

ONE SAILOR wrote that a ship has to be a she because once in port the "first thing she does is head for the buoys."

Nonsense, amended a scholar, who claims the secret is psychological, asserting that in ancient times sea voyages took men away from home for years and that the sailor saw in his ship the representation of those things longed for—female love, female security and warmth.

A less profound, but seemingly practical syllogism, from Texas, held:

"First there is always a gang of men around her and second it takes a lot of paint to make her look good and third (and probably most convincing) she's cranky, unpredictable and hard to get along with."

The literary-inclined argue both the Bible and Shakespeare support the "she" view.

WROTE THE BARD in "Winter's Tale" ". . . now the ship boring the moon with her mainmast" and the third verse of Acts VVI states "and sailed into Syria and landed at Tyre, for there the ship was to unlade her burden."

There is substantial factual evidence to support claims that woman usurped man at sea.

Ship, they argue, is a masculine noun in Italian, Spanish, French and Portuguese and is neuter in Germanic tongues.

Ships are called merchantmen, men-of-war and Indiamen.

Phoenicians, purportedly the first civilized sailors, put to sea in vessels carrying figureheads of male animals, not maidens.

There are countless written works referring to ships as He.

But the best argument—and a purely personal waterfront observation — is that sailors are prone to use language aboard fit for no lady's ears.

Deadly Lady

called love apples, they were believed to be poisonous. About 1825, an Italian painter, Michele Corne arrived in Newport, R.I. The house where he lived bears a marker commemorating his tomato as an edible fruit.

The drug belladonna is obtained from dried leaves. The leaves and roots of the plant contain 0.3 to 0.4% of the drug. It is used in the relief of coughs, excessive perspiration, to dilate the pupil of the eye, and externally to relieve pain. In small doses it relaxes the spasms in nervous stomachs. The maximum dose is 3 grains. The antidote is to wash out the stomach with 5% tannic acid solution.

At dusk datura lilies scent the air attracting hummingbirds and large moths. Whether, like henbane, datura is deadly to fowls, or whether hummingbirds enjoy dreaming of wild flights through the night, only the birds themselves know.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Study by Copying

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Our son brought home a passage from a famous book and said his teacher had instructed him to copy the passage several times and notice the style and punctuation of the writer. Wouldn't this sort of copying tend to rob a youngster of his individuality?"

ANSWER: Learning by examining and imitating a good model is approved procedure—especially in the field of the arts. In this way the student learns how the most competent persons in his field do their work.

He obtains certain fundamental principles, but since he is a unique human being, he could not be a carbon copy of his model even if he wished to be. In time he develops his own style, reflecting his own thoughts and personality.

Just make sure his model is the very best available.

QUESTION: Is a teacher just a transmitter of knowledge?

ANSWER: A good teacher is much more than that. He transmits knowledge, but he also translates and amplifies it. He shows the practical application of knowledge—how it can be used by the student in his daily life.

To use a simple example, the first grade teacher does not merely say: "This is a piece of chalk." She says: "This is a piece of chalk. Here's what we do with chalk." And then she demonstrates.

QUESTION: Should the teacher be the servant—or the master—of the student?

ANSWER: The word "servant" is inappropriate, and so is the word "master," for it conveys the idea of complete domination.

A teacher should not use the student as a sounding board for his own pet views, or provide help only on his own rigid terms. Rather, he should make himself available to the student as a guide, an answerer of questions, a helper.

This does not mean there should ever by any doubt as to who is in charge of classroom discipline. It does mean that the student should feel that the classroom exists as a friendly, helpful place created for his benefit—rather than as a place for the teacher to earn a living in the dual role of baby sitter and undisputed authority.

Camera Filters

Camera filters, like lenses should be handled and stored with care to keep them free of dust, fingerprints, and scratches. A dirty or scratched filter will only degrade the image-making quality of any lens with which it is used. A camel's hair brush is a good tool to use for removing dust and other foreign matter from filter surfaces; lens tissue should be used to get rid of finger smudges or other "unbrushable" blemishes.

Always brush first to avoid grinding solid particles into the glass; use the lens tissue with a gentle wiping motion, breathing on the surface being cleaned if needed to help loosen stubborn smears.

How to Hide a Railroad

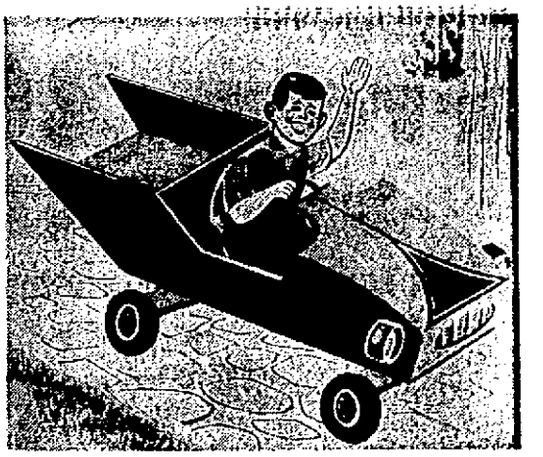

By Steve Ellingson

HERE'S a way to steal a little space along one side of a room and hide a whole railroad line in it. Or —if your boy (or his Dad) have taken up that newest indoor sport, slot racing, this hide-away table is exactly right for them. Slot racing, in case you haven't heard, is the newest fad among fathers and sons. It differs from railroading, in that small electric racing cars are used. The speed of each car is controlled by each participant and follows a small slot, or groove, in the floor of the shelf. Since each person can control the speed of his car, the races call for skill and get to be real exciting.

The fold-down train or slot racing table (see illustration) is eight feet long and four feet wide. It may be made longer in the event you have more wall space available. The handy part is, once you're through playing, the shelf may be folded up against the wall where it's out of the way. It protrudes only a few inches when folded and the peg-board face may be decorated to make it add to the appearance of your room. Many folks place these tables in their garage.

THERE ARE many other uses for a folding shelf such as this, for example, it's handy for mother when she lays out her sewing. Then too, there are many hobbies that call for a large work table and of course daughter will like it for her doll house and furniture.

TO ORDER, specify Train Table Pattern No. 362 and send $1 in currency, check or money order with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2382, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Every boy should experience the fun and excitement of having a push race car like this.

Home-Built Racer

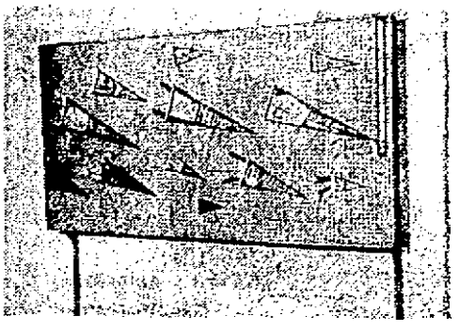

By Bill Meyerriecks

MORE than likely Dad made a home-built racer when he was around 9 or 10. It was the rage then, and still is one of the most satisfying and fun play projects around. The idea of playing grown up, of racing in the Indianapolis trials, of being a racing car driver is part of the fun of growing up.

Sketchbook this week presents a sleek design plan, S-182, for both Dad and his son to get together and build. And the son can do a great deal of the construction outside of handling the power or hand saw in cutting out the body parts. He can help assemble, paint and add the finishing touches.

The Sketchbook plan showing how the racer is made gives all parts and lumber lists. The cost of making the racer is moderate. One sheet of half-inch plywood plus a 16-inch width of ¾-inch plywood some four feet long are the lumber essentials. The wheel kit (which is detailed in the plan) is the only other major expense. Or if you are clever at adapting wheels from another toy around the home, you can use these and cut your costs considerably.

To obtain Sketchbook Plan S-182, send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Intrigues of World War I

By VERA WILLIAMS
Scripps Magazine Book Editor

WITH THE Civil War thoroughly covered in the flood of books that marked its centennial, attention now focuses on World War I.

In the forefront of the books about this conflict of a half-century ago comes "THE AMERICAN HERITAGE HISTORY OF WORLD WAR I" by Brig. Gen. S. L. A. (Slam) Marshall (USAR Ret.), veteran of both World Wars, described by Carl Sandburg as "the greatest writer on modern war."

Gen. Marshall's widely acclaimed previous books are "Blitzkrieg," "Armies on Wheels," "The River and the Gauntlet," "Island Victory," "Night Drop" and "Battle at Best." This is his first book about World War I, and is produced by the Book Division of American Heritage Publishing Co., distributed by Simon and Schuster. ($12.95 and deluxe, $15.45. After Christmas, the prices will be $16.50 and $19.)

"American Heritage History of World War I" tells the history of the war from Sarajevo to Versailles. It starts with an explanation of the tangled European alliances that made a small war impossible and a major war inevitable. In the course of his 150,000 word narrative, the soldier-author traces the step-by-slow-step progress of the bloody conflict against the background of international power plays, home front politics and high command rivalries.

The first one-volume history of the war to make full use of the legacy of art and color, the volume contains more than 300 pictures, many never before published. The collection includes photographs, paintings, drawings and posters gathered from 40 museums and archives in nine countries.

AN ADVENTURE of epic proportions in the history of the American West is recreated by Wallace Stegner in "THE GATHERING OF ZION" (McGraw-Hill, $7.95), the story of the great Mormon trek from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to Salt Lake City, Utah. The migration, which began after Joseph Smith, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and his brother Hyrum were shot to death by a mob in 1844, ended in 1869 in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake when the golden spike was driven, joining the Union Pacific and Central railways at Promontory, Utah.

Traveling the trail, the Mormons endured harrowing experiences: religious prejudice, murders, battles and Indian raids are seen against the background of unbelievable hardships that nature itself imposed on the Mormon emigrants.

The author, professor of English at Stanford University, is a non-Mormon fascinated with Western history.

TWO OLD FRIENDS, who happen to be two of the most important living American writers, chatted informally with wit and wisdom on a variety of subjects. They talked about the nature of poetry, art, love, friendship, integrity, God, and realization of self, how a man must live, the role of the American dream, freedom, the lives of great men.

The result: THE DIALOGUES OF ARCHIBALD MACLEISH AND MARK VAN DOREN" (Dutton, $5.95.)

"SPACE is the only defense against nuclear energy, and we have about run out of space on earth . . . If man is wise, the last war has been fought."

Thus Foster Hailey and Milton Lancelot conclude their photographic story of modern naval combat, 1898-1964, titled "CLEAR FOR ACTION" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $12.50.)

In more than 400 photographs as well as in maps, charts, logs and diagrams, the dramatic story of great warships unrolls, beginning with Manila Bay and climaxing at the Battle of Leyte, which the authors believe was the last major naval conflict the world will see. From now on, they think, the power of nations will be decided not on the surface of the sea but in the green waters below and the blue sky above.

QUEEN BERENICE ruled at Jerusalem when Hebrew monarchs sat on the throne only by the grace of Rome. Yet such was the personality of the heroine of Howard Fast's novel "AGRIPPA'S DAUGHTER" (Doubleday $4.95) that she commanded awe and respect. Red of hair, green of eyes, strong of will, Berenice tried to save what was still left of Hebrew sovereignty from the Roman representatives—men of greed and cruelty.

Fast's novel tells of the feuding between the Jewish factions, the Romans' best ally, through which the Jews accomplished their own destruction. It is a splendid portrait, in fictional form but solidly grounded on history, of a beautiful and great queen, who faced odds and forces beyond even a great queen's ability to control.

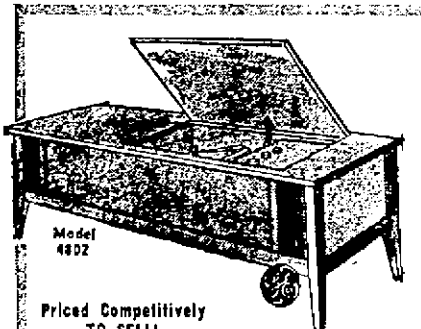

"GOODBYE, KATE" by Billy C. Clark (Putnam, $4.50) is the hilarious tale of a thinking mule, who was bond of book learning—especially American history—and the boy she adopted. The mule was Old Kate, as weathered as the Kentucky hills she roamed, and the boy was Isaac, who met her one summer day and never was quite the same again.

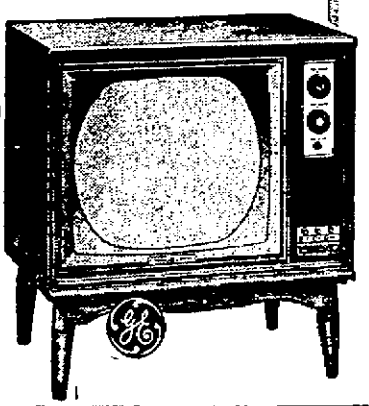

"KIT CARSON," a new biography by Noel Gerson, tells the legend and history of the famous Indian scout and frontiersman (Doubleday, $4.95).

Keeping Cats Fit

By Eleanor Avery Price

CATS are lots of fun, but they deserve more than just a chance to play. They need the best care that can be provided to keep them happy and keep down veterinarian bills.

Many cats seem to be troubled with sluggish colons. To help prevent this, buy an oily type of fish such as plain sardines and add a teaspoon of mineral oil. Mix well, and feed a fresh mixture about once a week. If the cat already seems to have an impaction, offer this mixture twice a week. Other ways to try to help are putting a blob of vaseline on the cat's paw for him to lick off, or even butter. Give Brewers yeast, plenty of bulky foods and lots of liquid. If these do not help, waste no more time but get the cat to a veterinarian. Your cat may need surgical removal of impacted stool or even a foreign object.

ON THE OTHER hand, some cats have just the opposite of a sluggish colon. Temporary diarrhea can usually be checked with milk of bismuth or Kaopectate, a good tablespoonful for a grown cat, less for smaller cats. Repeat about every three hours. Withhold milk, too. Some cats just cannot tolerate dairy products even if they enjoy the taste. (This is true of dogs, too. Of the many dogs, I've owned just one that could digest milk.)

Bloody diarrhea could mean a serious disease such as coccidiosis which is easily transmitted to other cats. Looseness could also indicate worms. And at all times a very malodorous stool indicates trouble. If you cannot quickly get the cat back to normal, by all means take him to a veterinarian. The cat may have swallowed a foreign object or have something else seriously wrong.

CATS SELDOM develop cavities in their teeth, but they do have trouble with formation of tartar which can cause inflammation and injury to the gums and eventually loosen the teeth. A veterinarian can scale the teeth.

Cats, and especially indoor ones, need attention to their claws. You can trim them yourself if your cat is the placid type, but you may end up having a veterinarian accomplishing this for you. Here is a way I have used for years. Put the cat in a small home-made box just barely large enough to accommodate him. In fact, when the lid is down, the cat should not be able to move. The floor of the box should be of wire just large enough for the cat to stick his claws through. Now stand the box up on end. The cat is powerless to do other than hang on through the wires, and you can trim his nails without a struggle. I believe this method has been employed on zoo cats.

OF INTEREST to cat lovers is Arrowhead Cat Fanciers show today at Hemet Fairgrounds, Palm and Florida Avenues, Hemet.

PACIFIC Cat Fanciers have a show Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 at Portuguese Hall, Artesia. Entries close Tuesday for German Shepherd Dog Club of Southern California specialty match Nov. 8 at Orcutt Park, Topanga Canyon and Roscoe Street, Canoga Park.

RIVERSIDE Kennel Club has a show and trial Nov. 1 at Hemet Fairgrounds. Nov. 22, Del Sur Kennel Club event in El Cajon; for details contact Jack Bradshaw, 727 Venice Blvd., Los Angeles 15.

PEKIN Pekingese Club holds its fall match today at Bellis Park, 8th and Knott, Buena Park. Entries are taken until 1 p.m. for classes under two months and up. Pat Miller of Mar-Pat Pekingese from Gardena will judge.

Highlanders Dog Club has a practice match today at Highland Park Playground, Ave. 61 and North Figueroa St., L. A. Entries taken until noon.

Remember today is the end of daylight savings time.

Time to Adjust

Plants, like people, enjoy life better if given time to adjust to new environment, particularly to sudden switches from tropical humidity to northern climates.

If your new foliage plants are given proper "climate conditioning" by local professional growers, they will thrive more readily in northern climates.

Foliage or "green" plants are grown in tropical areas, and shipped north in "bulk," or in thin-walled, non-porous containers subject to wider temperature and moisture variations. They should be transplanted to porous clay pots and given a period of adjustment under professional growers' supervision for more successful growth in cooler northern climates.

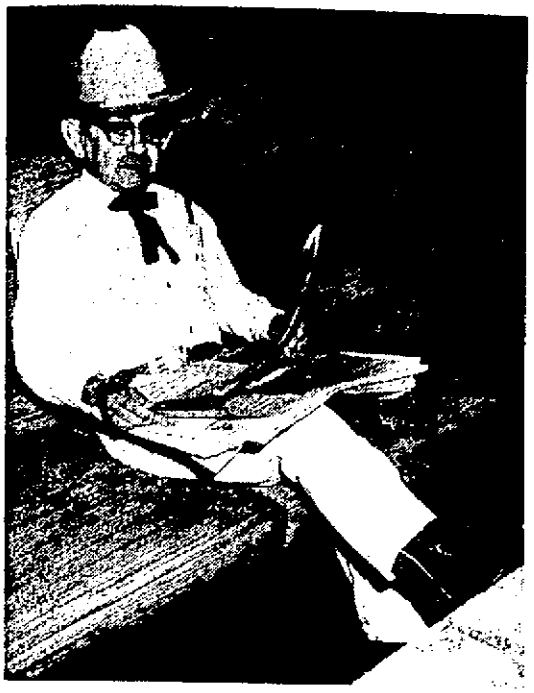

Willie Winkie is a black Persian owned by Dorothy Bond of Long Beach. Fine cats like this are shown today at Hemet Fairgrounds.

'One of the Little People'

Electronics specialist Roger Brown leads a busy life, his small size no major handicap.

By Helen Bottel

ROGER (Brownie) Brown is college trained in electronics. He has a responsible position with Douglas Aircraft, Santa Monica, and he enjoys his work. His employers regard him highly. He has friends by the score and "no enemies I can think of." He comes home to a charming wife and six children—ages 4 to 19—who think "Pop is tops."

Summed up, Roger Brown might qualify as a fairly typical "Mr. Model Suburbia."

. . . Except for one thing: he can stand upright in a compact car without once denting his five-gallon hat. He weighs 65 pounds, stretches to 48 inches in cowboy boots, and buys his favorite western style clothes in "boys wear" where a size 10 gives him a perfect fit.

Brownie (and everyone calls him that) is what the world terms a midget. He prefers to describe himself as "one of the little people."

NO ONE KNOWS why nature turned out this well-proportioned man in miniature—he was born 50 years ago of standard-sized parents. But it's certain heredity played its part and still does:

"Three of our children will be 'little,'" he predicts. "The other three take after my wife. She's five-foot-two."

Does the lack of stature create problems?

Not in the least. "It's all on the plus side," Brownie maintains.

"I can flirt with the ladies and no one gets mad, not even husbands."

"I get special treatment in restaurants—in fact wherever I go, and I'm on the go a lot, in my work."

"I find friends everywhere because" (this with a cheerful grin) "somehow I'm noticed, and I return the notice with a smile and a compliment."

"All the kids know me," he adds, waving at one who shouted his name from across the street. (And like him, too—he's an adult who meets them at their own level and this level has scarcely anything to do with size.)

AS AN INSPECTOR in the Quality Control Division at Douglas, Brown is headquartered at Santa Monica, but trouble-shoots all over the world.

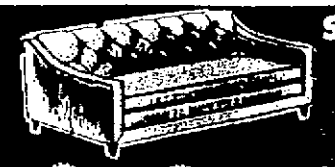

Only one question ruffles Brownie's normally even disposition. It is thrown at him all too often and goes, "Does the aircraft company keep you on to get into little places and fix things in engines, like I read about once?" This is somewhat like asking a six-foot-five college graduate if the firm employs him to dust high filing cabinets.

Brownie has never "lived by his size," though he could well fit the paraphrased song title, "Little Man, You've Had a Busy Life." He put himself through Oklahoma University with money earned in circus and county fair routines, but it was ability that got him the spotlight.

He has been a trick rider, a sharpshooter, a precision knife thrower with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey. For a time he dived 75 feet into an eight-foot tank of water. ("But I quit because it gave me a headache.") He has played the rodeo circuit. He has managed stage productions. He even dealt blackjack at Reno and Las Vegas. For the past 17 years he has been with various aircraft companies in the Southwest.

SHOW BUSINESS led Brownie to his wife. She was new at the circus—the Australian whip cracker with pretty face and friendly smile. His specialty at the time was knife throwing. Each needed a target, someone with steady nerves and a large amount of trust. They teamed up and were immediate hits.

Though the act disbanded when Brownie went into World War II defense work, the team and the trust continued. After 25 years of marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown would still face knives and whips for each other—even though they haven't tried lately.

Begging Is Big Business

By Frank L. Remington

AN UNSHAVEN, pitiful-looking little man stood at a busy Pittsburgh street corner. Carefully he eyed two men, then approached them. "Could either of you guys spare two bits?" he ventured.

The two men exchanged glances. "We're police officers," one of them announced. "You can't beg on the street."

The officers trundled the little man off to jail. When he was booked they found packets of currency adding up to $8,389 on his person.

In Los Angeles, authorities found that Juan Diaz, 26-year-old legless beggar, had been leading a double life. By day he solicited money in the streets; by night he slipped on a pair of artificial legs, drove his custom-built Cadillac and escorted well-groomed young ladies to expensive night clubs. Upon investigation, local officials discovered Diaz had amassed a fortune of $30,000.

The old Mother Goose jingle, "Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, The beggars are coming to town . . ." is just as appropriate now as in days gone by. From Los Angeles to Boston, from Seattle to Miami, every city, town and hamlet has its share of panhandlers and alms-seekers.

MEMBERS of this strange breed of human beings deliberately exploit sympathy for profit. Since time immemorial men have felt responsible for a fellow human in need. So year after year these mendicants live a debasing, parasitic existence, receiving a livelihood through the generous gratuities of others.

It is quite possible that many of these perennial moochers make more money than you and I will ever make. In New York, an aged, frail and bedraggled beggar possessed so much money that Magistrate Anthony F. Burke fined him $25 and announced that if he had the beggar's $25,917 in savings accounts he would "be down in Palm Beach."

How truthful is the beggar's hard luck story? Will he starve or sleep on a park bench if you don't heed his plea for money? The answer is an unequivocal no. Furthermore, the person who gives actually retards the work of organized charity to which we collectively contribute around $8 billion each year.

Like most other practitioners of his "profession," George Patterson, a 40-year-old professional spunger, regards his benefactors as dupes. "I respect the people who don't come through when I put the bite on them," Patterson says. "No one has to do this sort of thing. There are plenty of agencies to care for really handicapped cases. Without so many softhearted people I'd be out of business. I'm grateful to those who give me money, but they're chumps."

WHAT TYPE OF person takes up begging? Obviously the professional either can not or will not adjust to social and economic reality. He escapes by abandoning the norms of behavior such as pride, duty, and acceptance by society.

Essentially the beggar is a psychological case, for no healthy, self-respecting person would voluntarily submit to such a debasing way of life. As one psychologist puts it: "He is not begging because he needs help, but he needs help because he is begging."

Estimates as to the actual number of beggars in the United States range from about a half to three-quarters of a million. Of course, not all of these pursue the "profession" on a full-time basis. Many vagrants, hobos and bums work for limited periods and beg intermittently.

There is a wide range of practicing mooch artists, from the well-dressed, able-bodied panhandler who is usually a fast talker and consummate actor to the undisguised beggar in tattered clothes with his tin cup. The upper crust of the panhandlers's fraternity dresses and acts like a respectable businessman.

NOT LONG AGO a neatly dressed, middle-aged man stopped a Los Angeles clergyman who was about to enter the study of his church. The caller greeted him by his nickname and identified himself as a newcomer to the city. He said he had known the minister in a former pastorate, although the clergyman could not place the man.

After a casual conversation, the caller revealed he would not receive his first paycheck until the following week. His children had needed expensive medicine and now had no food, and he had not been in town long enough to establish credit. Would the minister advance him $25?

The minister did not advance the money, but told the man to go on to work and promised to take food to the children. A drive to the false address proved the caller to be an imposter.

Another type of touch artist is the operator who specializes in exploiting membership in religious and fraternal orders or labor and trade groups. Of course he rarely belongs to the group but does possess a union card or displays the pin or insignia of a fraternal order. These make an effective appeal, for the victims believe they are assisting a brother member or fellow workman.

THE USUAL panhandler generally relies on a hard luck story, which he sticks to as long as it works. The typical story is that he just got out of the hospital after being a victim of some disaster which has figured prominently in the news. Some may limp or have their arms in slings as the result of a current fire or major accident. Hundreds of others just recovered from pneumonia or influenza.

Usually this type of "gimme guy's" take is not excessive because he knocks off "work" when he's raised enough money to drink himself into oblivion. And he's disdainful of anyone who proffers him anything but cash.

Many professional touch artists cloak their begging under the guise of salesmanship. They "sell" matches, pencils, shoe strings and other relatively valueless merchandise. A peddler's license purchased from the city keeps the beggar within the law and salves his conscience. Of course, the giver is not expected to take any of the merchandise when he drops a coin into the proferred cup. To do so he incurs the disdain of the beggar and brands himself as a cheapskate.

ONE PROMINENT and very effective type of begging involves an appeal to a prospective giver's sense of pity and patriotism. The chiz artist working this dodge poses as an ex-serviceman. Nintety-nine times out of a hundred he has never seen the inside of an induction center.

Usually this "ex-serviceman" peddles for 25 cents some trifling item that costs him about 25 cents per hundred or less. It is packaged in an envelope bearing an inscription like: "I don't want a handout from you. I'm selling these items to support myself. Help a wounded World War veteran help himself."

The full-time professional beggar usually works with a tin cup or hat in which to collect his coins. His most valued stock in trade is his ability to depict misery and misfortune to arouse sympathy. This type of mendicant usually "works" long hours and often maintains a residence, and sometimes supports a wife and family in comfort.

THE MOST familiar type is the apparent victim of some severe handicap, real or pretended. Many appear to be blind, crippled, deformed or minus one or both legs. He usually takes a position at a busy downtown spot and simply sits there, lifting his cup appealingly to passers-by. Or he may, if he's able, inch his way along crowded sidewalks, attracting attention to himself by singing or playing a battered violin, harmonica, accordion or some other musical instrument.

Beggars not naturally "blessed" with a physical handicap often disfigure their faces and arms with acid and put collodion in their eyes to make themselves "blindmen." Others make liberal use of crutches and bandages, or fake other physical handicaps and deformities. Invariably they wear tattered and patched clothing to depict poverty.

Ernst Klatt of Glendale used a false arm stump. Actually it was a padded sock and he did very well until a police officer became suspicious and squeezed where his arm normally would be. The arm was there!

The officer hauled him off to jail and the false arm was booked as evidence. Under questioning, the prisoner admitted he'd learned the false arm trick 50 years ago in Kansas City and had earned a living by it ever since.

THE WHOLE problem of begging and panhandling has become a social menace and a source of concern to the police and public. The chief thing you and I can do to help solve the problem is to stop encouraging mendicants. We can do this by not dropping coins in the beggar's tin cup and refusing to be taken in by the panhandler's tale of woe.

Camellias Spread the Flower Season

By Joe Littlefield

EARLIEST of the blooming japonica type camellias include Dai Kagura and Pink Perfection. There are several others. Gardeners need not be too concerned about cutting the flowers from camellias stems. Below the flower, on the stem an inch or several inches down there is a slight ring swelling that indicates a growth cycle. Cut the flower stem about two leaves above the swelling. This means the blossom will have a leaf or several leaves which adds a natural cut flower touch, instead of the leafless bloom.

There are three general growth shapes of camellias, as well as three seasons of blooming varieties.

Camellias have varying blooming seasons and thus spread the flower period. They can be cut with stems if cutting is done carefully.

AS TO SHAPES: Glen 40 is a compact upright, slow growing, mid-season to late bloomer; Debutante is a full peony form of pink color, an early to mid-season bloomer, upright to buxom growth; Gigantea has flowers of red with white marbling, very large to semi-double, anemone form to peony form, exceptionally vigorous open growth and a mid-season bloomer; Blood of China is a late season bloomer, compact growth, with large, semi-double to loose peony form, deep salmon red flowers.

Your local nurseryman will recommend shape and size of camellias as well as your choice of colors and season of bloom — October, December, or not before March. The three seasons of blooming camellias provides color from October possibly through April and often into May.

ONE OF THE MOST comprehensive books on camellias is "Camellia Nomenclature," published by The Southern California Camellia Society, Inc., and copyrighted 1964. It lists all varieties of camellias and describes them. Helpful information on culture of camellias is included. This book is a must for anyone interested in growing camellias. Another helpful book is Sunset's "How to Grow Camellias."

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . The stunningly colored garden lilies should be planted now for bloom in late spring and summer.

Plant calendula in sunny beds for bright winter color.

When your fuchsia finally is finished blooming, do not do any pruning. Just because the flowers are finished does not mean that it is time for clipping. Wait until next February for any pruning.

Many evergreens are best set out in fall. They benefit from the winter rains which will come later. Check with your local C. A. M. nurseryman for the types best suited for October planting.

The newer spreading lantanas, if planted now, will often bloom right through winter in California's milder regions.

Good Sign

The white frost you see on the sides of your red clay flower pots is a sign that harmful salts that might endanger plant health have been leached out through the porous walls of the clay pots. The frost can be scrubbed off in a few seconds to restore the natural terra cotta color of the container.

Dorothy Digs

PANSIES provide almost instant color. There are, however, a few precautions that should be taken.

Most important, pick out good, field-grown plants with a healthy green color and large blooms.

Prepare the bed by deep spading and mixing steer manure or other fertilizer (bone meal is very good) with the soil. If you have time, spray the ground thoroughly with a copper ether solution to eliminate the wire worms and other underground pests that kill many pansy plants each year.

If you have already planted your pansies and you find one or two dying from "pansy wilt" water them thoroughly and a few hours later disinfect the soil with a copper ether spray that will kill underground bugs that are eating the roots.

If no fertilizer was used at planting time, an all fish fertilizer applied once or twice a month will keep them blooming and healthy.

A Star Performer

GRACEFUL AND neat, Woodwardia fern will complement any area in which it is planted. Try it in a rock garden or with bright flowers. No matter what assignment it is given, Woodwardia is a star performer. It's available now at nurseries.

GARDEN CLUBS

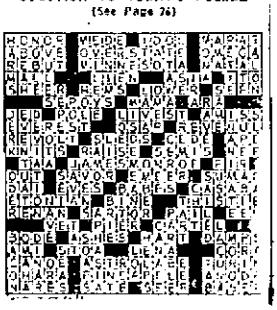

Judging of orchids will be the topic of Eugene Casey, an American Orchid Society Judge, at a meeting of South Coast Orchid Society at 8 p.m. Monday at Silverado Park Clubhouse, 31st Street and Santa Fe Avenue, Long Beach. The public is invited.

"A Rose For You," a sound color film, will highlight the meeting of the Orange County Rose Society at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Iva Meairs (formerly Sun Garden) School Cafetorium, Trask and Newland Streets, Garden Grove.

Thomas Basick, second vice president and membership chairman, will take charge of the program and door prizes during the attendance of George F. Roy, 1st vice president and program chairman, at the 65th annual National Rose Convention and Rose Show at Phoenix, Ariz.

A ways and means table and refreshments will complete the evening. The public is invited to all meetings which are held the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area.

What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANULL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANULL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itch-irritation is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANULL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANULL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANULL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANULL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANULL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANULL in your pharmacy.

Anull®

Baylor, West

29.6, and since coming to L.A., in succession, 34.8, 38.2, 34.0 and 25.5. West, jumpy and unsure in his first season, averaged 17.6 but then shot to seasonal averages of 30.8, 26.6 and 28.7.

Additionally the combine has been one-two in assists every year they have performed together and that concludes that, although potent scorers, they are not selfish in that respect.

BAYLOR, former all-American from Seattle University, has been voted all-pro and has been on the all-star team each of his eight years in the league. West, who missed out in his rookie season, has been named for both laurels the past three seasons. Only Bill Russel and Bob Cousy of the Boston Celtics can boast such credentials.

The Lakers finished second in the Western Division in the first year of the westward move. They finished first the next two seasons, losing to perennial champion Boston by narrow margins in the playoff finals, then last season finished third.

That third-place finish is what spotlights Baylor and West even more. The Lakers haven't had a big center the likes of Russell or Wilt Chamberlain of the San Francisco Warriors for years, thus the burden of defense, scoring and rebounding has been on these two players. But last season both were hobbled by ailments of various sorts.

WEST missed eight games with a broken thumb. During that span the Lakers won one game. Baylor was plagued throughout the entire 80-game schedule with calcium deposits above both knees. When Elgin was scoring 71, 68 and 64 points a night he was a whirling dervish, defying anyone or any group to guard him. Thus, on gimpy legs, he was unable to do so last season, nor could he rebound as well.

Some people, including many among the 20% of the gate who attend the games from Long Beach were about ready to write off Baylor after last season (with his mere 25.5 average) but, even at 29 he now appears about as sound as ever. And West, who was counted out in a major magazine article while in his second year as being too brittle for the NBA wars, is just beginning to warm up at the age of 26.

So it appears that one-two punch might be around for some time under the guiding reins and influence of coach Fred Schaus, 39, who helped West to all-America stature while coaching the Cabin Creek kid at the University of West Virginia.

Khrushchev and His Unholy Fears

then slipped atomic dust into his food, or bribed some sympathizer into doing that, British agents have thus far been unable to determine conclusively. They're sure of this, however: that the radioactive dust brought slow and gruesome death to the ex-Russian master spy.

His hair and teeth fell out. Then he lost his eyesight and hearing. Next, layers of his skin peeled off. By that time, atomic poisoning had so corroded and eaten away the vital tissues of his body that he could no longer walk or take nourishment.

He died without throwing any light on his mysterious and terrifying death—except to remark cryptically: "You know who did this to me!"

Another atomic dust poisoning occurred in West Berlin recently, one similar to the grisly fate which befell the Russian defector in England. It likewise involved a one-time Russian espionage agent who, after much soul-searching, defected to the West.

AS FOR Khrushchev's wandering: in one known instance on his visit to America a Soviet security agent checked his food with a Geiger counter. Until his downfall, British intelligence agents in Europe testify, his Geiger counter "minute men" played a vital, skittish, and unrelenting role in protecting him from atomic dust particles that, they fear, may be slipped into his food or drink by (1) "an embittered Red Chinese provocateur" or (2) "an agent of the imperialist West."

Just recently, for example, Mr. K made a Japanese delegation in Moscow shiver with this announcement: "This monstrous new terrible weapon Soviet secret military research has developed is a means of the destruction and extermination of humanity." (Most experts surmise that he was referring to the cobalt bomb—a weapon which could, the late professor Albert Einstein predicted, wipe out all human life on our globe.)

Before Mr. K made his "bomb-rattling" boast, however, Geiger counter security agents gave the food prepared for him a thorough going over. They did so quietly, behind-the-scenes—that being the first known instance (to British intelligence) that such a precautionary step was taken on "home grounds," or in Moscow.

In short, with his own secret agents using atomic dust to do away with defectors, the Russian dictator evidently felt that the same kind of horrible death could conceivably, overtake him.

To paraphrase William Shakespeare: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a dictator's crown!"

GOURMET'S GUIDE by Todd Thorney

Southland Dining at Its Finest in the Long Beach and Orange County Area

"YOU SAY she's the mother of six children? Well, I can't believe it!"

Comments like those are often heard these evenings at Jack's Corsican Room, 5430 E. Second St., where lovely Phyllis Webster is the new hostess and co-owner. Phyllis, who has the voice of an angel and the beauty of a magazine cover girl, is so attractive that many of the restaurant's guests are astonished when they discover that her half dozen children range in age from 11 to 19.

Phyllis, who is 5 feet 6 and has auburn hair, is the wife of John T. Webster, president of Long Beach District, Board of Realtors, who recently purchased the restaurant, one of the best in town. The Websters were married in January 1963 following a romance which began—of all places—at Jack's Corsican Room. Phyllis and John met at the restaurant five years ago when they were introduced by a friend, Mrs. Kathy Bughee.

THEY MADE so many friendships at the restaurant and found it such a stimulating place that they were delighted to buy it from Jack and Rose Bass when the opportunity came along last summer. Phyllis, who was reared in Long Beach and attended school here, has long been one of the restaurant's singing personalities, her fine warm soprano joining top professional voices in concerts accompanied by the Corsican's gifted pianist-composer, Franz Steininger.

The Websters have added to the Corsican's growing popularity by maintaining its superb cuisine, with the emphasis on prime rib au jus ($4.50), which is so tender and flavorful that guests regularly drive from Los Angeles, Pasadena and Santa Ana in order to enjoy it. Other outstanding featured dishes are Australian lobster tails ($3.95) and a selection of tender, juicy charcoal-broiled steaks (from $3.50 for the special a la carte New York.)

THE TRYING LIFE OF A CELEBRITY'S DOUBLE by LLOYD SHEARER

October 25, 1964

How come one company pays out a million dollars an hour?

That's how much Metropolitan Life policyholders and beneficiaries collect every hour of the working day. Last year, it added up to more than a cool $2 billion. And two-thirds of it went to living policyholders.

Because we insure more people, it figures that we do more. A lot more. Especially for our policyholders. One thing we do is train our representatives in the field to make a clear and expert analysis of exactly where your family would be if you died or someday decided to retire. In plain dollars and cents. Metropolitan calls this a Family Security Check-Up. It's confidential and it's free. Wouldn't you feel a little safer if you had one? Just call your Metropolitan adviser and it's yours.

Q. Is Angie Dickinson carrying a torch for Frank Sinatra, who promised to marry her?—R. R., N. Hollywood, Calif.

A. Sinatra made no such promise. Reportedly Miss Dickinson has been carrying the torch.

Q. Can you tell me whether Jackie Kennedy will follow the Kennedy family practice of sending daughters to Catholic schools and sons to nondenominational schools?—Ann McKnight, Asheville, N.C.

A. She probably will. Caroline Kennedy now attends the Convent of the Sacred Heart at 1 East 91st St., New York City, along with her cousin Sydney Lawford.

Q. What has happened to Freedomland, the New York version of Disneyland? Is it equally successful? Is it owned by Disney?—F. R., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Freedomland has no connection with Disneyland. On Sept. 15, 1964, Freedomland filed a petition for bankruptcy in the Federal Court, New York district.

Q. How old is George Raft?—William Harkness, Oak Park, Ill.

A. 69.

Q. There is a rumor that the Beatles will not entertain in front of segregated audiences. Can you verify or deny?—A. L. Jones, Bessemer, Ala.

A. It is true. Says Beatle leader John Lennon: "We never play to segregated crowds. We'd rather lose our appearance money than submit to such regulations."

Q. Abbe Lane, the singer who was married to Xavier Cugat—wasn't her maiden name Fanny Rabinowitz? — Elsa Schonciet, New York, N.Y.

A. No, it was Francine Lassman.

Q. Cary Grant, who is 60, is going with a young chick who is 24. I saw them together in Jamaica. Who is she?—P. I., Miami, Fla.

A. Actress Dyann Cannon.

Q. Is it true that Sen. Goldwater's office at National Republican Headquarters in Washington has been fitted with bulletproof windows?—D. Sims, Silver Springs, Md.

A. True. The Senator's life has been threatened, and every effort is being made to protect him.

Q. Who is the Lord Chamberlain who banned John Osborne's new play, A Patriot for Me, from the London stage on the grounds it was liable to corrupt?—Lou Sherwood, Yonkers, N.Y.

A. The present Lord Chamberlain is Cameron Fromanteel Cobbold, 60, 1st Baron of Knebworth. Since 1624 the Lord Chamberlain has had the job in England of supervising and censoring stage plays.

Q. How about the story that Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her daughter, Princess Irene, are now on the outs? Is it because Irene secretly became a Roman Catholic?—Victor Dennison, Baltimore, Md.

A. They are reportedly estranged, but the estrangement has nothing to do with Irene's conversion but rather with her subsequent marriage.

Q. Who is presently our ambassador to India? — H. L. Knox, New Haven, Conn.

A. Chester Bowles.

Q. How long have Sir Winston and Lady Churchill been married?—Beverly Glenn, Eureka, Calif.

A. They were married in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, on Sept. 12, 1908.

Q. What is the Hollywood opinion concerning Vince Edwards' acting ability? Does he have any? He seems so unemotional on the Ben Casey TV show.—Viola Larsen, Oakland, Calif.

A. Edwards is regarded as a TV personality. He is considered no great shakes as an actor.

Q. I would like to find out how many times that angry man Westbrook Pegler has been married.—F. T., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Three times.

Q. The inside story of the marriage between King Constantine of Greece and Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark—isn't it a fact that the King's mother, Queen Frederika, demanded her daughter-in-law bring a $1 million dowry to Greece?—B. N., Hempstead, N.Y.

A. The Danish royal family agreed to deposit a dowry of $300,000 in Princess Anne-Marie's name in a Swiss bank.

Q. Who said: "In politics nothing is contemptible"?—Gregg Lopez, Santa Fe, N. Mex.

A. Benjamin Disraeli (1804-1881), British statesman and author.

Q. What is the latest word on Jack Ruby, who shot Lee Harvey Oswald? Has he really gone nuts? — Frank De Solca, Atlantic City, N.J.

A. Doctors say Ruby is now "mentally unbalanced," which may save him from execution.

Q. Who or what are the Rolling Stones?—Diane Hart, State Center, Iowa.

A. They are a British vocal and instrumental quintet who have surpassed the Beatles in homeland popularity.

Q. Malcolm X of the Black Muslims—what sort of man is he, and should Negroes follow his leadership? —Isetta Smith, Detroit, Mich.

A. Malcolm X is a former thief, dope addict, dope-pusher and convict who angrily preaches hate.

A SPECIAL PARADE REPORT: IS YOUR MINISTER TRAINED TO HANDLE TODAY'S PROBLEMS?

Do you feel your clergyman, be he Catholic, Protestant or Jew, understands your problems? Is he able to help work out effective, realistic solutions when you ask for help?

Equally important, is your clergyman an essential figure in the community all week long, or is he only a Sunday preacher? Does he help solve community problems?

In short, can he cope with the ever-increasing demands of our modern world?

Unfortunately, many clergymen are not qualified for their role in the changing and changed world of today. They are burdened with an antiquated system of clerical education which limits their interests and narrows their abilities.

This harsh judgment on today's ministry comes from leading clergymen of all three faiths. For the past few years, dissatisfaction has been boiling among church leaders over the way clergymen are trained for their missions. More and more clerics agree that the clergy in America is not adequately equipped or educated to help solve the basic problems today. And they believe that strong improvements are needed in the system of seminary education for the future minister.

As long ago as 1950, the late Pope Pius XII pointed out the need for Roman Catholic seminaries to develop a new and modern outlook. "If young men—especially those who have entered the seminary at a tender age—are educated in an environment too isolated from the world," the Pope declared, "they may, on leaving the seminary, find serious difficulty in their relations either with ordinary people or with the educated clergy."

"By and large," stresses the Rev. Dr. Jerald C. Brauer, dean of the University of Chicago Divinity School, "the church in America cannot cope with the problems the country faces. And the primary reason is that the clergy is not educated to handle these problems."

A rabbi, Dr. Neil Gillman of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, believes one of the major shortcomings of the clergy is that they have not been able to attack some of the deepest difficulties of the community, primarily the personal problems of the congregation.

'SCHOLARSHIP DIVORCED FROM LIFE'

"The problem of the seminaries has always been that of scholarship divorced from life," charged the late Samuel N. Shoemaker, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh, and noted writer on religious subjects.

There are close to 50,000 men in about 800 seminaries in the U.S. and Canada today. Formal preparation in these seminaries varies widely. Some Protestant sects, believing that any person inspired by God can be a preacher, require no formal training of their clergy at all. On the other hand, Episcopal priests and most rabbis must have a college degree and four to six years' seminary to qualify for ordination. In the Roman Catholic Church, diocesan priests study from 8 to 12 years, which covers high school, college and seminary. Methodists, Presbyterians, Lutherans and other Protestant denominations generally ask that seminarians have four years of college, followed by three years' seminary.

What all these systems of education have in common, however, is that they stress what might be called spiritual subjects. The curricula consist of such courses as church history, theology, Bible interpretation, sacred literature and the arts of preaching. According to critics, this emphasis worked in the past, when the clergyman's chief role was to preach, hold prayer meetings, make calls and administer the sacraments. But today the clergy has branched into far broader areas of activity.

A FULL ROSTER

The minister is "the preacher, the scholar and teacher, the priest at the altar, the moral and spiritual counselor," Dr. James M. Gustafson, professor of Christian ethics at the Yale Divinity School has written. But, Dr. Gustafson added, he is also responsible for "the behavior of his youth group on a bowling party, the conduct of a financial campaign for a building fund, the public relations of the parish church, the effectiveness of the local council of churches or ministerial association, mitigating tensions between conflicting groups in the community, saying the blessing at the service club luncheon, the sex education of adolescents, premarital counseling. . . ."

A breakdown of the minister's time at various activities provides ample evidence of his responsibility for a wide variety of tasks. Dr. Samuel Blizzard, Princeton Theological Seminary, has estimated that in the typical minister's 10-hour day, 4 hours are spent in administrative work, 1 at organizational details, ½ hour teaching and 4½ as pastor, priest and preacher. Although half his day is spent in what could loosely be called the "business" of the church, the American cleric has had little or no education in business administration. And, although most churches today have extensive Sunday school programs of which the minister is in charge, he has little or no background in educational methods or psychology.

A recent survey by the National Institute of Mental Health shows that about half the mentally ill turn first to their clergyman for help. Yet few seminaries provide courses in psychology or counseling. And many churches now have a policy of counseling young people before marriage. Yet little training has been given in the family, birth control or sex education.

James C. Worthy, Assistant Secretary of Commerce in the Eisenhower administration, now a management consultant, recently made a plea for the clergy to learn more about the problems of business in order to give guidance to businessmen on ethical questions. "I myself have tried to get such guidance," he said, "only to find that the ministers knew so little about business as to make communication difficult."

In fact, very little in a minister's seminary preparation gets him ready to meet the outside world, according to the Rev. Stafford Poole, C.M., dean of studies, St. Mary's Seminary, Perryville, Mo.

Dr. Reuel L. Howe of the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies, Bloomfield, Mich., told PARADE that not long ago, a newly ordained minister was called to a local hospital to minister to a man who had suffered a a heart attack. When he saw the sick man, the young pastor became violently distraught, and the doctors had to take care of him. He never made another hospital call.

In an Eastern suburb, a middle-aged man, a church member for many years, began drinking heavily and grew difficult to get along with. He finally explained to his minister that his unmarried teenage daughter was pregnant; in addition, he was having trouble meeting payments on his home. Instead of trying to help him work out solutions, the minister merely said his behavior was unacceptable to the church and the community. The unhappy man left the church, never to return. "This minister panicked," says Dr. Howe. "He couldn't think of any creative way to help a man who was going through some of the worst trials of his life. His seminary studies had not equipped him to gain insight into the problems."

Much of the misunderstanding of the Catholic Church's position on birth control can be attributed to undereducation, although "seminary education, in general, is too bookish," says the Rev. Paul F. Darey, M.M., director of education for the Maryknoll Fathers, Ossining, N.Y. Father Darey describes a young woman who had had two stillborn children. "Psychologically, she was a wreck. Her pastor gave her no real advice, did not suggest she visit a physician experienced in these problems, and when she asked about the possibility of some method of birth control, he did not fully explain the Church's outlook, but said: 'It is better to have children even if they die, because that way more souls will get to heaven.'"

Some authorities have even suggested that a recently reported increase in mental illness among clergymen can be blamed, at least in part, on lack of education. "They have too many jobs to do that they don't know anything about," says one expert.

Although theological studies are and will remain the cornerstone of the ministry, Father Poole suggests widening the studies to include sociology, counseling and social work in all seminaries. Others have urged study in administration, organization, economics, labor and race relations and educational psychology.

A leading Protestant writer, the Rev. Walter D. Wagoner, has warned that the poor quality of seminary education drives many bright seminarians out of the ministry. "The church is going to be crippled if the better seminarians walk out," he says. As a partial solution, he urges that all seminaries affiliate themselves with high-caliber colleges or universities, so that their theological courses can be supplemented by lay courses. Those that are not affiliated, he states, "are at a serious disadvantage in meeting the educational challenges of this generation of seminarians."

Ministers in Industry program at McCormick Seminary sends students like Mal Brownlee (l.) to work in industrial jobs to learn about the problems of the workingman.

Continuing education, even after ordination, is of utmost importance to the clergy's mission, according to the Rev. Ralph E. Peterson, director of the department of ministry of the National Council of Churches. "We must convince the clergy that their education is never completed," he says. "They should be studying, reading, going to school throughout their entire career."

The Very Rev. Paul J. Hallinan, archbishop of Atlanta, agrees with the need for continuing education. (He is one of the few U.S. archbishops to hold a doctorate.) "A steadily increasing number of priests are enrolled in universities and colleges for further studies, which range from the pure sciences to the humanities and professional education," he says.

SOME MOVE AHEAD

Some seminaries and divinity schools are beginning to act on the need for changes. The Jewish Theological Seminary offers a course in pastoral psychiatry, while Maryknoll, in Glen Ellyn, Ill., teaches counseling for priests. The Chicago Divinity School has revamped its entire curriculum to lay greater stress on solving problems in areas other than theology.

A number of seminaries, in order to reduce the load on the minister, have been teaching students to be minister-specialists in such fields as administration, counseling, education and preaching. Some churches have already employed these specialists.

One pioneer, McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, sends seminarians out to work incognito in factories and laboring jobs in a summertime "Ministers in Industry" program. According to Rev. Dr. Arthur McKay, president of the seminary, "the object is for these young fellows to learn to understand the men they work with and not to prejudge them or their problems. We hope they'll understand how a man's work affects his spiritual life."

In other facets of the program, says Dr. McKay, "we train the men to work with groups of people who have 'been cast up on the beach'; we have a dozen courses in the church and economic life, alcoholism, social welfare and society and the church. We also give special training for ministers in industrial communities and offer degree programs in social work."

The seminary's program has garnered such enthusiasm from management and labor that the director, the Rev. Dr. Marshall Scott, has often been called in to mediate labor disputes.

Of course, spiritual guidance is still the principal function of the clergyman. But the success of progress-minded programs proves that this function can be performed better if the clerical curriculum is broadened to meet the specialized problems we face today.

HOLLYWOOD IN THE SKY

WILL IT PAY OFF?

by ARNO JOHANSEN

Actor Walter Slezak watches himself on one of TWA's flight movies.

There was a time when a daylight transcontinental air flight afforded passengers a memorable sightseeing trip across the country.

That time encompassed the pre-jet era of flight.

Today, with aircraft winging at altitudes of 30,000 to 35,000 feet, passengers frequently see nothing beneath them but clouds. If it's a clear day, they whiz by cities and landmarks so quickly (at 600 mph) that at best they catch only fleeting glimpses of geographical features below.

On night flights they generally see nothing once in a while the dappled lights of a distant metropolis.

To make air time pass with pleasant quickness, more and more airlines are going into the movies-in-the-sky business.

Until last month, TWA was the only U.S. carrier and Pakistan International Airlines the only foreign carrier to project movies aloft.

Now Continental and American are also showing films. In the fiercely competitive airline business, can United, Eastern, Braniff, Northeast, Northwest Orient, Delta and National be far behind?

David Flexer, president of Inflight Motion Pictures, the company which pioneered first-run flickers in the air, reports: "We are currently talking to half a dozen different airlines about our system. I don't want to mention their names, but they know we introduced our Theater of the Sky on TWA three years ago, and they've seen TWA's business shoot up like a rocket."

In the first 7 months of 1964, TWA's domestic passenger traffic increased 25 per cent, its transatlantic traffic 27 per cent. In that same period, American gained 14 per cent, and United only 7.4 per cent. Pan American, which is TWA's foremost transatlantic rival, showed a 24.4 per cent gain.

John Harrington, vice-president of TWA in charge of passenger services, admits that a "significant proportion of this line's increase can be attributed to movies," but he declines to reveal how much it is costing TWA to screen 1,100 film showings a month. His competitors estimate the annual cost at about $1 million.

Are in-flight movies worth that much?

Listen to Bob Six, president of Continental Air Lines. Last month he gladly spent $45,000 on each of his Chicago to Los Angeles jets. Six paid that sum to the Ampex Corporation of Redwood City, Calif., for installation of a compact magnetic videotape playback system, which allows presentation of first-run movies and stereo music in flight. Continental and American make no charge for their movies. TWA charges coach passengers $1, first-class passengers nothing.

Says Six, one of the nation's most progressive airline leaders: "Air transportation has been riddled by two major problems—fare and fear. Both have been too high. Continental has tried to solve the fare problem by introducing all-time low jet economy fares. We pioneered three different classes of service on the same aircraft— first, coach and economy—so we've gotten fares down for people who want to fly without frills.

"As regards the fear problem," Six continues, "no one really knows how large it is. Certainly there are still many people afraid to fly. I believe that films in flight will reduce the fear quotient in first-time riders.

"We're equipped to show five consecutive hours of visual programming —first-run, full-length movies, TV programs, short subjects, live TV. We can pick up a football game in Chicago, a tennis match in Los Angeles. Passengers who don't want to look at their 9-inch screen can switch to the music channels. Our audio recorders provide up to five hours of stereo music.

"This sort of entertainment diverts the passenger. It takes his mind off his flight and off his fear. Serve him a drink, a meal and a movie, and his trip is just about over.

"The way I look at it, in-transit entertainment, now in its infancy, will offer a boon to the airline industry. It's worth what it costs. It will boost business."

Other airline executives, domestic and foreign, are not as optimistic. They're afraid that Hollywood in the Sky is an overextension of passenger comforts. They're afraid that costs will mount.

One European vice-president told me on a flight to Copenhagen: "I'm very much afraid of introducing movies on our aircraft. It's all right at the beginning, when you're the only carrier who's showing films. Then you've got an advantage. But when your competitors follow suit—what then? You've lost your initial advantage, and all the airlines are loaded with heavy additional costs.

"Moreover, we will soon be entering the supersonic transport era. In the 1970's we'll be flying at 1,200 to 1,500 mph. Long-distance flights will get shorter and shorter. On a run from San Francisco to New York there may not be enough time to give the passengers both a meal and a movie.

"In America the airline business is extremely competitive. I can understand why most of your domestic carriers will follow TWA. But I don't believe Pan American will, and surely in Europe, where so many of our airlines are owned by the state, we will move slowly in the matter of movies."

HE STARTED IT ALL

The man most responsible for the boom in flight flickers is David Flexer, 56, a driving, gray-haired dynamo who has been in the motion picture business practically all his life. Vice-president of a Hollywood film company which pioneered many changes in cartoon techniques, Flexer owns and operates motion picture theaters in the South, introduced the first drive-in theaters to St. Paul-Minneapolis and St. Louis in 1947.

One October night five years ago, while commuting on one of his coast-to-coast flights, Flexer asked himself the same old question so many bored theater-owners who'd had previously asked: "Why don't they show 16mm movies aboard the plane?"

One of those indefatigable industrialists who believes ideas are worthless unless executed, Flexer decided to answer his own question.

Certainly the cabin of a spacious airliner seemed to be a natural projection room. Why, then, couldn't movies be projected in it?

"I began to investigate," Flexer now good-naturedly recalls, "and before I came up with the answers, it cost me almost three years and a million dollars.

"My basic problem was twofold: how to get lightweight equipment designed so that it could fit into a shallow compartment in the ceiling of the plane's cabin, and how to get it so completely automated that a crew member could flick a switch and the equipment would project a two-hour movie without interruption in Cinemascope or Technicolor and then cut itself off.

"If they don't stop serving peanuts on the movie flights, I'm going to resign."

"As you know, in the ordinary theater 2 large projectors are housed in a large, roomy booth and are used alternately to run a 20-minute reel."

Who in the motion picture game could produce the type of equipment Flexer required? Several projector engineers he consulted told him to drop the idea.

"It will never work," one expert said flatly. "How can you get a 24-inch reel into a 12-inch space?"

Devoting his full time, energy and bankroll to the project, Flexer in 1957 began work with Reevesound Company of Long Island City, N.Y., creators of Cinerama. The first three machines they turned out together didn't work.

"But we persevered," Flexer narrates. "And fortunately for me I got the complete co-operation of TWA—they put at my disposal, to try out the equipment, a Boeing 707 jet. And we really tried out everything.

Passengers watch film on TWA flight. Movies are free for 1st class, $1 on coach.

"In December of 1960, after almost four years of trial and error, we held our first showing—a press preview—in the air. For the next six months we ran test flights across the country, checking out the equipment, observing passenger reaction. Both were excellent.

"In July 1961, aboard 12 TWA international flights, first class only, we staged our first scheduled screenings. After that, we were in. Now, with a little luck I may yet make some money."

Flexer claims that his in-flight movie system is the most efficient and pleasurable now in use by any airline. It projects the latest films on two wide screens, one above the first row of seats in the first-class cabin and one in the coach section. It is the only system equipped at present to show films in color and wide screen.

"I can't decide whether to take the London Super Jet and watch Pegory Greck or catch the double feature on the Bombay flight."

Its basic disadvantage, according to several passengers, is that the aircraft cabin is darkened by the other passengers during projection.

"I'd much prefer reading a book in flight," a Los Angeles schoolteacher averred. "But everyone else aboard wants to see a movie. So naturally, I go along with them and turn off my light. On TWA flights the majority always wants to watch movies, and as you know, the majority always wins."

American and Continental Air Lines have equipped their planes with passenger TV sets.

American calls its entertainment system Astrovision, constructed by the Sony Corporation of Japan. It will cost on completion about $4 million. It includes a TV camera in the nose of the plane to transmit live TV and in-transit pictures of the terrain, takeoffs and landings. One TV set between the seats is provided for each two first-class passengers and one overhead set for each nine coach passengers.

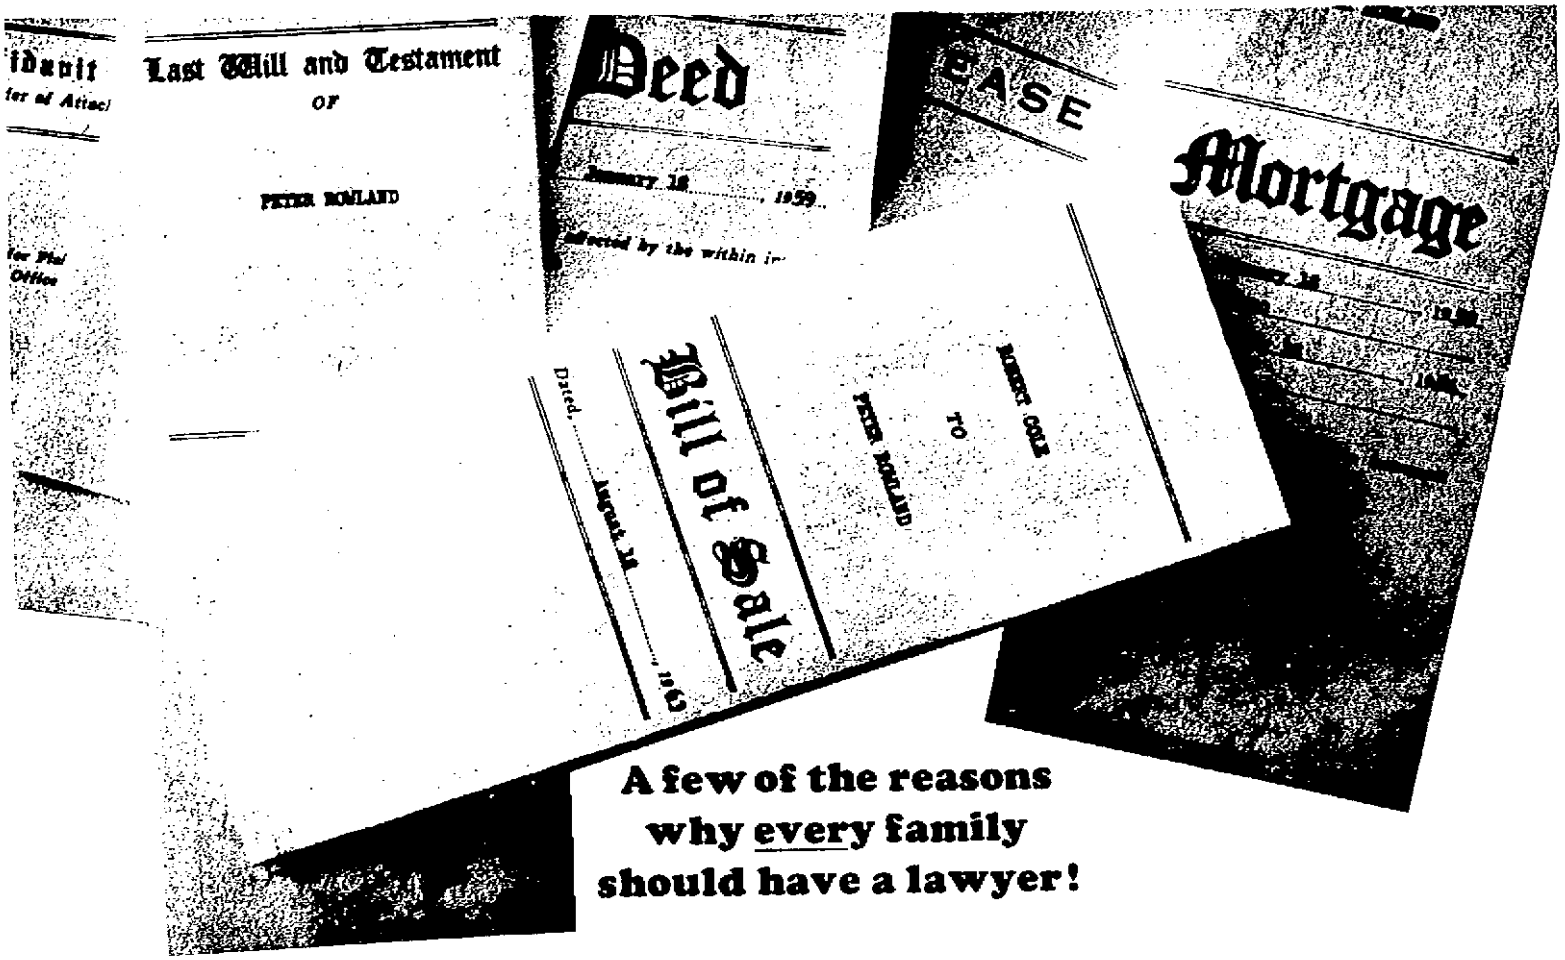

The Continental system provides the same overhead sets for all passengers. Both American and Continental expect to provide color TV in the near future.

Is there any danger that too many creature comforts will jade today's cross-country air commuter?

On a recent TWA trip to New York, a Harvard sophomore sitting beside me said he was getting tired of films in flight. "If this guy Tillinghast," he announced (Charles Tillinghast is president of TWA), "really wants to please the new breed of passengers, he'll offer something new."

"Like what?" I asked.

The Harvard sophomore leered. "Like belly-dancers in the aisle," he declared. "That's like what."

A few of the reasons why every family should have a lawyer!

Free booklet shows how he can be invaluable, how to go about choosing him.

Nowadays the family that doesn't know the law—or a lawyer—may well find itself in difficulties. According to the State Bar of Michigan the average citizen "is living in a legal world far too complex to cope with alone and unaided."

You'll learn the urgent truth of these statements once you read "Why You Should Choose a Family Lawyer NOW!" This timely booklet was written for New York Life by Lester David, noted writer, and is approved by the American Bar Association.

Fact-filled booklet. The author gives you many examples of how well-meaning persons have suffered serious loss through ignorance of the law. He shows how a family lawyer can help prevent such difficulties, saving you money as well as time, annoyance, or possibly lasting grief.

Take the case of the man who put his suburban home in his wife's name. "When she died and left no will, he discovered that her relatives were entitled to a share of her property, including the house!" A lawyer would have pointed out the wisdom of both husband and wife having made out a proper will—and of keeping it up to date.

How do you choose a lawyer? This booklet suggests several ways, and discusses the cost of his services—which is probably less than you think!

Get your free copy. You'll find this booklet as easy to read as it is worthwhile, as interesting as it is authoritative. To get your free copy, ask your New York Life agent or use the coupon at right.

GALINHA NO MOLHO PARDO
(Chicken with Chestnut Dressing)

1 roasting chicken, 4 to 5 lb.
1 cup white wine
1 clove garlic, minced
Juice of 1 lemon
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives or green onion tops
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Giblets, chopped
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 can (8 oz.) puree of chestnuts
4 slices bacon

Marinate chicken in mixture of wine, garlic, lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, chives and parsley for 24 hours in refrigerator. Drain and wipe chicken dry. Cook chopped giblets in butter; add pepper, nutmeg, chestnuts and ½ teaspoon salt. Place mixture inside chicken; put bacon slices over breast; wrap in foil and place in open roast pan, breast side up. Cook in 375° oven 2 hours; open foil covering, brown and complete cooking. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

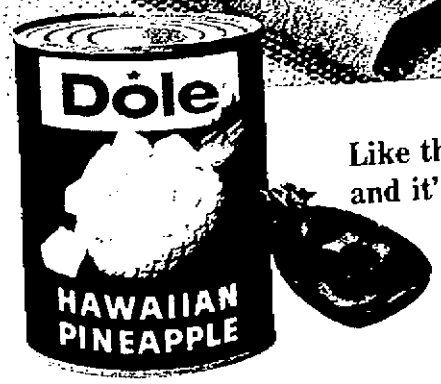

Note: This recipe makes about 1½ cups of very rich stuffing. Do not expect it to fill the chicken completely.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

OPPOSING INSURANCE MACHINES. The Air Line Pilots Association is trying to get Congress to pass a bill eliminating air trip insurance sold through machines or counters in local air terminals. The pilots say these insurance machines are irresistible invitations to maniacs. They point out that in the past 30 years there have been 18 known or suspected passenger aircraft bombings. Half of these occurred in the U.S. Seven were fatal. Insurance has been established as the cause of five. Early this year, 44 passengers were killed in a Pacific Air Lines crash, again with insurance the possible motive. Pilots claim the ease with which almost unlimited amounts of insurance can be bought from vending machines is a major factor in bomb incidents by the emotionally unstable. They want insurance vending machines removed from airports, trip insurance placed in the hands of trained personnel rather than pretty but unknowledgeable counter girls. Airport managers who lease concessions to the insurance companies, and the companies which make high profits from these vending machines, are, understandably enough, against such a bill.

POSTWOMEN. Alarmed by an acute staff shortage which is delaying mail deliveries in London, the British Post Office is suggesting an emergency measure -- part-time postwomen. More than 1,000 postmen resigned in the London area this year, many of them before the mail strike which resulted in a 6½% wage boost. The Union of Post Office Workers opposes the idea of postwomen.

SUPER TV AERIAL. Are you willing to forego the status symbol of a TV aerial on your own roof? Technicians in Munich, Germany, are experimenting with a 75-foot aerial mounted on a pylon which can serve several thousand TV sets. Carl Norcross of the Crawford Corporation, constructors of Crofton, Md., a new city between Annapolis and Washington, D.C., may be the first to introduce it into this country. It would eliminate the unsightly forest of TV aerials which now plague so many communities.

MRS. McGARRY & 12 BABIES—ALL BORN BY CAESAREAN.

EVEN DOZEN. Most doctors advise married women that three, possibly four, is the maximum number of Caesarean operations any mother can undergo. A few weeks ago Mrs. Kathleen McGarry of London surprised the medical profession by giving birth to her 12th child via Caesarean section. "My husband and I love children," she explained, "which is why we've had 12 in 16 years. I am also a Roman Catholic and would never do anything to stop these babies from coming."

SOVIETS HINT. Russian propaganda has always dismissed Project Plowshare, the U.S. program aimed at finding peaceful uses for nuclear explosives, as a sinister cover-up for weapons testing. At the UN Atoms for Peace conference in Geneva recently, the Soviets hinted that they would be interested in joining Project Plowshare. The Plowshare Project — "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" — has as its objective the use of nuclear blasts for excavating canals, harbors, moving mountains, extracting oil, shale and minerals from beneath the ground.

SPANISH PROTESTANTS. In Spain there are approximately 30,000 Protestants. For years they've been trying to work out with the Franco government a bill of rights granting them religious freedom. Vatican authorities have been urging such a move since 1961, but die-hard leaders in the Spanish hierarchy have opposed it. A foreign office spokesman in Madrid recently tipped newsmen that before the year is out the Spanish parliament will pass a law granting legal recognition to religious minorities and their houses of worship.

IRONY. Saddest show business story of the year involves Mrs. Inge Barber, Montreal producer. Last October when she was visiting London, Mrs. Barber was offered the Beatles for booking anywhere in North America. All she would have to put up would be $1,500. Said Mrs. Barber to the Beatles' representative: "I wouldn't take those guys if you gave them to me in a 'Care' package. They just won't draw."

WEST TO EAST. Hardly any mention is made of it in the American press, but each month about 1,000 Germans slip across the West German border back into Communist East Germany. One of the most popular crossing points is outside Lubeck. Why do these people return to Communist tyranny? The investigating Committee of Free Jurists, an anti-Communist group in West Germany, asserts that 99% of these returnees are "evading justice." What most of the border-crossers are really evading is debt. A good many are drunks, bums, labor-dodgers, persons who got in financial trouble and can see no way out but to skip. When they cross the border into East Germany they are placed in East German reception camps under rigorous scrutiny as possible Western agents. Once they satisfy the authorities, they are shipped to various towns and factories, their lives from that point on completely regulated by a ruthless government.

AIR BUS. A British pioneer aircraft company, Short Brothers & Harland, now located in Belfast, wants to manufacture an air bus. It would fly 288 passengers for short hops up to 500 miles. Passengers would buy tickets at the airport, carry their own baggage aboard. Each air bus would cost $6 million to build.

why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"Simply because your haircoloring is designed to flatter—you want it to stay clear, lively, elegant, week after week," says Leslie Blanchard. "You shouldn't use just any shampoo! The wrong shampoo can turn hair color dull and cloudy. So insist on Clairol Shampoo, the colorfast shampoo. It won't change hair color." Very different from other leading shampoos, colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. In two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. At leading beauty salons and cosmetic counters.

A CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

BARRY GOLDWATER'S DOUBLE

by LLOYD SHEARER

MADISON, WIS.

Two years ago when Thomas Gipson, 42, a rugged, handsome hairdresser from Milwaukee, was vacationing in Arizona, he stopped for a few days in a Phoenix resort motel.

One afternoon three attractive, well-dressed women—he estimated their ages between 35 and 50—hurried up to him. One extended a handful of assorted knuckles and rings to squeeze. Another kissed him warmly on the cheek, the third clung possessively to his arm.

"When did you get back to town?" the cheek-kisser asked.

Gipson smiled, and the other two women kissed him.

Pleasantly surprised at the bonanza, he said, "I just got in."

"And how is Peg?" one woman asked.

Gipson backed away and shook his head. "I'm sorry to admit it," he announced. "But I'm not the man you think I am."

"Now, come off it, Barry," one of the women ordered.

"My name's not Barry," Gipson declared. "My name's Tom Gipson."

The women looked at each other in disbelief, then moved closer and peered at the hairdresser. What sprouted was a geyser of chatter.

"Do you know Sen. Barry Goldwater? . . . Are you related to the Goldwaters? . . . Do you come from Arizona? . . . You're kidding us, aren't you?"

To all these questions, Tom Gipson answered, "No."

"You look enough like Barry Goldwater," said one of the women, "to be his twin."

"In fact," said another woman, "you look more like Barry Goldwater than Barry Goldwater does."

That was the first time in his life that Tom Gipson, proprietor of two beauty salons, one in Milwaukee and one in Arcadia, Calif., learned that he and the U.S. senator from Arizona were look-alikes.

A few weeks ago, after the senator had made one of his rousing campaign speeches on the steps of the state capitol in Madison, Wis., I introduced him to his double.

"Senator," I shouted, "I'd like you to meet your twin."

I shoved Gipson onto the podium.

For a moment Barry Goldwater stared at his double. "Well, I'll be a . . . ." he muttered. "It's like looking in a mirror." Turning to his wife, he said, nodding at Gipson, "Can you believe it, Peg?"

Peggy Goldwater looked at Gipson. Her jaw dropped. She could say nothing. The likeness was so amazing.

"I've seen your picture in the papers," Goldwater said, "and I'm sure glad to meet you. Gosh! You've even got the same kind of nose I have—broken."

Gipson nodded. "We've got a lot of things in common, senator. But I think I'm one up on you in one department, anyway."

"What's that?" Goldwater asked.

"You have a flying license," Gipson pointed out, "and I have a flying license. You have a license to operate a ham radio station, and I have a ham license. But I'm a licensed beauty operator, and you're not."

Goldwater grinned. "We've had Elizabeth Arden beauty shops in Phoenix for years, and I'm a licensed beauty operator, too."

Goldwater turned to me and said, "It's amazing, isn't it?"

"Listen," I answered, "if your plane had been a few minutes later, we were going to have Gipson here read your speech. No one would've known the difference."

"I'd like to take him along with me," the senator suggested, "just to absorb some of the brickbats."

Said Gipson: "This is the first time since the start of this political campaign that I've enjoyed looking like Barry Goldwater. Up to now it's been rough. It's complicated my life, and some of the complications have been pretty dangerous.

"I was in the Marine Corps for five years. I've got a pretty good grip on my nerves, but so many things have happened to me because I look like Goldwater that I'm now taking tranquilizers."

At different periods in his life, Gipson, born in Coral Gables, Fla., has voted Democratic and Republican. He thinks the senator from Arizona is a fine man, a personable man, a sincere legislator, and he cannot understand why this celebrity, to whom he bears an astonishingly close resemblance, should arouse such end-of-the-spectrum emotions in people.

"Right after the Republicans held their convention in San Francisco," he told me, "people would stop me on the streets of Milwaukee. They'd call me the greatest man on earth or a few choice curse words you could never print.

"At first it was kind of fun. I took it all in stride. I just came to the conclusion that Sen. Goldwater has the kind of personality few people feel neutral about. But then the haters started to go to work on me."

According to Gipson, two men stopped him on a crosswalk in Milwaukee and asked him if his name was Goldwater. He told them it wasn't and continued on his way. He got into his car and drove out to his beauty salon at Capitol Court shopping center. He noticed that the same two men were following him in a car, bearing Illinois license plates.

When he stopped in a parking lot, the two men approached his vehicle, jerked him out and threatened to kill him.

"I broke away," Gipson related, "ran into a near-by store and told a security officer what had happened. By the time we got back to the parking lot the two guys had gone.

"After that, my name and picture and address were printed in the paper, and I started getting phone calls. Most of them were idiotic: 'We know who you are, Goldwater. There's no point in hiding. We're gonna get you. . . . You're a dirty Communist rat . . .!' It made no sense, but it was frightening and disturbing. After all, there's no defense against maniacs."

Gipson, who is 5-feet-10, 2 inches shorter than Goldwater, with dark-rimmed spectacles and graying hair, changed his phone, eventually moved to a new apartment. When similar phone calls were directed to him in his beauty salon, he quickly hung up. He now refuses to answer the phone unless the caller first identifies himself to one of his assistants. At home he has an unlisted number.

The most serious incident occurred on August 20th while he was driving to Chicago along the Tri-State tollway in Illinois. Gipson is divorced—his ex-wife also runs a beauty salon —but he still maintains a close friendship with his former mother-in-law.

"I was on my way to Chicago," he says, "to see my mother-in-law. I was driving alone, taking it easy. A car with three men in it passed me. They all did a double take, wondering whether or not I was Goldwater.

"I'm used to that, but then, after a few minutes, they forced me over to the side. I was mad as hell. One big guy got out of the back seat and said, 'We know who you are. Get out of the car.' I was halfway out. I was going to tell him who I really was. I was going to show him my license. Two other guys joined him, and then just as I got out, one of them stabbed me with a knife in my left side.

"As I stood there, right off the Edens expressway, clutching myself, they got into their car and drove off. I tried to flag down a few passing cars. No one would stop. I got in my car and tried to make it to Chicago, but I was losing a lot of blood.

"Finally," Gipson maintains, "I felt I'd better stop or I'd lose control of my auto or get in an accident or I'd black out. A pickup truck stopped and took me to a filling station. I phoned my ex-brother-in-law, who came and got me. He drove me to the Northwest Hospital, where a Dr. Hailicki stitched me up."

As a result, Gipson was widely publicized in the world press. "I appeared on TV stations giving interviews. I was besieged by photographers. A show producer tried to sign me up for personal appearances, a road show throughout the country, providing Goldwater is elected President. Magazines offered to buy my life story. My beauty operators – – I have 14 who work for me – – began to show me new respect.

"Women whose hair I've done in the past—they phoned and wanted only me to work on them. If Goldwater is elected, my notoriety will probably continue. If not, I'll probably fade back into the woodwork."

Listening to Gipson talk—I tape-recorded him for hours—I found it difficult to determine whether he liked or disliked his present notoriety.

I asked Dee Gardner, an attractive blonde who helps manage his Milwaukee beauty salon.

"My answer," she said, "is, a little of both. Tom is somewhat of a showman, an extrovert. He works every now and again as a photographer's model, so he doesn't mind the publicity. But the threats are really frightening.

"The other day he got a telegram at the store, warning him to keep his mouth shut. Apparently the world is filled with more nuts and crackpots than most people think. I'll be glad when this election is over."

"So will I," said Barry Goldwater's double. "I've become a curiosity-attraction, and business has boomed, but I've just about had it."

Beauty salon owner Gipson is in demand with lady customers thanks to look-alike publicity.

DO YOU TAKE VITAMINS AND STILL FEEL TIRED?*

If you take vitamins yet still feel tired—you may need more than vitamins to restore your normal strength and energy. Your worn-out feeling may be due to pale, iron-poor blood.

Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because GERITOL contains 7 vitamins and, in addition, supplies the amount of iron needed to build iron-rich red blood. Just 2 GERITOL tablets, or 2 tablespoons of GERITOL liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver! In only one day, GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests: Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement.

So when you feel tired, check with your doctor, and if iron-poor blood is your problem, take fast-acting GERITOL every day. You'll feel stronger fast—in just 7 days or your money back from GERITOL.

*Due to iron-deficiency.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lou Jacobi, 47, born in Toronto, has long been recognized as a master raconteur. He is also one of the few comedians who, owing to his Broadway and Hollywood success as an actor, has had his original reputation as a humorist somewhat diminished. Jacobi began his show business career in Toronto musical comedy, then went to London, where he played at Ciro's and other night clubs, later signed for leading roles in Guys and Dolls, Pal Joey and other top musicals. Jacobi has been featured as a character actor in a score of films ranging from Irma la Douce to A Kid for Two Farthings. He is currently holding forth on Broadway in the musical comedy hit, Fade Out-Fade In. Herewith some of his favorite funnies.

MY FAVORITE JOKES BY LOU JACOBI

The former chorus girl obviously knew nothing about acting, and the Hollywood director was frantic. Finally he roared, "Can't you show me any emotion?"

"I don't see how," the chorine pouted, "when all you've been doing is photographing my face."

Remember when the only difficult thing about parking a car was getting a girl to agree to it?

The patient walked into the psychiatrist's office. As soon as he sat down he began stuffing pipe tobacco into his nostrils. The psychiatrist observed him for a few minutes, then walked up and said, "You are certainly in the right place. Now, tell me how I can help you."

The patient looked up. "You can give me a light."

The 4-year-old boy was very much impressed by his 6-year-old brother, engrossed in a book. He asked the 6-year-old if he could really read.

"Of course," said the older brother without taking his eyes off the page.

"Then read something for me," said the younger, pointing to the television. "What does the writing on that TV say?"

Coldly the older answered: "I just read books. I don't read TV sets."

A lion approached a rhinoceros and asked: "Who is the king of the jungle?"

"You are, O lion," came the answer.

The lion went up to a hippopotamus and asked: "Who is the king of the jungle?" The hippo said: "You are, O lion."

The lion went up to the elephant and asked, "Who is the king of the jungle?" Whereupon the elephant seized the lion with his trunk, whirled him around, tossed him in the air, caught him on the way down, slammed him into a tree.

Half-dazed, severely beaten, the lion shook himself, managed to mutter weakly: "Just because you don't know the right answer, you don't have to get sore."

A woman driving a car-pool station wagon filled with eight kids ran through a stop sign. A police officer motioned her over to the curb. "Listen," he said, pointing to all the pupils in the station wagon, "don't you know when to stop?"

The matron shook her head. "They're not all mine," she said.

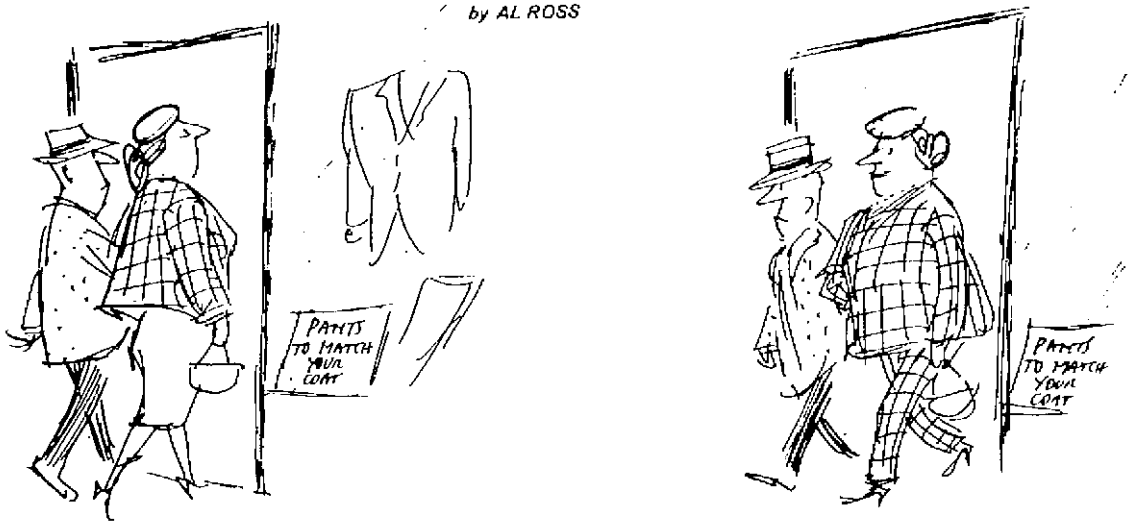

A local busybody, unable to contain her curiosity, asked an expectant mother point-blank whether she was going to have a baby. "Oh, goodness, no," the pregnant woman answered pleasantly. "I'm just carrying this for a friend."

President Says Aides Devoted to Duties

JOHNSON LAUDS WORK OF JENKINS AND BAKER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson said Saturday that the morals arrest of Walter W. Jenkins was "a very unfortunate and unpleasant and distressing situation that probably resulted from intense overwork."

Johnson spoke up in behalf of Jenkins, his close friend and former White House aide as well as for Robert G. (Bobby) Baker in a political television broadcast paid for by the Democratic National Committee.

"I was as shocked as if someone had told me that my wife had murdered her daughter," Johnson said of his reaction to the news that Jenkins had been arrested.

Jenkins resigned Oct. 14 after public disclosure that he had been arrested in the Washington YMCA men's room on a disorderly (indecent gestures) charge Oct. 7, and on a "pervert" charge in 1959.

Scandal in the administration has been one of the main campaign charges of the Republicans this year.

The President said Jenkins had worked for the government since 1938, and added:

"I have never known a better man, a more diligent worker, a more competent and faithful person. When I heard the story the other night in New York . . . I had a chance to converse with staff members familiar with the situation within the hour.

"I did the only thing I knew to do — that was to ask for his resignation. It was promptly supplied and I asked the FBI to make a thorough investigation to be sure that no security had been violated.

"They tell me that in their opinion, they have been unable to find that any security has been compromised.

"It seems to be a very

$52,000 TO CATS CAME TOO LATE

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Viola Hunt was a frugal little lady who lived quietly in a two-room bungalow here.

Her only worldly interest was the great love she had for unwanted cats and dogs.

When Mrs. Hunt, who was 89, died Oct. 9 authorities found she was caring for about 25 cats. The Humane Society found homes for all but five of those cats. The five remaining were the personal pets of Mrs. Hunt.

Friday the trust officer of a local bank revealed that Mrs. Hunt left an estate of over $52,000 in trust for cats, dogs and other animals, including her own felines.

But the announcement of Mrs. Hunt's bequest came too late to save the five cats she had cherished. The Humane Society board of directors voted to "put them to sleep" 10 days after Mrs. Hunt died.

Khanh Steps Down as S. Viet Premier; New Leader Picked

Say Jenkins Probed Plea of AF Officer

Woman Accused Man of Obscene Telephone Calls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former presidential confidant Walter W. Jenkins made a routine investigation of an ex-Air Force officer's plea to have his commission restored after it had been revoked on charges he made obscene telephone calls to a woman, government sources said today.

Jenkins dropped the case after Air Force officials verified the evidence against the man and opposed recommissioning him.

According to these sources, Jenkins investigated the case in 1961 when the demoted officer contacted the office of the then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

* * * *

THE MAN'S name and rank were not revealed. But it is known that he was permitted to remain in the service as an enlisted man.

As Johnson's aide, the sources said, Jenkins made a routine investigation. Jenkins resigned from the presidential staff last week after it was revealed that he had been arrested twice on morals charges, once in 1959 and again last Oct. 7.

According to the sources, the officer was broken by the Air Force after a complaint by the wife of an enlisted man.

Government sources said the former officer is now retired. They said his plight had received attention from various sources other than Jenkins because he had flown 150 missions in World War II and Korea and was a

Barry Invades Texas, Blasts Demo Leaders

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater made a campaign swing through Lyndon B. Johnson's home state Saturday and attacked the President as a man who seeks "more and more power" over the lives of Americans—"more and more without end."

It was the fifth campaign swing through Texas for the Republican presidential nominee. He plans one more trip here before the Nov. 3 election.

Goldwater has said Texas is one of four key states which will decide the election. The others are California, Ohio and Illinois.

* * * *

AFTER SPENDING FRIDAY whistle-stopping in California, the Arizona senator flew from San Diego to Austin, beginning his Texas vote-chasing in Johnson's home area.

Speaking to a crowd that exceeded the 3,700 capacity of the Austin Municipal Auditurium, Goldwater shifted his fire to Johnson's running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, describing Humphrey as an "officer and founder" of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA). He said the ADA wants to do away with all loyalty oaths.

"It's never hurt me and it's never hurt you," Goldwater said.

* * * *

"I SEE NOTHING WRONG with stating that you will be loyal to the United States of America . . . but Hubert does, and he . . . wants to be a heartbeat away from the presidency."

Goldwater also charged Humphrey favored admission of Red China to the United Nations, and giving the U.S. stockpile to the UN.

He followed the same tack, ripping into Humphrey but almost ignoring Johnson, in Corpus Christi.

He finally got around to Johnson in a speech prepared for an early evening rally here. He talked about Johnson's "curious crew," companions like Bobby Baker, Billie Sol Estes, Matt McCloskey, "and others."

Ailing Rebel Selected to Guide State

Military Units Alert for New Coup Attempts

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — An old revolutionary and the mayor of Saigon Saturday night were reported named to head a new government as Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh laid aside the public trappings of power as premier.

Khanh made his farewells as premier to the diplomatic corps, government officials and correspondents at a reception. But the man who took over in South Viet Nam in a bloodless coup Jan. 30 is expected to remain the real power as commander of the armed forces.

Pahn Khac Suu, an ailing revolutionary imprisoned for eight years by President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime, was elected the new chief of state, informed sources said.

* * * *

THE High National Council, appointed two months ago by Khanh to set up a new government, met in urgent session Saturday night to pick leaders to replace the Khanh government.

Reliable informants said the council, which earlier had favored Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, current chief of state, decided on Suu at the last minute. Minh was popular because he overthrew Diem's regime last November.

Minh was reported reluctant to resign from the army to take the new post. But in any case, it was not clear whether Suu would accept the job. Suu has been weak and in poor health since he was released from a penal colony last February.

No official announcement as to the naming of a new chief of state appeared likely until today or Monday.

It also was reported that

L.B.-Area Boy Dies in Crash

A Bellflower youth was killed and another was injured Saturday when their car hit a center-divider rail and crashed six miles north of Oceanside on U.S. 101's notorious "Slaughter Alley."

Lawrence Baird, 18, of 10265 Van Ruiten Drive, the driver, was killed. His passenger, Rodney Carl Springs, 17, of 9247 Mandell St., suffered minor injuries.

* * * *

CALIFORNIA Highway Patrolmen said the youths were northbound returning from Tijuana.

"Slaughter Alley," where a church-bus crash killed seven in September, is a heavily traveled 15-mile stretch of four-lane highway, into which freeway traffic funnels between San Clemente on the north and Oceanside on the south.

Its fatality rate is said to exceed that of any similar length of road in California.

'KNOWLEDGEABLE, APPRECIATIVE'

Girl Rioters Show They're Not Squares, Prof. Says

By TERRY KOUNS

A screaming, hysterical riot by 5,000 teen-age girls at a Long Beach Arena rock 'n' roll concert was a way for the girls to show themselves "knowledgeable, interested, enthusiastic, and appreciative," a local psychologist said Saturday.

Dr. Roy K. Heintz, associate professor of psychology at Cal State, Long Beach, was asked to comment on the pandemonium Friday night which ensued as the girls temporarily lost their reason when confronted by the Pacemakers and Billy Jay Kramer.

Police officers said the girls, aged mainly 13 to 15, were storming the stage, rushing dressing rooms and charging down the aisles in order to reach their idols.

This kind of conduct, said Dr. Heintz, is "a kind of expressive behavior which has become an accepted and even expected action upon the part of girls in that age group."

Police said the girls' collective control broke loose when one of the performers took off his jacket and tie and beckoned for the girls to come and get them. The girls thereupon tore his coat to ribbons, fought in the aisles, and kicked each other, threw their belongings on the stage, and generally climbed all over the Arena.

Such behavior, Dr. Heintz said, showed "a feeling upon the part of the girls that these boys are of fine character and quality."

The girls rushed the stage, clutched ecstatically at the entertainers and tried to kiss their hands. At least 100 of them mobbed the stage, preventing the show from continuing.

"A girl who would fail to do this," asserted the psychologist, "would be looked upon by other girls as lacking in discernment and appreciation. She'd be sort of out of it."

* * * *

ONLY ONE casualty was reported: a girl suffered minor injuries when someone walked on her. The show was something of a casualty also, however, since no one could hear it above the screams.

Friday night's enthusiasm was not without historical precedent, said Dr. Heintz. "In the early history of this country," he explained, "there were some manifestations like this in connection with the Salem witch trials."

Barry Raps LBJ on Defense Votes

By ALVIN SPIVAK

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Thousands roared their approval Saturday night as President Johnson denounced Sen. Barry M. Goldwater for voting cuts in national-defense spending.

Johnson arrived in this old city by helicopter, stopped repeatedly to shake hands along a jammed motorcade route and won a strong endorsement from the city's Republican mayor —Theodore F. McKeldin.

It was an intense climax to a day of cheering crowds and stumping which took the chief executive to Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Before 10,000 screaming supporters in the Fifth Regiment Armory, the President attacked Goldwater's voting record on defense issues.

* * * *

BUT THE high point of his vjsit here was a 25-block motorcade from Patterson Park. Estimates of the crowd along the way ranged between 75,000 and 250,000, all of them howling their support of the Democratic candidate.

It was marred briefly at the beginning when someone tossed two eggs. But they struck two photographers near Johnson, who did not seem to notice the incident.

In an open Secret Service convertible Johnson stopped to tell the crowds to vote for him and Democratic state officials accompanying the presidential party.

JOHNSON was greeted and endorsed at the armory by McKeldin, a former governor of Maryland and keynoter of the 1952 GOP convention. In supporting

Murphy Fears U.S. Disarming

By BOB HOUSER

George Murphy, Republican nominee for U.S. Senate, repeated his antiadministration broadside here Saturday night, charging high-level decision-making "from fear, accommodation and appeasement" and stating his belief that "we are generally being unilaterally disarmed."

Speaking at the "Wings Over the World" Mayor's Banquet in Edgewater Inn Murphy attacked the theory of disarmament by example to the Russians when there has been no change in their goal of world domination.

"The contest is on," he said, "Sooner or later we must take a firm position, explain that we will oppose them, then do it properly and the problem will disappear—but not by disarmament."

We have a choice in Viet Nam, Murphy said, "win, retreat ungracefully or get out. We must win. Those who are there can, should and will win if we give them the proper backing and the implements."

Our image suffers abroad, he told the Junior Chamber of Commerce fete, NATO is crumbling and "they say in the Far East we're a paper tiger." He said America's image-rebuilding is as simple as Cinerama and Cyclorama, highly successful ventures which, when used at fairs

ARE YOUR CLOCKS FAST?

Did you "oversleep" an hour this morning?

Could be, if you forgot to set your clocks back sixty minutes before retiring Saturday night. For this is the day California regains that hour lost last April when Daylight Saving Time went into effect.

When the clock hands touched 2 this morning it really was 1 o'clock, Pacific Standard Time. The lost hour was regained — until next spring.

Ex-Athlete Held as Child Attacker

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police Saturday arrested a former athlete on suspicion of criminally assaulting a 12-year-old girl in a church where she was lured under the belief that her assailant was a priest.

Officers said Elwood Leroy Leuschner, 32, was booked on suspicion of crimes against a child. Leuschner was listed by police as a former minor-league baseball player at Bridgeport, Conn., under the name of Bobby Pennec.

L.A.C. Says:

Two Men and Many Issues

The charges of widespread corruption in the federal government are not justified in my opinion. But such charges have been inevitable with the disclosure of how the President and some of his close associates have grown rich while in public office—from enterprises dealing with the offices they held. These are factors that justify a careful analysis of the integrity of the two Presidential candidates. And it is a challenge to the voters as to whether they will give a vote of approval to such activities.

The tragic term "doubtful integrity" is applied to the President. The Jenkins case has shaken the people's confidence in the judgment of the President. It is hard to believe the close association of over 20 years with a man twice arrested and charged with perversion could have left Mr. Johnson ignorant of the "illness" of this trusted associate in whom he allowed security information to be entrusted. If it was ignorance it is evidence of a lack of proper checking of his associates—or it is a cynicism equal to that shown in his silence on Billie Sol Estes, Bobby Baker and the TV monopoly which is possible only by decisions of a government agency over which he has control.

It is also largely based on the past voting record of Congressman and Senator Johnson on civil rights measures before he became a candidate for President and used civil rights as a major issue. In 1948 at a Democratic rally he stated "this civil rights program is a farce and sham—an effort to set up a police state in the guise of liberty." In May of 1948 at Austin, Texas he said: "I am against the FEPC because if a man can tell you whom you must hire, he can tell you whom you can't employ." Again in 1956 at the National Convention he said: "I am not now and never have been an advocate of civil rights. I don't think I ever will be."

These are some of the reasons why many people question the integrity of Mr. Johnson. They are also concerned over his forcing through a tax cut when at the same time adding on to the federal debt while charging his opponent with irresponsibility in calling for greater fiscal responsibility by the government.

As to the criticism of Mr. Goldwater, he voted against the civil rights law this year even though he knew it would be a strong weapon against him. But he stated he did so because he questioned the constitutionality of the public accommodation section. He has been charged with being "trigger happy" because he insists our commander in Europe should have authority to use tactical nuclear weapons in case of attack by an enemy. It is apparent now that such authority is being given to the NATO commander—because it is the only way to defend the world during the few minutes between the launching of an enemy attack and retaliation. Such sure retaliation is the surest safeguard against such at attack.

Goldwater is accused of being opposed to social security, but his record shows he has voted for every social security pension program since he became a senator. But he insists it should be based on a sound financial basis so the retired people can be assured they will get what is promised them.

Over and over he is charged with advocating use of nuclear weapons in Viet Nam. What he actually said was "Some people think we should use the atom bomb to defoliate the jungle—but I doubt we will ever do so." But all we hear is that he is trigger-happy and wants to use the bomb.

There are many issues on which I disagree with the senator. But I consider him a thoroughly honest man and one whose judgment I would trust in a crisis. He speaks his mind and votes as he believes is right. No one has spoken more harshly in denouncing the leader of the Birch Society. He is dedicated to the principle that a nation, like an individual, is certain to end in bankruptcy if it continues to live on deficit spending. In my opinion we need him if we are to escape the irresponsibility and misuse of power so many people are willing to accept as political expediency.—L.A.C.

Wilson Eyes Annual Meet at Summit

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Laborite Prime Minister Harold Wilson wants to hold annual summit talks on East-West relations, government surces said Saturday.

Wilson, a strong advocate of direct top-level diplomacy, envisages the United Nations as the forum for his projected summitry.

Heads of government, including above all the United Stated, Britain and the Soviet Union, and possibly other leaders would meet under this scheme at least once a year either at the United Nations General Assembly or at some other agreed occasion in the United Nations.

* * * *

WILSON was expected to discuss the plan when he meets the U.S. President after the Nov. 3 election in Washington.

Additional summit meetings could be arranged if and when required.

Wilson apparently holds that major policy decisions require the presence of heads of government in the light of changed processes of world diplomacy.

Preparatory work would be conducted, as before, through traditional diplomatic channels.

Britain may take the initiative for an early East-West summit early in the new year.

* * * *

SUCH a summit would provide the first opportunity for Western leaders to assess the new Kremlin leadership and to size up their policy designs.

Despite Kremlin assurances that Moscow's foreign policy will continue unchanged, there remains considerable uncertainty in the West as to future developments.

British preference for the United Nations as a meeting place stems from the Labor government's plan to strengthen its cooperation with the world organization.

Clear Son in Death of Father

Funeral service for Robert Hope Usher, 40, of Costa Mesa, will be held Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Brown Colonial Mortuary, Santa Ana. Usher, a service station manager, was first thought to have been killed by a blow from his son Friday night.

A coroner's autopsy, however, revealed that the blow dealt during an argument with Robert Earl Usher, 16, did not result in death. The reported cause was a cerebral hemorrhage.

* * * *

AN ARGUMENT ensued when the elder Usher wanted to accompany the family to the store Friday night. He was told to remain home and the son hit him during a dispute, officers said.

Although never accused of murder, young Usher was held on an open charge at Orange County Juvenile Hall until the coroner's report was filed.

Other surviving members of the family, who live at 1935 Pomona Ave., are the wife, Mary Frances; a son, Tony, and daughter, Mary.

Burma Ferry Boat Sinks, 55 Drown

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—A ferry boat hit a submerged wreck and sank Friday on Sittang River, about 200 miles northeast of here. Port authorities said Saturday 55 persons drowned.

The ferry was carrying 150 passengers and a police escort of six. Ten of the bodies recovered were those of children. Most of the other dead were women, the reports said.

the council had picked as Suu's premier the man named two months ago as the mayor of Saigon—Tran Van Huong.

* * * *

INFORMANTS said earlier the council had been expected to name Interior Minister Nguyen Luu Vien as the new premier. He is a cousin of Khanh.

Khanh did not formally resign as he held his farewell reception, but in a brief speech left little doubt of his resignation, saying: "I count on all of you to continue to carry out our mission to rid our beloved fatherland of Communists."

As Khanh spoke, the army announced that three generals and five colonels had been drummed out of the army for trying to overthrow him Sept. 13.

By stepping down from the premiership as he promised two months ago, Khanh left an administrative vacuum in Saigon in which almost anything could happen.

* * * *

MILITARY intelligence agencies are alert for new coup attempts, and there have been reports of troop movements that could be aimed at heading off a coup.

For the moment, South Viet Nam was without a government, and cabinet ministers themselves said Saturday night they did not know who the government was or where orders would be coming from.

There was a sense of great pessimism and impending danger expressed by men who have led the outgoing Khanh government. At the least, a new period of political upheaval appeared to be beginning.

Several ministers of the Khanh government told the Associated Press they feared that the coming weeks and months would bring a new crisis of instability and uncertainty in the war-torn nation.

"ABOUT the best we can hope for at this point," one of them said, "is that somehow Viet Nam will survive the terrible days ahead."

U.S., Russia to Exchange Satellites' Weather Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson Saturday announced the United States and the Soviet Union had reached agreement on exchange of weather information collected by orbiting satellites.

A direct communications link between Washington and Moscow will be used.

Johnson said in a statement that formal terms of the pact are expected to be released at a New York meeting next week of the United Nations committee on peaceful uses of outer space. He called it "a good step forward" in building a world weather system.

* * * *

THE PROJECT grew out of a speech by the late President John F. Kennedy to the United Nations Sept. 25, 1961. Johnson reiterated his support for it in a speech last June at Holy Cross College.

The President said "the agreement provides for exchange on a reciprocal basis of weather information gathered by satellites. For a short initial period conventional data will be exchanged."

He said it was hoped that other nations belonging to the World Meteorological Organization would eventually participate. He added that he expected to announce soon the opening of a world weather center here.

The World Meteorological Organization has chosen Washington and Moscow to be two world weather centers.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT said test transmissions already have been exchanged. He said the new communications link would speed up transmission in both directions.

"The American weatherman and the American public will immediately benefit from these improvements," he said.

The White House also made public a letter in which Johnson instructed Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges to take any necessary action to bring federal agencies into the world weather system.

Gas Bill Advertising Presents Possibilities

By GEORGE ERES

The mailman's arrival with the next bimonthly bill from the city Gas, Water & Trash Department is eagerly being awaited to see if some alert young executive and City Hall has recognized the potentialities of what started with the last billing.

You will recall, in opening your last gas bill, a gaily printed color slip calling attention to increased flights by one of our airlines from Long Beach Municipal Airport.

* * * *

OVER A PERIOD of time, various causes get a boost through the department bill mailings — concerts and civic affairs. These announcements add a little touch of warmth to the big coolness of the bill and make you feel that you are not forgotten in this big city.

However, the airline advertisement added a new dimension and shows what an advertising man can do if he puts his mind to the matter.

The ad man has always had this problem with direct mail advertising. Most people can immediately smell out the regular mail or bills. They automatically dispose of the circulars, and letters not worth finishing. The ad man's problem has been how to get the public to, at least, open his mail.

So, whoever, got the airline advertisement into the gas bill envelope has scored another point. Good man, Puffmaster!

Is City Hall aware of all the angles here?

Working on the assumtpion that the airline paid for the advertisement and possibly some of the cost of mailing—there is a gold mine here that the city hasn't even begun to dig.

The city could put out to bid the concession of advertising through gas bill mail.

* * * *

THIS THING could get so big that the department might even have to go back to monthly instead of bi-monthly billing to handle the scheduled advertising.

There may be a few squawks from some guys who would rather fight than accept force-fed advertising. They can switch to all electric houses. We'll still get 'em with the water bill.

Anyway, the city ought to run the idea through the water and gas pipes and see how it flows.

Clear Woman of Direct Part in Trunk Murder

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Police Saturday cleared pretty Naval reservist Alice Ewing, 23, of any direct part in the murder of a nurse whose body was stuffed into a trunk and shipped to Cleveland.

"She is not attempting any deception in her statements to Cincinnati police," in the death of Wanda Cook, said Det. Chief Col. Henry Sandman after Miss Ewing took a lie detector test.

Miss Ewing was charged with shipping the body to Cleveland and not reporting its presence to the coroner. This is a misdemeanor and she was freed on $500 bond. Her case was continued to Nov. 7 by Police Court Judge William F. Keating at the request of her lawyer, Daniel Davies of Newport, Ky.

The other principal in the case, Miss Ewing's financee, Robert Ray Abbott, 21, Dayton, Ky., was held in Newport, Ky., on a first degree murder warrant issued by Cincinnati authorities. He refused to waive extradition and authorities here are taking steps to have him brought here for trial.

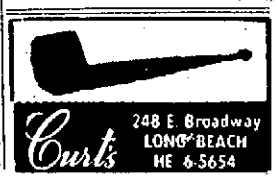

Shortly before Miss Ewing took the lie detector test, Abbot, in an interview in Newport jail said he and his fiancee bought the pistol used in the killing two weeks ago. He said Miss Ewing frequently drove alone at night after leaving him at his home and that she wanted protection.

He has accused his fiancee of killing Miss Cook in a jealous rage after learning that he and the nurse had cocktails in his room at the Sheraton-Gibson on Thursday, Oct. 15.

Girl Sky Diver Dies as Chute Opens Late

HILLSBOROUGH, N.J. (UPI)—A young woman sky diver was killed Saturday when her parachute failed to open soon enough in a jump near Decker airport.

State police said Miss Sandra Rothberg, 22, and two companions, Barry Auger, 26, and Lucio Aliotti, 28, all of New York City, were practicing acrobatic stunts during a free fall from 7,500 feet.

Herbert Hoover Finds Rest Today Near Iowa Birthplace

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert C. Hoover goes home today.

The body of the 31st president is to be flown to Iowa, to rest in the little town of West Branch, on a grassy knoll overlooking the two-room cottage where he was born.

From the Capitol rotunda, where he has lain in state for a day and a half, the Flag-draped casket is to be carried at 9:30 a.m. EST.

The U.S. Navy band will sound ruffles and flourishes, play "Hail to the Chief" and the hymn "Abide With Me; Fast Falls the Eventide."

* * * *

WHILE A 21-gun salute sounds on the autumn air, a hearse will carry the body across the Potomac to the military terminal of Washington National Airport. There the Air Force band will sound softly the strains of the hymn "Now the Day Is Over."

Then four military planes, one bearing the body, the others family and friends, will depart for Cedar Rapids Airport. In one of them will be Sen. Barry Goldwater, candidate for the presidency that Hoover won and then lost in the long ago.

Arriving at Cedar Rapids about 2:55 p.m. EST, the funeral party will take a 42-minute motor journey to West Branch. Included in the graveside service will be the playing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," one of Hoover's favorites.

No exact count was kept of the mourners who passed the bier in the Capitol rotunda since it was opened to the public at about 3 p.m. Friday, but an estimate by military authorities was between 20,000 and 25,000.

Hoover's son, Herbert Hoover Jr., issued a statement expressing "appreciation for the honors that have been paid to my father in Washington by the government and the people of the United States and foreign countries."

* * * *

A 10-MINUTE ceremony with the Iowa National Guard band playing ruffles and flourishes, "Hail to the Chief" and a hymn requested by the family, "Fight the Good Fight," will be held at the Cedar Rapids Airport after Hoover's body arrives there.

Dr. Elton Trueblood, 63, of Earlham College in Indiana, the Quaker scholar who will conduct graveside rites at West Bench, will offer a prayer, an Army bugler will play "Taps," and the Flag draping the coffin will be presented to Herbert Hoover Jr., the elder of the former president's two sons.

Nikita Planned Farm Shakeup—Too Late

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev was planning yet another reorganization of Russia's flagging agriculture, but was thwarted by the ruling Communist Party presidium, informed sources said Saturday.

The sources said the former premier's farm management was held partly responsible for last year's disastrous harvest and appeared to be the straw that broke the camel's back, leading to his downfall.

* * * *

THE disclosures came as west European Communist leaders converged on Moscow for a fuller explanation of Khruschchev's abrupt ouster and his political disgrace. There also were these major developments:

—The Hungarian Communist Party announced its full acceptance of the removal of Khrushchev from power, and pledged full support to the new Russian leadership.

It was the first unqualified formal acceptance by a European Communist Party of the manner in which the Soviet leadership change took place.

—Western officials in Berlin were speculating that East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht might already be in Moscow to discuss the change in Soviet leadership. They said he had not been seen in public since Oct. 12.

—Albania Communist leader Spiro Koleka called the Khrushchev ouster a "great victory."

—Informed sources in Helsinki said veteran party leader Ville Pessi may be on his way out for joining in the attack on Khrushchev and for the party's poor showing in the municipal elections.

Pravda Repeats Russ Refusal to Pay U.N. Costs

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda Saturday marked the 19th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations charter by repeating Russian refusals to pay for U. N. peacekeeping operations.

But the Communist Party mouthiece did not repeat earlier Soviet threats to pull out of the United Nations.

In a brief mention of Peking, the article repeated Soviet charges that "the ruling circles of the United States are preventing the People's Republic of China from taking her lawful seat in the organization."

Among the flaws, the article mentioned the peacekeeping operations in The Congo and the Middle East which the Soviet Union considers illegal.

139 Experts on Reds Say, 'Beat Barry'

NEW YORK (AP)—A group of 139 scholars specializing in communism, Russia and China issued a statement Saturday calling for the "decisive defeat" of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

They said the Republican candidate for president has expressed views on communism which are "unsound and potentially dangerous."

* * * *

GOLDWATER'S policies, the scholars said, would increase the chance of war, aid and comfort the most dangerous Communist elements, alienate many non-Communists, and spell the end "to the hopeful but precarious growth of diversity in the Soviet bloc."

The statement did not mention President Johnson.

THE SCHOLARS included Abram Bergson and Merle E. Fainsod of Harvard's Russian research center; Zbigniew Brzezinski, Alexander Dallin and Henry L. Roberts, of Columbia; Gerold T. Robinson, founder and first director of Columbia's Russian Institute and wartime chief of the USSR division of the Office of Strategic Services, and the chairmen or directors of area programs and Russian departments at 15 colleges and universities from coast to coast.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Moise Tshombe, once "Public Enemy No. 1" of the United Nations, has congratulated the world organization on its 19th birthday.

Three times, as secessionist chieftain of copper-rich Katanga, Tshombe fought a U.N. army of more than 20,000 men. Friday night, in a radio speech on the eve of United Nations Day, Tshombe spoke warmly of U.N. efforts to prevent The Congo from being shattered into fragments.

Proposition 14 Forum Scheduled Tuesday Nite

The flurry around Proposition 14, the housing initiative, promises some final week campaign excitement with rallies and special attention to it by political figures.

Biggest local exercise is a public forum on Prop. 14 at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Jewish Community Center, Willow Street and Grand Avenue. It is sponsored by Californians Against Prop. 14.

Clive Graham, Long Beach realtor and newly appointed chairman of the California Fair Employment Practice Commission, will chair the panel: Rev. William C. Cole, president, Long Beach Ministerial Union, and Myron Blumberg, CAP 14's Long Beach chairman.

* * * *

GRAHAM was 1958 president of the California Real Estate Association, the group sponsoring the initiative which he opposes.

The initiative would nullify state laws against discrimination in housings rentals and sales, would prohibit legislative bodies from acting in this field and would give property owners absolute discretion in sale, rental or lease of their real property.

The public is invited and may ask questions of panelists.

Meanwhile, John T. Webster, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, announced that the first persons who can prove that the proposed constitutional amendment will be "forever frozen into our state constitution" will be paid a $5,000 cash award, citing this claim as a misrepresentation by opponents of Prop. 14.

STATE Sen. Thomas M. Rees, noting that this offer is statewide, accused the committee for Yes on Prop. 14 of "perpetrating a cheap political trick . . . to prove its own deceitful propaganda."

Rees said the award is a hoax to cover up the real intent of the proposition, which he suggested is to "legalize discrimination in housing, forbid the legislature, cities, counties and courts from taking action against such discrimination unless another constitutional amendment is passed and underminig the 115-year-old section of the state constitution guaranteeing all citizens the right to acquire property."

In another development, U. S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., came out strongly against Prop. 14 Saturday as a measure which "would mock the American Constitution and the American conscience." Kuchel said he feared the proposition also would endanger maximum participation by Californians in the benefits of federal housing and financing laws.

* * * *

LOCALLY, Willard Hastings, Democratic candidate for Assembly in the East Long Beach-Signal Hill 39th District, said at a Saturday night Democratic rally that only two cases of housing descrimination in Long Beach were reported in the first year of operation of the state's new fair housing act, one of which was withdrawn, the other settled by conciliation.

The Committee for a Yes vote on Prop. 14 and the Bellflower District Board of Realtors will hold an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Simms Park Gym, 16614 S. Clark Ave., Bellflower. William K. Shearer, publisher of the California Statesman, will speak.

BARRY FUND-RAISER

Citizens for Goldwater-Miller will sponsor a $10-a-plate fund-rainsing dinner at 7 p.m. Monday in the Hacienda Restaurant, 301 S. Western Ave., San Pedro.

Arthur Guy, of Long Beach, Los Angeles County chairman for the Goldwater-Miller campaign, will be master of ceremonies. Former Assemblyman Joseph Shell will be the speaker. Tickets may be obtained at campaign headquarters, 747 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

REG DUPUY COFFEE

A coffee hour for Reg Dupuy, Republican candidate for Assembly in the West Long Beach-Lakewood 44th District, will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the residence of Mrs. Michael Leffler, 6558 Dashwood St., Lakewood. Mrs. Bob McCracken will be cohostess. District residents are invited.

Signal Hill Driver Shot at Crossing

A 29-year-old Signal Hill man was shot through the chest late Saturday as he and several companions stopped for a traffic signal at the corner of Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue.

In serious condition in Memorial Hospital was Delbert Wayne Rowell, of 1958 Cherry Ave. The slug, which police believe was a .38 caliber, passed through Rowell's right chest and lodged near his spine.

Officers Rod Mickelson and Robert Hall said Rowell stopped for the signal shortly before 9 p.m. He and his companions are believed to have exchanged words with two men in the crosswalk.

Suddenly, witnesses told officers, one of the men whirled, drew a gun, and shot Rowell from a distance of about 10 feet. The two then fled north on foot on California Avenue.

Vote Shift Predicted by Nixon

FARGO, N.D. (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon flew into North Dakota Saturday on a whirlwind campaign swing for Sen. Barry Goldwater and predicted a "big shift of votes" during the coming week.

The former Republican vice president said the presidential is harder to predict than any during recent years. The campaign between Reunblican presidential nominee Goldwater and President Johnson, he said, "has been pretty rough."

But he said he felt domestic and international events of the "past few days" have switched the campaign from personalities to issues.

Nixon made his comments at a news conference on his arrival at Fargo.

LBJ SAID TO FEEL AGENCY IS HIS OWN

Involvement of FBI in Politics Alarming Angle of Jenkins Case

By FREDERIC W. COLLINS
I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — One of the more disturbing aspects of the Walter Jenkins affair is the new evidence it has provided that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is being brought — whether or not against its will — into politics.

This city is full of credible stories about President Johnson's obsessive interest in FBI reports on individuals, in and out of public life, whose activities engage Mr. Johnson's attention.

Now, in the stretch drive of a presidential election campaign, the FBI has been called upon by Mr. Johnson to make a report on any security aspects in the case of Mr. Jenkins, a close Johnson assistant whose arrest twice on morals charges brought into the campaign the issue of how the White House safeguards national security information.

* * * *

AND ON THE basis of an investigation lasting barely more than a week, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has said no information was obtained that Jenkins had "compromised the security or interests of the United States in any manner."

Assuming, as everyone is inclined to, that this is the absolute truth, the question still remains what reliance can be placed on an FBI report carried out in such a short time, at such a time, and with the intent from the beginning that it should be made public. (According to UPI, Mr. Hoover sent flowers to Jenkins in the hospital, with instruction that his card show up plainly).

Why should Mr. Johnson have ordered the FBI report with the intent of making it public?

* * * *

WHAT HUMAN being would expect Mr. Hoover, under the circumstances, to have come in with a report — for the public, 12 days before the election — that Mr. Jenkins had indeed compromised the national security or interests, if that had been the case.

And another inescapable question: If the election prospects did not seem so certainly to be in Mr. Johnson's favor, or seemed certainly to favor Barry Goldwater, what then would human nature expect Mr. Hoover to do?

Actually, a finding that Mr. Jenkins did not compromise the national security is almost completely irrelevant to the real issue, which is not Mr. Jenkins guardianship of national security information, but Mr. Johnson's.

Unfortunately, and tragically, the behavior of which Mr. Jenkins was accused is of a sort which bitter experience in many governments has demonstrated can lead to extortion of secrets by blackmail.

* * * *

LET IT BE assumed that Jenkins, as he says, would lay down his life before revealing any such information. Matters are not supposed to be permitted to reach such a critical stage. Every time a deviate is kicked out of a British ministry, there is an uproar in this country about the sieve-like nature of British security procedures.

Which leads to another point. For whatever reason, the fact remains that the FBI did not follow through on Mr. Jenkins after it connected him up with the 1959 arrest. Is it to be supposed that Mr. Hoover, already under criticism from the Warren Commission, would be eager to come in with a report saying that a security lapse had in fact been a consequence of its failure to follow through on the first Jenkins case?

MR. JOHNSON personally went out of his way to offer reporters confidential information on Don Reynolds, the insurance man who, in the Bobby Baker case, asserted that Jenkins had sold him some unwanted advertising time on the Johnson TV station in reciprocity for Johnson's purchase of a life-insurance policy.

Mr. Johnson appears to have had an FBI report on at least one Republican convention speaker, a member of Congress, who was inveighing against "immorality in Washington" on convention TV.

He is said to use FBI reports for bedside reading the way Eisenhower read westerns.

The idea that Mr. Johnson regards the FBI as his personal agency for investigation and surveillance is not to be taken lightly.

Say Jenkins Probed Plea of AF Officer

much-decorated military man.

After his demotion, they added, he won further decorations and was promoted to master sergeant before leaving the service.

* * * *

THE WOMAN told Air Force officials in 1959 that the officer had been making indecent proposals to her over the telephone.

Acting under instructions, the woman set a trap for the officer who was arrested. He was subsequently allowed to resign his commission, but permitted to retain an enlisted man's rating.

The sources said that in his attempts to regain his commission the former officer contacted as many as 20 other officials on Capitol Hill. He was identified as a native of Texas which apparently explained why he included Johnson's office in his pleas, the sources said. It is not unusual for constituents to get their senators or representatives to aid them in pleading cases with the government.

Dean Burch, Republican national chairman, issued a statement Saturday asking the White House why the FBI report on Jenkins did not mention the Air Force officer. But the sources said it was apparent that the incident was included in the FBI report.

* * * *

IN ITS report Thursday on Jenkins' arrests, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said an eight-day investigation of his background showed that Jenkins had "limited association with some individuals who are alleged to be or who admittedly are, sex deviates." But the report stressed that there was no evidence that he had "ever engaged in improper acts with them."

The report also said that there was no indciation that Jenkins "has compromised the security or interest of the United States in any manner."

Asked specifically whether it had investigated Jenkins' handling of the officers' case, the FBI said it had "no comment."

A spokesan denied earlier reports that it had confirmed a newspaper story indicating Jenkins had "pressured" the Air Force to reinstate the officer.

The dead included six passengers and the express conductor.

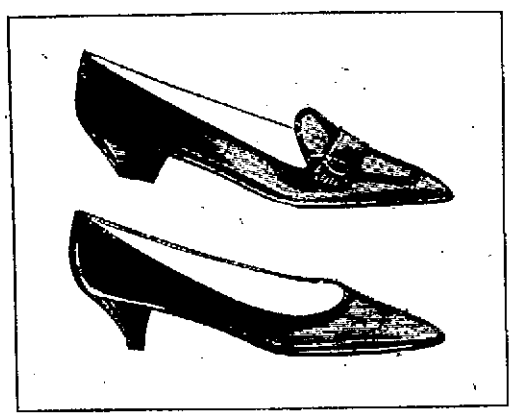

Soviets Launch Cosmos No. 49

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union Saturday launched another Cosmos satellite, 49th in its series of unmanned Cosmos satellites designed for space exploration, the Tass news agency reported.

It was the third Cosmos launching this month and followed by 12 days the successful 24-hour flight of the spacecraft Sunrise with three persons aboard.

Tass said Cosmos-49 was in an orbit with an apogee of 294 miles, a perigee of 156 miles and an orbital inclination to the equatorial plane of 49 degrees.

Efficient Efficiency Experts Unsnarled Tokyo's Traffic

(John Dixon of The Independent, Press - Telegram Sports Department has completed his assignment in covering the 1964 Olympics. Here he looks at Japan's answer to the mass transportation puzzle which has found no solution in Southern California.)

By JOHN DIXON
I. P-T Staff Writer

TOKYO — Tokyo, a delightful, mammoth toy store of a city, has solved its transportation problems.

This pyramid of 10,600,000 persons can advance from one part of the city to another more quickly and with less expense than inhabitants of New York, London, Paris, Rome or Southern California. And it's more fun.

The puzzle, solved by efficiency experts who really are efficient, is composed of trolleys, trains, buses, subways and monorails.

* * * *

ALL OPERATE on stopwatch schedules. "Pushers" make sure of that.

Prides of Japan's rapid transit scheme are a Walt Disney monorail and a science fiction train.

The $55 million monorail, completed in 17 months, trims travel time between the Ginza (downtown) and the airport from 90 minutes to 15.

The 65 mile-an-hour flyer, part of the $3.5 billion Olympic Games construction program, carries 500 passengers on an every-10-minutes schedule.

It's more comfortable and scenic than its Disneyland predecessor. The coaches ride on rubber tires atop a concrete rail. The heavily cushioned seats swivel, enabling passengers to get a 360 degree panorama of Tokyo and the bay.

The Tokyo-to-Osaka line commenced operations Oct. 1, and except for the fellow who set an Olympic record of being locked in the men's room for 2½ hours, there hasn't been a complaint.

* * * *

THE TOKAIDO line connects Japan's two largest cities, 322 miles distant, in four hours. Time will be cut to three hours after 12 months of trials.

Since the superexpress "Hikari" reaches a top speed of 125 miles an hour, track and train design are unique.

Cars are equipped with air springs, and are air tight. The double tracks are one mile long instead of the 25 yards standard on other lines to insure a smooth ride.

There's built-in safety, too.

Grade crossings have been eliminated. Directions to the crew are given by radiowave, and if ignored, the train is automatically halted. Switches operate by remote control. Substations are equipped with seismometers, and power is automatically cut if an earthquake of a high magnitude is recorded.

* * * *

ABOUT 50,000 passengers a day are paying between $6.25 and $14 to ride the streamliner.

The subway is expensive, 10 cents, while the local trains vary between 5 and 10 cents. It's possible to ride 55 miles to one of the Olympic sites for a nickel.

But a foreigner will encounter some difficulties.

The Japanese are too helpful. They go out of their way to give me directions, and I go out of my way trying to follow them.

Taxis are as exciting as the roller coaster and just as cheap, 28 cents for a mile and a quarter.

Taxis, it is said, are listed in the telephone book under "Kamikaze." Perhaps Japan would have won the war if Tojo had used taxis instead of tanks. The drivers all think they're jet pilots, with no one else in the sky.

* * * *

GRAB A cab here and odds are that you will wind up at a police station. Not for a complaint, but for information.

The streets have no names, the houses no numbers.

In some districts there are numbers, but the houses are numbered in the order they were built. At 3-chrome 456, Mr. Doe may live live next door to 3-chrome 789 instead of 458.

In desperation some neighborhoods band together and have maps drawn. They post it on a signboard, but this is of little help to the struggling foreigner. The map is in Japanese.

PROBERS REPORT

Research-Fund Balance Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional subcommittee proposed Saturday that the federal government try to correct what it called the vastly unequal dollar distribution of research funds to the states. More than half the money goes to California, New York and Massachusetts.

But the subcommittee also warned that any attempt at correction must not penalize those institutions and areas which, due to their own wisdom and effort — as well as their favorable locations — have "built the kind of research competence to attract federal grants and contracts."

The report made by a House space subcommittee, was based on a long series of hearings on the geographic distribution of federal research and development funds.

* * * *

THE SUBCOMMITTEE said that in the 1963 fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1963, California received $3.8 billion in contracts or 38.4% of all the research contracts awarded by the Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, and other agencies.

New York received $917 million in contracts or 9.2% of the total. Massachusetts received $452 million worth of the contracts or 4.6% of the total.

The top three were followed by Maryland and the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, Texas, Washington, New Jersey, Florida and Missouri.

The subcommittee noted, however, that if the statistics are reviewed from a different angle, the share of California, New York, and Massachusetts does not seem so great.

For example, the subcommittee said, when population is taken into account, California ranks third in the amount of research funds per capita, Massachusetts ranks ninth, and New York ranks below the national average. Nevada is first with $346 of research funds for every resident of the state.

Despite this, the subcommittee still viewed the situation as out of balance and made several recommendations, including these:

1. The White House should call a government-industry conference to consider ways to achieve a more even geographical distribution of federal funds.

2. The Office of Science and Technology, with the help of other agencies, should draw up criteria that would indicate to the federal government when an institution seems to have potential for growth into a first-rate scientific and technological center.

3. The National Science Foundation should receive extra funds for the purpose of insuring the existence of at least one major center of research and technology in each region of the nation.

4. Agencies should place a reasonable emphasis on developing new centers of technology and science.

5. Institutions that now have government-financed scientific equipment should share this equipment with qualified scientists from other institutions.

Popcorn Munchers Say Johnson Has It in the Bag

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—President Johnson has popped into a commanding lead in what may well be the most unscientific political prognosis since Aunt Agatha called the shot on Cal Coolidge on the basis of an aching corn.

The presidential Popcorn Poll shows Johnson ahead of Barry Goldwater in 43 states, with 78% of the popular vote. It has Goldwater ahead in Arizona, Louisana, Mississippi, Maryland and Utah, with Oregon and Wisconsin even.

* * * *

DONT LAUGH. It may sound corny, but the nation's theater-going munchers and fireside poppers haven't missed yet.

Pollster Jim Blevins, who claims to be the world's leading popcorn vender, started it all in 1948, but was almost forced to abandon the poll before the second feature began. His idea was to decorate his popcorn bags with the Democratic donkey and Republican elephant and decide who would win the forthcoming election by counting the number of bags sold.

The Popcorn Poll showed Harry S. Truman would win, while other—more scientific—polls were predicting a victory for Thomas E. Dewey. To the wonderment of everybody except the popcorn-eating public, Truman won.

Blevins hit it on the nose again in 1952 with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. When Eisenhower ventured for a second term four years later, the popcorn poll not only called his victory, it forcast all 48 states correctly.

* * * *

RICHARD NIXON jumped to an early 2 to 3% popular vote lead in 1960, but that quickly shifted to John Fitzgerald Kennedy after the first of the television debates. Kennedy held the Popcorn Poll lead right on through his victoly. Johnson's margin has been increasing as the count progresses this year.

"We've never attached any scientific significance to it," says popcorn mongul Bevins, "But it has been uncanningly accurate. It just happens to work. I realize it may be just as wrong as can be this year."

There are a number of reasons it should miss. Children—those who can write—joyously cast their ballots right alongside adults.

Blevins has switched to ballots instead of Republican and Democrat bags because "it's harder to eat about four million bags after an election, particularly Nixon bags." He now places ballots in supermarkets, as well as theaters.

* * * *

MULTIPLE voting is another unscientific practice.

"There's no law against stuffing a popcorn box" Blevins says.

One thing going for the poll is the huge sample. Blevins expects to use most of the 20 million ballots he had printed for the 1964 election. He has spurned responses by offering a trip to the inauguration as a prize for the guess closest to the winning vote.

"How did you know?" Kennedy scribbled on a congratulatory note to the 1960 winner.

Blevins refuses to say whether he's a Democrat or Republican.

"I'm a poll taker," he says.

University of Iowa Drops 'State'

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The state university of Iowa was given approval to drop "state" from its title.

Dr. Howard Bowen, university president, asked the state board of regents to adopt the change, saying in common usage the word "state" is generally dropped.

One purpose of the change is to avoid confusion with the name of Iowa State University at Ames.

U.S.-State at Odds on Driver License Issue

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—May a person whose state drivers' license has been revoked drive a government vehicle with a federal license?

The question of federal versus state jurisdition is pending in U.S. District Court.

It arose when an Army Corps of Engineers employe, Denton C. Hippensteel, 23, of Mobile, was stopped by state troopers Oct. 7 and charged with driving while his Alabama driver's license was revoked.

After consultation with U.S. attorneys, Hippensteel filed for removal of the case to U.S. District Court.

The petition contends Hippensteel, although without a state drivers' license, had in his possession at the time of his citation a valid U.S. vehicle operator's license.

7 Protestant Leaders Hit Political Tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven Protestant leaders Saturday issued a statement deploring "attacks on personalities and the use of base insinuations which have marked the presidential campaign to date."

"We remind both parties and their candidates that no party and no person has a monopoly on Godliness and morality," said the statement.

It said the "morality issue" has a place in political debate, but should not be used to avoid discussion of "the great public issues," including poverty, race, and peace.

"These are issues of morality of the highest order, and must concern the moral conscience of every thinking citizen," the statement said.

It was signed by The Right Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church; the Rev. Edler Hawkins, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; The Rev. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; The Rev. Norman J. Baugher, secretary of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren; The Rev. Ben. M. Herbster, president of the United Church of Christ; Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, president of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church, and Rev. A. Dale Fiers, executive secretary of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

Fire Fatal to Taos Woodcarving Artist

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — A renowned New Mexico woodcarver, Patrocino Barela, 62, burned to death early Saturday in his small workshop and home at Canon, two miles east of Taos.

Barela has been featured in "Who's Who in American Arts," "Life" and numerous art magazines. He specialized in carving wooden santos, and his works are collectors' items in New York and Europe.

Coffee May Stir Latin and U.S. Row

By PETER KNOX

LONDON (UPI) — Coffee could cause a major row between the United States and Latin America unless the U.S. Congress moves quickly to satisfy its southern neighbors.

Trouble has arisen because the outgoing 88th Congress failed to pass legislation making the United States a fully operative member of the London-based 59-nation International Coffee Council.

The council is the governing body of the 1962 international agreement between all the world's major coffee producing nations — Brazil, Colombia and other Latin American nations predominate — and the consuming countries.

• • • •

ITS AIM IS to equate supply and demand through a quota system so that prices remain stable. This is no easy task and already in its 18-month life the council has been the seat for a hectic tug of war between interests representing the growers wanting a higher return and the housewives wanting cheaper coffee in the shops.

So far an uneasy peace has been maintained. Now the attitude of Congress on U.S. membership threatens to rock the council's foundations.

• • • •

THEY SAID THAT the United States imports about half the world's coffee and without its full participation in the council the organization would be virtually inoperable.

Latin American sources here have made it repeatedly clear that if this happens the United States would face a real crisis in its relations with the alliance for progress nations.

There is one body of opinion inside the producers' camp at the coffee council that favors telling the United States flatly that coffee prices are going to have to rise if Latin American economies are going to stand on their own feet and living standards there are going to go up to adequate levels.

Another, and perhaps more powerful group, however, urges caution.

• • • •

THEIR ARGUMENT is that it is of primary importance to keep both the American housewife happy and the United States in the international agreement.

These sources recognize that these are twin problems —many United States citizens and congressmen have an innate hostility to international commodity agreements which savor of price-fixing arrangements, and they take coffee costs as a criterion for judging living standards.

They fear that if prices go up too fast then housewives will limit buying, while at the same time congressional resistance to full membership of the agreement will be increased.

Sensing this problem, other members of the agreement are not pushing the United States too hard on the membership issue, and, for the moment, are soft pedalling the dispute over prices.

unfortunate and unpleasant distressing situation that probably resulted from intense overwork and he has my sympathy and my understanding, and his wife and their lovely family have my prayers and best wishes."

Johnson talked about Jenkins and Baker, the former secretary to Senate Democrats, during what was billed as an "informal and unrehearsed" question-and-answer session with six young Democratic supporters.

Asked to discuss "charges of corruption in your administration, specifically Jenkins and Baker," Johnson said that almost any administration has "improprieties or mistakes."

"Robert Baker was an employe of the Senate for some 10 years," Johnson said. "He was a very faithful and dedicated and competent employe during the eight years I was (Senate Democratic) leader. I worked very closely with him.

"He came in early in the morning, he worked late. He was very devoted to the Senate."

Baker resigned a year ago when his complex outside business ventures came to light. The Senate Rules Committee still is investigating his activities for any sign of conflict of interest, but the latest inquiry has been postponed until after the Nov. 3 election.

The President said Baker has been criticized for "some outside interests" and noted he has been investigated by the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Senate committee.

"I am sure that if there had been any laws violated that the matter will be presented to the proper authorities. In our own American way, with the sense of justice we all have, Baker will be called to account and his side of the case will be heard and appropriate action will be taken.

"I have urged the FBI to and I have asked the people with whom I have discussed the matter to present to the FBI any bit of information they had that would indicate a law violation."

MURPHY AT 'WINGS' BANQUET

State's 'Firsts' Hit by Murphy

in New Delhi and Brussels, captivated foreign observers with the "bright and shining face of America."

MURPHY alluded to his former career as a song and dance man in the movies—"I was a good one"—and promised his audience he would give "the best performance of my life" as a United States senator.

As in recent previous speeches here, Murphy charged California is Number 1 in crime, unemployment and taxes; new industry is not attracted and old industry is trying to get out. He said he would work, as a senator, to repair and restoring the bracero act. That act, expiring in December, threatens a 30% loss in our largest industry, he said, unless measures are taken to assure the crop-harvesting labor supply the bracero program provided.

Murphy charged again that aerospace and electronics contracts are going to other states at California's expense, for "immoral and dishonest political experiency."

Blasting "managed news" in the administration, Murphy said the time may be here when we should say, "Look, Mr. Government, we're entitled to know the truth; we can handle it."

He said he is making "no such claim" that Sen. Pierre Salinger is a carpetbagger, adding, "he came in such a hurry he didn't even have a bag."

He accused Salinger of borrowing his stands for free enterprise and for a crash program for desalting seawater, and remarked, "I felt I was getting through to this boy, but then I realized it wouldn't do any good—he can't vote!"

Goldwater Assails HHH as Socialistic

"Look closely, my fellow Americans," he said. "At this curious crew who would run your country. My opponent calls them the camp of unity. What a curious camp. Here you find unity of bosses, bosses of big cities, bosses of big unions and bosses of big business. Here you find the corrupt, the immoral, the power-mad and the radicals of the left."

The senator's motorcade into Corpus Christi was delayed when his convertible top refused to come down. While another convertible was wheeled into place, Goldwater played catch with a small boy who had a football, and shoot hands with 50 or 60 persons who had gathered.

* * * *

THE motorcade looped around the downtown streets of the city by the Gulf of Mexico. Crowds were sparse, looking to be only about normal for a Saturday afternoon.

There was scattered applause and a few cheers, but mostly silence. LBJ signs outnumbered Goldwater signs along the ruote. There were few of either kind.

Once inside the Municipal Auditorium, it was a different story. The crowd overflowed the 7,000 capacity and was wildly enthusiastic.

Goldwater encountered more technical difficulties when his microphone was temporarily dead.

"This is as dead as some of Lyndon's programs," he quipped. He began with reference to the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, promising to keep it in operation if elected.

same speech he had in Austin, attacking Humphrey and what he called the "socialistic program" of the ADA.

* * * *

CONTENDING that the ADA and Humphrey opposed censorship which would eliminate pornographic literature from newsstands, he said:

"I think we have to have some censorship in this country, and I think most Americans agree with that."

"The second man is just as important as the first man," Goldwater said, adding that Humphrey had voted with the ADA during most of his Senate career.

In Austin, Goldwater told the crowd he did not plan to talk about "your fellow Texans," but when he mentioned Johnson's name there were loud boos.

act of his would ever "touch off a nuclear war which could kill 300 million people in its first exchange."

One admirer at Chattanooga shouted at the President: "This (appearance) is going to turn the tide in Tennessee."

Tennessee Thousands Hail Chief

Johnson, McKeldin said: "In our hearts we know we're right."

Making the evening even happier for Johnson was news that the Baltimore Sunpapers had endorsed him. He is the first Democratic candidate to win their backing since 1932.

Johnson was halted during his armory speech to an overflow crowd of 10,000 by a group of Goldwater demonstrators. But laughter spread through the crowd when he told the pickets:

"I'm glad we can welcome our friends. They come to our meetings because they like to associate with good people. We need everyone we can get. We welcome them all."

He campaigned earlier in the day in Tennessee, drawing some of the greatest crowd turnouts in the state's political history.

Gov. Frank Clement said the estimated quarter of a million persons who greeted Johnson at Memphis was "the largest crowd ever to greet any candidate for political office in the history of Tennessee." Another estimated 35,000 persons turned out at Chattanooga.

He asked residents of the Volunteer State to give him an overwhelming election triumph to assure the world that Americans reject "campaigns of hate, campaigns of fears, campaigns of smear."

Suspect Stabs Compton Police Officer; Jailed

A Compton policeman was stabbed Saturday night while arresting a man suspected of stealing a carton of cigarettes.

Officer Paul R. Herpin grappled with the suspect for 15 minutes before he was stabbed in the right leg.

Booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, strongarm robbery and resisting arrest was Charles Eves Weatherford, 22, of 711 E. 126th St., near Compton.

Officer Herpin said Weatherford had taken the carton of cigarettes from a clerk in a market at 2019 N. Wilmington Ave.

The officer said about 30 persons watched while he attemtped to subdue the suspect. Herpinw as treated for a three-inch gash at Physicians and Surgeons Hospital and released.

LITTLE HANDSHAKING

Goldwater Use of TV Shrewd

By BILL BROOM
I. P-T Washington Bureau.

WASHINGTON—Out of sight of the politicians and pundits, but in full view of scores of millions, Sen. Barry Goldwater is running a campaign Republican strategists count on to bring him from behind in the 1964 Presidential election.

More than any candidate in history, Goldwater is relying on television to reach the American voter.

Almost $5 million—approximately 40% of the total GOP presidential campaign budget—will be spent by election day to project his face and voice into the nation's homes.

An unexpected windfall within the past four days will enable the party to buy even more television time than originally scheduled.

Since the Federal Communications Commission ruled Goldwater was not entitled to "equal time" to respond to President Johnson's message to the nation on the Soviet leadership shift and Chinese nuclear explosion, an avalanche of contributions has poured into GOP headquarters. It came in response to National Chairman Dean Burch's appeal last Tuesday.

* * * *

THE FIRST day's mail brought 30,000 letters and 3,000 telegrams containing about $300,000. Astonished by the response, Republican headquarters expect Burch's 12-minute appeal will eventually produce almost $1 million. The mail room can't open the letters as fast as they come in.

The Goldwater television campaign—a shrewd mixture of 30-minute speeches before large audiences, five-minute informal chats, and short spot announcements devised by GOP Public Relations Director L. Richard Guylay—was budgeted for $4 million at the start of the campaign.

Published estimates of the total Goldwater campaign budget range from $10 million to $12 million.

* * * *

THE MAIN emphasis in Guylay's programming was placed on the one-minute and 20-second spots.

The average audience for one of the 30-minute shows is 7 to 10 million, although Goldwater's telecast last Tuesday on morality in government doubled that number.

The five - minute "piggyback" programs are wedged into the final segments of regularly scheduled network shows, which have been compressed to make room for them. The five-minute shows, a Guylay brainstorm in the 1956 campaign, are considered particularly effective.

Confronted by 30 minutes of uninterrupted political palaver, the average American viewer often changes programs. But in the final five minutes of his favorite program, there is usually no other place to go.

The same holds true for the one - minute and 20-second spots. Scheduled right, one spot can reach 20 to 40 million persons. The GOP's time buyers are able to saturate with spots in those states where Goldwater's chances are considered best, thus following the dictum he issued at the start of the campaign, "to hunt where the ducks are."

* * * *

EARLY IN THE campaign, Goldwater's television shows concentrated on a wide variety of issues. The GOP National Committee's research showed nearly everyone in the country knew his name, but few knew what he looked like.

A recent newspaper survey reported Goldwater had gained voter favor with the TV appearances. His mild manner, soft voice and general appearance caused many viewers to revise their original estimates which had reflected President Johnson's description of him in a September speech at Atlantic City as "[illegible]ting and raving."

"Now I've seen Goldwater on TV, I like some of his ideas," a Pennsylvania housewife was quoted in one report.

The heavy reliance on television helps to explain some of Goldwater's radical departures from the traditional patterns of campaigning.

* * * *

HE SELDOM draws big crowds, or discusses local issues, and his entrance into many cities has been accomplished in relative solitude. There is little effort by advance men and local party officials to drum up big street welcomes.

Nor does Goldwater set great store on hand-shaking, baby-kissing and other antics from the folklore of electioneering.

Much effort is concentrated on packing the halls, arenas and football stadiums in which he usually delivers the day's major speech—usually over local, state or regional TV.

As a result, there are really two Goldwater campaigns—the subdued and at times indifferent criss-crossing of the nation for personal appearances and the carefully worked out soft-sell over television before millions.

Hard of Hearing!

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Many who have tried this new and proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in certain cases, they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple and painless, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given.

If you have a hearing loss no matter how slight or how bad, it may be helped. Why not find out?

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you, be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination. And if you see no improvement from the first treatment, you are under no obligation to return. Assure your appointment by calling 591-1305, 2067 Atlantic Ave., L.B. Dr. H. L. Hutchings, D.C., director.

Famed Sculptors Plan Italy 'Mount Rushmore'

CARRARA, Italy (UPI) — An international team of sculptors ranging from Henry Moore to Pablo Picasso is going to fulfill a daring dream of Michelangelo and turn one of Carrara's white marble mountains into an Italian Mount Rushmore.

Italian sculptor Nardo Dunchi, who started the idea, says things are all set, everyone has agreed to join and work is going to start next spring and last one or two years.

The idea is to sculpt the magnificent Carrara marble right where it is — on the mountain face. Grandiose groups of statues, large enough to be seen from ships in the Ligurian Sea far below, will spring up on three peaks of Mount Sargo and Mount Maggiore at an altitude of about 6,500 feet.

DUNCHI ackuowledges that the idea is not new. It has been done at Mount Rushmore, S.D., where the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt are sculptured on the granite face.

But his inspiration, Dunchi says, did not come from Mount Rushmore, but rather from Michelangelo. The great renaissance artist used to come to the Carrara quarries to select the marble for his masterpieces, and he was the man who toyed with the idea of a colossal statue on these mountains.

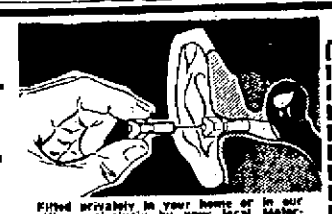

Just how long the work will take, Dunchi says, is hard to tell.

"Predictions are impossible," he says. "Perhaps one year, perhaps two. We will have to cut the mountain faces and then build the scaffoldings. We will have a lot to do. Cutting and quarrying difficulties will be greater because we will not always be able to use explosive charges."

'POLICE SERVE YOU'

Bumper Strips Free

To "help counteract subversive influences attempting to undermine law enforcement agencies" the Motor Car Dealers Association of Southern California is distributing orange and black auto bumper strips.

The strips remind "Your Police Serve and Protect You."

Marion Johnson, vice president of Harbor Chevrolet and an association director, said the strips are being distributed free by all association members.

"WE ALSO hope the strips will help build additional public confidence, support, respect and regard for the men who protect our lives and property," Johnson said.

Johnson presented a supply of the stickers to Chief of Police William J. Mooney. Chief Mooney said the stickers would be available at the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway.

The chief expressed the department's appreciation of the association's effort and said, "It is a very worthwhile and needed civic endeavor."

BUMPER STRIPS supporting public interest in the police department are offered free to the public. Marion Johnson, of the L.B. Motor Car Dealers Association, displays bumper strip; Police Chief Wm. J. Mooney approves.

Space Craft Exhibit Set for Travel Show

An "out of this world" exhibit of replicas of vehicles that launched the USA into the Space Age will be a feature of the World Travel Show and Film Festival Nov. 6-15 in the Long Beach Arena.

The 10-day exposition will feature everything in travel.

James E. Webb, administrator, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has assembled the space travel exhibit said Producer F. H. (Skip) Cregar.

Show visitors will inspect facsimiles of scientific satellites such as the Vanguard series and the later Explorer vehicles.

Application satellites to be seen include the communications satellites—Telstar, Relay, Courier and Syncom—and the outer space mechanical weathermen—Tiros and Transit.

Other space probe vehicles to be on view include: Pioneer, Ranger, Mariner, the Project Mercury manned-space vehicles, the Gemini and Apollo model space-craft.

Atomic Fuel on Sale for First Time in U.S.

By FRANK CAVEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — For sale: Wonderful atomic fuels, government surplus. Excellent for heat and electricity (also makes bombs, but this leads purchasers to prison).

Theoretically, such an advertisement could be written today by government officials as a result of a new law affecting ownership of nuclear fuels, such as especially processed uranium.

But you won't be able to buy any at your neighborhood shopping center. So drop any thoughts you might have of picking up a bag of the stuff, along with the groceries—or to build a do-it-yourself atomic bomb in your basement.

* * * *

EVEN QUALIFIED American purchasers—such as big utilities—must have a license from Uncle Sam to buy and use the stuff. And they'll be subject to periodic federal inspection to assure against improper use of the fuel, even though they own it.

Furthermore, say government spokesmen, you need have no fears that America's nuclear fuels will be sold in large quantities to foreign governments, even friendly ones.

All this has to do with the new law ending 18 years of mandatory government ownership of these revolutionary fuels which are used to power nuclear reactors, or furnaces, and thus produce electricity.

In the relatively near future, private firms which operate reactors — and have hitherto been allowed only to lease the fuel from the government—will be able to buy and own it outright.

THE NUCLEAR POWER industry will thus operate like any other business in the free-enterprise field. Some critics of the old system contended that the leasing arrangement—under which fuels were made available at relatively low cost—amounted to government subsidy of the nuclear power industry.

The new law—which has undertones harking back to the thunderous blasts of A-Bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945—is designed to:

—Encourage expansion of the young but steadily growing nuclear power industry.

—Reduce the cost of electricity produced from the atom. The cost is already very close to that of power produced from coal in areas where coal costs are high—and as low as coal-produced power in some parts of the world.

—Assure continued vitality for America's uranium mining industry. Due to recent cutbacks in the production of fissionable materials for weapons, uranium mining faced an uncertain future after 1970.

—Rid the taxpayers of the burden of financing a constantly growing government stockpile of uranium for leasing to the nuclear power industry—an inventory which might have reached $4 billion proportions by 1960.

—Help sell American-made nuclear power plants abroad.

* * * *

WHEN THE ATOMIC Energy Law—The McMahon Act—was passed in 1946, one of its key provisions was mandatory government ownership of all fissionable materials, even own or operate a power reactor capable of making significant quantities of such materials. Industry had to limit itself to small reactors under close federal supervision.

* * * *

SINCE 1954, supplies of fissionable materials have greatly increased. Great strides have been made in developing civilian nuclear power and in getting costs down.

And so, with the Atomic Energy Commission among the prime supporters, the new law was passed late in August.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Johnson Seeks More Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson Saturday called for more tax cuts in the first of a series of his own blueprints for a prosperous America. He said the reductions should begin with excise levies on consumer items.

He also urged business and labor to hold the cost-price line.

In a statement issued under the caption, "Maintaining Prosperity," he said it was the first of 10 which he will release in the next few days to outline his position on some of the most important economic issues facing the nation.

5 Yanks Die in Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist guerrillas shot down a U.S. Air Force transport loaded with ammunition Saturday. The five Americans and two Vietnamese aboard were believed killed.

A U.S. military spokesman said rescue craft flying over the flaming wreckage of the C123 provider transport saw the aircraft burning and the ammunition aboard exploding.

Their deaths would bring to 302 the number of Americans killed in South Viet Nam, 212 of them in combat.

Ikeda May Resign

TOKYO, Sunday (UPI)—A panel of doctors reported today that Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda must undergo prolonged medical treatment and cannot continue to lead Japan's conservative government.

Masayoshi Ohira, Ikeda's closest associate in the ruling party, said the prime minister may announce later today his resignation or appointment of an acting prime minister. The prime minister entered the National Cancer Center Sept. 7 with a pre-cancerous throat tumor.

Meningitis Increase Seen

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Californians can expect a rising number of meningitis cases until the peak of the current cycle is past, a Los Angeles County health officer said Saturday.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland said no large outbreaks are expected in the civilian community, although continued outbreaks may be expected in military establishments.

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP)—A 17-year-old Army recruit died Saturday of meningitis. He was the 15th fatality among 89 meningitis cases at the Army training base this year.

The latest victim was Pvt. Jack C. Thomas Jr. of Camarillo, Calif. His parents were with him when he died.

The Army has halted the training of more recruits at the base on the Pacific's shore near Monterey until the meningitis outbreak is ended.

Admits Setting 4-Fatality Fire

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—A 22-year-old woman has admitted setting a fire that killed four young children in their Chester home early Saturday, police said.

Chester Detective John Taylor said Miss Gloria Virginia Paskings made the admission in a verbal statement to him.

Miss Paskings lives about four blocks from the three-story home of Luther Roberts Sr., 28, father of the children who died. According to Taylor, Miss Paskings said she and Roberts had been living together off and on for the last five years.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Brokers See 900 Level Soon for DJI Average

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices were firm last week, but trader enthusiasm was somewhat cooler as evidenced by the narrow range of price movements and lighter volume.

The early part of the week saw a continuation of the upswing which came after traders recovered from news of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's resignation. The Dow-Jones Industrial average advanced 2.67 Monday and 5.29 Tuesday — touching a new peak of 881.50.

Profit-taking trimmed some of the week's gains on Wednesday, Thursday and the early part of the final session. The Friday session was shortened by 90 minutes in memory of former President Herbert Hoover.

* * * *

VOLUME contracted a bit to 23,825,545 shares from 25,666,990 shares the week before and compared with 30,355,050 shares in the same week last year.

On the whole brokers considered it a fairly good week. They felt the advance to a new peak so soon after the prior week's disturbing domestic and international events was a particularly good sign.

One broker said the net psychological effect of the previous week's events was to "shake traders out of their lethargy and prove that there still is plenty of speculative interest around."

Most feel that the Dow-Jones Industrial average is within shooting distance of the 900 level and may reach the long hoped-for peak before or soon after election day.

Their hopes were buoyed further by the incoming third quarter earnings reports and predictions of fourth quarter profits. Dividend increases and stock splits will also add to upward momentum, they say.

THE ONLY really gloomy propect is that the long General Motors strike may spread its effect to other industries. Some GM suppliers already are beginning to feel the pinch.

Dow-Jones Industrial average rose 4.08 on the week to close at 877.62. Rails added 2.44 to 224.28, but utilities slipped 0.78 to 153.93. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.31 to 85.14.

Of the 1,481 issues traded, 756 advanced, 233 to new 1964 highs while 538 declined, 40 to new lows.

Chrysler took first place in the active list with a gain of 1¼ at 61⅜ on 411,300 shares. The stock dipped at first Thursday after the company announced lower third quarter earnings, but later gained after declaration of a regularly quarterly cash dividend and a stock dividend.

Container Corp. of America was second with a loss of ⅛ at 34⅛ on 273,700 shares. Texas Gulf Sulphur was third with a loss of 2⅞ at 59 on 267,700 shares. Automatic Canteen was fourth with a gain of 3 at 18¼ on 267,500 shares.

* * * *

WESTINGHOUSE Electric, the previous week's volume leader, was fifth with a loss of 1¼ at 43 on 267,500 shares, apparently on profit-taking. Xerox was also among the most active. It dropped 6⅞ despite news of higher nine months earnings.

Ford and General Motors were also active. Ford held unchanged while GM pushed ahead 1⅞. American Motors also held unchanged.

Steels were generally firm. Youngstown Sheet rose 1¼ and U.S. Steel and Bethlehem rose fractions. However, McLouth dropped 1⅝ and Continental Steel gave up 2⅛.

Du Pont jumped 4 and Eastman Kodak advanced 3⅜, both on earnings news. IBM tumbled 9⅝ and Control Data gave up 5⅛. Litton slipped 1¼, but Beckman rose a point .Motorola lost 1, but Magnavox gained 2.

Mission Corp., a big gainer the previous week, dropped 3 on profit-taking. Union Oil of California advanced 3⅞. Sinclair eased 1⅝. Pure Oil, which announced the results of an independent audit of its assets—prompted by a number of take over bids—skidded 3½. The report showed the company's assets were worth substantially more than even the highest bid.

* * * *

ANACONDA rose 2½ and Kennecott Copper added 2. Toward the end of the week, Kennecott reported its third quarter earnings slashed sharply by strikes.

Aircrafts turned downward after the Defense Department reported it expects military expenditures to be about $700 or $800 million below the current fiscal budget estimate. North American Aviation dropped 2⅛, Douglas 2, General Dynamics 1¼, McDonnell 1⅝ and Lockheed 1½.

Pullman rose 5¼ on a dividend boost. Norfolk & Western pushed ahead 8½. The stock had a large short interest position according to the latest report released last week.

Columbia Broadcasting dropped 3. In the final session it was reported that the baseball commissioner would move to block Columbia's acquisition of the Yankees baseball team. The commissioner later denied the report.

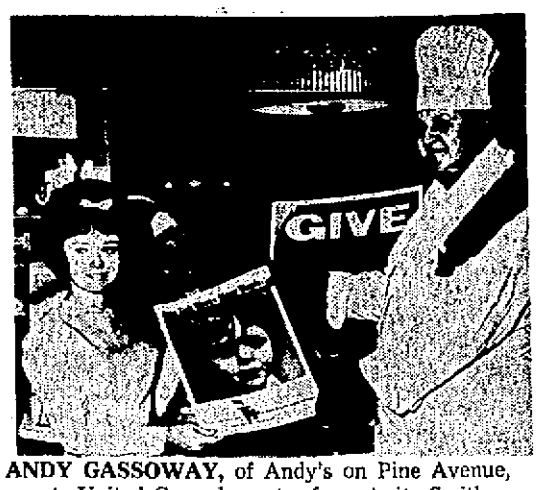

* * * *

AIRLINES staged a selective rally and American advanced 3⅝, National and Western 1⅜ each and Trans World 2¼.

Liggett & Myers rose 1⅞ on higher third quarter earnings. American Tobacco gained 1⅜ onits record third quarter profits statement.

American Broadcasting picked up 3⅞. Cosmat climbed 4⅛, Western Union advanced 2⅛.

Taft Broadcasting rose 4. Corning Glass dropped 4½. General Foods shed 3. Goodrich advanced 3.

ANDY GASSOWAY, of Andy's on Pine Avenue, gets United Crusade poster from Anita Smither. Andy is donating proceeds of next Tuesday's business to the fund drive.

Prefers They Not Use His Name

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—How would you feel if you were awakened at 4 a.m. and heard a voice on the phone saying brightly, "Hello, I'm Kelly. Castleberry, candidate for the House of Delegates."

Would you vote for Kelly Castleberry?

That's what Castleberry is worried about. He says someone is calling about 60 persons a night and playing one of Castleberry's taped political speeches.

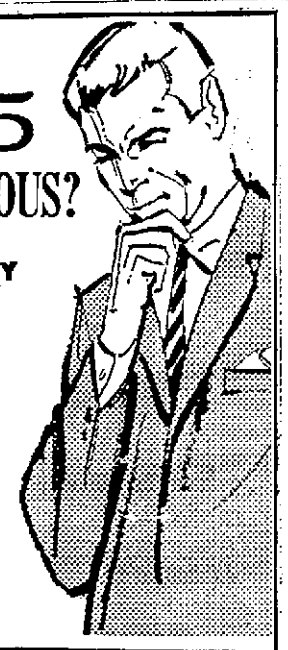

The candidate from South Charleston is worried that he is losing votes.

The phone company is investigating.

CAL-STATE'S HOMECOMING

Not-So-Old Grads Return

This is homecoming season when the ivy-covered colleges throw open their gates to welcome back the Old Grads. Freshfaced fraternity members listen uncomprehendingly as "brothers" the age of their fathers discuss the Big Game of 1934. Egg-bald oldsters are introduced to take a bow for the Class of '98.

But what do you do if you are a new college like California State College at Long Beach? What if the ivy has scarcely started down again from the roof eaves and you can't claim anybody older than the Class of 1950?

You hold homecomings just the same. Who cares if there is no one around to replay the Big Game of 1934? The homecoming queen and princesses are just as pretty, the floats just as colorful and the football game just as hard-fought.

CAL-STATE will celebrate homecoming Saturday with a full schedule of events including a parade, a rally and bonfire and a football game between the once-beaten Forty-Niners and Cal-Poly (San Luis Obispo).

To set a proper mood, noted singer Mel Torme and popular jazzman Dave Pell and his Octet will perform Friday night at 8:30 at a Coronation Concert in the Men's Gym on campus.

During this concert, the identity of the Forty-Niner homecoming queen will be announced and she will be crowned by Torme.

THE CSCLB homecoming this year falls on Halloween, so the theme chosen for the celebration is "The Hauntless Forty-Niners."

JAMES RUSSELL

DAVE PELL

MEL TORME

The homecoming parade will begin at noon Saturday on Second Street in Belmont Shore and will proceed from Park Avenue to Claremont.

A pre-game rally and bonfire will be held in Veterans Stadium beginning at 6:15 p.m. Saturday. The rally will feature a costume contest. It will be followed by the football game at 8 p.m.

CAL-STATE Long Beach—known for most of its career as Long Beach State College—registered its first students in 1949. Classes at first were conducted in converted apartment houses on Anaheim St. Later, the college moved to its present campus on a hill on E. 7th Street.

When the college first opened, it was estimated that it would eventually have an enrollment of 7,000 students. This fall, some 17,400 students registered for classes and the college is not slated to reach its peak enrollment until 1970.

Despite its relatively short existence of 15 years, the college has produced plenty of alumni to celebrate its homecoming, said James Russell, president of the Alumni Association.

More than 12,500 students have received bachelor's degrees and 3,307 have received master's degrees. The college has recommended 7,669 students for teaching credentials.

Berkeley Enrollment Near Maximum

BERKELEY (AP) — Enrollment at the Berkeley campus of the University of California is up to 27,431, almost to the permanent ceiling. It tops by 675 last autumn's registration.

The maximum is 27,500 students set by the state master plan for higher education, Chancellor Edward W. Strong said.

Warships Visit Spain

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—A group of warships from the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean, headed by the cruiser Boston and the aircraft carrier Independence, arrived Saturday for a stay of several days.

Plant Held for Plant Thefts

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Police held Johnny Plant on suspicion of grand larceny in the theft of $1,000 worth of plants from a nursery.

Navy Red Cross Director Named

Willard B. Merrick, field director for the American National Red Cross since 1940, arrived in Long Beach to serve in that capacity at United States Naval Base, Terminal Island.

He will assume duties this week in the Red Cross field director's office in Building 111 at the base, which is on call 24 hours a day seven days a week, staffed daily by four assistant field directors and three stenographers.

Last week, Merrick made calls on the military at the base and in the area, and at Red Cross chapters to learn about his new assignment. He also established his wife and 9-year-old son in their new home at 1853 College Circle.

* * * *

MERRICK came to Long Beach from the U.S. Naval Air Station, Lemoore, Calif., where he had served two years following four years at the port of embarkation in Bremerhaven, Germany. He had been stationed earlier at this busy port from '46 to '49, also in Bamberg and in Kassel, Germany.

Services in the United States included five years at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., and two years in Ft. Lewis, Wash. Four years' Army service in 1942-46, another year during the Korean War, and a year with the Red Cross at Thule Air Force Base in Greenland complete his activities from 1940.

"The Red Cross field service office on the Naval Station handles an average of 4,200 cases a month," said Merrick. "These services are given to all military personnel based here whether in port or at sea. They involve liason with more than 3,600 Red Cross chapters across the nation in meeting family crises of the men, counseling, issuing of hardship grants or loans, reports to be used by military command in granting emergency leaves."

WILLARD B. MERRICK
New Field Director

* * * *

MERRICK REPORTED that his other responsibilities are with the Red Cross blood banks conducted on the base, on ships in port, and at the Long Beach Chapter, and issuing of blood as needed; also with the United Crusade campaign.

"Red Cross operates on contributions only," he siad. "We are conducting a vigorous campaign in this new combined fund campaign, involving Red Cross and all the community agencies with which our personnel and their families are vitally concerned."

Tanganyika Police Catch Odd Idlers

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanganyika's new dragnet to collect the unemployed in town and ship them back to the country has caught some odd idlers: A European salesman who was stopped in his new car and freed only after strong protests and a beaching American in swim trunks who has freed from a village jail only after the U.S. Embassy could be contacted.

Officials conceded police were over-eager but pronounced the anti-vagrancy drive generally a success.

Veterans' Parade Set for Nov. 8

Maj. Gen. Frederick E. Leek, USMC, will be grand marshal of the Veterans Day Parade, this year honoring the Marine Corps and the American Legion, in Long Beach Nov. 8.

Gen. Leek is the commanding general, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, El Toro.

The parade will include 125 units — military, veteran and other organizations.

Long Beach is one of the five cities in the nation designated by the Department of Defense and Veterans Administration to hold Veterans Day parades.

The three hour parade route, according to Fred Nessler, director, will start at 1 p.m. Parade route: Ocean Boulevard, from Alamitos to Pine Avenues; Pine to Broadway and west on Broadway to Chestnut.

Churchill Exhibit Draws Thousands

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "Winston Churchill Exhibition" here has attracted an average of 1,000 persons daily since it opened a week ago, its sponsors reported.

The exhibition includes four of Churchills paintings, a set of first editions of his books and a series of some 300 mounted photographs — some on public view for the first time — which are arranged chronologically to give a panoramic impression of Churchill's life.

The exhibition, set up in the Hallmark gallery here, is open free to the public and will continue through November. It was set up as a tribute to Churchill who will be 90 on Nov. 30.

New Saddle for LBJ

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Earl Thacker, Hawaiian rancher and a friend of President Johnson, has ordered a saddle of New Zealand leather for the President.

Thacker bought two saddles on a visit to Auckland in 1960 and liked them. The President's saddle will be flown to Washington Thursday.

Wilson Asks Socialism, Science Unite

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson knew all along that he wanted to become prime minister of Britain. His life represents one sustained drive to the goal he has now reached.

How long he can remain in office—or how soon he may have to call a new general election—is problematical, since his Labor Party was returned to power earlier this month after more than a decade in opposition by only a razor edge majority in the House of Commons.

The slim majority raised some doubts as to how stable a government he can form and whether he can put through his program.

Once regarded as something of a left winger, Wilson now takes a personalized, no-nonsense view of politics. Britain with her boom and slump economic cycles needs to increase production, boost her exports and become more competitive in a world she no longer dominates.

* * * *

WILSON BELIEVES old slack attitudes must be abandoned by both managers and workers. This is his theme on this subject:

"There are too many restrictive practices — yes, on both sides of industry. We can't afford them any more than we can afford unofficial strikes."

Those are strong words. He stiff faces the test of making them stick.

Wilson often speaks of "the marriage of science and socialism." He means by this that Britain should modernize to take full advantage of automation and the whole field of new production techniques. His friends say he has an almost boundless confidence in the benefit of scientific progress.

Labor Party doctrine calls for state ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange—the taking over of "the commanding heights of the economy." But the party does not hammer this old socialist theme so strongly now."

* * * *

IT HAS PROMISED to renationalize Britain's steel industry. Otherwise Wilson has made only a careful, minimal commitment to state ownership. He is not particularly interested in wrangling over political philosophy. His eye is fixed more on practical results than theory, his associates say.

"What is wrong with our society is that those who make the money are more regarded than those who earn the money," he said recently. "We want to create a society in which the useful people are given precedence in our system."

There is a puritan streak in Wilson's thinking. For generations his family was steeped in religious nonconformity and radical politics——a special mixture which runs through the whole British Labor movement.

* * * *

WILSON WAS born March 11, 1916 in industrial Huddersfield. His father, Herbert, still alive, was an industrial chemist. Wilson went to Wirral grammar school in Cheshire and then to Oxford University where he was a brilliant student and an average marathon runner.

He won a seat in parliament in the great 1945 Labor Party victory in the national elections and had a rapid rise inside the Party. After holding junior ministerial posts he entered the cabinet of Labor Prime Minister Clement Attlee in 1947 as president of the Board of Trade. That made him Britain's youngest cabinet minister in more than a century.

During the Labor Party's 12 long years in opposition beginning in the early 50's, Wilson helped shape the movement's economic and foreign policy. He was elected party leader in February, 1963 following the death of Hugh Gaitskell, a man with whom he often found himself at odds.

Frozen Sperm Seen Saving Human Race

By TERRY SATTORIA

Frozen-sperm banks must be developed to help save the human species from a "creeping biological deterioration."

This was the pronouncement of Hermann J. Muller, world-famous geneticist and Nobel Prize winner, when he lectured before a group of Cal State, Long Beach, biologists.

By utilizing artificial insemination with sperm from people who possess qualities of social compassion, innate intelligence and robust physical health, the human race can be bettered, he believes.

* * * *

"HUMAN genetic betterment is important," Dr. Muller declared, "because humans — through no fault of their own—are suffering from biological deterioration because of advances in medicine and industry."

He said that because of technical achievements in medicine and industry, natural selection no longer can work to weed out those genetic characteristics which are harmful to the species.

* * * *

ARTIFICIAL insemination is the answer to bettering the human species, he said.

Muller, who is in his 70s, won the Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine in 1946 for discovering that X-rays cause mutations. He now is doing research at the City of Hope medical center in Duarte, and has an honorary position at Indiana University.

Artificial insemination, he said, would have to be "a democratic process in which the prospective parents had a say in who would be the donor."

"As is done now, in cases of artificial insemination," he said, "the physician is the sole person who knows the identity of the male parent."

He added that today, when artificial insemination is practiced, it is usually a clandestine affair where the receiving parents desire secrecy so they can both be recorded as natural parents.

In order to do this, the parents must have a second doctor deliver the child. This doctor cannot know the facts. Otherwise, the apparent father must go through legal procedure of adoption.

"But," said Muller, "this should not be the case. The prospective parent should be able to help pick — through education, counseling and expert advice — an individual who will contribute the most desirable characteristics to the child."

* * * *

AND THEREIN lies the plan for human genetic betterment.

Dr. Muller proposes that banks be established to store sperm for 20 years or more. This can be done by keeping the substance in glycerine lowered to the temperature of liquid nitrogen.

"In 20 years," he said, "the individual who donated the sperm would probably be dead and his attributes could be measured by the record he made when alive."

* * * *

MULLER said the characteristics to look for to better the species are an interest in mankind, robust physical and mental health and high intelligence.

"These are all qualities that, if perpetuated in the human species, would undoubtedly result in a betterment of human characteristics, and save us from genetic deterioration," concluded Muller.

DR. HERMANN J. MULLER

Sawdust Slide Kills L.B. Man

A sawdust avalanche landslide in a huge lumberyard silo was blamed Saturday for the death of a Long Beach man.

The body of Frank Valdez, 36, of 2428 W. Wardlow Road, was found at 2:30 a.m., buried about 20 feet down in the 60-foot-deep bin at the Sun Lumber Co. in San Pedro. He was a truck driver for the Long Beach Shavings Co.

Firemen theorized that Valdez had climbed into the bin to loosen a large clot of sawdust, and was buried when it broke loose in landslide fashion.

PHILIPPINE DANCERS AT FIESTA

Fishermen's Fiesta Gala Cruise Today

San Pedro's annual three-day Fishermen's Fiesta draws to a colorful close today with an international folk-dance festival and a parade of the local fishing fleet through Los Angeles Harbor.

The multinational dance festival, replete with native costumes, is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Skipperette Cathi Vilicich and mates Luana Madrid and Suzanne Butler will ride the lead boat in the parade beginning at 12:45 p.m., following addresses by Gov. Brown and interdenominational church services aboard the USS Keyes.

WHY PAY EXECUTIVE PLACEMENT FEES

Are executive placement fees really necessary? Is it absolutely essential to commit a percentage of one's annual income for securing a new position? Should this fee be paid by the company seeking the man? Aren't changes made without any kind of placement fee involved?

Obviously, the answer to the latter is yes. Many individuals do make satisfactory job changes without paying placement fees. Most people would rather not . . . and believe it or not most companies feel the same way. Today's budgets and profit margins are too tight to allow for unnecessary expenditures.

Third parties, however, have to be compensated for their efforts and fees must come from one side or the other. For the man earning $10,000 to $50,000 per year, the placement fee usually ranges from 10% to 30% of annual compensation. Why then pay $1,000 to $10,000 dollars for a position a man can normally secure on his own? It's true the company involved in some cases will pay the fee, but, in many others the fee is deducted from the offer made to the man. In either case the individual ends up paying the fee.

As professional Executive Career Managers, we feel it isn't necessary for individuals to pay placement fees. Even the best of positions can be secured without a percentage commitment. Naturally, we must be compensated for our efforts and our approach to the fee situation is within the limits of everyone interested in securing increased responsibilities, growth opportunity and higher pay.

We are limited by the hours in the day and can work only with highly motivated and qualified individuals. Our service is unique and can be confidentially explored in a preliminary interview without cost or obligation. A phone call will set a specific date. ADVANCE APPOINTMENTS ONLY and NO RESUMES, please . . . we prefer people.

British Youth Target of No-Smoke Drive

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The poster shows a father smoking a cigarette as he helps his son with his school homework.

"Don't set a bad example," it says.

This is one of many posters the British Ministry of Health is using in a campaign to stop the smoking habit before it starts—in the young.

The British government started its crusade against smoking in 1962 when the Royal College of Physicians reported that a non-smoker of 35 has twice as much chance of living to 65 as a heavy smoker.

* * *

THERE WAS a dramatic drop in consumption of tobacco that year. But already almost as many cigarettes are being smoked as there were before the report, "Smoking and Health," was published.

So the emphasis of the official campaign to discourage smoking—a long-term project of health education, as it is called — has shifted from adults to youngsters from 10 to 18 years old.

Not that the ministry of health and various other organizations are giving up on the adult smoker. The Royal College of Physicians has organized 18 anti-smoking clinics at hospitals. The Central Council for Health Education sends lectures to Rotary Clubs and any other group which wants to hear the case against smoking.

Bolivia Pays Up Part of U.N. Dues

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Bolivia has paid $37,609 on $118,990.40 it owned in back dues to the United Nations. A delegation source said it was enough to avert loss to Bolivia's vote in the upcoming General Assembly.

Smog May Exist in Deep Space

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smog may be a nuisance in deep space as well as on earth.

Assume engineers succeed in perfecting space cabins free of dangerous or noxious gases.

There might well remain, on space flights of long duration, the problem of "trace contaminants."

According to Dr. L. O. Rutz, biotechnologist of the Douglas Missile & Space Systems Division, these contaminants in the course of time might accumulate in a sealed space cabin until they created a pollution problem compared to smog on earth.

Trace contaminants consist of gas molecules given off in minute quantities "by everything from paint to paper clips." On earth, they get lost in the atmosphere. In a sealed cabin they could build up to tear-jerking levels if precautions were not taken to curb them.

DR. RUTZ is trying to learn more about trace contaminants. Using equipment once employed by the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District to analyze smog-laden air, Douglas research workers are studying spacecraft materials to discover which generate the smallest amounts of trace gases.

Space physiologists have long been wrestling with the problem of cabin air conditioning. This concerns amounts of gases much larger than those involved in trace contamination.

An astronaut using 1.45 pounds of oxygen a day will produce 1.53 pounds of carbon dioxide in the same period. Carbon dioxide concentrations of more than 1% in air may be dangerous.

Then there is the much more poisonous carbon monoxide. Dr. Charles G. Wilber of Kent State University said in a recent issue of the magazine BioScience that smoking probably will be forbidden aboard spacecraft.

One cigaret a day in a space cabin atmosphere would produce a fatal amount of carbon monoxide in a period of several days.

WILBER mentioned many biological problems on which more research is needed before man undertakes long space voyages.

What will be the effect on man of "the deathly silence of space"? How do you dispose of body wastes, and how do you free the cabin atmosphere of the unpleasant odors which emanate naturally from the human body?

If a crew member dies, what do you do with his remains? Answer these and other tough questions, Wilber said, and you still have problem X to worry about.

"This," he said, "is the problem no one ever thought of until it occurred.

"In spite of detailed plans and careful analysis of the situation, invariably in long continued operations problem X arises.

"Problem X could be devastating to the mission of space explorers."

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Rivals Halted in Homage to Hoover

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

The grand old man of the Republican Party, former President Herbert Clark Hoover, died in New York City last week at the age of 90.

He was stricken last Saturday with bleeding in his upper gastro-intestinal tract and failed to rally.

Passing of the nation's 31st President and one of the world's most revered humanitarians, tempered a presidential election campaign that hourly was growing more bitter.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson and GOP nominee Barry M. Goldwater and their running mates joined in national homage to the elder statesman at a funeral service in New York and later in Washington.

Friday the body was taken to Washington to lie in state until today on Lincoln's black-draped catafalque in the Capitol rotunda. Interment was to follow at West Branch, Iowa, where Hoover began life as the son of a blacksmith and later was to receive the depression-born scorn of the nation and world acclaim as a friend of the hungry.

The last two living ex-Presidents — Harry S Truman, 80, and Dwight D. Eisenhower, 74—were unable to attend the ceremonies. Truman was recuperating at Independence, Mo., from injuries suffered in a bathtub fall. Eisenhower was being treated in a Washington, D.C., hospital for a severe case of laryngitis.

* * * *

BUT DEADLY infighting continued to feature the campaign.

GOP National Chairman Dean Burch demanded the three major television networks give Goldwater free and equal time to counter Johnson's recent nationwide report on the significance of Red China's first atomic bomb and the ouster of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

JOHN M. BAILEY

DEAN BURCH

Both Demanded Equal Television Time

They refused after the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) classed the speech as spot news, not a political diatribe as claimed by Burch. But NBC gave Burch 15 minutes free time. He blasted Johnson, then appealed for GOP campaign contributions.

This led Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey to brand Burch's remarks political and to demand equal time to answer. He was turned down.

The GOP sued in federal court for a reversal of the FCC's dictum. The decision is due this week.

Another hassle concerned a Republican campaign film on morality in the White House and among Americans in general. Goldwater publicly repudiated it after the Democrats secretly obtained a copy, plus a complete transcript of the remarks of those who planned and produced it in Hollywood.

* * * *

CALLED "choice," the movie started off with a beer can being thrown from a speeding black limousine—an obvious reference to an incident during one of President Johnson's Texas vacations last summer.

Then it showed a girl in a topless bathing suit, seminude dancing girl, pictures of girlie magazines, street riots, neo-pornographic pictures, and wildly twisting teen-agers.

The movie was conceived, a news release said, by "Mothers for Moral America" and was designed to show the nation's moral decay since Johnson took office.

In contrast, Goldwater was portrayed against a background of sequences including Valley Forge, hard-working Americans, astronauts, covered wagons and patriotic school children, with movie actor Raymond Massey as narrator asking, "How did it happen?"

Democratic Chairman Bailey denounced the film as "a sickness" and "a smirking effort to introduce smut into living rooms in a desperate grab for votes."

The bipartisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee called on GOP officials to "repudiate the film or accept full responsibility." NBC had been scheduled to televise it, but balked until some scenes were expunged though copies were shown in other parts of the country.

GOLDWATER personally stepped in and ordered the movie withdrawn until it could be edited. He said it "was not appropriate in its present form." In Los Angeles later he told newsmen, "I will repudiate it—I do repudiate it" because its racial rioting shots could start trouble. He previously had previewed the movie in Philadelphia. He said he thought a film on the morality issue could be made and would be useful, but that the over-all effort put into "Choice" could not be saved by editing.

The battle typified the tenor of the campaign as the standard-bearers and their running mates covered a lot of geography.

In Philadelphia, for example, Goldwater continued his attack on morality and cited the dead Hoover as a leader who "never had the slightest hint of scandal around his life."

Johnson, at Akron, Ohio, said he does not believe in "muck-raking and slanderous comments"; that he "had never been quite so desperate—never so far behind—never had to cling to a sinking raft." He added that he "thought the people were wise enough . . . to judge for themselves what they see and hear. . . ."

* * * *

HE ALSO descussed the case of his former top aide and confident for 25 years, Walter W. Jenkins, who was hospitalized the previous week after being arrested on morals charges.

A short time later FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover—in compliance with Johnson's orders—submitted an investigative report which said intensive inquiry had absolved Jenkins of any security breaches, through blackmail or otherwise, in perfoming his high-echelon White House duties.

Goldwater cited the case during a California whistle-stop tour and accused Johnson of "lax security" measures.

The new Kremlin leaders pledged they would struggle for peace, friendship and cooperation with all nations and unity in the Communist world—this last an obvious reference to rebellious Red China. They continued downgrading Khrushchev despite worried satellite demands that they explain why Khrushchev was fired.

President Johnson drew a swift rebuff when he appealed to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to sign the nuclear test-ban treaty and stop polluting the atmosphere.

EVERY political campaign produces its special terminology.

This one has given us "backlash" which is supposed to help Goldwater, and "frontlash" which is supposed to help Johnson.

And such words as hater, bigot, trigger-happy, hip-shooting, wheeler-dealer and crook have flashed through the vituperative murk.

Nuclear push-button, extremism, mainstream, phony and faker have shown up along with such old-timers as "soft on communism," creeping socialism, galloping reaction, demagoguery, double-talk and glittery generalities.

The wags have had a great time with Goldwater's covered wagons, 13 colonies and so on, and Johnson's speeding limousine, beer cans and beagle ear-pulling. The Jenkins case has given the gutter humorists a field day.

And Bert Martin of Lakewood comes up with the comment that a "political dinner is the only place in the world where they eat the bull and then shoot it."

THAT State College "peach tree fund" is beginning to grow.

It's the program for purchase of flowering trees to be financed by contributions from area people and to be planted in profusion on the State College campus.

The objective is the purchase of 300 trees, and contributions from $1 up are being accepted. Contributions should be sent to Flowering Trees, 6101 E. Seventh St., which is the State College address.

One interesting contribution of the week came from the Dorcas Sewing Circle of the First Baptist Church. The check was for $12 and the contribution was made in memory of Mrs. Myrtle Long.

How about joining this good project?

GETTING BACK to the popularity of words and terms, have you noticed how prominent "awesome" is nowadays.

Things aren't big, colossal, stupendous, impressive, tremendous or massive any more—they're awesome.

Presidential responsibilities are awesome, the migration to the West is awesome, the nuclear threat is awesome, man's probing probes for the stars is awesome.

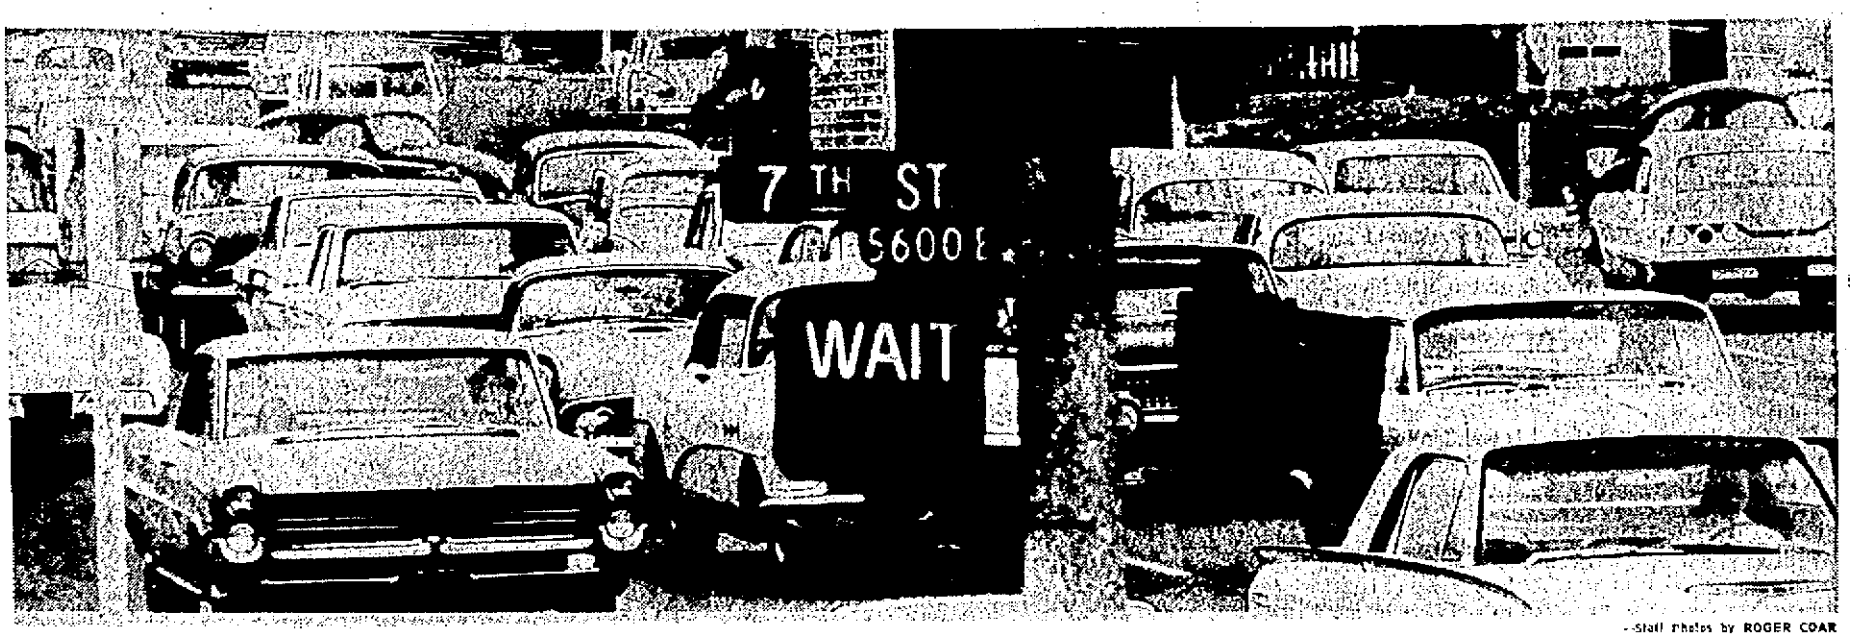

And, by golly, I guess they all are.

READER took note of item here the other day about disappointing income for the Palm Springs Tram to the top of Mt. San Jacinto and suggests that the tram might get more business if the rates were lowered. It might get more business but would it make more money?

According to this correspondent, the tram ride is $4 per adult and something around $3 for children. She said the ordinary cost to her family would be $20.

She did go, however, on a day when the rate happened to be cut to $1. "We loved it," she writes. "It is beautiful and cathedral-like on top."

HEADLINE over an item about a straw ballot on State College campus was misleading, according to callers. It indicated the ballot—which favored Johnson—was taken among members of a Republican Club. Turns out the Republican Club sponsored the poll — the participants were all of those who wished to mark a ballot — not just Republicans. The idea seems to be if only Republican clubbers voted, the result would have been different.

PACIFIC COAST FREEWAY

Route Meeting Here Tuesday

By DON OHL

A major step toward solving the daily east-west traffic jam in Long Beach will be taken Tuesday when members of the State Division of Highways meet with City Council to discuss routes for the Pacific Coast Freeway across town.

The meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. in the Council chambers. Mayor Edwin W. Wade said no testimony will be accepted from the public. He explained that this meeting is being held so that highway officials can give information to the council.

A public meeting, at which all who wish may testify, probably will be held in November or December and likely will be conducted in the Municipal Auditorium.

UNDER DISCUSSION Tuesday will be some 18 possible freeway routings between Los Cerritos Channel at the east edge of Long Beach to Normandie Avenue in Harbor City.

The portion under discussion is an 11.5-mile section of a major California freeway of 113 miles which is being built from the Ventura Freeway north of Oxnard to Capistrano Beach in Orange County.

First phase of construction of the Long Beach segment is tentatively scheduled for 1970-71 but there are many steps which must be taken before traffic actually can roll on a completed highway.

HERE IS THE procedure which will be followed between now and the time the freeway is completed:

Following Tuesday's session, information developed will be studied by highway officials. A public meeting will be announced and held in Long Beach. All information developed will be studied by Highway Division headquarters and the Highway Commission itself.

A recommendation of the best route will then be made to the Highway Commission by the State Highway Engineer. If additional technical data is

Proposition 14

FEW BALLOT PROPOSALS in California history have been debated with as much heat as has been generated by Proposition 14. This issue, and the Rumford Act which No. 14 would knock out, have split the people of California into warring factions, denouncing each other in bitter terms. In an atmosphere so clouded with vituperation, there is all too little illumination.

Although the issue involves a delicate balance of fundamental values, angry partisans refuse to concede that anyone could disagree with them on honorable principle.

It is time to point out that it is possible to be for Prop. 14 without being a hater or a racist. It is possible to be against it without being a Communist dupe or a mongrelizer.

BRIEFLY, PROP. 14 is a measure to amend the state constitution so as to prohibit the passage of laws limiting a person's right to refuse to sell or rent his residential property to another person.

This proposal collides with and would nullify the Rumford Act, which prohibits discrimination in most residential housing transactions because of race, color or religion.

On one side is the right of a citizen to dispose of his property as he sees fit; on the other side is the right of another citizen to buy or rent property without being turned away because of his skin color or creed.

THE IMMEDIATE ISSUE involved in Prop. 14 is the question of constitutionally prohibiting anti-discriminatory housing legislaton of any kind. We have our doubts about the advisability of thus closing the door to any such legislation. Competent legal authorities have told us that Prop. 14 may be invalid under the 14th Amendment to the federal Constitution.

But at the same time we have no enthusiasm for the Rumford Act which Prop. 14 would nullify. This act was passed in the closing hours of the legislative session under pressure conditions, including a sit-in in the Capitol.

We agree that some of the major criticisms of the Rumford Act are valid, such as the charge that it imposes on the accused the requirement of proving his innocence of discriminatory motive. The very fact that it precipitated such as an extreme proposal as Prop. 14 and that 14 is conceded a good chance of passing is prima facie evidence that the Rumford Act was not properly prepared for public acceptance.

In view of serious questions as to theory and detail in the Rumford Act, we feel this legislation should be given a complete reexamination with a view to correcting its harsher features and weaknesses, or even repealing it and starting all over again. This should be done if Prop. 14 fails at the Nov. 3 voting; it should be done if Prop. 14 carries (as now seems likely) and is found unconstitutional.

AFTER CAREFULLY WEIGHING the problem, we have decided to refrain from an outright recommendation on Prop. 14. We do not want to be put on record, through a "Yes" recommendation, as supporting a measure which shuts off all legislation in a sensitive field and may be unconstitutional. A "No" recommendation would be interpreted as defense of the Rumford Act, which we do not want to defend in its present form.

We suggest to the voter that he carefully study the reasonable arguments on both sides (ignoring emotionally pitched labels and appeals) and then make a conscientious decision. To help avoid confusion we conclude with this explanation:

If you believe there should never be a law affecting a person's choice of a buyer or renter in disposing of his property, and you want to kill such laws already passed, vote Yes on 14.

If you want to retain the Rumford Act, or at least want to keep the door open for improved legislation in the field of housing and discrimination, vote No on 14.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Hoover Victim of Circumstance

WASHINGTON — The late Herbert Hoover revealed in his published memoirs that in a speech at a Gridiron diner here on Dec. 12, 1931, he had said:

LAWRENCE

"A revered President, long since dead, once told me that there was no solution to this relation of the White House to the press; that there never would be a President who could satisfy the press until he was 20 years dead."

Maybe it will not take 20 years to evaluate the relationship of Mr. Hoover to the press or the significance of his public policies. Indeed, a close reading of what happened under the adminstrations of Mr. Hoover and his successor, the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, should be required today not only by members of Congress but by all others who are concerned with the economic problems that face America in the next decade.

There will always be a debate as to whether Mr. Hoover was as effective in his four years as President as he might have been. There will always be a dispute as to whether, in July 1932, when he claimed the depression was really beginning to show signs of ending, there were indications of a recovery movement.

But, after the 1932 election, there is no doubt that one of the tragedies in American history occurred when there was a lack of cooperation between the outgoing Hoover administration and the incoming Roosevelt administration from election day on Nov. 8, 1932, to inauguration day on March 4, 1933. As a result of the lack of public confidence, including rumors that the new administration would devalue the dollar in terms of gold, the nation was engulfed in a "bank holiday." All the banks in the country were closed for 10 days after Roosevelt's inauguration. The "New York Times" on July 16, 1934, said in an editorial:

"The change for the better in the last half of 1932 is beyond dispute. That this evidence of revival of confidence was suddenly reversed in April 1933 is equally true."

This very week the "Washington Post," in an editorial analyzing the Hoover administration, said:

"Mr. Hoover always insisted that the bottom of the depression was reached in June or July, 1932, some months before his sweeping defeat, and there is an abundance of data to support that view. The panic which followed in March, 1933, was undoubtedly related to the long period of uncertainty between the election and the inauguration and to President-elect Roosevelt's refusal to cooperate with the defeated administration in taking emergency measures.

"In part, therefore, Mr. Hoover was the victim of circumstances over which he had no control. Even if he had had the flexibility and disposition to propose the New Deal in 1931 or 1932, it is probable that it would not have been enacted."

There are many lessons to be learned from a study of what has been called "The Great Depression." Despite all the glowing tributes to the "New Deal," the fact remains that it did not solve America's economic problems. Thus, for instance, while the 12,060,000 unemployed in America in 1932 was 23.6% of the labor force, the figure went up the next year to 12,830,000, or 24.9%. By 1935, it had been reduced to only 20.1%, and in 1938 the figure was still 19%. Thus, there remained 10,390,000 Americans without jobs five years after the Roosevelt administration had come into power.

The biggest unsolved problem of the depression in the "New Deal" years—and, indeed, it remains today one of the weaknesses in our present economic structure—was job creation.

Mr. Hoover will long be remembered as a great humanitarian—an honest and sincere man who did the best he could in the presidency against heavy odds.

Nitze Visit Here Will Be Crucial

L-P-T Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze expects to visit Long Beach for one day about the middle of December. He will visit MinePac and will inspect the Long Beach Naval Shipyard at the request of Defense Secretary McNamara.

KELLY

A spokesman for the handsome Navy secretary said Mr. Nitze, if invited to do so, will speak before a representative Long Beach group.

He will also spend a day at Point Mugu.

Secretary Nitze looks forward to his visit to Long Beach. He feels he has a commitment to the city.

The official reason for cancellation of his scheduled visit in October is the pressure of work on the Navy budget which must soon be presented to Defense Secretary McNamara.

Unofficially, some administration advisers admit there is another reason. There has been so much bipartisan political opposition to Secretary McNamara's policy (announced in 1963) of closing some high-cost and low-efficiency shipyards that it was decided to hold in abeyance further inspection of shipyards until after the elections.

Secretary Nitze's inspection will have a crucial bearing on the future of the shipyard.

A brilliant planner and analyst in the present and past three administrations, he is one of Secretary McNamara's closest friends and most influential advisers.

Secretary Nitze, regarded as one of the principal architects of defense policy, has also won trust and praise of Navy admirals.

One of these flag officers said, "The best way to make a case for a shipyard with Nitze is to show him efficiency and economy."

This is in accord with Mr. Nitze's recent statement at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He said he did not think the yard is doomed but that unemployment and other considerations were not the Navy's prime concerns in assigning new construction. He said, "I think everyone recognizes that our job is to maximize national defense at a minimum cost."

He did not quail before a bipartisan group pleading for the Brooklyn yard. They included Sens. Keating and Javits; the entire congressional delegation from Brooklyn; Mayor Wagner and Robert F. Kennedy.

Rep. Celler, 42 years in Congress, vowed that Congress will pass new legislation requiring all new construction and repairs to be divided equally between private and public yards.

Sen. Keating said three destroyer escorts are being constructed in Portugal. "This means money and jobs for Portugal but nothing for our shipyard workers," he said.

Robert F. Kennedy said the economic effects of possible layoffs will be taken into consideration by the administration, if not the Navy.

Go to the Parties, Mr. Brezhnev

OUR ACE KREMLINOLOGISTS are having a terrible time figuring out who's in charge of Russia these days. At first, they thought it might be Mr. Brezhnev, mainly because he's the new head of the Communist Party. But then it turned out he wasn't much of a party man.

As they gravely noted, Mr. Brezhnev was "conspicuously absent" from the very first party the new regime gave in the Kremlin, a reception for Cuban President Dorticos.

TRUE, MR. BREZHNEV'S PICTURE appeared on the far left in a line of posters several days later, a clue of tremendous significance, assuming the poster men didn't louse things up. But then he failed to appear at all at the big party celebrating the liberation of Kiev from the Germans 20 years ago. And every ace kremlinologist shook his head worriedly, frowned and said, "You know what that means."

Certainly we do. The meaning is clear to all us long-time students of Soviet affairs. But, personally, I'm worried. For there's just the remotest possibility it could mean that Mr. Brezhnev doesn't like parties. And, if so, disaster lies ahead.

First, Mr. Brezhnev will face grave domestic problems at home.

"Oh, how nice," says Mrs. Brezhnev, opening the mail at the breakfast table. "The Mikoyans have invited us over for a reception. Goodness, don't we owe them?"

"Bah," says Mr. Brezhnev. "Soggy canapes, warm champagne. We will spend a quiet evening at home curled up with a good book, like 'The Use of Non-organic Fertilizers in Increasing Borscht Production.'"

"You never take me anywhere," wails Mrs. Brezhnev. "You're ashamed to be seen with me. You don't love me. The spark has gone out of our marriage. My mother warned me. . . ." And so on.

This will tend to make Mr. Brezhnev a little irritable. Like most men faced with domestic problems, he will grow more adventurous away from home. In about a year, I figure, he will be calling up our State Department, which will refer him down through channels to one of our ace kremlinologists, perhaps Mr. Entpossel.

"Listen, Entopossel," says Mr. Brezhnev, "if you Americans don't knock off aid to Outer Kurdistan, I am pushing The Button—or my name isn't Leonid Brezhnev!"

"How do you spell that?" says Mr. Entpossel.

"B-r-e-z . . . What do you mean, how do I spell it? This is Leonid Brezhnev, the leader of world Communism."

"Brezhnev . . . Brezhnev . . ." says Mr. Entpossel. "Hmmm. Sorry, old man, but I don't find the name among those who attended the opening of the Moscow Girl Pioneers Cookie Sale. Nor the Festival for Falkland Freedom. Nor . . . Must be some mistake."

"Mistake!" roars Mr. Brezhnev. "I am pushing The Button!"

"Look, whoever you are," says Mr. Entpossel. "Is this call collect?"

★ ★ ★

SO I HOPE THAT IF Mr. Brezhnev is in charge, he will reform and become a good party man. For how will we know that he's the man with the fate of the world in his hands unless he gets out there and whoops it up nightly? Yes, sir, I'm sure that'll make each of us feel much more secure.

Election Night Count: Horserace That Never Was

I, P-T Political Editor

BEHOLD THE PALE horserace—election night vote counting. It's no horserace at all. The horserace in fantasy. And the American people have, for years, been hoodwinked by election night reporting.

This declaration was made this week by Paul Funkhouser, of Louis Harris and Associates, Inc. (the polling firm) and a member of the CBS Vote Profile Analysis team. His words stemmed from the elementary truth that "when the polls in the state have closed, the election is over—candidates have already won."

HOUSER

The hoodwinking came about as radio and then television, in past years, reported the count of votes as it came in from county court houses, first one candidate ahead and then the other ahead.

Funkhouser underlined the hoodwinking phase of such reporting by noting California's experience in the primary last June 2. He noted that on that night "all three networks declared, that in their editorial judgment, all evidence pointed unquestionably to the fact that Goldwater had won. Yet for the next 12 hours the two major wire services reported the vote count showing Rockefeller ahead."

The headline from the San Francisco Examiner the next day: "TV Pratfull—Fast Count, Rockefeller Sweeps Into the Lead."

Funkhouser's elementary truth rises: Rocky, of course, never did sweep into the lead. It was only that more Rockefeller returns were in at certain hours of the night.

Analysis in the past was made on votes as they were counted; predictions from those analyses were sometimes wrong.

THE SUCCESS of Vote Profile Analysis in projecting the June primary winner was that it selected 42 precincts so carefully in terms of geography, urban-suburban-rural, by ethnic groups and otherwise, that those 42 represented a minlature profile of the state's 33,000 precincts.

In that system also lies the anticipated speed and success of election night reporting No. 3. The three networks, ABC, CBS and NBC and the major wire services, Associated Press and United Press International are joining forces for the report under NES (Network Election Service.)

NES is calculated to provide not only quick results but, when the computers and analysis are applied, to project winners and to describe how the victory was put together.

TV network spokesmen have agreed at length in defense of reporting carefully scientific projections on winners election night, despite some criticism that such premature intelligence would influence voters in other parts of the nation who may not have cast their ballots.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, say the spokesmen, there is no proof that any voters are influenced one way or another. In the second place, the critics variously say the early projections create a bandwagon stampede for the leader, create an underdog sympathy for the lagger, or create a reluctance to vote at all in view of the apparently settled outcome.

In summary, the network people are bound and determined the nation will this Nov. 3 experience the fastest, most accurate election reporting in history.

Traffic Signal Timing Criticized

EDITOR:

Long Beach, an "international city," resembles a small Southern one-horse town in respect to the timing of many of its traffic signals. What are the reasons for this ineptness in our traffic control?

I am dismayed by the morbid funerals and barbaric pomp we go through when anyone dies. And the large graveyards around the country that could be used for homes for the living, and not storage yards for the dead.

I've traveled this world over and have seen millions of acres of good earth put to that use.

The only people of this earth that have enough brains to dispose of the dead in the cleanest and most sanitary way are the people of India.

We pay out thousands of dollars a year to have the trash moved away from our homes and burned up. So why not the human trash? Then there would be no fuss, no bother. All we would have to pay is $1.50 every two months and not the $1,000 to $2,000 we pay to get cried over.

Debate Issue: Should Doctor Mix Politics With Medicine?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently we published an article by staff writer Jack O. Baldwin quoting a letter circulated by two local physicians among their colleagues. The physicians' letter urged doctors to stock their waiting rooms with free political books. In an editorial in the same edition we criticized doctors for feeding their patients propaganda with their prescription. The article and the editorial drew a large volume of comment from readers. Space limitations and the fact that many of the comments were repetitive prevent the use of all the letters in full. Here, however, are representative excerpts.)

EDITOR:

Your editorial and article about doctors brainwashing patients really hit home. It happened to me a couple of months ago. A woman on an examining table covered by a sheet is really a captive audience.

Perhaps dependent, easily-influenced patients will accept whatever the doctor says. In my case, I was merely annoyed and decided to change doctors. I suspect that will be the more common reaction with adults.

In the long run, shoving political opinions down unwilling throats will reduce both a doctor's case load and his party's possible total vote.

IF IT IS NOT ethical for a doctor to discuss politics in his office, then who sets the standards of ethics that allow labor unions to commit their members to certain platform, that permits college professors to brainwash the impressionable students concerning political views, management to influence electoral outcome, newspapers to control political propaganda, and government workers to assist in passage of legislation favorable to them?

WASHINGTON — Some of the political pros would have you believe that the halls of Congress should be reserved for the lawyers, the professionals, and that professors should stick to the cloistered halls of the colleges. Not so in actual practice.

PEARSON

Some of the toughest and most successful members of the Senate come straight out of the university, and this goes for other political jobs, such as Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, former Harvard professor; McGeorge Bundy, former Harvard dean, and so on.

The congressional profs, furthermore, may have deserted the Ivy League halls, but they have never deserted education.

During the closing days of the last Congress, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., former Dean of the University of Oregon Law School, staged a one-man filibuster which brought a badly-needed $5,000,000 to the overcrowded, under-staffed District of Columbia schools. He threatened to hold Congress up till he got the money, and he got it.

Most people have forgotten that Morse, one of the most hard-hitting members of the Senate, spent much of his life as a teacher. The top Senator on the Democratic side, Mike Mansfield, is a former history professor at Montana State University. He is up for re-election this time and will win easily.

The most famous professor in the Senate is probably Paul Douglas, D-Ill., who has taught economics in some of the foremost colleges in the nation and jumped from the University of Chicago into the Marines at the age of 50, then into the Senate.

Some professors have been given a hard time, simply because they were professors, Dr. Frank Graham, former President of the University of North Carolina, and one of the finest scholars ever to serve in the Senate, was crucified when he ran for re-election. His opponent circulated a photo in which he was shown shaking hands with a Negro. Graham was defeated.

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., one of the brightest of the new Senators, and a former history professor at the University of Wyoming, has been attacked and maligned by right-wing groups simply because he has generally voted for liberal legislation. The John Birch Society has made him its No. 1 Senate target. McGee has taken the beating philosophically and it now looks as if he would win.

Political ridicule heaped on the average professor when he runs for Congress is worse than on the average candidate. When Prof. Tom Bonner of the University of Omaha dared run against Rep. Glenn Cunningham, right-wing Republican of that city, he was so pillored that he retired. Bonner's opposition to a powerful congressman became embarrassing to university authorities, and Bonner moved to the University of Cincinnati.

* * * *

DESPITE this discouragement, one of the bright new candidates on the election horizon this year is Royce Hanson, professor of government at American University in Washington, running as a Democrat in Western Maryland.

Hanson is unique in that he has already been active in Congress. He played a backstage part in one of the most important filibusters of last session when a little band of liberals succeeded in blocking Sen. Everett Dirksen's delay of the Supreme Court's reappointment decision.

"Our real problem is making democracy work in the cities," says Prof. Hanson, "rather than in the rural areas."

This was why he helped support the Supreme Court's decision to adjust the rural balance in state legislatures.

"Second, we need a revision of congressional procedure. There is no sense in voting a budget for one year at a time. No successful business firm plans its financing that short range.

Proposition 14

FEW BALLOT PROPOSALS in California history have been debated with as much heat as has been generated by Proposition 14. This issue, and the Rumford Act which No. 14 would knock out, have split the people of California into warring factions, denouncing each other in bitter terms. In an atmosphere so clouded with vituperation, there is all too little illumination.

Although the issue involves a delicate balance of fundamental values, angry partisans refuse to concede that anyone could disagree with them on honorable principle.

It is time to point out that it is possible to be for Prop. 14 without being a hater or a racist. It is possible to be against it without being a Communist dupe or a mongrelizer.

BRIEFLY, PROP. 14 is a measure to amend the state constitution so as to prohibit the passage of laws limiting a person's right to refuse to sell or rent his residential property to another person.

This proposal collides with and would nullify the Rumford Act, which prohibits discrimination in most residential housing transactions because of race, color or religion.

On one side is the right of a citizen to dispose of his property as he sees fit; on the other side is the right of another citizen to buy or rent property without being turned away because of his skin color or creed.

THE IMMEDIATE ISSUE involved in Prop. 14 is the question of constitutionally prohibiting anti-discriminatory housing legislaton of any kind. We have our doubts about the advisability of thus closing the door to any such legislation. Competent legal authorities have told us that Prop. 14 may be invalid under the 14th Amendment to the federal Constitution.

But at the same time we have no enthusiasm for the Rumford Act which Prop. 14 would nullify. This act was passed in the closing hours of the legislative session under pressure conditions, including a sit-in in the Capitol.

We agree that some of the major criticisms of the Rumford Act are valid, such as the charge that it imposes on the accused the requirement of proving his innocence of discriminatory motive. The very fact that it precipitated such as an extreme proposal as Prop. 14 and that 14 is conceded a good chance of passing is prima facie evidence that the Rumford Act was not properly prepared for public acceptance.

In view of serious questions as to theory and detail in the Rumford Act, we feel this legislation should be given a complete reexamination with a view to correcting its harsher features and weaknesses, or even repealing it and starting all over again. This should be done if Prop. 14 fails at the Nov. 3 voting; it should be done if Prop. 14 carries (as now seems likely) and is found unconstitutional.

AFTER CAREFULLY WEIGHING the problem, we have decided to refrain from an outright recommendation on Prop. 14. We do not want to be put on record, through a "Yes" recommendation, as supporting a measure which shuts off all legislation in a sensitive field and may be unconstitutional. A "No" recommendation would be interpreted as defense of the Rumford Act, which we do not want to defend in its present form.

We suggest to the voter that he carefully study the reasonable arguments on both sides (ignoring emotionally pitched labels and appeals) and then make a conscientious decision. To help avoid confusion we conclude with this explanation:

If you believe there should never be a law affecting a person's choice of a buyer or renter in disposing of his property, and you want to kill such laws already passed, vote Yes on 14.

If you want to retain the Rumford Act, or at least want to keep the door open for improved legislation in the field of housing and discrimination, vote No on 14.

Election Night Count: Horserace That Never Was

I, P-T Political Editor

BEHOLD THE PALE horserace—election night vote counting. It's no horserace at all. The horserace in fantasy. And the American people have, for years, been hoodwinked by election night reporting.

This declaration was made this week by Paul Funkhouser, of Louis Harris and Associates, Inc. (the polling firm) and a member of the CBS Vote Profile Analysis team. His words stemmed from the elementary truth that "when the polls in the state have closed, the election is over—candidates have already won."

HOUSER

The hoodwinking came about as radio and then television, in past years, reported the count of votes as it came in from county court houses, first one candidate ahead and then the other ahead.

Funkhouser underlined the hoodwinking phase of such reporting by noting California's experience in the primary last June 2. He noted that on that night "all three networks declared, that in their editorial judgment, all evidence pointed unquestionably to the fact that Goldwater had won. Yet for the next 12 hours the two major wire services reported the vote count showing Rockefeller ahead."

The headline from the San Francisco Examiner the next day: "TV Pratfull—Fast Count, Rockefeller Sweeps Into the Lead."

Funkhouser's elementary truth rises: Rocky, of course, never did sweep into the lead. It was only that more Rockefeller returns were in at certain hours of the night.

Analysis in the past was made on votes as they were counted; predictions from those analyses were sometimes wrong.

THE SUCCESS of Vote Profile Analysis in projecting the June primary winner was that it selected 42 precincts so carefully in terms of geography, urban-suburban-rural, by ethnic groups and otherwise, that those 42 represented a miniature profile of the state's 33,000 precincts.

In that system also lies the anticipated speed and success of election night reporting No. 3. The three networks, ABC, CBS and NBC and the major wire services, Associated Press and United Press International are joining forces for the report under NES (Network Election Service.)

NES is calculated to provide not only quick results but, when the computers and analysis are applied, to project winners and to describe how the victory was put together.

TV network spokesmen have agreed at length in defense of reporting carefully scientific projections on winners election night, despite some criticism that such premature intelligence would influence voters in other parts of the nation who may not have cast their ballots.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, say the spokesmen, there is no proof that any voters are influenced one way or another. In the second place, the critics variously say the early projections create a bandwagon stampede for the leader, create an underdog sympathy for the lagger, or create a reluctance to vote at all in view of the apparently settled outcome.

In summary, the network people are bound and determined the nation will this Nov. 3 experience the fastest, most accurate election reporting in history.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Hoover Victim of Circumstance

WASHINGTON — The late Herbert Hoover revealed in his published memoirs that in a speech at a Gridiron diner here on Dec. 12, 1931, he had said:

LAWRENCE

"A revered President, long since dead, once told me that there was no solution to this relation of the White House to the press; that there never would be a President who could satisfy the press until he was 20 years dead."

Maybe it will not take 20 years to evaluate the relationship of Mr. Hoover to the press or the significance of his public policies. Indeed, a close reading of what happened under the adminstrations of Mr. Hoover and his successor, the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, should be required today not only by members of Congress but by all others who are concerned with the economic problems that face America in the next decade.

There will always be a debate as to whether Mr. Hoover was as effective in his four years as President as he might have been. There will always be a dispute as to whether, in July 1932, when he claimed the depression was really beginning to show signs of ending, there were indications of a recovery movement.

But, after the 1932 election, there is no doubt that one of the tragedies in American history occurred when there was a lack of cooperation between the outgoing Hoover administration and the incoming Roosevelt administration from election day on Nov. 8, 1932, to inauguration day on March 4, 1933. As a result of the lack of public confidence, including rumors that the new administration would devalue the dollar in terms of gold, the nation was engulfed in a "bank holiday." All the banks in the country were closed for 10 days after Roosevelt's inauguration. The "New York Times" on July 16, 1934, said in an editorial:

"The change for the better in the last half of 1932 is beyond dispute. That this evidence of revival of confidence was suddenly reversed in April 1933 is equally true."

This very week the "Washington Post," in an editorial analyzing the Hoover administration, said:

"Mr. Hoover always insisted that the bottom of the depression was reached in June or July, 1932, some months before his sweeping defeat, and there is an abundance of data to support that view. The panic which followed in March, 1933, was undoubtedly related to the long period of uncertainty between the election and the inauguration and to President-elect Roosevelt's refusal to cooperate with the defeated administration in taking emergency measures.

"In part, therefore, Mr. Hoover was the victim of circumstances over which he had no control. Even if he had had the flexibility and disposition to propose the New Deal in 1931 or 1932, it is probable that it would not have been enacted."

There are many lessons to be learned from a study of what has been called "The Great Depression." Despite all the glowing tributes to the "New Deal," the fact remains that it did not solve America's economic problems. Thus, for instance, while the 12,060,000 unemployed in America in 1932 was 23.6% of the labor force, the figure went up the next year to 12,830,000, or 24.9%. By 1935, it had been reduced to only 20.1%, and in 1938 the figure was still 19%. Thus, there remained 10,390,000 Americans without jobs five years after the Roosevelt administration had come into power.

The biggest unsolved problem of the depression in the "New Deal" years—and, indeed, it remains today one of the weaknesses in our present economic structure—was job creation.

Mr. Hoover will long be remembered as a great humanitarian — an honest and sincere man who did the best he could in the presidency against heavy odds.

Nitze Visit Here Will Be Crucial

I.P-T Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Navy Secretary Paul H. Nitze expects to visit Long Beach for one day about the middle of December. He will visit MinePac and will inspect the Long Beach Naval Shipyard at the request of Defense Secretary McNamara.

KELLY

A spokesman for the handsome Navy secretary said Mr. Nitze, if invited to do so, will speak before a representative Long Beach group.

He will also spend a day at Point Mugu.

Secretary Nitze looks forward to his visit to Long Beach. He feels he has a commitment to the city.

The official reason for cancellation of his scheduled visit in October is the pressure of work on the Navy budget which must soon be presented to Defense Secretary McNamara.

Unofficially, some administration advisers admit there is another reason. There has been so much bipartisan political opposition to Secretary McNamara's policy (announced in 1963) of closing some high-cost and low-efficiency shipyards that it was decided to hold in abeyance further inspection of shipyards until after the elections.

Secretary Nitze's inspection will have a crucial bearing on the future of the shipyard.

A brilliant planner and analyst in the present and past three administrations, he is one of Secretary McNamara's closest friends and most influential advisers.

Secretary Nitze, regarded as one of the principal architects of defense policy, has also won trust and praise of Navy admirals.

One of these flag officers said, "The best way to make a case for a shipyard with Nitze is to show him efficiency and economy."

This is in accord with Mr. Nitze's recent statement at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He said he did not think the yard is doomed but that unemployment and other considerations were not the Navy's prime concerns in assigning new construction. He said, "I think everyone recognizes that our job is to maximize national defense at a minimum cost."

He did not quail before a bipartisan group pleading for the Brooklyn yard. They included Sens. Keating and Javits; the entire congressional delegation from Brooklyn; Mayor Wagner and Robert F. Kennedy.

Rep. Celler, 42 years in Congress, vowed that Congress will pass new legislation requiring all new construction and repairs to be divided equally between private and public yards.

Sen. Keating said three destroyer escorts are being constructed in Portugal. "This means money and jobs for Portugal but nothing for our shipyard workers," he said.

Robert F. Kennedy said the economic effects of possible layoffs will be taken into consideration by the administration, if not the Navy.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Go to the Parties, Mr. Brezhnev

OUR ACE KREMLINOLOGISTS are having a terrible time figuring out who's in charge of Russia these days. At first, they thought it might be Mr. Brezhnev, mainly because he's the new head of the Communist Party. But then it turned out he wasn't much of a party man.

As they gravely noted, Mr. Brezhnev was "conspicuously absent" from the very first party the new regime gave in the Kremlin, a reception for Cuban President Dorticos.

TRUE, MR. BREZHNEV'S PICTURE appeared on the far left in a line of posters several days later, a clue of tremendous significance, assuming the poster men didn't louse things up. But then he failed to appear at all at the big party celebrating the liberation of Kiev from the Germans 20 years ago. And every ace kremlinologist shook his head worriedly, frowned and said, "You know what that means."

Certainly we do. The meaning is clear to all us longtime students of Soviet affairs. But, personally, I'm worried. For there's just the remotest, possibility it could mean that Mr. Brezhnev doesn't like parties. And, if so, disaster lies ahead.

First, Mr. Brezhnev will face grave domestic problems at home.

"Oh, how nice," says Mrs. Brezhnev, opening the mail at the breakfast table. "The Mikoyans have invited us over for a reception. Goodness, don't we owe them?"

"Bah," says Mr. Brezhnev. "Soggy canapes, warm champagne. We will spend a quiet evening at home curled up with a good book, like 'The Use of Non-organic Fertilizers in Increasing Borscht Production.'"

"You never take me anywhere," wails Mrs. Brezhnev. "You're ashamed to be seen with me. You don't love me. The spark has gone out of our marriage. My mother warned me. . . ." And so on.

This will tend to make Mr. Brezhnev a little irritable. Like most men faced with domestic problems, he will grow more adventurous away from home. In about a year, I figure, he will be calling up our State Department, which will refer him down through channels to one of our ace kremlinologists, perhaps Mr. Entpossel.

"Listen, Entopossel," says Mr. Brezhnev, "if you Americans don't knock off aid to Outer Kurdistan, I am pushing The Button—or my name isn't Leonid Brezhnev!"

"How do you spell that?" says Mr. Entpossel.

"B-r-e-z . . . What do you mean, how do I spell it? This is Leonid Brezhnev, the leader of world Communism."

"Brezhnev . . . Brezhnev . . ." says Mr. Entpossel. "Hmmm. Sorry, old man, but I don't find the name among those who attended the opening of the Moscow Girl Pioneers Cookie Sale. Nor the Festival for Falkland Freedom. Nor . . . Must be some mistake."

"Mistake!" roars Mr. Brezhnev. "I am pushing The Button!"

"Look, whoever you are," says Mr. Entpossel. "Is this call collect?

SO I HOPE THAT IF Mr. Brezhnev is in charge, he will reform and become a good party man. For how will we know that he's the man with the fate of the world in his hands unless he gets out there and whoops it up nightly? Yes, sir, I'm sure that'll make each of us feel much more secure.

Traffic Signal Timing Criticized

EDITOR:

Long Beach, an "international city," resembles a small Southern one-horse town in respect to the timing of many of its traffic signals. In most one-way streets of any sizeable town, traffic signals are systematically timed so as to keep traffic moving. Not so with 6th and 7th Streets in Long Beach.

What are the reasons for this ineptness in our traffic control?

I am dismayed by the morbid funerals and barbaric pomp we go through when anyone dies. And the large graveyards around the country that could be used for homes for the living, and not storage yards for the dead.

I've traveled this world over and have seen millions of acres of good earth put to that use.

The only people of this earth that have enough brains to dispose of the dead in the cleanest and most sanitary way are the people of India.

We pay out thousands of dollars a year to have the trash moved away from our homes and burned up. So why not the human trash? Then there would be no fuss, no bother. All we would have to pay is $1.50 every two months and not the $1,000 to $2,000 we pay to get cried over.

Debate Issue: Should Doctor Mix Politics With Medicine?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently we published an article by staff writer Jack O. Baldwin quoting a letter circulated by two local physicians among their colleagues. The physicians' letter urged doctors to stock their waiting rooms with free political books. In an editorial in the same edition we criticized doctors for feeding their patients propaganda with their prescription. The article and the editorial drew a large volume of comment from readers. Space limitations and the fact that many of the comments were repetitive prevent the use of all the letters in full. Here, however, are representative excerpts.)

EDITOR:

Your editorial and article about doctors brainwashing patients really hit home. It happened to me a couple of months ago. A woman on an examining table covered by a sheet is really a captive audience.

Perhaps dependent, easily-influenced patients will accept whatever the doctor says. In my case, I was merely annoyed and decided to change doctors. I suspect that will be the more common reaction with adults.

In the long run, shoving political opinions down unwilling throats will reduce both a doctor's case load and his party's possible total vote.

JEANNE M. FORD, RN

IF IT IS NOT ethical for a doctor to discuss politics in his office, then who sets the standards of ethics that allow labor unions to commit their members to certain platform, that permits college professors to brainwash the impressionable students concerning political views, management to influence electoral outcome, newspapers to control political propaganda, and government workers to assist in passage of legislation favorable to them?

Are we as physicians, who are interested in the free practice of medicine, different and, therefore, not permitted to voice our opinion concerning a problem dear to the heart to every American?

Professors Have Rugged Time in Politics

WASHINGTON — Some of the political pros would have you believe that the halls of Congress should be reserved for the lawyers, the professionals, and that professors should stick to the cloistered halls of the colleges. Not so in actual practice.

PEARSON

Some of the toughest and most successful members of the Senate come straight out of the university, and this goes for other political jobs, such as Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, former Harvard professor; McGeorge Bundy, former Harvard dean, and so on.

The congressional profs, furthermore, may have deserted the Ivy League halls, but they have never deserted education.

During the closing days of the last Congress, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., former Dean of the University of Oregon Law School, staged a one-man filibuster which brought a badly-needed $5,000,000 to the overcrowded, under-staffed District of Columbia schools. He threatened to hold Congress up till he got the money, and he got it.

Most people have forgotten that Morse, one of the most hard-hitting members of the Senate, spent much of his life as a teacher. The top Senator on the Democratic side, Mike Mansfield, is a former history professor at Montana State University. He is up for re-election this time and will win easily.

The most famous professor in the Senate is probably Paul Douglas, D-Ill., who has taught economics in some of the foremost colleges in the nation and jumped from the University of Chicago into the Marines at the age of 50, then into the Senate.

Some professors have been given a hard time, simply because they were professors. Dr. Frank Graham, former President of the University of North Carolina, and one of the finest scholars ever to serve in the Senate, was crucified when he ran for re-election. His opponent circulated a photo in which he was shown shaking hands with a Negro. Graham was defeated.

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., one of the brightest of the new Senators, and a former history professor at the University of Wyoming, has been attacked and maligned by right-wing groups simply because he has generally voted for liberal legislation. The John Birch Society has made him its No. 1 Senate target. McGee has taken the beating philosophically and it now looks as if he would win.

Political ridicule heaped on the average professor when he runs for Congress is worse than on the average candidate. When Prof. Tom Bonner of the University of Omaha dared run against Rep. Glenn Cunningham, right-wing Republican of that city, he was so pillored that he retired. Bonner's opposition to a powerful congressman became embarrassing to university authorities, and Bonner moved to the University of Cincinnati.

* * * *

DESPITE this discouragement, one of the bright new candidates on the election horizon this year is Royce Hanson, professor of government at American University in Washington, running as a Democrat in Western Maryland.

Hanson is unique in that he has already been active in Congress. He played a backstage part in one of the most important filibusters of last session when a little band of liberals succeeded in blocking Sen. Everett Dirksen's delay of the Supreme Court's reappointment decision.

"Our real problem is making democracy work in the cities," says Prof. Hanson, "rather than in the rural areas."

This was why he helped support the Supreme Court's decision to adjust the rural balance in state legislatures.

"Second, we need a revision of congressional procedure. There is no sense in voting a budget for one year at a time. No successful business firm plans its financing that short range.

VISITS TO BASE, HARBOR CRUISES

Navy Week Celebration Starts in L.B. Tuesday

Los Angeles and Orange County Navy personnel will begin hosting Southland civilians and vice versa in observance of Navy Week.

In the Long Beach area, the celebration will start Tuesday with an open house at the naval station on Terminal Island and a civic banquet honoring Kenneth E. BeLieu, assistant secretary of the Navy.

Visitors will be conducted on tours at the station, refreshments will be served and motion pictures of fleet operations will be shown.

There will also be harbor cruises, and the public will be welcomed aboard the aircraft carrier, the USS Bennington, berthed at Pier E.

* * * *

MORE THAN 800 persons have made reservations for the Navy Day banquet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the International Ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel. BeLieu will be the principal speaker. Entertainment will feature the Long Beach Municipal Band and stars of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Association.

Rear Adm. Ralph K. James (ret.), former chief of the Bureau of Ships and former commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, will introduce the speaker. Ranking officers of the armed services in the area will attend.

BeLieu, a highly decorated veteran of both World War II and the Korean conflict, is assistant secretary for installations and logistics. The dinner honoring him was arranged by the city's Armed Services Commission.

ALSO ON Navy Day three Long Beach theaters —the Roxy, Palace and Imperial — will admit all service men in uniform free between 3 and 5 p.m. Tuesday. The Nu-Pike will admit service men free to all rides from 6 to 10 p.m.

Orange County Council of the Navy League of the United States will go all-out in a four-day celebration of Navy Week beginning Friday.

Highlight of the celebration will be four Navy ships, including the aircraft carrier USS Bennington, which will anchor off Newport Beach and entertain visitors during open house hours Saturday and Sunday.

Charles Thomas, former Secretary of the Navy, now head of the Irvine Company, is honorary chairman of the event, designed to honor the Navy and Marine Corps.

* * * *

FESTIVITIES will begin Friday with a Navy League banquet at the Disneyland Hotel in honor of Gen. C. H. Hayes, assistant commander of the Marine Corps. A special Navy League award will be made to Col. Evans Carlson.

Navy shore boats will transport visitors from the Balboa Pavilion to the Bennington and her escort ships, two destroyers and a missile launching ship from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Monday a special inspection and briefing for Orange County educators is scheduled aboard the Bennington.

NOW, JUST A PET

Fourth grade pupils from the Washington Elementary School in Whittier, with their teacher, Mrs. Linda Upton, inspect the newly opened exhibition of giant carnivorous dinosaur at Los Angeles County Museum. The rare fossil is an Antrodemus valens, a ferocious predator of 130 million years ago.

130 MILLION YEARS OLD

County Museum Displaying Dinosaur's Fossil Remains

By P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Dinosaur means "terrible lizard," and the 130-million-year-old specimen now on display at Los Angeles County Museum certainly lives up to the description.

The fossil remains of a 25-foot-long Antrodemus valens, discovered in an excavation near Cleveland, Utah, are being shown in the museum's main entrance exhibition area.

When it roamed the earth the Mesozoic area, from about 200 million to 60 million B.C., the Antrodemus was one of the most feared of the dinosaurs.

It weighed from two to three tons, walked upright and used its powerful forelegs for grasping and tearing its prey, according to Dr. J. R. Macdonald, curator of paleontology.

* * * *

UNLIKE SOME of its contemporaries, the Antrodemus was a flesh-eater, Dr. Macdonald said.

The name Antrodemus describes the hollow backbones of the animal, while "valens" is Latin for strong, he explained.

The word dinosaur was coined in 1842 by the British paleontologist and anatomist Sir Richard Owen to describe the fossil specimens, which then were just being discovered.

The current museum specimen was discovered in a quarry near Cleveland, Utah, which has been the source of more than 1,000 bones, representing about 40 different kinds of dinosaurs.

It is a composite specimen, with bones from several individual animals and casts from other originals where bones were missing.

* * * *

DR. MACDONALD emphasized that the "bone" is not original bone. Over the millions of years, the original bone was replaced by chemical elements from the earth and from ground water—one of the processes of fossilization.

The current specimen was prepared over a 14-month period by Leonard C. Beesom, senior museum preparator, and Michael K. Hammer, museum preparator, under the direction of Dr. Macdonald and Dr. Shelton P. Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology.

OTHER LECTURES PLANNED

Satellite Talk Slated at LBCC

John W. Thatcher, manager of the deep space network at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratories, will speak on "Satellite and Interplanetary Communications" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Long Beach City College auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Avenue.

JOHN W. THATCHER
To Speak Tuesday

Formerly manager of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's worldwide satellite-tracking network, Thatcher is the second speaker in the series on "The Move Into Space," sponsored by the City College forum department. He is also one of the top technical advisers in communications satellite developments.

* * * *

JOHN ROBERT Clarke, author and lecturer, opens a new series of four talks on "The Literature of Ideas" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Rogers Junior High School auditorium, Monrovia Avenue and Appian Way. First topic is "Montaigne and the Second Golden Age."

TRAINING EXPLAINED

Colonel Claude J. Norton, commander of Long Beach's 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, explains fundamentals of Civil Air Patrol training to CAP Cadets Susan Daugherty and Gordon Tipton. Long Beach Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol, official Air Force Auxiliary, is located on the Air Force portion of Long Beach Airport and meets on Wednesday nights from 7:30 to 10 in building T-424.

Higher Inspection Fees Asked for Bigger Stores

Fees charged by the Long Beach Health Department for inspection of larger food stores and liquor stores will be increased under one of a series of amendments pending before the City Council's ordinance committee.

City Manager John R. Mansell recommended the changes as a result of what Health Department officials described as defects in the inspection ordinance adopted nearly two years ago.

The present schedule provides for an annual $10 inspection fee for grocery stores, liquor stores and delicatessens regardless of size.

* * * *

OWNERS of "Mama and Papa" stores have complained that their larger competitors should pay more. Mansell and Dr. I. D. Litwack, city health officer, agreed.

Under the proposed amendment, the $10 charge will be retained for stores under 2,000 square feet. A $20 fee will be levied in the 2,000-4,000 square-foot category, and $30 for establishment of more than 4,000 square feet.

According to officials, 139 of the 310 stores now subject to inspection will pay higher fees. Added annual revenue to the city is estimated at $2,270.

Other amendments backed by the manager and health officer will make it easier for the Health Department to collect fees promptly and will also extend the charges to a few additional businesses.

* * * *

ONE PROPOSAL will impose a 10% penalty for nonpayment of the inspection levy within 30 days after the due date. A similar penalty already applies to business licenses.

A $5 inspection charge is recommended for temporary concession stands set up in parking lots of shopping centers and along parade routes.

About 40 retail bakery trucks, inspected by the state until recent legislation transferred this responsibility to cities, will be charged a $10 annual fee.

Cortina Tours Glen Ivy

By BILL EMERY

Pick an American Plan resort to drive to in a snappy European import and the combination makes for an intriguing weekend . . . especially when the resort is being operated by a Dane . . . from Long Beach.

We picked up our motorlog car last weekend from Herb Baldwin, owner and manager of Plaza Motors at 17439 Clark Ave. in Bellflower . . . a Cortina GT English Ford, and set out to discover Glen Ivy Hot Springs resort just 14 miles south of Corona on State Highway 71.

With the new San Diego Freeway east of Long Beach still suffering from growing pains, we chose to drive out Westminster Boulevard to the Newport Freeway north to the Riverside Freeway and south at Corona on 71 to Glen Ivy. The trip takes less than one hour.

We arrived in time to check into the Ming Room, a spacious room annex decorated from the Ming Dynasty — China—and proceeded to dinner.

Meal after meal became an experience in gastronomical delight and we came to appreciate the talents of the kitchen with a head chef on deck 20 years and assistant for 15 years.

The best way to describe this resort is that it carries a family air about it. Even the guests pick up this feeling and run with it. Some of them are so loyal to the resort they come almost every weekend.

At Christmas time many gather here for a family get-together and exchange gifts.

Thus is the feeling that predominates at Glen Ivy. You can fly in (as many do on the 2300-foot landing strip) or drive in from Corona or Elsinore. The benefits are excellent food, stimulating baths in three varying hot pools, a variety of bath and massage services for both men and women and a multitude of recreational activities.

ENGLISH FORD

We drove our English Ford Cortina GT coupe on down to Elsinore where the lake is filled to the camping grounds and activity at a new high level. This is the car that was proclaimed by the Swiss motoring annual as "International car of the year" because of its outstanding performance, reliability and versatility in competition around the world.

In announcing the award, the editor pointed out that no other car in any production class has ever won so many victories in so many different events in so many markets of the world as has Cortina.

Competition-modified Cortinas have racked up more than 200 national championships in 23 countries to date. The one event that seemed to clinch the top award was the dramatic victory of a stock Cortina in the 1964 East African Safari Rally, described as the world's meanest, muddiest event.

It lasts four days and covers a 3,188-mile course through the mountains and jungles of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The 94 starters in this year's Safari dwindled to 21 at the finish—and five of these were Cortinas, finishing first, second, third, tenth and fifteenth. Cortina won first second, third and fourth in its class in this event.

The Cortina is a roomy 5-seater built tough to give many years of practical motoring with outstanding dependability. It has a 4-cylinder, overhead valve, 1500-cc engine that develops up to 84-hp.

The transmission is 4-speed all-synchromesh standard equipment . . . with an automatic optional. Cortina offers a 2 and 4-door sedan, a GT, a station wagon and a compact Anglia delivery van.

The Cortina 2-door lists for $1845 and the GT model with the high performance engine at about $300 more.

With a top speed of over 100 mph, the GT model gets an easy 28 mpg of gasoline on the road. It cruises comfortably at high speeds with amazing engine silence. For a compact, the GT has surprising comfort and roadability.

RESORT HOSTS CORTINA

Alex and Florence Springborg, former Long Beach residents, welcome motorlog Cortina party to Glen Ivy. Alex, a member of Long Beach's El Bekal mounted patrol, is a familiar participant in Southland parades with his Palomino "King." Duke, the St. Bernard dog, is a mascot of Glen Ivy.

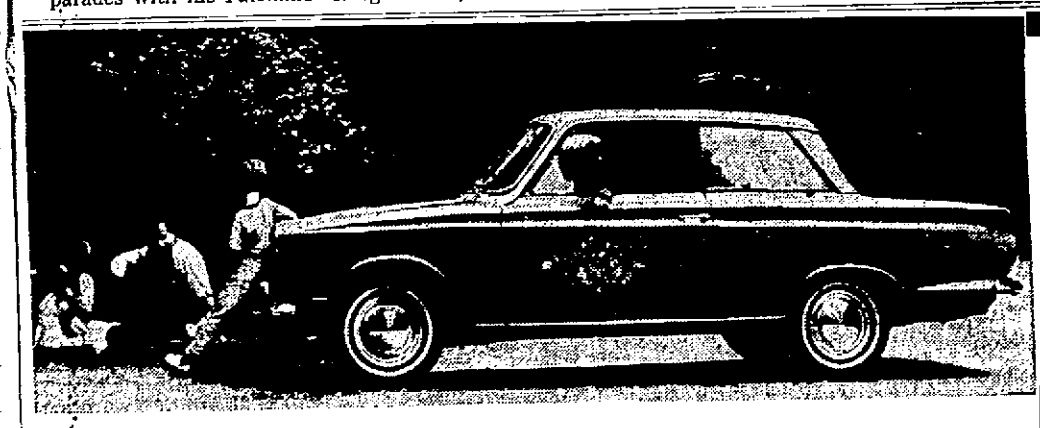

THREE MINERAL POOLS

Over 200,000 gallons of hot mineral water daily flow through three pools at temperatures varying from 109-degrees F to 90-degrees. Tennis, shuffleboard and horseshoes add to available sports.

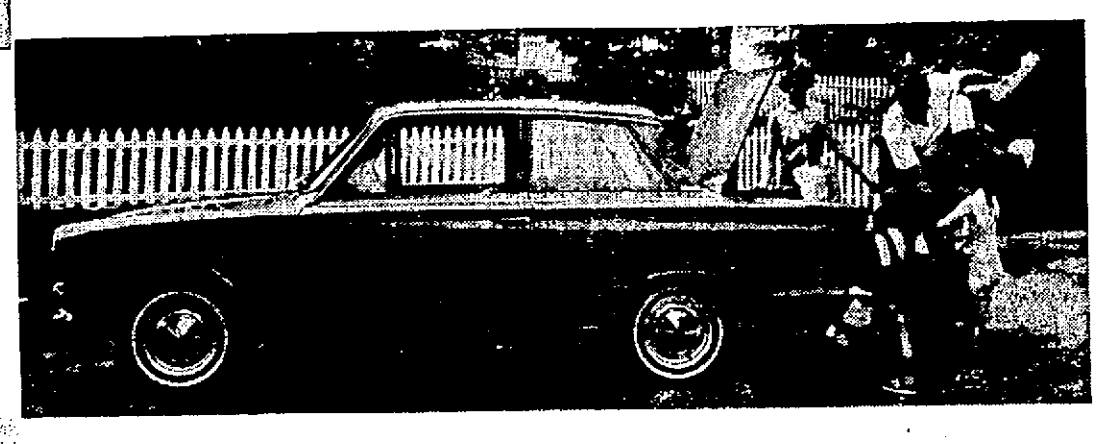

FOR VACATIONERS AND HONEYMOONERS

The famous smorgasbord served on weekends is an experience you will long remember. Hotel and cottages are reasonably priced on the American plan.

FILM PREVIEWS

Films Debut Wednesday

Three new films opening Wednesday in area theaters are "Behold a Pale Horse," "The Lively Set" and "Malamondo."

Dealing with the aftermath of the Civil War in Spain, "Behold a Pale Horse," features regory Peck, Anthony Quinn and Omar Sharif with the Spanish Pyrenees for background.

Cast of the Fred Zinneman produced-directed film includes Paoloa Stoppa, Mildred Dunnock and Raymond Pellegrin.

The story deals with a guerrilla leader (Peck) who has been soughth y a police captain (Quinn) for 15 years, and the trap laid to capture the guerrilla, warned of the danger by a priest (Sharif).

* * * *

YOUTHFUL stars, catchy music and auto racing blend in "The Lively Set," in color with James Darren, Pamela Tiffin, Joanie Sommers, Doug McClure and Marilyn Maxwell.

The story is about a school dropout, an automotive engineer who needs more education to reach his goal. It also features the new Chrysler turbine engine automobile.

In the lead roles, James Darren and Pamela Tiffin and Doug McClure and Joanie Sommers are teamed. Miss Sommers makes her acting debut as a night-club singer.

Others in the cast are Marilyn Maxwell as Darren's mother; Charles Drake as his father; Peter Mann, Caroline Wells and five internationally known auto race drivers—Mickey Thompson, Duane Carter, Billy Krause, James Nelson and Ron Miller.

Singer Bobby Darin not only wrote the screen score but contributed five of the tunes sung in the film by Darren, Miss Sommers, Wink Martindale and the Surfaris.

* * * *

LACK OF MORAL stability of youth is portrayed in "Malamondo," dealing with brawling and bacchanalian times of some of today's misguided and amoral youth.

Filmed in many countries of modern Europe, its subject is that sector of the world's youth, many from wealthy families, who are caught up in a maze of frustration and despair and uncertainties.

Andriano Celentano, Rome singing rave, plays role in the film, which has a foreword by Bertrand Russell.

PAMELA TIFFIN and James Darren, young lovers of "The Lively Set."

ANDRIANO CELENTANO

De la Varre photographed the picture last summer on a 15,000 mile tour of Spain.

ON SEAL BEACH STAGE

Boyea Racial Play Powerful

By VERA WILLIAMS

Samuel Boyea's powerful play on race relations, "A Lie a Century Long" was presented by the Actors' Company in its world premier Friday night in the Peppermint Playhouse in Seal Beach.

The audience left the theater after the play saying "This should be on Broadway!" or "This would make a fine movie. Everyone ought to see it."

As an experiment, Boyea, drama critic of The Independent, Press-Telegram, chose an all-Caucasian cast to present his play about Harlem.

Larry Johns directs, and Kay Carroll is producer. The acting is of professional caliber.

* * * *

BOYEA, born in British Guiana, well knows the struggles and heartaches of the family who are the core of his play—Gladstone and Victoria Lettman, immigrants from British Guiana rearing their children in the Harlem jungle.

"Lie" is the new American tragedy of choice: wealth of choice or misery of choice, and Boyea, Johns, their actors and stage crew present it well.

Liz Casey, president of the Hollywood-Beverly Hills NAACP, brings compassion and vital force to the role of Victoria. Edwin Gangel, who looks and acts something like Cary Grant is Gladstone, who, after 30 years, clings to the memory of his Guiana plantation.

Sue Sabas, a striking Texas-born redhead, is a fiery Satia, torn by her love for her parents, her weakling brother and her passion for Domino, Harlem prince of darkness.

Frank Coresentino, well on his way to a career on stage and television, is the distraught Dred, "hooked" on dope. Celeste Clinton plays Raquel, appealing and pregnant Puerto Rico girl; Phil Di Gioia is a breezy Domino.

SMALLER roles are handled capably by Michael Nash as the bug exterminator; Darlene Chaffee, as "club" member; Val Rodriguez, physician. Mary Jaco and Michael Nash present the Three Kings' Day Chorus.

The theme song, "A Lie a Century Long", music by Carlo San Paolo, words by Sue Sabas, is sung by Di Gioia.

Linda Gorchester is in charge of the sound. One of her best effects is the simulated heartbeat of an unborn child which become the heart-cry of all Harlem, all mankind.

The play will not be given today, but hereafter will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through November at the Peppermint Playhouse, 124 Main St., Seal Beach.

DAN O'HERLIHY

He'd Settle for Bit (Better) Role

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Dan O'Herlihy's precisely the kind of Irishman you don't expect to meet . . . when you're going to interview one who's had tremendous movie and TV success and is entitled to get roaring drunk and do some boisterous bragging.

He was quietly drinking tea when we got together, he spun no Irish yarns, and when we discussed his great role of Air Force chief in "Fail Safe," Dan O'Herlihy said:

"Henry Fonda is the finest actor I've ever worked with. Even talking about him makes me jealous. He can do anything and everything.

"When he did the 'hot line' scene from the White House, everybody was too stunned to applaud. I asked him how he did it. He smiled and said, 'It came out almost as good as I wanted it to.'

"Almost! It was fantastic!"

* * * *

O'HERLIHY is top-billed in the picture which would have made it proper for him to say something about his own performance.

"It's the first picture I've starred in that is going to make a mint," is the closest he would come to it.

O'Herlihy, father of five—Olven, Gavan, Cormac, Lorcan and Patricia—and a product of Dunlaghaire, Ireland, who gave up architecture to act, will drink, but not a lot.

"And I've never sen a leprechaun," he said. "I think there's a connection between these statements. If the Irish drank less, they would see fewer leprechauns."

* * * *

HE COMES from a resolute Irish family. His mother came to the U.S. recently to live with Dan and his wife in Hollywood.

An airlines stewardess asked his mother if she wanted to see a movie.

"No, I'm saving my eyes for my Dan's films," she said.

A few years ago, his brother Mike asked Dan for fare to come to American.

"Find your own way over like I did," Dan said. Mike got a 28-foot sailboat and made his way to the U.S. by way of Azores, sold the boat, went to Hollywood and became a big Hollywood director.

* * * *

DAN, WHO made a potful from doing the TV series, "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters," recently turned down the third largest role in James B. Harris' "The Bedford Incident," which would have meant co-starring with Sidney Poitier and Richard Widmark.

"It's one of the best scripts I've ever read but the part didn't strike me as being me," Dan said.

"But there's a much smaller role, that of a German U-boat commander, which appeals to me more . . . and you should hear my German accent! I wish you'd ask Mr. Harris to offer this Irishman that smaller role!"

* * * *

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Robert Morse notes that some shows in theaters that serve liquor have received mixed notices: "The critics hate the shows, but like the drinks."

* * * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A visitor to the World's Fair feels sorry for U.S. Steel: "They spent $2,000,000 to build that Unisphere and haven't sold a single one yet!"

Independent Oil Group Will Meet

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An annual strategy session for combating two old problems—oil imports and federal efforts to control wellhead prices of natural gas—will be held the next three days by the nation's independent oil operators.

Oilmen from nearly 40 states are to attend the 35th meeting of the 7,500-member Independent Petroleum Association of America.

The Houston meeting comes at a time the association's traditional position as chief Washington spokesman for the nation's independents has been challenged at least indirectly by some operators from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Differences of opinion on the most effective method for controlling imports broke into the open at the association's mid-year meeting in May in New Orleans. These differences also figured prominently in the September annual meeting at Fort Worth of the 4,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

* * * *

THE NATIONAL Association favors curtailing imports by strengthening the mandatory controls program administered by the Interior Department.

The Texans long have advocated a tariff or indirect duty as the best way to limit imports. This position is supported by the Liaison Committee of Cooperating Associations, a group headed by J. A. Mull Jr., Wichita, Kan., and representing 26 state and regional trade associations in 23 oil states.

Earl W. Turner, executive vice president of the Texas association, said at Fort Worth the Texas independents are proud of the national association but concerned over its reluctance to accept the failure of the mandatory controls program.

"LIAISON HAS a very key role in bringing about the pressure needed for obtaining improvements," he said. "We've been called radicals rocking the boat but we have no alternative—we must back a program that will bring definite relief."

The national association's imports policy committee meets in preliminary session Monday morning. Tariffs probably will be discussed but the committee is expected to recommend Tuesday that the association continue to seek mandatory controls program revisions that would slash imports quotas some 250,000 to 300,000 barrels a day.

The Natural Gas policy committee is expected to recommend Monday reaffirmation of plans to place before Congress in January a bill that would remove wellhead prices from the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

Two such bills have been approved by Congress, only to be vetoed by Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

MOST CONGRESSIONAL and industry leaders have indicated efforts for passage of a third bill will require direct support from the White House.

Both President Lyndon B. Johnson and Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republican nominee, supported the old gas bills in the Senate. Neither has made public comment on the issue, however, during their current presidential campaign.

H. A. (Dave) True, Casper, Wyo., will make his presidential report at Monday's opening general session.

Other speakers include Lt. Gen. W. O. Senter, who is in charge of Defense Department purchases of petroleum products; Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., and Rear Adm. O. P. Lattu, director of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas.

Spanish Soldiers

MAULEON, France (AP) — A blizzard caught a company of Spanish soldiers in the Pyrenees Saturday and four of them froze to death. A dozen others were missing while the remaining 61 found their ways to safety or were rescued.

French helicopters recovered the frozen bodies of four soldiers and evacuated six others with cases of frostbite.

Freeway Route Meet Tuesday

needed it will be obtained before the engineer makes his recommendation.

The commission will then notify the city that it intends to consider the location of the freeway at a specified meeting. The commission may on its own, or at city request, hold an additional hearing before adopting a route.

* * * *

FOLLOWING adoption of a route, actual designing of the freeway will be started and a freeway agreement will be made between the state and city regarding closing of streets, placements of utilities, etc.

After that, detailed design will be completed, rights of way certified, appraised and acquired as funds become available. The right of way then will be cleared and construction started.

The whole process from now to completion likely will be between eight and 10 years.

The approximate route for the Pacific Coast Freeway was adopted by the state legislature. The precise alignment will be set, by law, by the Highway Commission.

* * * *

THE STATE already has constructed segments of the Pacific Coast Freeway south of Oxnard and near Capistrano Beach. Other sections of the route have been adopted, but not yet built.

Highway officials say they are concerned about the construction of the freeway through Long Beach because of congestion of local east-west streets now existing and because additional congestion will be created when the San Gabriel River Freeway finally reaches the Garden Grove Freeway next year.

Studies by both state and local highway engineers show that east-west streets in Long Beach from Pacific Coast Highway south to the Ocean carry more than 150,000 cars daily.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH it is too early to tell the exact effect of the newly completed San Diego Freeway section through the community, it appears that only about 25,000 cars will be diverted to that route from the 150,000 daily count.

By 1980, just a few years after completion of the new freeway, it is expected by conservative estimates that cross-town traffic will be approximately 200,000 cars daily. It is estimated that some 100,000 of these vehicles would use the new freeway still leaving 100,000 on the local city streets.

Issues that are bound to arise in connection with freeway construction here concern effect on land values and on city taxes.

* * * *

IN A "Final Report of the Highway Cost Allocation Study, Part VI," submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Commerce in 1961 these comments were made:

"Although the influence of highway improvements on land values may extend for miles on either side of a major highway improvement, values of land adjacent to the highway ordinarily increase faster than those of land farther from the highway."

In a compilation taken from 183 study areas along freeways, the report found that the annual rate of value increase for land along freeways ranged (for various classifications of land) from 6% to 18% or "from 2 to 6 times the current annual growth in gross national product."

* * * *

PROBABLY the most significant impact—because of the amount of land so used—is the effect on residential property.

"The general tendency," the report said," is for residential properties adjacent to a highway of modern design to increase in value faster than properties more removed from the facility . . . Values of residential properties do not, of course, always exhibit immediate gains from highway improvements . . . Highway proximity in some instances adversely affects the usefulness of land for residential purposes.

"Benefits which established residential areas can derive from improved highway service may be indicated by such changes as shorter travel time for work and shopping, additional people making use of the area for residential purposes, and increases in land values . . . How residents feel about a highway facility provides an important indication of the highway's social and economic impact on a local community. The negative effects of highway improvements are often immediately apparent and therefore overstressed. On the other hand modern highway facilities are quite acceptable to the major portion of residents in areas served by these facilities."

Regarding tax effects the report said "the acquisition of property for highway use ordinarily has the immediate effect of removing some property from the tax rolls. However, longer range effects of highway construction on tax revenues have proven to be generally favorable."

Lions Give $1,000 to Girl Group

West Long Beach Lions Club will present a $1,000 check to Long Beach Council of Campfire Girls at dinner at 7 p.m. Oct. 29 at the Chandelier Restaurant, 4205 Atlantic Ave. The money will go toward construction of an Adirondack cabin at the Campfire mountain camp at Running Springs near Lake Arrowhead.

The cabin will be the first of 26 new units, planned to replace tents at the camp.

Ed Young, chairman of the boys and girls committee of West Long Beach Lions Club, will present the check, which will be received by a Campfire Girl. Mrs. Joan Finn, new executive director, and Mrs. John Gerhardt, Council president, also will be present.

Grabowski Leads Illini Over Bruins

Rose Bowl Hero Rips, Snorts for 3 TDs, 171 Yards

By JEROME HALL
I.-P-T Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — If you have ever wondered what an Illini is, it's a two-legged animal that gobbles up yardage and eats up opposing football teams.

The University of Illinois pointed one of its animals at a bunch of nice fellows from UCLA Saturday and the result was 26-7 triumph for the Big Tenners.

There was nothing fancy, nothing tricky about this Illini animal, but few of the 68,727 spectators that filled Memorial Stadium here were interested in the finer points of the game.

They flocked back to the campus on Dads Day to see victory in any form it might come, for the previous home game for the Illinois team had been a 26-0 embarrassment by Ohio State.

* * * *

FULLBACK Jim Grabowski, a 211-pound piledriving bruiser who made the difference in last January's Rose Bowl victory, gave them what they wanted. Grabowski ripped and snorted through the nice fellows from UCLA a total of 27 times. He gained 171 yards and scored three touchdowns on gallops of 33, 8 and 4 yards.

The other Illini TD was a two-yard center squeeze by QB Fred Custardo whose short stabs at the line on option plays gave him 53 net yards and made him the day's second-leading rusher.

Custardo would have been a much bigger hero if his teammates had not dropped so many of his passes.

His teammates did better with Bruin quarterbacks' passes, as a matter of unpleasant fact. The Illini intercepted three on Larry Zeno and one of his understudy, Steve Sindell.

Zeno ran for 48 yards and completed seven of 19 tosses for 107 yards.

While Illinois was clearly superior, the Bruins got none the best of it in luck and had two drives stopped inside the four-yard line, one of them in the end zone on a penalty. Without Grabowski, it would have been an even match. He was unanimous choice of the press as back of the game.

* * * *

ILLINOIS coach Pete Elliott called Zeno "phenomenal. He not only made some fantastic throws, he runs exceptionally well." Elliott disclosed that he made a major adjustment at halftime, calling off the red dog rush "so everybody could go where Zeno was going." They did.

The Illini got the ball on the Bruin 38 the first time and ended up on the 38 four plays later. Three plays later Zeno threw into the arms of a blue-shirted Illini linebacker at the Bruin 46 but a field goal try from the 31 failed.

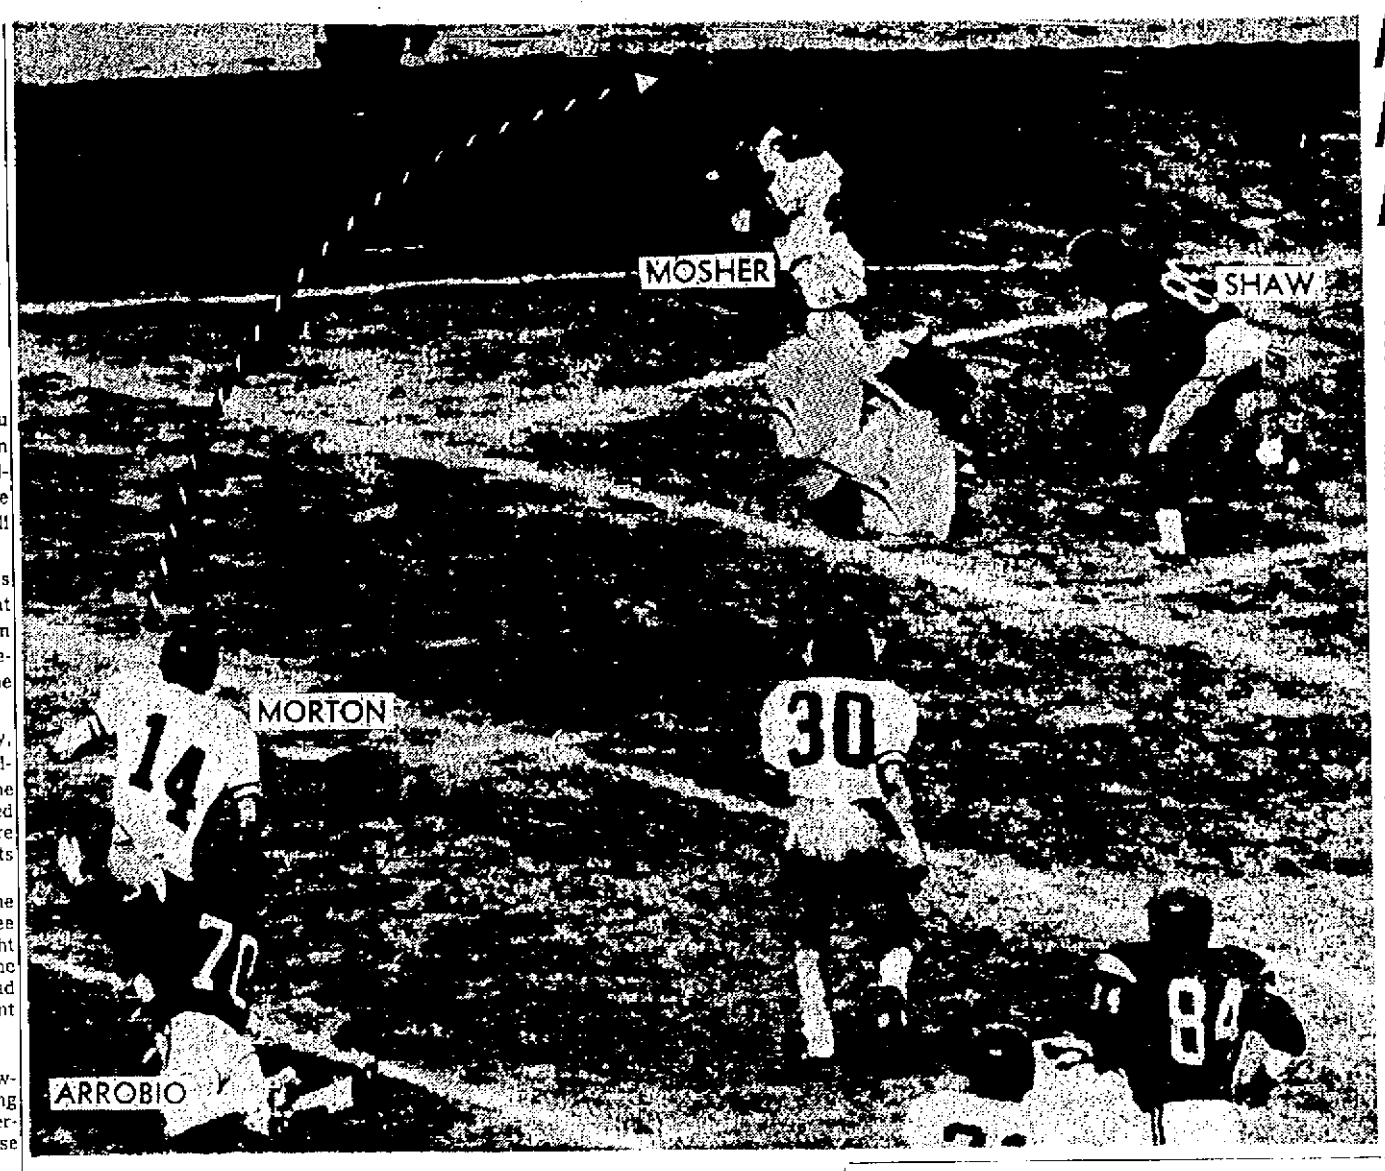

Not until nearly a quarter of the game had elapsed did the Illini cash in. It was after a 26-yard Bruin punt into a stiff wind. The victors went 54 yards in nine plays. Grabowski got the TD on an 8-yard run through the middle, standing straight all the way.

The Bruins got on the scoreboard for the first time in 10

HILL BREAKS UP TD BID

Fertig Outpasses Morton; Bears Pass Out, 26-21

By DAVE LEWIS

Craig Fertig, whose passing had been subject to strong criticism in recent days, fired his fourth touchdown aerial of the game with just 50 seconds remaining to give the Trojans of Southern California a breath-taking 26-21 victory over California Saturday at the Coliseum before 48,105 fans.

The game-winning pass, a 22-yard bomb to Rod Sherman, who grabbed the ball between two Cal defenders in the end zone, climaxed an unbelievable comeback by the Trojans and kept them in strong contention for the Rose Bowl bid.

The Trojans appeared to be dead with 4:35 left to play when a two-point conversion try failed, leaving them a point shy of the Golden Bears, 21-20.

And they were all but buried when Fertig was spilled back on the USC four-yard line with just 2:05 left in the game.

* * * *

THE FINAL GASP seemed imminent seconds later when, with only 1:56 to go, Troy was faced with a not-too-promising 4th-and-5 situation on its own 23. But Fertig, cool in the face of threatened disaster, hit Fred Hill for 18 yards on the do-or-die play to pick up a firstdown and breathe new life into the Trojan War Horse.

From there, Fertig passed 21 yards to Mike Garrett and 22 yards to Hill as the Bears reeled under the growing momentum of the Trojan onslaught. Then he hammered home the knockout blow with his strike to Sherman after finding the primary target on the play, Hill, hopelessly covered.

The ballots already had been collected in the press box naming California's Craig Morton "back of the game" when Fertig picked the Trojans off the floor and carried them 96 yards on six straight completions in the quick time of one minute and 15 seconds to cap one of the most spectacular collegiate games ever played in the Coliseum.

* * * *

MORTON HAD ONE of his greatest afternoons as he hurled touchdown strikes of 6 and 45 yards to flankers Jerry Mosher and Neil Bradley, scored a third TD himself on a five-yard run, and passed for a two-point conversion in completing 18 of 28 aerials for 219 yards.

But Fertig's fantastic final flurry of passes not only nullified the brilliant performance by the great Bear quarterback, it shattered three Trojan records and equalled another as the son of the Huntington Park police chief wound up hitting 21 of 28 for 371 yards, including touchdowns of 44 and 22 yards to Sherman, 25 yards to John Thomas, and 45 to Garrett.

This broke Jim Powers' previous highs of 19 completions for 293 yards against Washington in 1949, bettered Russ Saunders' long-standing one-game total offense mark of 282 yards against Idaho in '29, and equalled Pete Beathard's record of four TD tosses against Wisconsin in the 1963 Rose Bowl.

California outplayed the heavily-favored Trojans most of the way. The Bears twice were frustrated on drives that carried to the USC three-yard line. Still they might have salvaged the win but for the fact that Tom Blanchfield missed two field goal attempts from point-blank range—the 10-yard line in the opening moments of play, and the 17 at the outset of the third period.

* * * *

OUTSIDE OF THEIR four scoring sorties, Troy was only able to cross the midfield stripe three times. USC punted after reaching the Cal 46 in the first quarter, rolled to the Bear 22 in the closing moments of the first half on Ron Heller's 45-yard run only to have an interception break up the threat, and moved to the 40 early in the last period before fumbling the ball away.

While a satisfying victory, it was a costly one for the Trojans as they now gear for the invasion next Saturday of the Washington Huskies. Defensive star Tom Lupo apparently was lost for the season with torn ligaments in the left knee, Long Beach's Denis Richman suffered a possible fractured fibula in the right leg, and Thomas was carried from the field with an injured left knee.

49ers Drub Mats, 24-0

By AL LARSON

Buoyed by Shelly Novack's record 94-yard touchdown run on an intercepted pass, Long Beach State rolled to its fifth victory in six starts by defeating San Fernando Valley, 24-0, Saturday night in CCAA play at Monroe High field, Northridge.

The Matadors lost all heart when Long Beach's defense pilfered five passes. It marked the first time in season that Valley State has been shut out. The Matadors' record is 4-2.

Coach Don Reed's 49ers were unable to break the Matadors' defensive key for better than 20 minutes, but quarterback Jerry Otterson generated a sudden spark and L. B. struck for two touchdowns late in the half to grab a 14-0 intermission lead.

* * * *

FULLBACK Bob Boozell kicked a 24-yard field goal in the third period and Novack capped the scoring with his scintillating 94-yard scamper. The 49er defender snatched Max Choboian's aerial on his own 4. It was a futile goal-ward race for three Matadors

Vikes Win Fifth in Row

By GARY RAUSCH

Relying on a stubborn pass defense and quick-hitting offense, Long Beach City College staved off numerous second-half rallies to gain its fifth consecutive victory, 22-14, over a spirited L. A. Valley team Saturday night.

A crowd of 5,500 at Monarch Field watched Valley's fine quarterback Dudley Schusterick attempt to knock the Vikings off their No. 2 national rating with a continuous aerial barrage.

The 5-11, 170-pound Miami, Fla., transfer, who prepped at Birmingham High, let fly with 34 passes and completed 12 for 276 yards and one touchdown.

But four of his tosses were duds, picked off by white-shirted Vikings. Tony Sutera pilfered three, one in the second period and two in the third, while Pat Cashman got the fourth with 1:27 remaining in the game.

Not enough credit can be given Cashman and Bob Stiles for the excellent job they did in covering Schusterick's favorite target, Bill Hayhoe, who at 6-7½ is nearly a foot taller than either of the defenders.

The Vikings extended their lead to 22-0 late in the third period. Culotta fumbled to Jack Hale at the Valley 31. Quarterback Greg Barton, after faking handoffs to Marv Motley and Elwood Stewart, lobbed a 22-yarder to split-end Ron Drake for a first down on the 9.

Two plays later, Motley followed blocks by co-captain Fred Convertini and Tom Ammirato on a nine-yard TD sweep of right end. Barton hit Jack Tucker with a swing pass for the PAT.

The Monarchs finally got on the scoreboard 53 seconds into the final stanza with Schusterick and Culotta combining on a 61-yard pass and run play after a Viking punt. It was Schusterick's ninth TD pass of the year.

Barton suffered his third interception of the campaign on the next series and the surging Monarchs

The Sunday Sermon

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Irrepressible Beans Reardon, the legendary umpire, has just returned from a month's tour of Europe and (as if you didn't know) proclaimed the highlight was the Munich Beer Festival. Seconds to the motion were made by Bob Wenke, the attorney, and Arthur Edwards, the paint and hockey baron. Naturally, Reardon had one comment, however: "The Germans drink beer all day, but there's a reason. The stuff's weak."

BEANS REARDON
Days of Beer & Roses

. . . Reardon might have been a bit prejudiced. He's August Busch's western Budweiser representative. In such a capacity, Beans naturally supported Busch when we asked him what he thought of the St. Louis mogul's action in firing Bing Devine (baseball's general manager of the year) and letting his World Series championship manager, Johnny Keane, quit cold.

. . . "The club was down in midseason," boomed Beans, "and the owner had to do something. Devine was going to be fired or quit of his own accord at the end of the season, he he just was fired before the season was over. I think Devine's firing—no matter what kind of ball club he had built—spurred the Cardinals. The players were shocked and expressed their sentiments to Bing personally. That shock won them the pennant."

. . . It's Reardon's opinion also that if the Cardinals hadn't fired Devine, they wouldn't have been shaken from the lethargy that gripped them since the season started.

KEANE'S JUMP to the Yankees didn't bother Reardon. "Keane's going to New York is no big loss to St. Louis," declared Reardon. "You wrote this before you were back in St. Louis during the season and I've heard it, too—that Keane wasn't too popular with the players. The Devine incident spurred the players, not Keane. The Cardinals' new manager, Red Schoendienst, is really popular in St. Louis. If he can handle those guys—and I think he can—there's no loss. You've got the same ballplayers, with a manager they like. I think the Cardinals can win it again—without Keane."

. . . Keane IS a hard taskmaster. With this knowledge, one wonders how he will fare next season with pin stripe prima donnas like Joe Pepitone, Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle—with Ralph Houk and Yogi Berra, his predecessors, in the background yet! Next season looms interesting, indeed.

. . . Postscript: Wasn't that a corking line unleased Saturday by Branch Rickey, the ousted Cardinal ancient who was supposed to be in back of the "Durocher for Manager" campaign before the Redbirds started their drive? "Even in my most incoherent dreams," wailed The Branch, "I would never advocate that Durocher be hired as manager." (And what's that adage about rodents deserting a sinking vessel?)

CLIENT'S CORNER:

. . . "What kind of snow job is Bill Brundage trying to pull on Friday night college football (channel 13)? Last week he emphasized that Harbor JC had the inside track to the Jr. Rose Bowl, plus reiterating seven times Harbor is fifth in the nation in ratings. Not once did he mention Long Beach City College. Bless her heart, the Jr. Rose Bowl queen said Long Beach 'was right in there' when Brundage brought the subject up with her. Brundage certainly gives a pretty sad display of biased reporting." (signed) Dr. John A. Saylor, 5406 Village Rd.

(His stooges apparently forgot to tell Bill that Long Beach has ranked above Harbor in national ratings ALL SEASON—and is in a far tougher league. Also—and not incidentally—the Metropolitan Conference, by its own vote, turned down channel 13's telecast invitation!)

. . . "Our Bellflower Pop Warner League football team has been designated to go to Hawaii to represent the U.S. Dec. 19. The designation is wonderful, but we need $3,000 for these boys from Long Beach, Lakewood and surrounding areas to make the trip. They're selling candy and doing everything possible to raise the money. But they need more help and would appreciate any contribution from anybody. The coach is Carroll Price (TOpaz 9-7256, 6399 E. Florence, Bell Gardens). I'm just a team mother trying to help." (signed) Alma Levers, 5853 Silva St., Lakewood (TOrrey 7-0164).

. . . (Any "angels" in the audience?)

. . . "In this drastic time, I cannot understand how people can feel as they do. In all sports, both black and white players are in such close harmony that viewers cheer and praise both. But why is it that after sports events are over, these same spectators are so against colored people being granted equal rights? The white people should take inventory and be ashamed, for if they can pat them on the back and cheer for them in sports, why can't they continue this same feeling and want them to be granted equal rights in other matters? I hope this letter will be published. It may be effective in making people realize that the colored people are human beings and not just FIGURES in the sports world." (signed) Harold F. Gutrow, Long Beach.

(I agree wholeheartedly with you sir. I also hope your letter might produce a needed change of heart.)

Blades Lose to Seattle in Last Period

Totems' 4-2 Win Regains Lead in WHL Scramble

SEATTLE (AP)—The Seattle Totems regained first place in the Western Hockey League Saturday night when they downed the Blades, 4-2.

Seattle, with a one-man advantage, got its first goal with 4½ minutes gone in the first period when Bill Deneen connected from 15 feet out. Guyle Fielder made it 2-0 a little more than two minutes later.

Midway through the period, the Totems had trouble clearing the puck and Norm Johnson controlled it in front of the Seattle net. He slapped it in for the first Blade score.

* * * *

WITH JUST 40 seconds gone in the second period the score was tied. Harold White got the goal after he and Willie O'Ree got away on a two-on-one break.

Jean Marie Cossette took a long lateral pass from Bill MacFarland, faked Blade goalie Jack Norris, and put Seattle in front for good at the 14:57 mark of the third period. He was knocked down as he shot by Howie Young of the Blades.

With Young in the penalty box, Bob Barlow got away on a power play to score the final goal.

CAL FIELD GOAL FOILED BY TROY
First-period field goal attempt by California's Tom Blanchfield (21) is blocked by two Southern California Trojans, including end Dave Moton (82). No. 47 is USC's Ernie Pye. Trojans rallied to pull out 26-21 victory at Coliseum.

LBSC--

The TD came 3:13 into the final period.

Ernie McBride's 42-yard romp got L. B. moving with 12:18 elapsed in the second period.

The 49ers came right back with Otterson completing passes of 29 and 31 yards to McBride and Pat Brosnan to set up Dick Degen's TD burst up the middle.

The victory was LBSC's first in two conference outings and evened Valley's league record at 1-1.

* * * *

AFTER FINDING the groove, Otterson wound up connecting on 10 of 19 attempts for 170 yards. In a backup role, Dave Thompson was 0 for 5.

Choboian was Valley's big show, gaining 39 yards on rollouts and completing 11 of 24 passes. The only trouble was four of his pitches wound up in enemy hands. His replacement, George St. John, was 5 for 15 with one interception. Long Beach's five interceptions matched a school record set against Fresno last year. The 129 yards returned was a school mark.

Brosnan was L. B.'s favorite target again pulling in four passes for 82 yards.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT this was the best we've been scouted in two years," said Coach Reed. "They took everything away we like to do (referring to L. B.'s outside game). They played perfect defensive ball for 20 minutes.

"On the other hand, this had to be one of our best efforts since they were able to contain Willie Martin on sweeps. Interceptions led to three of our scores and what was more important, it took them out of scoring zone and put us in good field position."

Celts, Hawks Win, Remain Unbeaten

Compiled From Wire Reports

Boston remained unbeaten in the Eastern Division (3-0) and St. Louis won its second without a loss in the Western Division of National Basketball Assn. play Saturday night.

The shooting of Sam Jones and a typically tenacious defense keyed the Celtics to a 131-103 victory over Baltimore, while center Zelmo Beaty was the hot man for the Hawks in their 126-86 rout of Philadelphia.

Jones, who topped all scorers with 28 points, hit 11 in the first period as the Celtics took a 30-23 lead they never relinquished. A 12-0 spurt in the third period iced the game.

Beaty, a key figure in the Hawks' drive for the title, tallied 23 points and rebounded well. Old pros Cliff Hagan and Bob Pettit had 19 and 18 points, respectively.

In the only other game, the Detroit Pistons beat the New York Knicks 118-108 in overtime on the 30-point performance of second-year man Eddie Miles from Seattle University.

The Knicks had a 15-point lead at one time and led 102-100 with 13 seconds left in regulation play until the Pistons' Ray Scott deadlocked the score, forcing the overtime.

USC--

Feelings ran high throughout the game and reached a boiling point after Cal regained the lead, 21-14, early in the fourth quarter when Moton and Cal's Jerry Walter mixed it up briefly and were ejected from the game.

Cal served notice it would be a tough nut for the Trojans to crack by taking the opening kickoff and moving 77 yards on the ground to the USC three before Blanchfield's first field goal attempt was blocked by Moton.

* * * *

ONCE THE BEARS broke the scoring ice late in the second half on Morton's six-yard pass to Mosher, developments unfolded at a machinegun-like pace.

Because Blanchfield missed the conversion, the Trojans were able to take a 7-6 lead into the halftime intermission on Fertig's 25-yard aerial to Thomas with just 1:41 left and Dick Brownell's extra point.

It appeared as if the Trojans were ready to crack the game wide open when they jumped into a 14-6 advantage midway in the third period on Fertig's 44-yarder to Sherman.

But the Bears came back to tie it up with a 77-yard drive. Morton carried it over from the five at 12:17, then passed to Mosher for a two-point conversion to make it 14-14.

As the period drew to a close, the Trojans went for the yardage on 4th-and-1 at midfield, but Fertig missed the first down by a foot on the Cal 49.

* * * *

THAT LEFT the door open for Morton to propel the Bears into a 21-14 lead with a 45-yard aerial to Bradley.

Fertig's 45-yarder to Garrett closed the gap to 21-20 with 4:15 left, but USC missed a two-point conversion that would have gained the lead. After being penalized back to the eight for taking too much time, they still elected to go for two points and Fertig's pass was knocked down.

Lakers Shove More 'Gold' Into Hand of UCLA Star

By DOUG IVES

Walt Hazzard, the sleight-of-hand playmaker from UCLA, has struck gold again!

Clutching the gold medal he won in Tokyo in one hand, Hazzard held more gold Saturday in the other in the form of a Lakers contract. He was signed at Los Angeles International Airport.

HAZZARD

Hazzard no more than grabbed his suitcase on his flight home from the Olympic Games than general manager Lou Mohs grabbed him and thrust a contract into waiting palm.

Terms of the pact were not revealed, of course, but it's obvious the Lakers rewarded their No. 1 draft choice handsomely.

The man who led UCLA to the national title will have only today to savor the financial rewards of being a pro since he'll be initiated into Lakers drills Monday and Tuesday.

Then on Wednesday, Hazzard returns to the L.A. Sports Arena floor that was the scene of his greatest moments as the Lakers launch a six-game home stand against Baltimore.

WONDERFUL WALT won't be shoved into the rough NBA grind with abandon, but he'll see some action against the Bullets Wednesday and Thursday, according to coach Fred Schaus.

What kind of NBA future does Schaus predict for his prize rookie? A golden future, what else!

RECORD PASSING PERFORMANCE

Fertig Cites Gripes of Wrath

University of Southern California quarterback Craig Fertig said he turned in his record passing performance against California because he was "griped" by previous criticism of his tossing ability.

In the dressing room after USC's stunning come-from-behind 26-21 victory, Fertig said he would let the outstanding aerial statistics of the game render his reply to critics.

"I've been taking some criticism this past week and it griped me," said Fertig, who passed for four touchdowns and a school-record 371 yards. His performance statistically outshone that of the great Cal quarterback Craig Morton.

Morton, in contrast to Fertig's dazed delight over the outcome of the game, was obviously bitter at the defeat in the last 50 seconds. He muttered under his breath as he stomped into the dressing room.

"I'm glad everybody enjoyed it but us," said coach Ray Willsey of the losing Bears.

"It was an emotional experience for us to let this one get away from us the way we did," Willsey added, explaining he would not try to pinpoint any major break in the game.

"It was a great one for us to win and a tough one for them to lose," coach John McKay of the Trojans said. But McKay stressed the expense of the victory. Ends Tom Lupo and John Thomas both apparently will be lost for the remainder of the season because of injuries and Lupo will be operated upon today.

"We had so many injuries all our interior linemen were going both ways most of the game," added McKay.

Halfback Rod Sherman, who made up for a costly fumble by catching the game-winning touchdown pass with 50 second left, was the secondary target on the decisive play. Fertig disclosed he looked first at end Fred Hill and then threw high to Sherman, who leaped at least two feet to bring the ball down in the end zone.

"I saw it all the way," Sherman said.

Man to Man

WYNN

McGEE

By JERRY WYNN

MILWAUKEE—The No. 1 Ram killer on the Green Bay Packers isn't Jim Taylor or Paul Hornung or Bart Starr.

Max McGee is the name, and when Maxie (The Taxi) wheels into action against the Rams, his touchdown meter zooms full-tilt.

A popular, fun-loving nine-year veteran from Tulane, the 6-3, 205-pound star receiver has been one of the central figures in the success and spirit of the recent Packer dynasty.

Do you consider the Rams your cousins, Max?

"I like to play the Rams especially in L.A. I like the warm weather and they have had problems with their right cornerbacks for a long time."

Does the Rams' 3-2-1 record this season come as a surprise to the Packers?

"No. We thought they were one of the better teams. This is a very strong division. There are no weak sisters."

Ed Meador of the Rams says they need a step-ladder to defend against you. What advice do you have for him?

"He must be thinking of Boyd Dowler. He is 6-5. Ron Kramer and I are only 6-3."

Which defensive back in the league gives you the most trouble?

"Dick Lynch of New York calls me his pigeon."

What makes Bart Starr such an outstanding quarterback?

"He has a good head, tremendous desire and never gives up."

Zeke Bratkowski was one of the most popular players on the Rams. Has he helped the Packers?

"Yes he has. We feel OK with Zeke in the game. He throws very well."

Do you think Vince Lombardi is sorry he traded Jim Ringo?

"That's hard to say. Jim was a great center. Caffee, who we got in the trade for him, will be a great linebacker."

Green Bay has lost twice to Baltimore. Can the Colts be stopped from winning the title?

"Yes, I think so. They still have to play the Lions twice and the Vikings, Rams and Bears again. But we know we will have to win all the rest of our games to catch them."

With your roommate, Paul Hornung, you are known as Green Bay's most eligible bachelors. Aren't the girls in Wisconsin interested in marriage?

"Yes, but we aren't."

Are the Packers going to beat the Rams today?

"It looks like we win every other one, so it's our turn today. But it won't be easy."

The Rams had better set up a dragnet if they hope to stop Green Bay's runaway Maxie (The Taxi) McGee.

Beavers Rip Orangemen for 5th Win

Spot Syracuse TD in First Period, Then Romp, 31-13

PORTLAND (UPI)—Oregon State gave Syracuse the first touchdown and then buried the eighth-ranked Orangemen, 31-13, Saturday with its greatest offensive show of the season.

Sophomore quarterback Paul Brothers passed for two touchdowns on plays of 44 yards to Yen Erketich and 39 yards to Cliff Watkins and scored another touchdown on a 1-yard sweep.

Watkins tallied the other touchdown on a 13-yard run and Steve Clark kicked a 23-yard field goal and four extra points.

The Beavers, ranked in a tie for 19th nationally, had scored only 49 points in their first five games despite a fancy 4-1 record.

Syracuse struck first on a 55-yard pass play from quarterback Walley Mahle to halfback Floyd Little with less than five minutes gone and then found itself trailing 31-7 by the time it got a second touchdown on a 2-yard run by fullback Jim Nance.

Brothers completed 9 of 12 passes for 176 yards, many of them to wide-open receivers.

Berry Blanks Huskies

SEATTLE (AP) — Brilliant Bob Berry pitched the Oregon Webfoots to an early touchdown Saturday and then turned matters over to Casey's Commandos — the defensive unit— to squelch every enemy threat and hang up a 7-0 football victory over Washington. It was Oregon's sixth win without a loss.

Nicknamed for Tim Casey, junior defensive linebacker, the Commandos intercepted four Washington passes, recovered two fumbles and twice stopped the fearsome battering ram of Washington on the Webfoots' one-yard line.

So effective was the Oregon defense that Washington never got beyond its own 34 in the first quarter and did not enter Oregon territory until late in the first half.

Soon after the opening whistle Oregon launched its tally march at its own 27 with an 11-yard pass from Berry to Corky Sullivan. Dennis Keller scooted 16 yards and another toss to Sullivan put the ball on the Washington 26.

Washington was penalized 15 yards for roughing Berry, and then the Webfoot quarterback tossed to Lowell Dean on a tackle-eligible play good for 14 yards and a touchdown. Herm Meister kicked the conversion.

Vandals Turn Into Avengers

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—The University of Idaho avenged four decades of nearly constant defeats at the hands of Washington State University Saturday with a solid 28-13 victory over the Cougars.

Fullback Ray McDonald, a 6-4, 232-pound sophomore, scored three times as the Vandals won this traditional clash by their biggest margin since a 19-3 victory in 1924. Only twice since then had Idaho won—in 1925 and 1954.

Vol Defense Holds LSU to FG Tie

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Underdog Tennessee threw up a ferocious defense and Louisiana State — seventh ranked collegiate football team in the nation — had to go all out to salvage a 3-3 deadlock with the Vols in a rugged Southeastern Conference game Saturday.

LSU's defense was equally as fierce, The Tigers held the Tennessee offense to minus yardage after intermission.

Jarring tackles by both teams' lines kept the ball flying through the air as backs fumbled. Bobbles set up the field goals for both LSU and Tennessee.

Tennessee got a 3-0 lead on Fred Martin's 28-yard field goal and it stood up until three seconds before the halftime break with leftfooted kicker Doug Moreau booting one from the 21 for the Tigers.

Last-Period FG Wins for 'Bama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama, the nation's No. 2 football team, came from behind twice Saturday to grind out a 17-14 cliff-hanger victory over 10th-ranked Florida.

The Crimson Tide did it with a last-period 21-yard field goal by David Ray and booming runs by fullback Steve Bowman, who scored two touchdowns.

Florida's Gators were knocking on the Alabama goal line with seconds remaining in the game. Florida's Jimmy Hall tried a despesation 20-yard field goal as the game ended, but the ball wobbled off to the side.

Alabama had to fight to preserve its unbeaten record without the services of all-America candidate Joe Namath, at quarterback. Namath re-injured his right knee, which he hurt three weeks ago in the North Carolina State game.

Junior Steve Sloan came in again to direct the Tide to its sixth straight victory, and hand Florida its first defeat.

Black Passes Tar Heels to Victory

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—North Carolina whipped winless South Carolina 24-6 Saturday behind Gary Black's passing and the vicious power running of Ken Willard.

Black scored two touchdowns and passed for one in leading the Tar Heels to their third victory in six games overall and their second against two defeats in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Helping to round out the easy victory was the Tar Heel defense, which yielded only one first down in the first half while the offense jumped in front 17-0.

Ridlehuber Riddle to Ragged 'Cats

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—Quarterback Preston Ridlehuber ran with reckless abandon Saturday to lead the surprising Georgia Bulldogs to a 21-7 victory over the riches-to-rags Kentucky Wildcats.

Ridlehuber, a junior from Gainesville, Ga., who wasn't even a starter, scored two touchdowns and set up the third with a series of twisting, driving runs. He almost scored another touchdown but fumbled just before diving across the Wildcat goal line.

Ga. Tech Escapes Upset Wave

ATLANTA (UPI)—Quarterback Bruce Fischer fired an eight-yard scoring pass to end Mike Fortier Saturday to give sluggish 9th-ranked Georgia Tech a 7-6 victory over winless Tulane.

Tackle Billy Schroer preserved the Yellow Jackets' undefeated record in the second period when he blocked Don Bright's attempted conversion. End Lanis O'Steen stole a pass by quarterback Jerry Priestley and returned it 20 yards for the Tulane touchdown.

Tulane fullback George Cortez fumbled on the first play of the third period and Tech's Steve Copeland grabbed the ball on the Green Wave 34. The Yellow Jackets needed eight plays to drive in for the touchdown.

quarters of competition dating back through Notre Dame and Syracuse to the Stanford game when they put together a 55-yard drive in the second period to tie the count at 7-all.

★ ★ ★ ★

THE MAJOR gain in the drive was a 24-yard pass from Zeno to end Dick Witcher. Fullback Paul Horgan, who gained 36 yards on 8 carries for the day contributed a 15-yard run to the drive. The scoring play was a Zeno pass from the three that Witcher grabbed on the rear end zone line.

The Illini took the ensuing kickoff 80 yards in six ground-gulping plays, including another standup bolt through the middle by Grabowski to the end zone from 33 yards out.

The 6-point halftime lead was expanded to 13 points the first time Illinois got the ball in the third period. The Big Tenners drove 41 yards, again because of a wind-shortened punt. The Bruins made them grind it out in small pieces and had the Illini with a fourth down on the two when Custardo squeezed through guard for the score and then kicked his second conversion.

★ ★ ★ ★

WITH THREE interceptions against Zeno, coach Bill Barnes dispatched his second quarterback, Sindell, into the game in the third period. On third down Sindell threw the ball for a bullseye into the middle of the big No. 50 on the jersey of all-America linebacker Dick Butkus, his sixth interception of the season. Butkus was voted top lineman in the game.

That pass ended Sindell's combat for the day.

Zeno came back to try some more and actually drove the team to the goal line and across, but didn't get any points. At the one-inch line he wiggled into the end zone after a 63-yard march, but the Bruins were offside. From the five on the next play they were guilty of holding, setting them back to the 20. The drive ended with Zeno sprawled on the 25.

found the Beer City fans wanting, but the Packers expect a record crowd of 47,500 at County Stadium. Television kickoff time on channel 2 is 11 a.m.

Green Bay, stung to its proud core by its three defeats (by a total of five points), is expected to take its wrath out on the visitors. For coach Vince Lombardi still has the soundest, if not still the strongest, club in football.

Jim Taylor, Paul Hornung and Tom Moore all are averaging more than four yards per carry and the bruising Taylor is the No. 4 leading runner in the league.

Quarterback Bart Starr, who has enjoyed some of his greatest days against the Rams, is the No. 3 ranking passer and his 60.5 completion percentage is by far the best.

No other club can boast of three stronger receivers than Ron Kramer, Boyd Dowler and Ram-killer Maxie (The Taxie) McGee.

Why, then, have the Packers lost?

1. Injuries to such key players as Jerry Kramer, Henry Jordan, Taylor and Hornung. All but Kramer are ready today.

2. Hornung's much-publicized place-kicking failures which necessitated a hurry-up call for help this week to Long Beach's master instructor, Ben Agajanian.

3. Improvement of their conquerors, Baltimore and Minnesota.

With Dick Bass still hobbled by a knee injury, the Rams today will have to rely on the passing of Roman Gabriel — and Big Gabe will be banging into the pride of the Packer defense, its backfield.

Coach Harland Svare again will start six rookies. It's probably a good thing. The older Rams have learned to respect Green Bay. The kids should be looser.

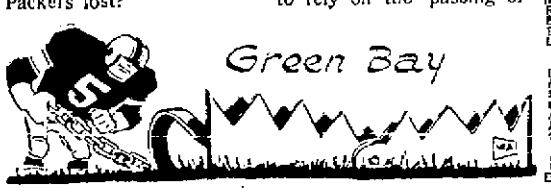

So Lester Josephson meet Mr. Jordan; Bucky Pope try that "Whittensomething," and Aaron Martin, your man is McGee. And better keep your fingers crossed. Lineups:

Lions' Front Office Called 'Playboys'

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Most members of the Detroit Lions, 19 of whom were handed $100 fines earlier this season, are not pleased with the off-the-field exploits of the front-office staff.

"We get fined over something trivial and then have to watch that bunch of playboys live it up and embarrass the organization," says one respected Lion veteran. . . .

Anything goes when you win, but it's another story when you lose. Allie Sherman's off-the-field activities, mainly his many appearances on TV, are not sitting well with his New York Giant palyers. . . .

YOGI BERRA
No Peace Corps for Him

The old joke "the World Series was for the Birds" was revived by the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL, who were badly hurt by the baseball players. . . .

It cost the football Cardinals nearly $100,000 in revenue when their game with the Colts had to be moved to Baltimore because of the Series. Season ticket holders were given refunds.

And when they returned to Busch Stadium for their next home game last Sunday, 6,000 "dispossessed" season ticket holders had to watch the contest on closed-circuit TV in the nearby Washington University fieldhouse because their seats in the temporary field stands had not yet been erected. . . .

Las Vegas promoters of the ill-fated Joey Giardello-Hurricane Carter middleweight title bout were $16,000 in the red when the match was cancelled last Monday and figured to drop at least another $7,500.

However, they were willing to go ahead and absorb the loss—guaranteeing payment to everyone within 60 days—until the pay-TV people, reportedly near bankruptcy, jumped at the chance to pull out of the picture!

THERE WERE SEVERAL "raps" against Yogi Berra as Yankee manager, but the main ones were that he did not think quick enough and was indecisive during a game, and he couldn't control the players, who flouted his authority and "got away with murder."

Incidentally, after he was "kicked upstairs," Yogi was immediately contacted by Sargent Shriver and offered a top spot in the Peace Corps, but Berra declined. . . .

Even Del Webb got a chuckle out of the gag: "CBS fired three vice presidents when the Yankees lost the Series."

But in a serious vein, Webb told us last week that after CBS purchased 80% of the Yankees, the network chief wanted him and Dan Topping to run the club for them for a minimum of 10 years.

"However, that's too far in the future and they finally cut their request down to five years," Webb said. He then revealed that while Topping signed a contract as president for that period, he would not tie himself down with a similar pact.

This immediately led to speculation that Webb, as rumored, ultimately would sell his remaining stock in the Yankees and buy into another club—presumably one on the Pacific Coast!

FIVE HIGH SCHOOL STARS graduated last June were offered a total of $5 million in college scholarships, according to a survey made by Ebony magazine.

The five youths received over 500 firm offers from nearly every major college in the country, including the service academies.

Basketball whiz Mike Warren from South Bend, Indiana, where John Wooden formerly coached, had 114 offers before finally choosing UCLA.

Jim Dugan, football-basketball ace from Flagstaff, Arizona, received 100 offers and chose Ohio State.

The University of Kentucky won out from 115 rival schools in holding onto hometown hero Wesley Unseld, 6-8 basketball player of the "super-star" mold.

Although only 5-11, Vernon Payne, Michigan City, Ind., basketballer, received over 90 offers before winding up at the University of Indiana.

And Houston University won out in the "derby" for the Texas schoolboy phenom, Warren McVea, the most sought-after prep football performer in years!

UNDERSTATEMENT OF THE YEAR: After his Ohio Wesleyan team was crushed recently by Bucknell for the worst defeat in the school's history, coach Jack Fouts declared, "We just wern't up for this one." . . .

For the first time in the history of the NBA, the clubs will play a balanced schedule—meeting each rival 10 times.

And the NBA begins its national TV schedule on January 3, with a "game of the week" to be televised every Sunday for the remainder of the season!

Huarte, Snow Set Irish Records

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) —Second-ranked Notre Dame smothered Stanford 28-6 with a brutal defense and loosed the passing of John Huarte and running of Bill Wolski for their fifth successive football victory Saturday.

Wolski smashed for three touchdowns, but it was the record-breaking passing barrage of Huarte and Notre Dame's defense, the nation's best against rushing, which enabled the Irish to win their first five in a row since their last unbeaten season in 1953.

Huarte, completing 21 of 37 tosses for 300 yards—including a 54-yard scoring shot to Wolski for a 9-0 lead in the second quarter—enabled end Jack Snow to establish a Notre Dame season record for pass receiving yardage of 595 in only five games.

Snow failed to grab a scoring pass, but speared eight Huarte tosses for 113 yards topping the Irish season pass reception total of 523 yards by Jim Kelly in 1962.

Handley, the nation's leading rusher with a 106 yard average in five games, was held to 43 yards on 19 attempts.

(Huarte prepped at Mater Dei in Santa Ana and Snow attended St. Anthony High in Long Beach).

Stanford was thwarted by the hard-rushing Irish defense until—with less than four minutes left—Ray Handley hit Dave Lewis with a three-yard scoring pass, capping a 32-yard drive.

Huarte's 37 pass attempts and 21 completions set a record at the Irish school which produced such famed passers as Angelo Bertelli, Johnny Lujack, Bob Williams and Ralph Guglielmi.

Iowa QB Snookered by Purdue

IOWA CITY (UPI) — Purdue's alert Boilermakers intercepted two Iowa passes and pounced on five fumbles Saturday to survive a record Hawkeye aerial assault and eke out a 19-14 Big Ten victory.

Iowa quarterback Gary Snook hit on 26 of 49 passes for 310 yards, but his throwing led to his team's undoing, even though his 27 completions tied the Big Ten mark set by Iowa's Olen Treadway in 1959. His 49 attempts bettered the old standard of 42, by Mark Taliaferro of Illinois in 1962, and his 310 yards total bettered the 306 posted by Tom O'Connell of Illinois in 1952.

The Hawkeye quarterback's favorite receiver, flanker Karl Noonan, caught 10 passes for 127 yards to set an Iowa single-season mark of 43 catches for 634 yards.

Purdue scored its winning touchdown on a pass interception. Defensive end George Catavalos intercepted two of Snook's aerials, grabbing one of them on the Iowa 29 and flashing in for what proved to be the margin of victory.

Unbeatens Meet in Jr. Football Headliner Today

The Long Beach Junior Football League season reaches the halfway mark today with the two undefeated teams colliding.

Jordan High Field will be the site of the game between the North Long Beach Bulldogs and the Lakewood Cougars. Both teams hold wins over the Belmont Bears and the Los Altos Rebels.

Meanwhile, the Bears and Rebels battle at Wilson High.

The B squad games will start at 12:30. The Los Altos Rebels' B squad is proving to be the surprise team of the group. The Rebels scored an upset victory over the Lakewood Cougars last week.

REGAIN BROWN JUG

Wolves Survive Scare

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) —Michigan survived a last-quarter surge by Minnesota and regained possession of the Little Brown Jug for the first time in five years with a 19-12 Big Ten football victory Saturday.

Minnesota, which penetrated Michigan territory only two times in the first three quarters, scored twice in the final period and made the score close.

A 91-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass by Kraig Lofquist gave Minnesota its final points. The Gophers marched to the Michigan three-yard line minutes later but lost four yards on a fourth-down running play and Michigan took over.

Before the last-quarter surge, it appeared the Wolverines would gain an easy triumph.

Okla. State Rally Halted; Kansas Wins

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) —A gang of Kansas tacklers stopped Oklahoma State end Tony Sellari just inches short of a two-point conversion with 44 seconds left in the game to preserve a 14-13 Jayhawk victory Saturday.

Oklahoma State's last-minute touchdown came when halfback Jerry Gill blocked an attempted Kansas field goal and end Jack Jacobson snatched the ball in the air and galloped 60 yards for the touchdown.

L.B. Kickers Battle Old Rival Lynwood

The Long Beach Soccer Club meets an old rival, the Lynwood Dons, in a Pacific Soccer League game today at Pan-American Park at 3 p.m. There is a prelim at 1.

The local kickers are 1-0 in league play, and with center half Jim Hynds and goalie Kurt Ristau back in action, should be among the title contenders.

Sooners Strike Back, Rout K-State, 44-0

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—The Oklahoma Sooners, stung by three straight defeats, took out their frustration on helpless Kansas State Saturday, 44-0.

The Sooners, smashing through porous Kansas State defenses at will, rushed and passed for 519 yards and turned the game into a rout with three fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Halfback Tommy Pannell got Oklahoma off and running when he scored one touchdown and uncorked a 55-yard scoring bomb to end Ben Hart to spark the Sooners to a 23-0 halftime lead.

Substitute quarterback Bobby Page, who started last year but rode the bench until Saturday, scored twice to ignite the fourth-quarter surge.

Starting quarterback John Hammond and fullback Jim Grisham also scored and end Allen Bumgardner blocked a Kansas State punt for a safety to complete the rout.

PITT TO BE TIED

Middies Bank on Orr

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Navy spotted Pitt two touchdowns, then fought back behind an aroused defense and the passing of Roger Staubach Saturday for a 14-14 tie.

Staubach, who completed five passes in five attempts in Navy's drive for its second touchdown, threw to Skip Orr in the end zone for two points and the tie.

After Pitt scored the first two times it had the ball, racing to a 14-0 first quarter lead, Navy came to life when James Freeman intercepted a desperation pass by Fred Mazurek on the Navy 32.

The Middies then drove 68 yards in 12 plays with Kip Paskewich going in for the TD from the two. Fred Marlin's conversion attempt was wide.

When Pitt was unable to score following the ensuing kickoff, Navy took over on its 33 and moved for a touchdown in nine plays. Three of Staubach's passes in the drive were caught by Orr.

Army Dominates Play, but Field Goals Win for Duke

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) —Mark Caldwell booted two second-period field goals and unbeaten Duke survived a persistent last-half attack by Army Saturday to hand the Cadets their fourth straight loss, 6-0.

Caldwell's three-pointers capped sustained drives of 75 and 58 yards by the Blue Devils.

The Cadets controlled the ball throughout the last half, holding Duke, ranked 15th in the nation, to only one first down and 14 plays from scrimmage.

But Caldwell's kicks of 26 and 24 yards proved to be all that Duke needed to win its first game from Army since the series began in 1944. The Blue Devils had lost six in a row to the Cadets.

One Army drive was stopped at the Duke 18.

Huskers 'Defense' Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) Undefeated, fifth-ranked Nebraska, the nation's greediest ground-gainers, turned instead to a stickout defense Saturday to defeat Colorado 21-3 in a Big Eight game.

Only the slippery running of Nebraska's Frank Solich, a wisp of a fullback at 159 pounds, kept the Cornhusker offense moving as Colorado's frugal defense stiffened at crucial moments.

Nebraska's stern defensive line, averaging 223 pounds a man, held the stumbling Buffaloes to only two yards total offense in the first half and set up one of the three touchdowns with a fumble recovery. Colorado did not get out of its own territory in the final half.

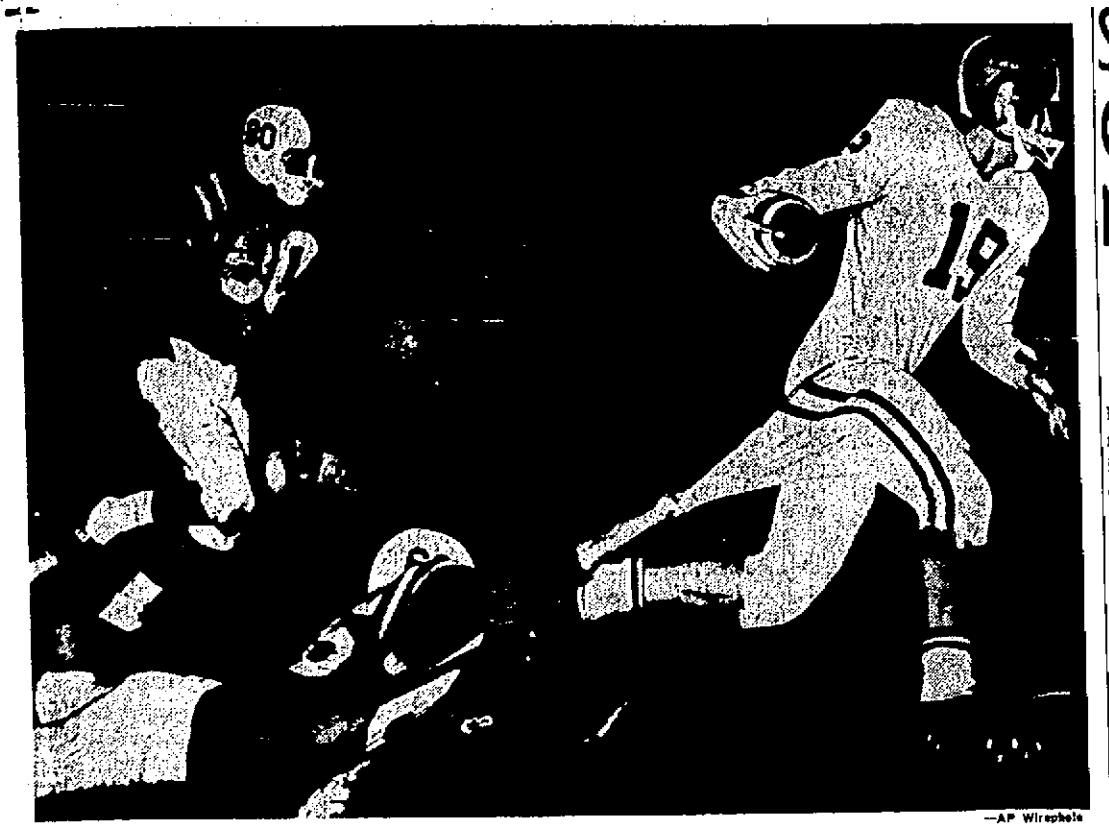

The win was Nebraska's sixth this season in the Cornhuskers' drive toward their second straight Big Eight title. The loss was Colorado's fifth in six games.

Nebraska's sophomore quarterback, Bob Churchich, opened his passing offense in the second half. He completed 10 of 16 throws in the game for 162 yards.

South African Golfer Tops Nicklaus by 3

Legrange Blows 7-Stroke Lead, but Rallies in Masters

MELBOURNE (AP) — Cobie Legrange, a young South African, rallied from an incredible last-round slump Saturday and beat Jack Nicklaus and Bruce Devlin by three strokes in the Wills Masters tournament.

Eight shots ahead of the field with only nine holes to play, Legrange lost seven strokes on seven holes as Nicklaus, the big belter from Columbus, Ohio, put on pressure. Then he birdied the last two holes to win with a 72-hole total of 277.

Nicklaus, Legrange's playing partner, missed a simple putt on the last green and slipped into a second-place tie with Australia's Devlin at 280.

* * * *

ARNOLD Palmer, the other American star who came here for the tournament, went into Saturday's final 36 holes tied with Legrange for first place. His game lost some of its sharpness and he finished with rounds of 73-72, tying Kel Nagle of Australia at 282.

The 22-year-old Legrange, virtually unknown until he began playing in Britain this year, had rounds of 68-69-68-72—277. He was 15-under-par for the 6,755-yard, par 73 course.

Afterwards Nicklaus called him "the best of the young players I have seen around at the moment."

McGowan Leads by 8 Shots at Corona

CORONA—Front-running Jack McGowan increased his lead in the $40,000 Mountain View Open to eight strokes Saturday by shooting a six-under-par 65 for a 54-hole total of 199.

Although he had never won a PGA tournament before, McGowan made a farce of his competition at the end of three rounds and his 14-under-par mark for 54 holes tied the best marks of the year. The eight-stroke lead also was the widest margin in a tournament this year.

McGowan had only one bad hole all day. On the 10th he hooked an iron shot into a trap and bogeyed the hole. But he more than made up for that with seven birdies and nines of 32-33 over the par 36-35 course.

Tied at 207 were Jacky Cupit, who shot a par 71 Saturday, Jack Rule with a 70 and Dick Sikes, who posted his third straight 69.

Cupit had been only two strokes back of McGowan but the Largo, Fla., pro's continued par-busting rounds proved too much for the home course player.

Back of the threesome tied at 207 came Charles Coody with 208 while Howie Johnson, who had been tied with McGowan the first day with 66, followed with 209. Tied at 210 were Bud Holscher and Lou Graham.

Asked what factor was responsible for his shooting the three par-busting rounds of 66-68-65, McGowan attributed them to better control of his temper.

"I have finally realized that I can't hit every shot squarely and that I must be able to control myself when I miss one," the 33-year-old golfer said.

In Saturday's round he hit all his shots squarely and straight down the tight course and his putting continued brilliant. He required only 27 putts for the round.

Cathedral Holds Off St. Anthony

By RICHARD ESQUIBEL

Cathedral High's favored Phantoms withstood a strong passing exhibition by Paul Snow Saturday night to beat St. Anthony, 20-12, in a Catholic League encounter at Cantwell High.

Snow passed 58 yards to Don Nathe for a first-period score, but Cathedral came back to lead 13-6 until Snow's aerials sparked a 62-yard drive that he capped on a plunge from the one. The kick failed, however, leaving the Saints trailing, 13-12.

Cathedral put the game on ice by scoring the next time it had the ball and kicking the conversion, but St. Antony gamely tried to come back, marching to the Cathedral 20 before an interception halted the threat.

Ulysses Allen scored twice for Cathedral, which now is 2-1 in league. St. Anthony is 1-1.

moved 59 yards in nine plays. Two passes to Hayhoe and a 26-yard to bomb to Van Fontno carried to the 4. Wes Sylva slashed in from the 1 on fourth down and Jim Stewart caught Schusterick's two-point pass to cut the LBCC lead to 22-14.

Long Beach gained only 83 yards in the second half and lost the statistical battle 378-298. Stewart was the Vikes' top ground gainer with 89 yards in nine carries.

Barton, who completed 10 of 18 for 130 yards, spearheaded the Vikings' first scoring drive. The former Millikan High fireballer carried the Vikes 65 yards in seven plays with passes of 10 and 15 yards to Earl McCullouch and 25 yards to Gil Mendoza. Stiles smashed over from the 6 with 32 seconds left in the first period.

Motley, LBCC's leading rusher, entered the game early in the second quarter and reeled off a 12-yard sprint to spark a 92-yard drive. Broken field runs of 33 and 30 yards by Tucker and Stewart put the ball on the 2 where Motley slipped over for the second TD.

AGGIES STILL WINLESS

Baylor Rallies, 20-16

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Baylor University trailed for fifty-five minutes Saturday, then used the passing of quarterbacks Terry Southall and Mike Marshall to defeat the winless Texas A&M Aggies 20-16 and thrill a homecoming crowd.

The Aggies, in losing their sixth in a row, were knocking at the Baylor goal line with less than a minute to go. But an Eddie McKaughan pitchout was fumbled and Baylor recovered to hold on to its narrow margin.

The Bears, chalking up their second Southwest Conference victory against one loss, netted 229 yards passing including a 13-yarder by Marshall to end Harlan Lane for a touchdown in the fourth period.

Texas A&M built up a 16-6 lead going into the fourth period on touchdown runs of two and nine yards by Jim Stabler and Bubber Collins, plus a 20-yard field goal by Glynn Lindsey.

The 13 points run up by A&M in the first 19 minutes was the most points the Aggies had scored in any game this season.

Heads Will Roll Among Russ Olympians

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

It Was Shear Disgrace for Losing Girl Javelin Star

TOKYO (AP)—The Russians' performance at the Tokyo Olympics was their worst since the Helsinki Games 12 years ago and heads will probably roll when the team returns to Moscow.

The Kremlin has demanded an explanation and that's an ominous sign.

Not only did America's amateur athletes collect more gold medals than Russia's state-supported contestants but they practically beat Russia in the total medals count, something that hasn't happened since 1952, in the Soviet Union's first Olympics.

Even the Soviet satellites — the Poles, Czechs, Romanians and Hungarians —outshone the Russians in dozens of events.

That must have hurt.

No Russian heads have rolled so far. A head of beautiful hair has been the only sacrifice to Russian wrath in Tokyo.

Elvira Ozolina, former Olympic javelin champion, chopped off her shoulder-length chestnut hair in partial atonement for her disgrace when she placed a dismal fifth in the finals here.

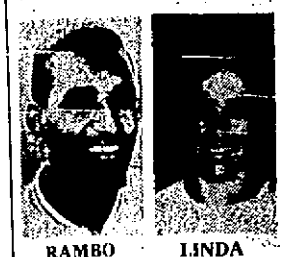

But Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party's official organ, gave due warning of worse things to come when it declared that Soviet sports fans "have the right to demand detailed explanations" for Russia's disappointing performance.

Even ordinary people are wondering what happened to the Russians. There are several possible explanations to choose from. Moscow itself blames overconfident Russian coaches.

The top Soviet track and field coach, Gabriel Korobkov, blames the poor high school track and field program and facilities at home. He says Russia's sports veterans are aging and the high schools aren't producing replacements fast enough.

The Russian athletes themselves have no excuses. They say they are not disappointed and they cite the Olympic code which says it's more important to participate than to win.

The Chinese Communists haven't spoken up on the subject so far. On the basis of past statements, they will probably blame it all on the "decadence" of Soviet society. They claim it took the wrong turn when it abandoned tough Stalinist—and Chinese Communist.—principles for the softer approach to life advocated by former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev.

49ers to Fete 6 Olympians at Banquet

Long Beach State College will toast its six Olympians Friday night at a banquet in the college cafeteria.

LBSC's Argonaut Club will honor high jumper John Rambo, diver Linda Cooper, fencer Les Bleamaster, volleyballer Sharon Peterson and water poloists Ron Crawford and Chick McIlroy at the prime rib dinner starting at 6. The public is invited.

Track coach Jack Rose will serve as toastmaster. Reservations ($2.75) may be made by contacting the 49ers' Student Activities Office, GE 5-1161, Ext. 515. Deadline is Tuesday afternoon.

Turbo Jet II Shows Class in Grass Win

Gun Bow Second, Turf Debut Spoiled in 'Man O' War'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barclay Stable's Turbo Jet II, an Irish colt with a flair for grass racing, went to the front in the stretch at Aqueduct Saturday to win the $111,800 Man O'War Stakes by three-quarters of a length and spoil Gun Bow's debut on the turf.

It was the sixth win in 11 races for Turbo Jet and his fifth stakes win this year, all of them over turf courses. He picked up a winner's purse of $72,670 and paid $20.30, 6.20 and $4.50.

Gun Bow, backed down to 3 to 4 by the crowd of 47,108, paid $3.20 and $2.90 while Knightly Manner, who closed strongly, paid $6.90.

* * * *

GOING ABROAD took command at the head of the stretch and romped to a 2½-length victory in the $126,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup handicap.

Going Abroad, owned by E. and H. N. Seltzer, returned mutuels of $4.20, $3.20 and $2.40. Intercepted paid $5 and $3, and Olden Times paid $2.40 to show.

Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Marshua won the 39th and richest running of the $96,090 Selima States at Laurel and ruined a bid by Wheatley Stables' Queen Empress to wrap up the 2-year-old filly championship.

Marshua's supporters among the crowd of 15,930 collected $11.80 to win and $2.20 to place.

IT'S A START

Brian Bernou of Castro Valley leaps over the Marine Stadium starting line in his Chrysler-powered SK boat for a quarter-mile trip in Long Beach Boat and Ski Club's Boat Drag Championship time trials Saturday. Elimination heats will be run in Marine Stadium today.

Andre Sets Rapid Drag Boat Pace

By DAVE TAYLOR

A dark horse already is in the home stretch as 172 of the world's fastest drag speedboats scurry to get off the starting line today in Long Beach Boat and Ski Club's World Championship Boat Drags at Marine Stadium.

Rene Andre of Valinda, Calif., christened his new Hallet, gas-blown Chrysler-powered unlimited hydro Citation by rocketing over the quarter-mile course at 131.19 to put one leg into a world's record at time trials Saturday.

If Andre can back that time up in final elimination heats today, he'll chalk up a world mark shading the 125.17 mile-an-hour straight gas record set last year by Joe Graffio of Downey in Rudy Ramos' Golden Thing.

* * * *

WITH ANOTHER run like his Saturday time trial heat, Andre is also odds on to take the meet's top eliminator title and the championship crown.

Saturday's record-nudging time trial was reportedly Citation's maiden run, and the first lap that Rene Andre had ever taken in racing competition.

Though no one had seen Citation run before Saturday's qualifier, observers already were touting her as the boat to beat early last week. Boasting to be the lightest hydro of its kind, the shallow-craft Citation weighs in at 1,100 pounds — about 400 pounds less than perennial record contenders Banzai and Golden Thing.

Tiny Drivers Capture Big Sulky Races

Del Insko and George Sholty, two of the smallest drivers in harness racing, struck for the little people Saturday at Hollywood Park, splitting the co-featured races. Insko captured the $15,000 Stepping Stone Pace in a stunning upset with Henry T. Adios and Sholty took the $10,000 Little Company of Mary Trot with Speedy Count.

Insko, at 5-3 and 120 lbs., brought Henry T. Adois storming from far back in the nine-horse Stepping Stone field to pass Tarquinius and Meadow Skipper and stave off a late rush by Fly Fly Byrd to hang up the fastest mile race of the season, 1.57 flat.

* * * *

SHOLTY, 5-2 and 115 lbs., urged Speedy Count to a rapid 1.58 4/5 victory in the supporting trotting feature and was favored to take both ends of the double-header, when his pacing mount Tarquinius went off as the even-money choice of the crowd of 20,776.

Red Smith's Views of Sports—

Olympic Drama Hit Peak in High Jump

TOKYO—Four stretcher-bearers in hospital white popped out of the tunnel beneath the stadium on the dead run, moving a lot faster than the footracer who came reeling drunkenly down the home stretch, staggering, gasping, going almost to his knees, but clawing erect again and tottering on.

He floundered across the finish line, clasped hands overhead in salute to the applauding thousands and pitched sideways onto the turf, doubled up to clutch a pair of calves where the muscles were tied in knots no Boy Scout ever learned.

Swiftly the four meatmen wrapped him in blankets, stretched him on the litter, and bore him away. He rode on his back, a fist upraised in triumph.

This was Abraham Fores, of Puerto Rico, who runs for the Pioneer Club of New York, and he had just nailed down 55th place among 58 finishers in the Marathon. Nothing could better epitomize the glorious wackiness of the Olympics where, as Baron Pierre de Coubertin didn't quite say, "The most important thing is not to win but to take part and live."

Yet even if you're not one of the dedicated who would turn his back on Brigitte Bardot to run 26 miles, 385 yards, for the pure, ennobling of it, there still are moments in this sweaty festival when the entertainment soars to dramatic peaks never scaled by Liz Taylor, or even the Three Stooges.

There's been more than a few such moments since this global turnverein started and a raft of them came Wednesday when the fungoodies — the classic 1,500 meters, the practically scared Marathon, the relay finals.

Above all, there was the high jump, the most theatrical of all the confrontations of America and Russia, the final moment of truth for John Curtis Thomas. Moment of truth? Well, it was a moment that was four years in the making, a moment that ran on almost five 5 hours.

As everybody knows, John Thomas of Boston was humanity's greatest jumper until the Rome Olympics of 1960 when Russia's Robert Shavlakadze and Valeriy Brumel beat him back to third.

After that Brumel came to America and Thomas went to Moscow and they kept jumping and Brumel kept winning. Long John of Boston could still leap higher than any other American, Englishman, Moroccan, or Mongolian born of woman, but he couldn't, as the saying goes, get arrested in Russia.

Coming up to the final he had hooked up with the Soviets nine times and lost eight, beating Brumel once indoors in Los Angeles when they cleared the same height, but John had the fewer misses.

So now they laid it in on the line, and of course nature corned it up the way nature has been doing right along on this show.

Darkness fell, the moon came up, the Olympic torch blazed against the velvet blackness, and as the crossbar crept up past seven feet, five jumpers remained in contention — Thomas, Brumel, Shavlakadze, a Swede named Sig Pettersson, and John Rambo, a bloomin' basketball player from Long Beach, Calif.

It was 6 p.m. and the 15,000 or so still hanging on in National Stadium had moved to seats in the curve of the oval closest to the jumpers. They'd been at their interminable business since 2 o'clock, pacing restlessly between their widely separated turns, doing knee-bends and sit-ups, lounging on heaped-up blankets and ignoring one another with almost unnecessary ostentation.

At 7 feet, 1 inch, Brumel sailed over on his first attempt. Thomas missed on his first try, pulled on pants and two jackets, and took a lonely walk. He was clear down at the far end of the infield, the length of a football field away, when Petterson, Shavlakadze, and Rambo missed for the second time.

Thomas peeled down to his union suit, wasted the littlest time possible on the liturgy of prepraration, and sailed over like a bird. He took another walk while Petterson struck out on his third try.

Shavlakadze, defending Olympic champion, obviously wished he didn't have to make that third and final attempt. Finally, he jumped, missed, and was out.

Now Rambo had his last chance. All high jumpers have little tricks to relax themselves before a leap. They left their arms hang loose and wiggle hands at the wrists, kick high as the Rockettes, do splits.

Rambo turns his back to the crossbar and bows from the waist as though facing Mecca. With arms hanging straight down, he pats palms together a few times. Then straightens, turns, and goes for it. He missed and was out.

Now it was head and head, Thomas and Brumel at 7 feet 1¾. (They raised the bar here only three-quarters of an inch at a time, which is like pulling a tooth with forefinger and thumb.) Brumel kicked the bar going up on his first try. Thomas knocked it off on his first try.

Brumel slapped the bar with a hand on his second ascent. Thomas seemed clear for an instant, but his chest brushed the stick and brought it down. On his third and last, Brumel laid his abdomen smack on the bar for a clear miss.

Thomas had been pacing in little circles near a little canvas lean-to where Rambo was resting on blankets. He tossed aside the towel draped over his shoulders in lieu of a jacket got ready quickly. If he could make it this time, he'd win. If he missed, Brumel would take it because the Russian had fewer faults.

Thomas squared his shoulders, went for it, hit the bar hard. Brumel was the winner in fewer misses. Thomas was licked, but he hadn't been out jumped.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

California sportsmen learned last week that Gov. Edmund G. Brown is prepared to resist vigorously any unreasonable attempt to legislate restrictions on rifles and shotguns used by hunters. They also found out that Brown thinks California's firearms laws are among the best in the nation.

However, they also heard that Brown is deeply concerned over the fact that there are numbers of persons in the state who buy or possess concealable weapons without legitimate reason.

Brown's feeling on firearms were read to the jam-packed hearing held in Sacramento by the Assembly Committe on Criminal Procedure. Brown's spokesman, John S. McInerny, suggested that mail-order sales of concealable weapons be prohibited within California. Out-of-state sales would not be affected.

Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch proposed that persons buying concealable firearms through the mail from another state be required to file purchase orders with California officials.

The suggestions took a large number of sportsmen by surprise. They had gone to the hearing fully expecting to hear proposals for the registration of all firearms, or perhaps even stronger measures. Some of those present asked for more time to study the proposals.

ASSEMBLYMAN RICHARD DONOVAN, Chula Vista Republican, tossed in a bit of comedy. A member of the committee, Donovan appeared attired in a bright-colored shooting jacket to demonstrate his broad background of experience on the subject. He said, "I'm an old handloader."

Donovan, a former police official, criticized some sportsmen's groups for a "very negative attitude." He said instead of merely opposing all firearms regulations, they should offer suggestions of their own.

Most sportsmen present said they thought that present firearms control laws are adequate. George Divani, representing the Associated Sportsmen of California, said, "any additional legislation should be aimed at misuse or illegal use of present laws."

Judge Hilliar Comstock, representing the National Rifle Association, noted that Lee Harvey Oswald was not deterred by a law prohibiting the firing of a gun in Dallas when he killed the late President Kennedy.

It appears to this writer that Donovan's attitude made sense. Far too many sportsmen and fishing and hunting clubs go beyond the right to bear arms in their feelings. They should give some thought to the suggestion that concealable weapons be registered when bought, whether in state or out of state. The City of Long Beach has such a law, requiring a dealer to record such a sale and give the city a carbon copy.

ONE HUNDRED AND THREE authors of the United States, Canada and Mexico have pooled their writings and the 770-page book, "Waterfowl Tomorrow," is now available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., at the ridiculously low price of $4.

This magnificent volume, if printed by a private company, probably would cost three or four times that amount. All of the authors donated their work as a labor of love.

The purpose of the book is to call to the attention of duck hunters and bird lovers the plight of North American waterfowl, but the chapters go far beyond that in dealing with every aspect of ducks and geese.

In addition to the 103 writers, dozen of others helped with special research work and photographs and drawings. J. P. Linduska, whose name has been associated with the outdoors for many years and with a vast quantity of publications, edited the book. He deserves the congratulations of all for his fine job.

Linduska says: "Most of the information in the book is in print for the first time. It brings together nearly everything known about waterfowl habitat and related factors in management. It will help the public to a better understanding of problems facing this resource."

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The Long Beach Casting Club begins its annual fly-tying classes at 7:30 Tuesday night, with groupings for beginners and advanced students. The classes are open to the public. In fact, the club encourages outsiders to enroll. There is no cost except for equipment and materials.

The instructors, headed by Allen Lowe, have devised an interesting set of flies for the 25 weekly classes this year and most of the patterns can be used in this area and other parts of California.

Bart Peterson, one of the instructors and a real artist, has drawn a set of charts for the classes and those should be of great value to the students.

The class is open to men and women and juniors.

Members of the Long Beach Sportsman's Club learned with grief Friday that one of the club's former presidents, E. H. (Zeke) Kennedy had died suddenly while on vacation at Isabella Lake.

Kennedy, a lieutenant in the Long Beach Police Department, had seen 27 years of service as an officer. He had been an administrative investigator for three chiefs of police in that period. He was certainly one of the Sportsman clubs stalwarts and will be sadly missed by that group. His wife, Miriam, and a mother and sister survive.

Mixed Feelings on Firearms

Falcons at San Fernando

By TOM QUINTANA

Still having a chance for first-place in the standings, the Long Beach Falcons start the second round of action in the Western Football League today when they meet San Fernando Valley at 12:30 in San Fernando.

Valley moved into first place last week with a 14-7 victory over previously unbeaten Orange County. The All-Stars' record is 4-1 after the first round.

Long Beach goes into the contest with a 3-2 league slate. Although the Falcons beat Chino Institute, 7-0, in an exhibition last week, they have lost to Valley and Orange County.

Clay-Liston Rematch on Closed TV at Aud

The controversial heavyweight championship rematch between titleholder Cassius Clay and ex-champ Sonny Liston will be shown via large screen television at Municipal Auditorium.

Clay and Liston clash Monday night, Nov. 16, at Boston Gardens.

Tickets, priced at $6 and $5, tax included, go on sale Monday at the Long Beach Arena box office. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

This will be Clay's first defense of the title he won last Feb. 25 in Miami Beach. Liston couldn't continue after the sixth round.

Reservation can be made by calling HE 7-2255.

L.B. Rockets Play Angel Rookies at Blair Today

The Long Beach Rockets will try to make it two league wins against no losses as they meet the Angel Rookies at Blair Field at 1:30 today.

Larry Bradshaw, former Gardena High star, and Ed Waldinger, who last year made life miserable for the Rockets, will probably share mound duties for Al Zunega's young Angel prospects.

Manager Jack Graham, who never believed in breaking up a winning combination, will counter with Casey Cox and Terry Richards. The two Rocket hurlers shut out the Scoremaster Braves, 5-0, last Sunday while giving up 10 hits.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A MAN IN THE LONG BEACH AREA

Frankly, it may take months to find him. But, we're willing to wait . . . the opportunity is that important.

Here's a quick "profile" of the person we're looking for. Chances are he's between 24 and 47. Education . . . college or equivalent. In all likelihood, he's now in a junior-executive position . . . well liked, making good progress. But, he has a problem. He knows he's capable of doing better . . . feels "trapped" by a salary structure which is good, but not good enough.

If you fit this general description, we'd be happy to talk to you about this salaried opening in our organization which will be available in 6 to 8 weeks. It may require several interviews . . . will certainly require exhaustive tests. But should you turn out to be the man we are looking for . . . we can promise it will be well worth your time and trouble.

To pursue the matter further, write us a letter outlining your business experience, age, marital status. (If you prefer, phone 378-4261).

WE'LL CONTACT YOU AND ARRANGE A MEETING

HAS DONE SOMETHING ABOUT IT
Our records reflect that many buyers are looking for going businesses that we are unable to supply. They have their roots planted outside of this area and cannot come to us so we're going to them. We've opened another spacious office (Valley Business Sales) 11802 E. Valley Blvd., El Monte, serving the entire greater valley. A third office is forthcoming. "Strictly Businesses" so sellers now more than ever, if you REALLY want to sell your business it will be the next thing to a "cinch" that our gang will get the job done for you. A phone call will bring us on the run.

BUILDER'S DREAM
If you can afford a custom built home built to standards you have never seen before—and in the $60,000 price range—then call us. 3 bedroom & den home constructed by hand-picked men & materials, beyond description. Such things as gold anadized frames on all sliding glass doors, lavish Roman tub constructed of solid onyx. Beautiful selection of imported tile & terrazzo. Carpeting of the most luxurious description (you'll sink to your elbows!). Unusual design in anadized brass makes the fireplace unique in it's setting. Hand-rubbed black walnut paneling & kitchen cabinets. Exotic figure "8" pool enhanced by attractive rock decking & wall enclosures. Over spent on professional landscaping alone. These are but a few of the many outstanding, most unusual features you will enjoy owning. Exclusively, shown by appointment only. Call HA 5-1714—4100 Bellflower Blvd.

WHY ?

'YES' ON PROPOSITION 14

14 SALES AND RENTALS OF RESIDENTIAL REAL PROPERTY. INITIATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT. Prohibits State, sub-division or agency thereof from denying, limiting, or abridging right of any person to decline to sell, lease, or rent residential real property to any person he chooses. Prohibition not applicable to property owned by State or its subdivisions; property acquired by eminent domain; or transient lodging accommodations by hotels, motels and similar public places.

YES X

GET BACK YOUR RIGHTS

CALIFORNIANS SHOULD HAVE FREEDOM OF CHOICE

That Long, Long Arm . . .

YES Vote Will restore to California property owners the right to choose the person or persons to whom they wish to sell or rent their residential property.

YES Vote Will abolish those provisions of the Rumford Housing Act of 1963 which took from Californians their freedom of choice in selling or renting their residential property.

YES Vote Will amend our California Constitution so that the only way future legislation could take away the freedom of choice in selling or renting of residential property would be by vote of the people.

YES Vote Will halt the State Fair Employment Practices Commission's harrassing and intimidating the public and property owners in the excercising of their freedom of choice.

YES Vote Will end State Police power over the selling or renting of privately owned residential property.

YES Vote Will restore rights basic to our freedom — rights that permit all persons to decide for themselves what to do with their own property.

The Rumford Forced Housing Act's police arm is long and strong.

It can reach almost any Californian — almost anyone who owns or rents a place to live. Owner. Tenant. Yes, and neighbor, too!

First, it reaches the owner. It takes away his right to choose his tenants or buyers.

Then it takes a tenant's or buyer's right — the right to choose his neighbors.

If the owner insists on his freedom to choose, the long arm can reach out and make him pay a fine up to $500; and further insistence by the owner can make him subject to contempt of court penalties.

If a tenant advises the owner to use freedom of choice, the long arm can reach the tenant with the same penalties.

In the matter of giving advice, even the neighbor must beware. That same long arm can put the neighbor in the same penalty box as the tenant!

Your 'YES' Vote on Propostion #14 Will

- RESTORE your Freedom to Sell or Rent your Property to Anyone YOU Choose
- STOP Police State Practices
- PROMOTE Friendly Community Relations
- RESTORE Constitutional Protection to Homeowners
- ELIMINATE Tyranny of a Bureaucratic Commission
- REMOVE Risk of Heavy Economic Losses

COMMITTEE FOR YES ON PROPOSITION #14
TO ABOLISH RUMFORD FORCED HOUSING ACT

609 SOUTH GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES 17
HOWARD L. BYRAM, CHAIRMAN
Former L. A. County Tax Assessor

READ THE AMENDMENT

Neither the State nor any subdivision or agency thereof shall deny, limit or abridge, directly or indirectly, the right of any person who is willing or desires to sell, lease or rent any part or all of his real property, to decline to sell, lease or rent such property to such person or persons as he, in his absolute discretion, chooses.

'Person' includes individuals, partnerships, corporations and other legal entities and their agents or representatives but does not include the State or any subdivision thereof with respect to the sale, lease or rental of property owned by it.

'Real property' consists of any interest in real property of any kind or quality, present or future irrespective of how obtained or financed, which is used, designed, constructed, zoned or otherwise devoted to or limited for residential purposes whether as a single family dwelling or as a dwelling for two or more persons living together or independently of each other.

This Article shall not apply to the obtaining of property by eminent domain pursuant to Article I, Sections 14 and 14½ of this Constitution, nor to the renting or providing of any accommodations for lodging purposes by a hotel, motel or other similar public place engaged in furnishing lodging to transient guests.

If any part or provision of this Article or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the Article, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end the provisions of this Article are severable.

Defensive Driving

. . . is to drive with a confident attitude that one can drive without ever having a preventable accident. It requires a constant alertness for the illegal and reckless errors of other drivers, and the willingness to make timely adjustments in one's own driving so that those illegal acts and errors shall not involve one in an accident.

More And Better Steel Produced At Area Plants

MOLTEN STEEL POURED INTO NEW VACUUM DEGASSING CHAMBER

Two Torrance steel plants have announced manufacturing improvements increasing the output of one and producing higher quality specialized steel for the other.

U. S. Steel's Torrance Works says that later this year it will start phase three of its program to increase output. This step calls for converting and improving the current 8-pass rolling mill to a 10-pass mill with higher delivery speeds.

The first step of U. S. Steel's modernization program was the construction of a new reheat furnace and mechanical handling units for steel billets. Step two, now underway, is the installation of equipment to improve intermediate processing sections of the 12-inch mill.

* * * *

OF INTEREST to local oil drilling operations is Armco Steel Corp.'s new vacuum degassing installation.

This process, developed a few years ago for commercial application, produces stronger, cleaner, more uniform steel by removing hydrogen gas from the molten metal as it is poured into an airless chamber. This eliminates the minute internal cracks in steel which grow larger in service and eventually cause failure of the metal.

Basic equipment used in the Armco process is a vacuum-type steel chamber enclosing the ingot mold into which molten steel is poured. The chamber is connected to a vacuum pumping unit which draws off the air, including the hydrogen gas.

"The combination of carefully selected raw materials, precisely controlled electric furnace melting practice, and final teeming in vacuum, produces steels possessing the consistency and reliability demanded by modern steel users," W. R. Patterson, Armco general superintendent said.

Steel-Reinforced Concrete Pilings Made in 500-Foot Molds at San Pedro

By DICK EMERY

SAN PEDRO—There's a waterfront factory here which makes steel-and-concrete piling faster than Grandma bakes cookies.

The steel forms, or molds, are so long that workmen at one end use a walky-talky radio to talk to workmen at the other.

Around steel cables taut as violin strings, they pour fluid concrete made with seven and one-half sacks of cement, 94 pounds per stack, to a cubic yard of mix. That's two sacks more than standard mix and it makes extra-tough concrete. When the concrete has set, they steam it dry in a 10-hour steam bath.

* * * *

A WHEELED concrete mixer rolls beside the long form, pouring mix. Bulkheads separate one pile-to-be from the next, so that five 100-foot piles can be made in each mold from one pouring.

"We can pour on Friday and drive the pile on Monday," project manager Bill Bates said. "We start the steam cure three hours after the concrete has set, and steam 12 hours at 150 degrees."

The plant, Harbor Precast Co., covers five acres at 2100 Wilmington - San Pedro Road, on the north bank of a harbor slough which extends west from L.A. Harbor's West Basin. For five years the plant has been turning out concrete piling for harbor and bridge construction and for piers and buildings.

* * * *

RIGHT NOW the plant is making 18-inch diameter octagonal piling for Berth 218, on Terminal Island east of Fish Harbor, a project needing 172,000 lineal feet.

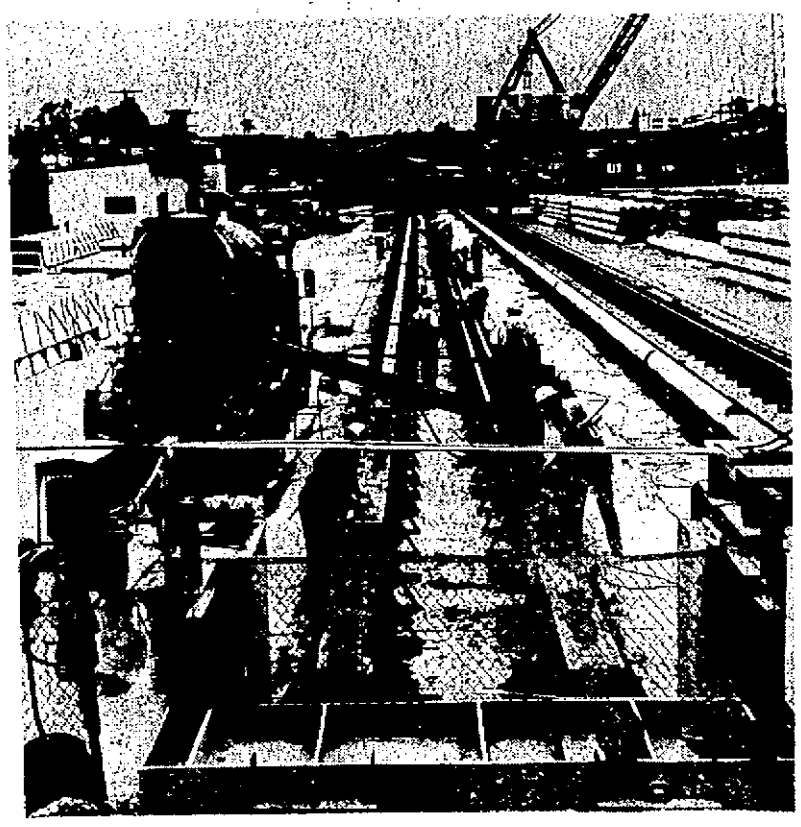

Each pile contains 16 three-eights inch high-tensile steel cables, each cable under 14,000 pounds stress. Finished, the 18-inch diameter pile weighs 280 pounds per foot.

"It may cost three or four times as much as wooden piling, but in the long run it's cheaper," Bates said. "The bugs can't eat it. It takes punishment without breaking. Even in sea water these will be good for 30 or 40 years."

* * * *

THE PLANT built 300 piles for Huntington Harbour. Stacked in the yard waiting delivery are 210 14-inch round piling for a boat marina at Playa del Rey. When the present order for Berth 218 is filled next month, the plant will start work on other orders.

"We'll make 200 for a pier at Hermosa, and 168 deck slabs, too. Then we'll make 300 big ones for a pier at Oxnard, and 99 girders for a Long Beach Freeway bridge, and then a batch for a Dominguez Channel bridge."

MAKING FIVE 100-FOOT PILINGS PER MOLD

Over-all view of Harbor Precast Co. yard at San Pedro shows long molds in which up to five 100-foot concrete pilings can be poured at once. Distance is so great workers use walkie-talkies to contact men at other end. Finished pilings are stacked at right.

THEY'RE HEAVY TO MOVE

Precast plant worker stands on stack of 98 foot piling to assist as big crane moves piles weighing about 14 tons each.

Liberal Policies on Compensation Cost Employers

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third and final part of a series written by Staff Writer Ray Duncan of the Pasadena Independent Star-News on the increasing costs of California Workmen's Compensation.)

By RAY DUNCAN

Workmen's compensation insurance in California may be creating a worker class of "industrial untouchables."

Or so say its critics. They refer to recent expansion of the law to include the concept of "the continuing injury."

This is the heart ailment, or back-ache, or similar slowly-arriving injury, which is often associated with growing older. But these conditions are treated in many compensation cases as being caused by the worker's job, in whole or in part.

This is one of the gravest complaints of employers who feel the system is over-reaching itself in assuming fantastic new burdens of social welfare.

Some of them say this policy has the reverse effect from what was intended. In the long-run, it handicaps the heart-patient worker in getting a job, for it makes him a serious hiring risk. Employers concerned to protect their good insurance record, and its lower rates may refuse to take any worker with a previous heart problem. Cancer and epilepsy patients may be similarly excluded.

Says one employer, "Suppose I interview a healthy-looking job candidate and I learn he has a heart history. I might as well hand him a big hunk of money right there, and save myself a lot of trouble."

Michael R. Tillisch, claims manager for a major compensation insurance company, says, "Let's assume an employer's company has 500 people on the payroll. Let's assume these people are an average of the population as a whole. This could mean that approximately 2.5 of them will die this year of heart disease. If each of these deaths was held to be compensable, and each employe had a wife and dependent child, the total cost of those claims to the insuror or the company would be $52,750!"

THE LIBERALIZATION of the law, employers say, has been partly introduced with the help of a paragraph in the Labor Code itself. It is a small paragraph with immense implications. It says:

"The provisions of . . . this Code shall be liberally construed by the courts with the purpose of extending their benefits for the protection of persons injured in the course of their employment."

Employer-lawyers say this "liberally construed" phrase originally was intended only to apply to the language of the law. But now it has been extended to apply to the testimony itself. Lawyer Douglas A. Campbell, who is himself a former referee, says that evidence of doubtful meaning now is often automatically construed in the worker's favor.

"In case of a tie," says one angry industrialist, "the worker always wins." And cases of an apparent tie are surprisingly frequent.

"I sit and listen to the testimony," says one referee in Los Angeles, 'and I hear two doctors discussing the injury. One doctor is a witness for the injured worker, and the other for the employer. Both doctors are men of good professional standing. But under oath they testify the exact opposite of each other, though they are discussing a simple ailment. And I'm supposed to say which doctor is right. I'd like to throw up my hands and say, "It's a tie!" but I can't."

Veteran Realtor Predicts Good Times Ahead for LB

By MARK CLUTTER

"Laugh when you're going uphill. Cry when you're going down."

This aphorism sums up the business philosophy of Max Livoni, 50-year veteran of the real estate business.

Livoni, 69, is laughing now because he sees good times ahead for the real estate business in Long Beach.

"It's going to be rough for the next six or eight months," he said. "We are on the uphill climb. There is no place to go but up. There are many vacancies here, and Long Beach has the lowest rentals of any comparable area outside of the Deep South.

"All this will change because Long Beach is the ideal 'bedroom city.' This is a place to live. We have three advantages over most communities. We have rapid transportation on the freeways, a beach and clean air."

Urban renewal, Livoni believes, will be the salvation of the downtown area. "There is a trend toward downtown living," he said. "The development of multiple-family and high-rise housing will revitalize downtown."

Livoni backs his optimism with action. At an age at which most businessmen have retired, he is expanding his business. The Livoni Really Co., located at 1101 Atlantic Ave., has opened a branch office at 3825 E. Seventh St., and is planning to open another branch soon in North Long Beach.

Livoni began his career a half century ago in Nebraska. He has been in business in Long Beach for 33 years. He is widely known here. In addition to being past president of the Board of Realtors and the Apartment House Managers Association, he is a former city councilman and a member of the American Legion, the Elks and Kiwanis.

"I have a positive philosophy of business," he aid. "I believe in service to the client. Give the client the right deal and you hold him. I am proud of the fact that 70% of our business is repeat business.

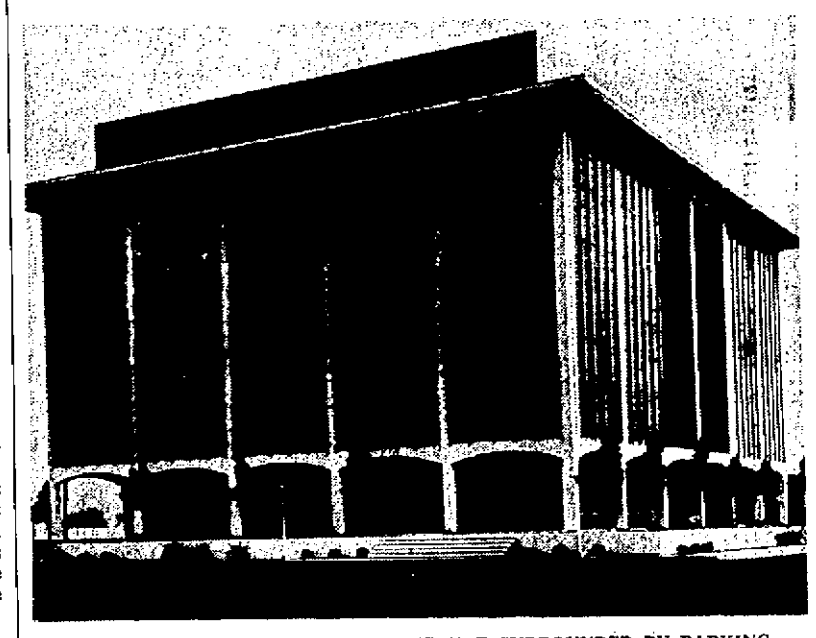

"Real estate is a wonderful career. There is never a dull moment because there is al-

New Office Building Open

CASUALTY INSURANCE CO. STRUCTURE SURROUNDED BY PARKING

The cutting of a ribbon signaled the official opening of Casualty Insurance Co's. office building at 1477 South Manchester in Anaheim.

The office building with such luxury features as an interior landscaped courtyard, fountains, and exterior walls of porcelain, faces on the Santa Ana freeway and is immediately adjacent to Disneyland.

Cameron Dorsey, exclusive leasing agent for the structure, revealed that the second floor will house the headquarters of Casualty Insurance.

The building, surrounded by four acres of parking, is the first phase of a $2½-million complex that will include additional office facilities and a major restaurant.

Realty Board to Hear of New Concepts

William K. Wittausch, manager of housing research in the Stanford Research Institute's Southern California Laboratories, South Pasadena, will speak on "New Concepts in the Housing Industry" at the Long Beach District Board of Realtors breakfast Tuesday.

Wittausch formerly carried out U.S. housing assignments in Guatemala, Germany and Austria.

The realtors will also observe Navy Day at this breakfast meeting and have invited the mayors and city councilmen of Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill and Seal Beach to attend. Also as honored guests will be Captain William P. Tanner, United States Navy at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. Captain Tanner has been in the Navy more than 24 years and assumed command of the Naval Air Station Los Alamitos on August 24th, 1964.

Broadway Store to Open New Floor Monday

Furniture Section Expanded

By DAN LUCHSINGER

Official opening Monday of the brand new third floor of the Broadway Long Beach, in the Los Altos Shopping Center, will make the store "A complete department store like the other Broadway stores where customers have a one-stop shopping trip. Now they can buy everything they need for their home, family and children here," Bill Favaro, store manager, said.

The new third floor is of unusual design. It features massive arches at the building top, extending the roof five feet beyond the walls, and is so designed that it will blend with the current architecture of the center as well as that planned in the immediate future.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHT of the new floor is the added furniture department. Tastefully decorated with excellent lighting, it now offers Broadway customers a full line of furniture in various styles.

Other departments including china, glass, silver, gifts, sporting goods, toys, the sewing center and photo studio, have been moved to the new floor and expanded.

The new floor, was a complete addition built on top of the original building constructed several years ago for another department store operation.

"We needed the third floor so this store would conform to the rest of the Broadway style stores," Favaro said. "When you buy someone else's building, you have to alter it to fit your needs."

* * * *

AND NOW the third floor is completed, Favaro said the store's other floors will be remodeled to provide new fixtures, refurbishing and relocation of other departments. The store will remain open during these alterations.

Also included in the store's expansion plans is an auto and tire service center, scheduled to be built adjoining the store and completed in the spring.

When the Broadway expansion is finished the store will have approximately 50 per cent more selling area, total store space growing to 140,000 square feet.

New CREA Directors

The Garden Grove Board of Realtors has announced that Del Wilkinson, Dick Casterline, Lynn Blair, Norman Abrams, Bob Flanagan and Joe Doyle have been named directors of the California Real Estate Association.

Computer Talk Scheduled Here

The Long Beach Chapter of the Systems and Procedures Association have planned an interesting October meeting at which Dwight E. Goode and Conald C. Isenberg will explain just how computers work.

Goode will give a talk on the workings of a computer with diagrams to explain how computers store information, retrieve it and present compiled information to the machine's operator.

Isenberg's address will explain examples of how to program computers, how to talk to them, and finally what you can expect a computer to do.

Compensation Case Benefits Up 100%

erees is seldom called into question. They are experienced lawyers who take a civil service examination to qualify in this complex medical-legal field. Richard Bancroft, an attorney writing a study of the system in the California Law Review, noted that referee jobs are much sought after, that 'referee competence universally commands practitioner respect," and that they are the highest paid hearing officers in the state. A referee now gets $16,212 a year after three years.

The salary, at least, is not such as to make him too closely akin to the average working man.

California has approximately 85 referees. This is a slightly varying number, divided between a northern and a southern panel based at San Francisco and Los Angeles, with many smaller outposts in addition.

They work under the supervision of the seven members of the Industrial Accident Commission, a body composed mostly of non-lawyers, who are appointed by the governor. The commissioner and referees function under the Department of Industrial Relations.

The fact that commissioners and their superiors are governor-appointed, has led to the complaint by many employers that the regime of Gov. Edmund G. Brown has had an unduly liberal influence on compensation matters.

Further appeal is available to the higher courts. But employers claim that "galloping liberalism" is also evident there. One analyst of this trend recently wrote, "It isn't easy to determine whether the Legislature, the administrative system it created or the judiciary has been the most significant liberalizing force in the California compensation system."

Most employers believe the referees and commission are ahead of the courts in this respect.

But Gordon Winbigler, assistant presiding referee of the Los Angeles panel, has another opinion. He points out that among about 100,000 decisions by referees during the past 2½ years, only 15 have been finally reversed by the Court of Appeals. This indicates, he feels, that referees are not out of line with other California judicial thinking.

Many defenders of the system see it like this:

'Of course it is true that interpretation of the law have become more liberal in recent years. But this trend also appears in the Legislature, which has amended the law many times in a liberal direction, and in the courts. We simply live in a more liberal time."

THE LIBERALIZATION at the Legislative level has brought heavy increases in benefits. They have gone up 100% (from $35 a week maximum in 1954 to $70 a week today for temporary disability payments) and 75% (from $30 maximum in 1954 to $52.50 today for permanent disability payments). Yet many critics of the law, particularly those in labor circles, say it has not kept up with the times in living costs.

At the same time, the rates which employers pay to finance the system have risen sharply. They have been changed 43 times, of which 23 were increases, 18 were decreases, and two made no overall difference in cost. The last six changes have been increases.

The rising costs are not entirely due to changes in philosophy. Medical costs for training injured workers have risen rapidly. Hospital costs alone have gone up 122% in the past 10 years.

But the liberalizing philosophy has proved costly, too, but spreading the area of coverage.

For example, California recently awarded $20,500 in compensation benefits to the survivors of a football player at Cal Poly who was killed in an air crash on his way with the team to a game—on the ground that he held an athletic scholarship, which made him a contract employe of the school.

And another worker received a compensation award for the loss of a finger while using a power saw at home on his own pursuits—for reasons too complex to outline here.

Other interpreations have been more bizarre. An insurance trade magazine, The Independent Adjuster, reports the case of a good-looking California woman of 35 who fell and injured her back while working as a domestic. She received workmen's compensation benefits of $37.75 per week, but "apparently this was insufficient income, so she went into business for herself, and was doing quite well until arrested."

At this point an unkind insurance man demanded that Mrs. X reimburse his company for the disability benefits it had been paying her, and which he felt she had collected illegally because she was doing other work.

BUT THE COMMISSION ruled in her favor, the magazine reports. They pointed out that "the parties to the illicit act did not intend that the man should assume the rights and duties of an employer under California and federal law," and she was therefore not legally employed, and was not inviolation of her status as a disability benefit-receiver.

Not all attacks on the law are coming from employers. Organized labor has expressed several dissatisfactions, but from a different point of view. Labor leaders say the law is inadequate in what should be one of its most important functions, the rehabilitation of the disabled worker to help him get back into productive work.

Many neutral observers agree with labor on this point, though this again might add to the cost of the compensation system.

Labor also says the law's coverage is inadequate for the better-paid workers whose needs are far greater than the present maximum weekly benefits for disability. Labor also has criticized the cost-loading factor allowed insurance firms, as unnecessarily high.

As for complaints that the system is unfair to employers, a Los Angeles labor attorney says:

"The employers and the insurance companies are spoiled. For years they had it all their own way. Then the depression came along and drove a lot of good lawyers into compensation practice, and now there is a real workers' bar, and things have changed."

Employers would like to see the law changed so that politically-appointed commissioners would be less closely related to the referees making judicial decisions. And even within the present law structure, they feel, there is a need for public pressure to force a return to fair control.

FEW WANT THE LAW abolished, few want any drastic changes in its structure, and few are backing any proposed alternate system. The only alternate which seriously threatens the system today is a federal take-over under Social Security. Some say that the California law is old-fashioned, in that it is not designed to handle the burdens that are being thrust upon it by a welfare-minded society and that some alternate program with a broader financial base may eventually be necessary.

But employers say their growing chorus of disapproval is aimed at saving the law, not destroying it.

Lawyer Clopton says the present compensation crisis reminds him of "a Brinks truck overturned in the middle of the street, with coins rolling out for everyone."

Lawyer Warren Hanna has warned California employers that today they "are like a frog. If you drop a frog in boiling water he will immediately jump out, but if you put him in cool water, then gradually increase the temperature, you can cook him before he knowns he's in serious trouble. This is what has been happening in these compensation cases. Many of us don't realize we're really in hot water, and it's getting hotter by the minute."

Foothill Village Townhouses Open in Park-Like Atmosphere

FULLERTON TOWNHOUSE READY

Giant scissors for a giant grand opening are in style for the Foothill Village Townhouses today in Fullerton. Participating are the developers from left to right John M. Driggers, H. R. Brookman Jr. and W. E. Flaharty. Furnished models located on Placentia just north of Chapman will be open daily.

The architecturally designed Foothill Village community in Fullerton will have its grand opening today, according to Ted Crosbie, division manager of the Forest E. Olson Inc., realtors, who are handling the sales.

Considerable research has been undertaken by the developer, H. R. Brookman, Jr. to determine what the buying public is seeking in townhouse living.

"The result," Crosbie states, "is one concept . . . quality." Foothill Village community with its park-like atmosphere of trees and shrubbery offers the residents a source of constant satisfaction rather than a source of continuing chores. Provided is all upkeep for the beautifully landscaped grounds, swimming pools and other recreational facilities. Exterior painting is done to protect the beauty and condition of the homes in the community. The owner pays a proportionate share of maintenance costs by a monthly charge.

* * * *

THE LARGE recreational building provides many facilities for large and small group gatherings, plus swimming pools, playgrounds and putting greens.

Features include built-in range and oven dishwasher and disposal, individually controlled air conditioning and heating, fireplaces and private patios. Of particular note is the luxurious nylon filament carpeting throughout which, when coupled with the complete insulation of outside walls and ceiling, give meaning to the quality concept.

Foothill Village Townhouses start at $18,900, offer a wide range of plans and settings including two, three, and four bedrooms and two and three baths. Financing is available at 6% for 30 years.

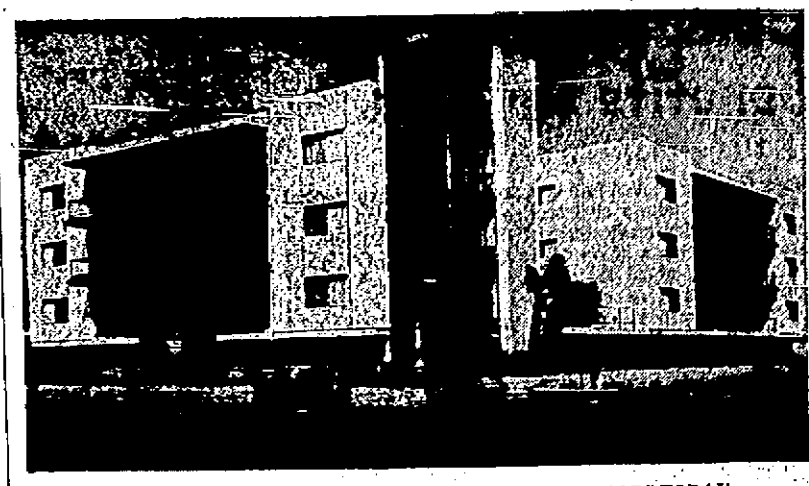

The $2,200,000 condominium has been developed by H. R. Brookman, Jr., John M. Driggers and W. E. Flaharty.

Furnished models located on Placentia, just north of Chapman in Fullerton, will be open daily.

Home Savings Lists Earnings

Home Savings & Loan of Los Angeles has announced third quarter earnings of $5,269,129, a 50% gain over the same 1963 quarter.

The Ahmanson family-owned company also said gross assets for the 12-month period ending Sept. 30 increased $304,130,708. The firm's total assets are now reported at $1,796,088,708.

Distinctive One-Story Cypress Homes Appeal

A SOMERSET HOUSE
Wall-to-wall carpets, large and attractive gas-burning fireplaces and wide walls of glass contribute to the luxurious appearance of Somerset Homes in Cypress, Western Orange County. The big, comfortable homes are priced from $27,500 with up to 1652 square feet of living area.

"Live low and like it" is the theme for a series of new homes being offered in Cypress, Western Orange County.

The new homes are the Somerset- distinctive one-story series priced from only $27,500 for up to 1652 square feet of actual living area.

Within the Somerset series is the wide-spreading, leisure-plan home aclled The Sycamore. All on one floor are its four bedrooms and two baths, its exceptionally large family room and rare atrium —glass-enclosed outdoor-indoor garden room.

"WE'VE DESIGNED this home for the family that wants typical California living . . . a sense of ranch-style relaxation, a freedom from the Eastern two-story plan," said a representative of the builders.

"Living low and liking it," he added, "are many Californians who consider one-story living typical of the west. They wouldn't go up and down stairs all day for anything . . . and here, they don't have to."

Everything is at hand in this new Somerset home. The kitchen has all the labor-saving built-ins, from gas rangel and oven to sparkle-rinse dishwasher. Luxurious wall-to-wall carpeting is reflected in the ample dressing mirrors of the master bedroom. Everywhere are convenience outlets for telephones, television, extra power demands.

Part of the "living low and liking it" theme is expressed in the exterior landscaping that goes with each home; it is distinctive and richly Californian.

To visit the attractive homes, take Carson to Moody, then turn South to the models only a short distance from Los Alamitos Country Club.

Homes Are Designed for Mature Families

With grown up children away from home, parental responsibility diminishes. A family no longer needs extra room and parents begin looking for freedom from daily responsibilities of gardening and maintenance.

The Cape Series, new garden condominium homes in Newport's Back Bay, meet the needs of those who are accustomed to gracious living but who want more freedom to enjoy life. They can now escape the monotonous chores that accompany upkeep of a single residence dwelling.

Parents who have reached the point in life where leisure time is within their grasp will find that the South Oaks Corp.'s Cape Series offers an ideal home to meet their needs.

* * * *

QUIET surroundings desired by the mature are assured in this exclusive community. Your neighbors at the Cape Series are contemporaries, old enough to appreciate unruffled seclusion and young enough to enjoy life.

The charm and simplicity of New England's Cape Cod sets the architectural mood for the Cape Series. The crisp contrasts often seen in Southern California was dismissed by the South Oaks Corp., builders.

While the Cape Series design is rooted in Old New England, along the shores of Massachusetts, the achievement is refreshing.

* * * *

INVITING, traditionally-styled homes, covered with hand-split cedar shake roofs, are set among spacious landscaped malls to provide maximum privacy and serenity.

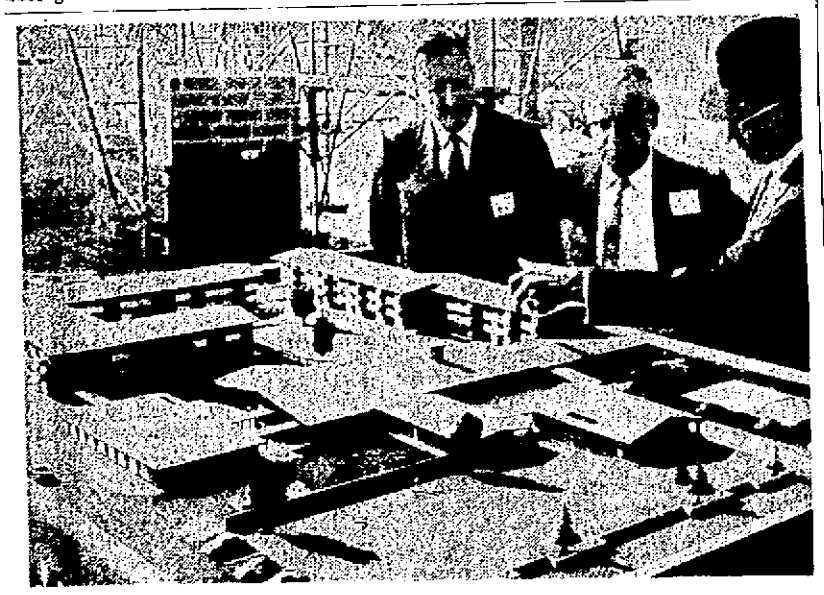

Most plans feature built-in glass front china closets. Experienced home seekers are temporary home styling so in agreement that deluxe provisions like these and many windows which provide light and fresh sea are rarely seen in new homes.

Models of the Cape Series are open daily. To reach the Cape Series travel south on Pacific Coast Highway to Newport Beach. At the Newport Boulevard overpass exit right on Newport Boulevard to 19th Street and right to Tustin Avenue. Then turn north (left) on Tustin Avenue to Bay Street, travel east (right) on Bay Street to Aliso Avenue, turn north (left) on Aliso Avenue one-half block to the Cape Series.

Long Beach Plants Fill Asia Orders

Two plants in Long Beach have filled orders for $90,349 in foreign aid program exports to South Viet Nam and Pakistan, the Agency for International Development reports.

Rachel Laboratories Inc. sold $85,750 worth of medicinal and pharmaceutical products for South Viet Nam. Techno Electric Manufacturing Co., furnished $4,599 worth of equipment for Kakistan.

MODEL UNVEILED
A scale model of Quaker Gardens, new $3,500,000 California Friends Home under construction in Stanton, was unveiled recently. Donald Pearson, left, CFH vice president, and Earl Bloomster, volunteer model builder, watch Harry Plummer, incoming resident, point out the location of his apartment. Project is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1965.

Friends Church Organization Building Homes for Elderly

Construction is under way in Stanton on Quaker Gardens, a $3,500,000 resident home for the retired and elderly — the first California Friends Home to be built, and a most complete retirement center.

This unique project, which will place emphasis on active community participation by its residents, is located on a seven acre site at 12151 Dale Street in Stanton, where that community borders Garden Grove.

More than 120,000 square feet of area in six buildings housing 171 apartments including suites, semi-suites and single units are scheduled in the Quaker Gardens' master plan which also includes a chapel, an infirmary, recreational areas and a personal services area.

* * * *

THE MASTER PLAN for Quaker Gardens calls for facilities to be built in the shape of a rectangle around a completely landscaped center mall, which will be interlaced by covered walkways between the main buildings.

According to Lloyd W. Halvorson, executive director of California Friends Homes, a nonprofit corporation, the facility will be completely non-denominational and open to individuals of all religious faiths.

Quaker Gardens, in its full Life-Care program, will offer complete service for personal needs, complete medical care, and hospitalization, if needed, Halvorson said.

* * * *

THE RETIREMENT facility, located on the site of a former orange and avocado orchard, will be built entirely of reinforced brick and steel, by M. J. Brock & Sons, Inc., general contractors, and is expected to be completed in the fall of 1965.

One feature of Claude Senefeld's design is an impressive entrance-way highlighted by a large covered patio and a reflecting pool and fountain, flanked by subtropical plantings.

A chapel with a seating capacity of 120 and featuring an additional meditation area will be located near the Quaker Gardens' entrance.

Two three-story buildings house the apartments, surrounding the court yard. Barber and beauty facilities, personal service area and a clinic facility also are included in these buildings.

The entire project is sponsored by the California Yearly Meeting of Friends Church, the state organization of Friends.

Mesa's R. R. Lowe Gets New Position

Rodger R. Lowe has been appointed vice president and director of the Consulting Division of Mesa Scientific Corporation, it was announced by Vernon D. Walker, president.

Formerly engineering vice president of Mesa, Lowe's new responsibilities reflect the corporate reorganization resulting from Mesa's recent acquisition of Systems Programming Corporation, Santa Ana, Calif.

His experience prior to joining Mesa Scientific includes posts as senior staff consultant, Norden Division, United Aircraft Corporation, research project engineer for the Electronics Division, National Cash Register Company, and project engineer, Electronic Engineering Company of California.

Lowe hold a degree in theoretical physics from the University of California at Los Angeles.

El Dorado Park Estates Here Achieves New Home Elegance

A new elegance has been achieved in the homes at El Dorado Park Estates, Long Beach, presented in one-story, two story, and split-level and tri-level availabilities. A wide choice of distinctive elevations and provocative plans is offered.

Both upstairs and downstairs fireplaces are available in used brick, black marble, Bouquet Canyon stone, Palos Verdes stone and many others. Master bedrooms include private bath and dressing room, and their own wood-burning fireplace.

Many buyers with large families have been attracted to Plan 202, a five-bedroom, three-bath, two-story model with a formal dining room.

* * * *

"DESIGN TO provide individual family members with areas sufficient for their own needs has been achieved, providing a feeling of comfortable spaciousness," a spokesman said. "The excellence of the planning means congestion will be next to impossible."

Among the quality features that are part of the purchase price are aluminum-framed sliding-glass doors, with fibreglass-aluminum framed screens, genuine marble-topped pullman lavatories, lawns, including front, sides and rear, plants and exterior ornamentation of stone, brick, wood and Palos Verdes or slump stone, and all-electric kitchen with built-in range, double oven and dishwasher.

Furnished models are open daily. El Dorado Park Estates are located north of Spring Street, between Los Alamitos Blvd., and Studebaker Road.

Offers Immediate Occupancy

Immediate occupancy in one of Orange County's outstanding family residential-recreational communities, Holiday Village in Huntington Beach, is announced by Jack Scougall, sales manager.

Holiday Village is ideally located at Brookhurst and Adams, a site that is only a few minutes drive from such outstanding recreational areas as city and state public beaches and Newport Beach.

In Costa Mesa is Mesa Verde Country Club. Free membership in this exclusive golf club is now being given Holiday Village new home buyers.

The minimum down payment is $495 and garden-patio homes are priced from $14,990 to $17,490, states Scougall. The purchase is backed up by Kaufman and Broad's five-year warranty, only such guarantee in California.

Two, three and four-bedroom homes are available. Purchase price includes built-in oven and range, washer and dryer, refrigerator, fenced-in patio and wall-to-wall carpeting. A new special feature is an exclusively designed 200-square-foot panoramic bedroom suite with library and lounge combined in some models.

* * * *

AT HOLIDAY VILLAGE, trained professionals take care of the maintenance, such as exterior painting of your home, plus the care of the landscaping, public areas and recreational facilities of the community.

Maintenance is directed by the homeowners' association, to which all families belong, each family unit having one vote in the administration. A nominal monthly assessment fee pays for the maintenance.

Home living is planned for families with children over 13 years of age. A key part of this program is the family recreation center, which offers a large swimming pool, a putting green and a clubhouse for social and educational activities. Free and full use of this facility is part of the basic purchase price.

Lytton Profits Up ½ Million

Lytton Financial Corporation has announced earnings of $4,000,108 for nine months ended Sept. 30, up $556,108 over the same period a year ago.

This is $1.86 a share based on 2,148,283 shares compared to $1.83 last year on fewer shares. Outstanding shares have increased with a 414,393 common stock offering last May.

Bart Lytton, corporation president, announced the holding company's recently opened subsidiary loan associations have posted good gains. He cited the record of the Oakland regional office which, in less than 20 months of operation, has accounted $15.5 million in deposits.

Albert Cowen Named to New Insurance Job

Albert S. Cowen has been appointed insurance consultant manager at Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s district office at 3655 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach, according to district manager Elmer C. Krauel.

A. S. COWAN

In 1961 and 1962, while a consultant at the local office, Cowen sold over one million dollars in life and health insurance coverage to Long Beach area families. In December 1962 he was appointed a member of the management team of the company's Norwalk district, his position immediately prior to this assignment.

In his new assignment, Cowen will have immediate supervision over a sales staff which will serve the basic insurance needs of Metropolitan policyholders and the public in this area.

Edison Honors Three Employes for Service

Three Southern California Edison Co. employes from Long Beach marked company milestones recently.

Bert B. Mahaffie, 2180 Termino Ave., and Mont. F. Palmer, 4429 Hazelbrook Ave., each received 35-year diamond service pins. Ross Carrington, 1654 E. 64th St., retired after 20 years service with the firm.

Mahaffie is a first operator in the southwest substation division and Palmer is a watch engineer at the Alamitos steam station.

Carrington, who was with Edison's steam generation division, plans to use his retirement to travel extensively.

Many Extras Included in Dutch Haven Homes

IN DUTCH HAVEN HOME
A large dining area adjoins the living room in this model of a Dutch Haven Homes. The homes are offered in four different developments in Orange Co.

All four Dutch Haven communities in Orange County: Newport-West, Marina Series, Sunny Hills West and the College Series, offer a wide selection of luxury features included at no additional cost in the initial selling prices.

Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, states that quite a few of the features are of "custom quality" and are usually found only in homes costing far more than those currently offered by Dutch Haven.

Features included in Newport-West homes are: complete Medallion kitchens with built-in dishwasher, range, oven, range hood and disposal, full-sized beach lots, decorator designed fireplaces with log lighters, overhead boat doors on garages, wood shake or single roofs and forced-air heating.

Newport-West homes at the beach are priced from $21,950 and include two-story three and four bedroom homes with family room and up to three baths. VA No Down, FHA and Cal-Vet financing is available.

At the Dutch Haven Marina Series, features include complete built-in Medallion kitchens with dishwasher, range, disposal, oven and range hood, family room, decorator fireplace, wood shake roof with large overhangs, master bedroom suite and forced-air heating.

The Marina Series is priced from $18,950 with three and four bedroom homes with up to two baths. VA, Cal-Vet and FHA financing is available with just $95 move-in cost to Vets.

Underground utilities throughout are featured at Sunny Hills West, along with massive two-way fireplace with log lighters, complete Medallion kitchens, oversized view lots, sunken living rooms and up to 2400 square feet of living area.

* * * *

SITUATED in the picturesque hills overlooking the Fullerton Valley, Sunny Hills is one of a very limited number of executive communities where veterans may select a home on VA no down terms. FHA and long-term conventional financing plans are available.

Ranging from three to five bedrooms with family room, dining room and up to three full baths, the homes are priced from $29,950. Split level, two-story, and single level floor plans are offered.

Outstanding features at the Dutch Haven College Series in Huntington Beach include oak floors throughout, Medallion kitchens with dishwasher, oven, range, disposal and range hood, separate formal dining areas, sunken living rooms, custom fireplaces with log lighters, double door entries, wood shake or shingle roofs with large overhangs and forced-air heating.

Single level and two-story plans are available with three or four bedrooms and family room and up to three baths. Prices start at $20,950 with VA No Down, FHA and Cal-Vet financing offered.

Dutch Housewife Contest Winner

A Dutch-born housewife with a penchant for 18th century furnishings has won a 700-entry interior decorating contest at Fairway Park, East Long Beach area housing community it was announced by H. C. Pease, marketing director for builder-developer Robert H. Grant & Co.

She is Mrs. Harry Maaskant, 10491 Barbara Ann St., a native of Holland and the wife of a U. S. importer.

"Mrs. Maaskant has had no previous experience in interior decorating," said Pease. "She used her own good sense —and also put to use some sound advice from her husband!"

* * * *

SECOND and third winners in the contest are Mrs. James H. Harvey and Mrs. Harold I. Hudson, Pease added. The contest was open to all 700 families in Fairway Park.

The two-story, four-bedroom, three-bath homes occupied by the contest winners feature hardwood floors on raised concrete foundations, sunken living rooms with slate entries an wood-burning fireplaces with gas log lighters.

* * * *

THREE OTHER floor plans range in size from three to five bedrooms, and prices begin at $24,250 with minimum down on VA, FHA or conventional terms.

Four furnished models are open daily and may be reached by taking the Los Alamitos off-ramp from the newly-opened San Diego Freeway north to Spring St. and turning right, or by driving east on Spring to Cerritos.

Contractors Build Educational Role

The Associated General Contractors have announced plans for a general expansion of their educational program directed toward the development of skilled workers and management men for the construction industry.

Through the expanded program, the association will offer more college engineering scholarships, seek to broaden the college curriculum of construction type classes, and promote apprenticeship programs in the construction trades.

Pacific Sands Has Only 28 Homes Left

Chances to buy a better house are being reduced at the rate of more than one a day at Pacific Sands Imperial, according to Bob Hardesty, director of marketing for Deane Brothers, builders-developers of the walled-in residential-recreational community in Huntington Beach.

After two months of sales, only 28 homes remain out of the original 97. Some of the 28 still available have the Garden Kitchen, an exclusive feature developed after several years of research by Deane Brothers, and considered a major spur to the accelerated sales.

The Garden Kitchen is an exciting example of indoor-outdoor living that is both practical and handsome. It literally puts the homemaker and her family in the center of the patio.

* * * *

THIS WAS achieved by running gold anodized sliding windows the length of the area over the work counters, which separate kitchen from patio. Biggest structural component between the areas, other than the counters, is a 4x4-inch corner post.

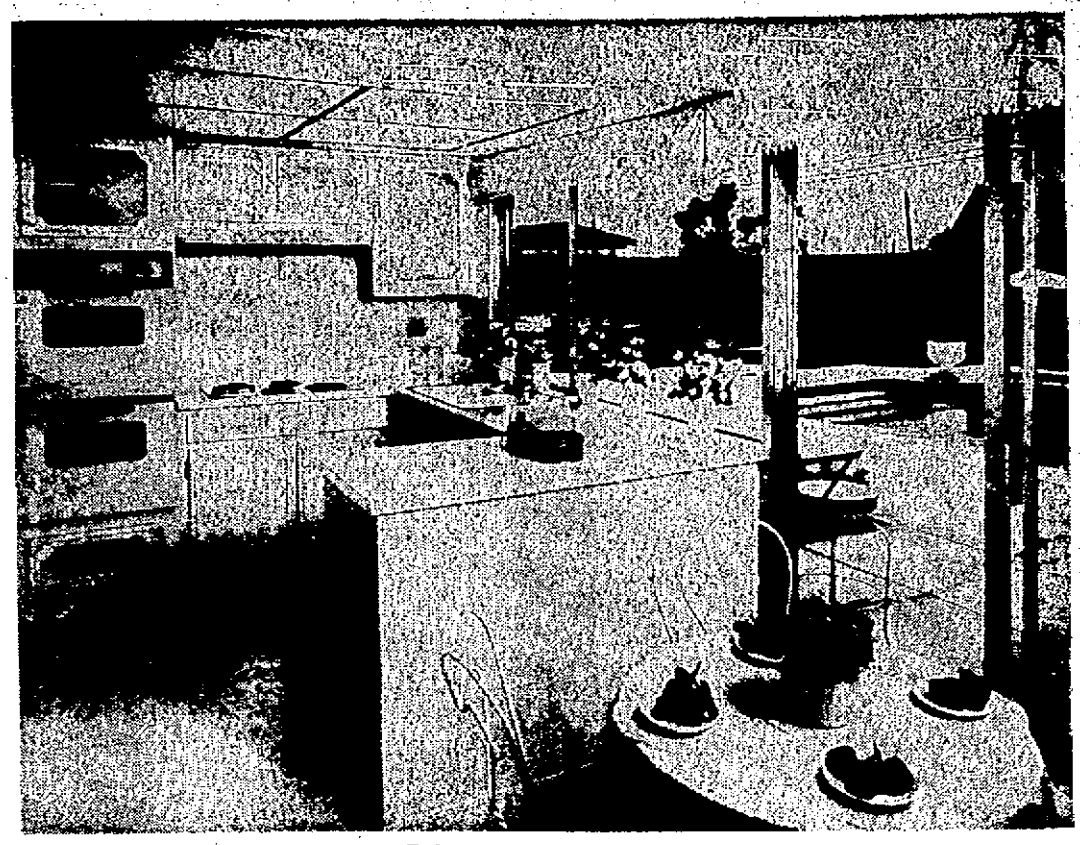

Whether windows are open or closed, the kitchen and patio merge into a visual unity. On the patio side of the window, a wide counter runs along under the window, providing a handy outdoor snack bar.

The Garden Kitchen is no "casual vacation kitchen." Its decor reflects a polished elegance in its color scheme of white and gold.

The one and two-story homes of Pacific Sands Imperial come with three, four and five bedrooms and two and three baths. The variety of 13 exterior designs eliminates "look alikes." Some of the homes feature sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, wet bar and a private front entry court.

Prices at Pacific Sands Imperial range from $18,950 to $27,600, terms 10% down to a 30-year first trust deed.

The private beach community is on Adams between Beach Blvd. and Brookhurst Blvd., next to one of Southern California's finest beaches, offering swimming, surfing and sun bathing.

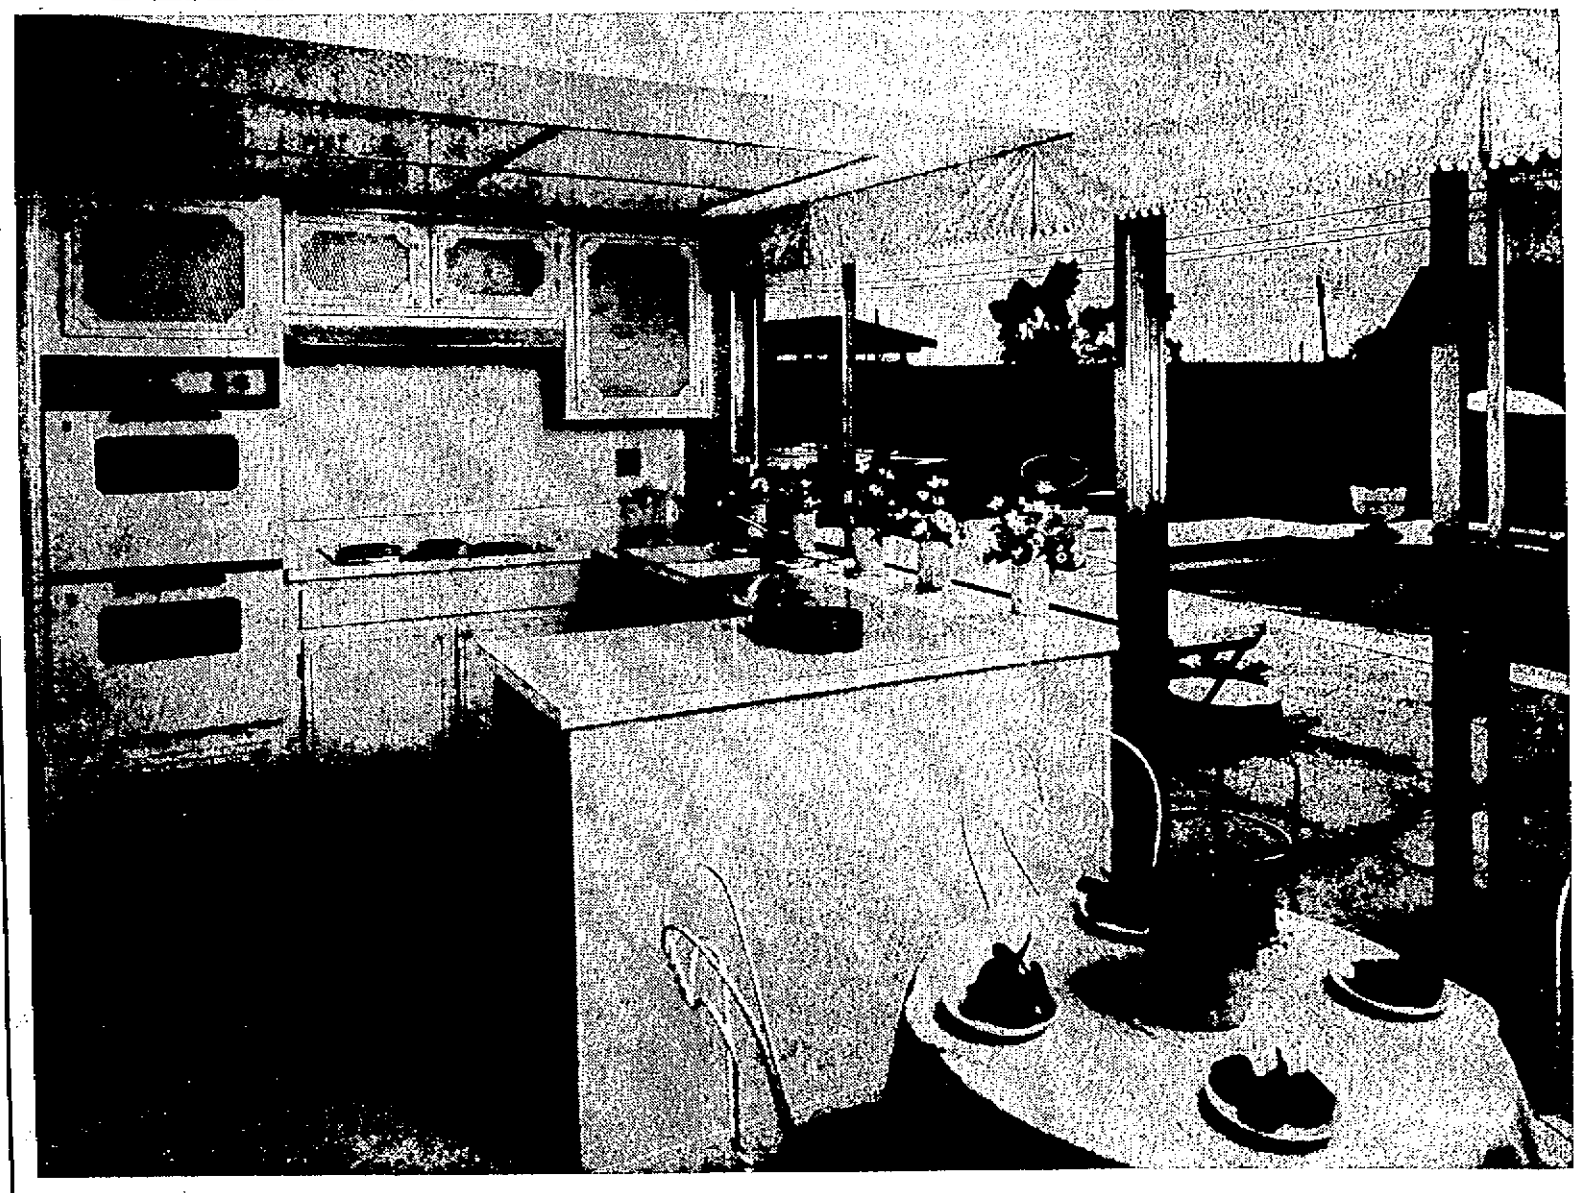

INDOOR-OUTDOOR COMBINATION

This Garden Kitchen was photographed at one of the model houses at Pacific Sands Imperial, private walled-in beach community in Huntington Beach. Swimming pool is an optional feature. Both sliding glass door and sliding window above kitchen counter are open, creating an actual physical unity between kitchen and patio.

Wall-to-wall carpet, landscaping, sprinklers, and big, second-story Bonus Room are all included in payments of less than $160 per month at Del Cerro in Tustin. The Big Del Cerro homes are in eighth unit with terms as low as $690 down. Site is on Red Hill Ave. at First St. in Orange County's choice new home area. Large rooms are featured as shown here.

Two Country Square Locations Now Available for Home Buyers

"Value is the key to home ownership today," reports Theodore C. Bentley, developer of the highly successful Country Square and Country Home Fair homes in Cypress and Diamond Bar.

"With rising land and construction costs, subdividers must provide an incentive to home buyers. We, at Country Square deliver houses at the lowest possible cost per square foot."

Bentley is known to build a big house with all the features of custom houses but by careful management and cost control, the homes are sold at prices and terms that anyone can afford.

* * * *

COUNTRY Square, a truly fine place in which to live, has opened a new development of spacious, custom-quality homes designed especially for gracious, suburban living that fits well into the carefree atmosphere of Southern California homemaking.

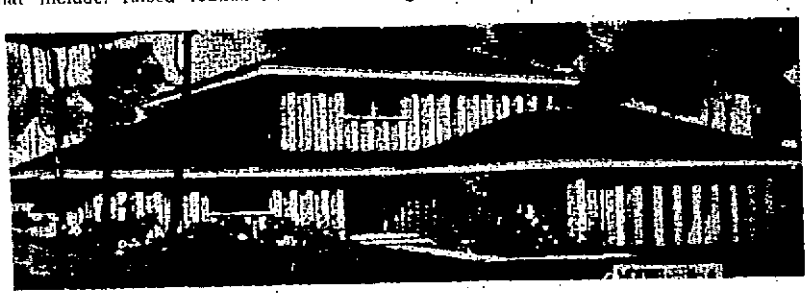

Discriminately located in the heart of Western Orange County, Country Square offers easy access to some of the Southland's most famous recreational facilities such as Knott's Berry Farm, Disneyland and Los Alamitos Race track and Golf Course.

* * * *

AVAILABLE at the Cypress homes are modern luxuries that include: raised foundations, hardwood floors with up to 1800 square feet, and excellent 30 year conventional financing.

Forced air heating, marble top pullmans, sunken living rooms, wood burning fireplaces, built-ins, garbage disposals, dishwashers, walk-in closets, beautiful entries, private balcony — in two-story homes, paneled kitchen cabinets with magnetic locks, laundry area in garage and laundry area in garage and many other surprises.

There are five types of homes from which to choose, according to R. Dickson Miles, exclusive sales agent.

FOR GRACIOUS SUBURBAN LIFE

Country Square and Country Home Fair in Cypress and at the Diamond Bar Ranch offer large homes at a moderate price. This is one of the two-story models at the Theodore C. Bentley developments.

Hansen Appointed

Harold Hansen, of Long Beach, regional director of sales of American General Life Insurance Co., has been named sales coordinator of his firm's agents for the Western Health Insurance Association.

Money Back Guarantee on Home in Del Cerro

Buyers in the eighth and final unit of the Del Cerro homes in Tustin will move in on a "money back guarantee," the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons explained.

Now, the home buyer may occupy a new home, find out the advantages of near by schools and shopping and live with the knowledge that the full down payment will be returned at the end of one year if the home or area is unsatisfactory, the pioneer building firm explained.

* * * *

DEL CERRO homes are priced from $28,950 and are available for as low as 5% down. Monthly payments are less than $160 per month with prices that include wall to wall carpet, built ins, and the second story "Bonus Room."

To reach Del Cerro from the Los Angeles area, take the Santa Ana (San Diego) Freeway South thru Santa Ana to the Red Hill off-ramp in Tustin. Go North on Red Hill Ave. just one mile to the Del Cerro models.

From Long Beach, take Seventh St. straight through to Santa Ana. Just past Main St. in Santa Ana take the San Diego Freeway South. Get off the Freeway at the Red Hill Ave. turn-off. Go North (left) one mile to models.

Membership in the Star Club is based upon outstanding 1963-64 sales records, according to Charles F. Edwards, CLU, regional vice president in Los Angeles.

Seal Beach Leisure World Final Unit Nearing Sellout

MANY ACTIVITIES OFFERED

Shuffleboard courts are popular in the luxury clubhouses of Ross W. Cortese's pilot "people-over-52" community, Rossmoor Leisure World at Seal Beach where the 400-mark was reached last week in the 15th and final mutual of 502 manors. Here, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wenk try their skill at the game. Golf, swimming and lawn-bowling are other sport attractions at the thriving community of nearly 11,000 persons.

Luxury accommodations are nearing sellout point, C. Robert Moon announced.

Moon, vice president of New Horizons, Inc., national sales corporation for Leisure World communities, in making the announcement said that the 400-mark was reached this week. There are only 502 manors contained in the unit being built on the last available land at the popular community of nearly 11,000 residents.

Seal Beach Leisure World is a thriving, self-contained "city" with a giant shopping center, a golf course which is played all day long, three bustling clubhouses and a swimming and therapeutic pool complex.

SHUFFLEBOARD, lawn-bowling, cards, all forms of dancing, adult education courses, the activities of some 84 church groups and social clubs, ceramic and lapidary shops, sewing rooms and wood-working shops — all make Leisure World a place for a happy, active "new way of life" for people over 52 years of age.

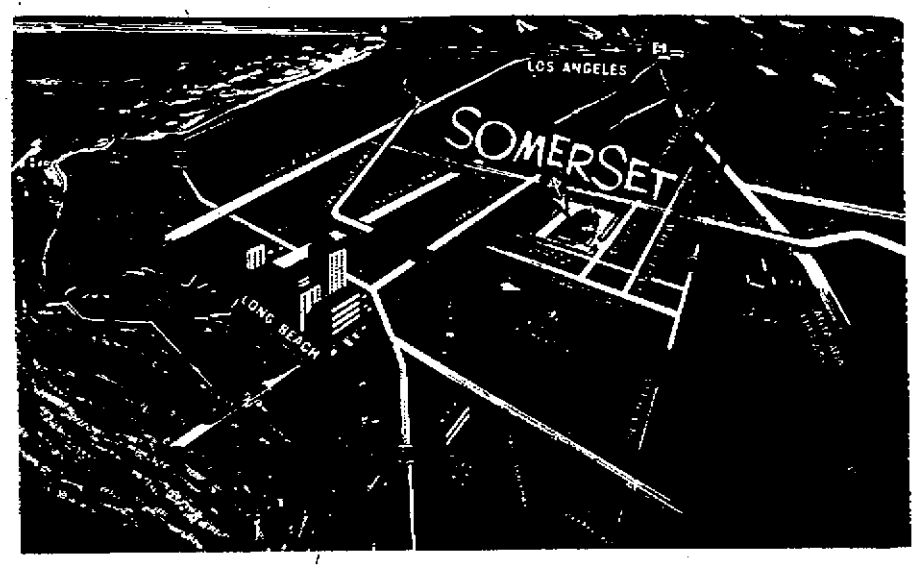

The $710,000 Medical Center is located in the heart of the community. It is adjacent to the 2500-seat amphitheater.

To make full use of the last available land, Unit 15 contains some second-story view manors, the first to be built in the community. Eight luxury styles are available.

ONE-BEDROOM member-ownership manors are priced from $12,595 to $12,995. Two-bedroom Unit 15 manors are priced from $14,395 to $16,495. The average monthly payment is $145, subject to modification. All loans are insured FHA at 5¼% interest.

Leisure World's western boundary is the Long Beach city line at Los Alamitos Boulevard and Garden Grove Boulevard.

Anaheim Showcase Homes Highly Popular With Buyers

HOUSE OF TOMORROW

William Krueger, developer, points with pride at The Futura, one of the many elevations available at Showcase Homes in Anaheim. The progressive architecture and modern planning is responsible for the tremendous sales response according to Frank McFarland, right, of McFarland & Mattocks, sales agents.

McFarland and Mattocks, sales agents for Showcase Homes at 8401 Kingsley St. in Anaheim announced that sales have now passed 2½ milllon.

President Frank McFarland gave coordinatio and training as a big reason for the successful sales record. He stated, "Proper pre-planning, the advantage of the builder and sales force working together from the initial concept towards a quality product coupled with a constant sales training program resulted in the Showcase Homes moving at a phenomenal rate."

In the first four weeks Showcase Homes were on sale, McFarland's sales force sold 97 homes.

McFarland and Mattocks has been established for 12 years. Of the sales force of 35, many have been with the organization since its inception.

* * * *

FRANK McFARLAND believes in staying abreast of the current trend in real estate. To keep their sales force informed M&M has a regular monthly seminar sponsored by Thomas Osborne, president of the Orange Coast College faculty. Osborne is a well known consultant in real estate sales and marketing. He brings in speakers to present various aspects of sales technique to the sales personnel.

"In the field of real estate" states McFarland, "10% of the people make 90% of the money. It is therefore mandatory to stay informed on all matters including financing, construction, sales technique and a thorough knowledge of the product."

Showcase Homes, which may be financed with as little as $495 down, start at $21,950. The furnished models are one mile east of State College Boulevard, just off Lincoln.

Fiberglass Bathtub Receives Approval

A one-piece fiberglass bathtub, manufactured by Superior Laminates Inc. of Orange, has received the general use recommendation of the Western Plumbing Officials Association.

J. S. Ross, vice-president of Superior, said the approved bathtubs each have a three-wall wainscot, made of fiberglass-reinforced polyester resin with gel-coat finish.

'Total Convenience' Kitchen Attraction at Homes

"A woman's work may never be done, but a 'Total Convenience' kitchen at Premier Homes makes it easier." So says Frank McFarland of McFarland and Mattocks Inc., sales agents for Premier Homes in Huntington Beach.

"Total Convenience" kitchens are the ultimate in completeness, according to realtor McFarland. Every modern essential and luxury is built in and included in the sales price. Premier's "Total Convenience" begins with independently controlled double ovens. The homemaker may bake in one oven while broiling in the other.

Electric range, disposer, range-hood and dishwasher are also included in the Premier Homes kitchen package. All the built-in appliances are from a nationally-known manufacturer. Custom-finished hardwood cabinets and ceramic tile counter tops are designed to provide for two of today's main home-buyer preferences.

* * * *

McFARLAND said that buyer research had strongly indicated a desire for even more built-in items in the modern home. At Premier Homes, the "Total Convenience" approach provides a surface-mounted food preparation center, complete with built-in mixer, blender and knife sharpener.

Premier Homes are offered in three and four bedroom, two bath models, all with a family room. Prices start at $23,400. Premier Homes offer VA no down and FHA minimum down terms and 29 and 35-year loans are available. There are no second trust deeds.

Visitors to Premier Homes take the San Diego Freeway to its terminus at Bolsa Chica Road. Drive south on Bolsa Chica to Warner, and turn left on Warner to Premier Homes model showcase. Visitors taking the Santa Ana Freeway turn off on Beach Boulevard (Hwy 39) and drive south to Warner, turning right to Warner to Premier Homes.

BOOST PREMIER HOMES

Builder William Rousey, right, looks on as sales agent Frank H. McFarland checks off the "4 Ways Better" formula for Premier Homes in Huntington Beach. "4 Ways Better" applies to kitchens, construction, custom extras and pricing. Three and 4-bedroom Premier Homes are priced from $23,400.

Take Note of 'People of Note'

By ELISE EMERY

Curtain-raiser for Long Beach Symphony's 1964-65 season will be a "Season in Miniature" dinner next Sunday evening, Nov. 1, at the Elks Club.

The event, sponsored by Long Beach Symphony Association and the Symphony Guild, will honor conductor Lauris Jones and guest artists for the coming concerts.

At a recent meeting of representatives of the sponsoring groups in the Herman H. Ridder home, Sue McDonald, manager of the orchestra, said, "This will be a light-hearted preview of the season and as many of the guests artists as possible will be there.

"The pubic is invited—in fact, URGED—to attend.

"Although the dinner will be a jolly occasion, we want it to be more than that. It is the first announcement of our season, the most ambitious we have ever attempted, and we hope that the 'Season in Miniature' preview will stimulate so much interest that everyone attending will rush to buy tickets and to induce their friends and relations to do so. It is an unbelievably good season, especially for piano fans."

MRS. McDONALD'S enthusiasm is shared by Mottell D. Peck, president of Long Beach Symphony Association, and Mrs. Robert Westmyer, president of Symphony Guild.

At the dinner, Mayor Edwin W. Wade will introduce city and county dignitaries. Members and leaders of music, art and drama groups have been invited, and violinist Camilla Wicks who will be guest artist for the season's first concert, will attend with her husband.

Pat Brown of Magnolia Theater will introduce "People of Note" from the orchestra personnel, who will respond with musical notes of their own.

Representing the string concerts, Alayne Armstrong, cellist, will play "The Swan" from "Carnival of Animals" by Saint-Saens, and Craig Nies, winner of last year's Student Musicians Competition, will play as a reminder of the Furjanick Award concert.

OTHERS also will be spotlighted on the dinner program. Mrs. Kirby Wharton, vice president of Hurok Concerts, will speak informally about duo pianists Luboshutz and Nemenoff, who will appear here in April; Dallas Keller, soloist from the Mormon Choir, will present a group of songs; Harriett Wood and Barbara Moore will play a harp and flute duo by Mozart to emphasize the all-orchestra concert which will climax

Crocs 'n Snakes Rock Fashion World--AND

They're in a Flap Over Elephant Ears

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

If you take the fine leather we're having with even a grain of nonchalance, you haven't met Arthur Edelman, wife Teddy and their co-traveler, Noah the Boa.

Once you've exchanged a few words with the Edelmans (and a hiss or two with Noah), you fast know a thing or two about the hides—and the seek—that make today's leather industry one of the most exciting in New York's fashion jungle.

In California the past three days to make a series of personal appearances at May Co. stores, this effervescent team is known throughout the fashion world for unique and revolutionary innovations in leather design.

Winners of the National Shoe Retailers Mercury Award and the Coty American Fashion Critics Award, they currently are rocking the style world with sensational crocodiles and reptiles, lizards and cobras—all artfully turned into colors so vibrant and startling they'd shock a chameleon.

What's more, the pace-setting Edelmans are putting everybody in a flap over elephant ear skin, a pebbly-surfaced leather that comes straight from (where else?) an elephant's ear.

"WE THINK THIS new skin will be trumpeted all over the fashion world," predicted Edelman, a hunk of gregarious manhood (6-feet-6) who could charm a snake—and does.

"Snake is the greatest fashion story afoot this season," Edelman continued, whereupon he introduced Noah, a writhing 10-foot boa constrictor (very much alive) who proves to be quite a conversation piece wherever he goes.

And where he goes is almost everywhere with the globe-trotting Edelmans, who take him along to prove "that snake IS, indeed, making fashion hiss-tory."

Noah, we're told, is an expert traveler. Edelman carries him in an inconspicuous muslin sack. "When we travel he just curls up at my feet and goes to sleep. Of course, if fellow travelers knew what was in the sack, the shrieks would probably wake him up."

EDELMAN believes consumers are more geared for fashion excitement and individuality than are the manufacturers.

"American women have given up yesteryear's cookie-cutter sameness. They want individuality in their clothes—and they're willing to pay for it."

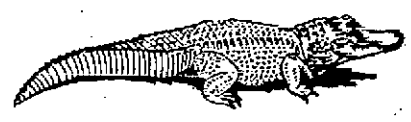

"To meet the demand, we need at least 800,000 cobra skins—and more manufacturers who'll give women the fashion excitement they're clamoring for."

Meanwhile, the Edelmans keep on beating the bushes of the Amazon country, of Africa, Argentina, India and the swamps of Florida and Louisiana ("our best alligator skins come from the USA") to keep pace with the nation's rising demand for quality and exotic leathers.

During these trips, Noah minds the lobby of the Edelmans' offices—Fleming-Joffe Ltd. in New York City—where the floors are suede and the walls are leather (or is it vice versa?)

Besides Noah, the Edelmans have five children (ages 2 to 12), four horses, a llama, a poodle named George and hordes of guinea pigs.

About the snakes: "They're just to keep us inspired," the couple jested as they departed—probably on another safari to find some undiscovered beauty that's only skin deep.

THE LEATHER-LOVIN' Edelmans — Teddy and Arthur—snapped at May Co. safari press luncheon. Thigh-high boot, fashioned of Edelman-tanned leather and designed by Paris couturier Roger Vivier, was purchased by Liz Taylor and a duchess or two, says 6-foot-6 Edelman.

People Are on the Move—Hawaii to Milan

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

BACK AT the "old homestead" at Sixth and Pine and wondering where all the time went during a really marvelous wandering-around-Hawaii vacation.

We (spouse, Norman, and myself) flew over and returned aboard the Lurline—a luxurious way to float if ever there was one and, in my opinion, a wonderful way to return to home port without the too great shock of suddenly being in Oahu and then, quick as jet time, on the mainland.

What did we like best? Hard to say, there was so much to enjoy. Meeting people from all around the world at Waikiki, there on vacations or business stopovers, was stimulating. Taking flights to Kauaii, Maui and Hawaii and sightseeing like good, old fashioned tourists should, was great. Loved stay at Coco Palms on Kauii where Polynesia as you dream about it really comes true—in fact entire island; Maui was least favorite although it certainly has its points; Hawaii was great, from Hilo around to the Kona Coast where we stayed at Kona Inn, a delightful place.

Kept running into Long Beach people. At the Naniloa in Hilo we were rounding hotel corridor and bumped right into Wilbur Snively. Saw the Dickies, Charles and Virginia, as paths crossed in Honolulu (they were on delayed 25th wedding anniversary trip) and had completely unexpected encounters with Ida and Herb Beuhler at the new Outrigger Canoe Club and with Virginia and Morgan Stivers and Ethel and Kenyon Wells.

We rendezvoused with Norm's brother and wife, Mel and Middy, briefly in Honolulu and later in Maui and traveled on together to Hawaii. We took rent-a-cars every place and were free as birds to stay as long—or move as fast—as we liked. All told—smashing good time.

When you go, allow time to take the boat at least one way. It's super cruising.

ALWAYS PART of the scenery that makes Hawaii so attractive is seen below at Kalapaki Beach in front of Kauai Surf Hotel, Kauaii.

Hawaii's many attractions offer great variety.

NOTES AND memos have stacked up on my desk sky high (well, ceiling high, anyway) during absence so will try and make use of what I can of doings, comings and goings of people.

Learned, for instance, that whilst I was enjoying Polynesia Muriel Trostle was on a scouting mission in New England, enjoying the autumn foliage but not the chilly rain. She decided to remodel her kitchen in keeping with the rest of the house which is Colonial Cape Cod. So husband, Bud, agreed to baby sit and sent her off to study, in person, the antique paneling and Colonial kitchens. In Nantucket a must was visiting the whaling museum. An ancestor of Bud's, one Christopher Hussey, was the first whaler there and his portrait hangs in the museum. While East Muriel (what woman wouldn't?) saved time for a shopping spree in New York and a visit to Washington, D.C.

"LOVED IT all," say Helen and Frank Reagan of their long, lovely cruise aboard the Mariposa to the islands of the Pacific (Tahiti, Bora Bora, etc.), on to New Zealand and Australia and then to Hawaii. Here they "jumped ship" to enjoy more of Honolulu and flew home all too few days ago to suit them.

WITH CAMERA at the ready—and ready to use it at the drop of a scenic view around any bend in the road—Ray and Dolores Stricklin toured the back country of the Monument Valley region, Grand Canyon and Oak Creek Canyon — all thrilling areas for photographic enthusiasts. They returned, with visits to Mesa Verde area and Bryce Canyon tucked into their travel tour as well.

FUNNY THING that the Scripps College alums and husbands didn't mind the near 100 degree temperatures in Phoenix at all during annual informal reunion at Camelback Inn. But this week here, they, like rest of us natives, grumbled and mumbled about the weather. On trek were Betty and Joe Kesler, Hildreth and Walter Von Kleinsmid, Marcella and Russ Maurer and Jo and Dr. "Orv" Hastings. Helping them enjoy Arizona's warm hospitality—the pool, the pitch and putt golf course and being lazy as they liked.

FRESH BACK in the U. S., meaning as fresh as the oils she mixes on her palette, is well known artist Lucille Brown Greene, who spent the summer in Italy teaching art. She is in New York, where she plans to take a studio with room enough to swing a brush. She'll remain there until February before returning to teaching duties at Santa Monica City College. Lucille sold her home in Long Beach; hasn't decided where she'll settle on return.

AFTER SEEING the neighborhood all over Europe, Alice Neighbors is again mingling with neighbors here. She returned Sunday after a five-week holiday that took her to Denmark (flew SAS to Copenhagen), Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Austria and France (flew back Air France from gay Paree). She visited Lil and Col. Bill Haycock, now stationed in Heidelberg, and together they drove the autobahn to Berchtesgaden. For the Haycocks' many friends here, Alice reports they are just as full of fun as ever. They'll be transferred back to U. S. next June so cross fingers and hope Uncle will send them here.

ONE THING Laurel and Rolland Truman's baby daughter, Trina Maureen, an October arrivee, will never lack for is competent legal and medical advice. Mama is known professionally as Laurel A. THE DESERT season is off and sunning. Among localites at Shadow Mountain Club for opening festivities were Nancy and Bill Brooks, Hart and Rufus Davis and Myrtle and Harry Hackmeister. For the sojourn they all stayed at the Harts' place at the Sand Piper. Enthused as always about the desert, Nancy and Bill leased a place for the winter at Shadow Mountain on the first fairway of the golf course with terrific view of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

SIXTY DOLLARS A COURSE

. . . And Worth the Price!

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—To get to the name-dropping at once . . . the handsome, engraved invitation with the famous gold seal said:

The President and Mrs. Johnson request the pleasure of the company of
Mr. and Mrs. Pett
at dinner
on Monday, October 5, 1964
at eight o'clock

There were other cards enclosed, specifying black tie, noting that the dinner was in honor of the President of the Philippines and Mrs. Macapagal, suggesting we respond to the social secretary at our earliest convenience and, on arrival, directing us to present a blue and white card at the southwest gate of the White House—a card which said in rather firm letters "not transferable."

One's first reaction to such mail is that it must be a gag. Then, having established that it isn't, one gets terribly excited, one tries to hide the excitement under a blanket of blase banter (e.g., "I don't think I can make it Monday; that's my bowling night."), one finds every opportunity at the office, on the train, on the phone, in the street, on the golf course and at neighborhood crabgrass seminars to steer the conversation around to Monday night. And, exorably, one's wife starts spending money as if one had just been elected—not invited—to the White House in a landslide that found a grateful Congress doubling the presidential salary.

At the office, the reactions to my casually persistent display of the dinner invitation were mixed. The secretaries squealed. The boys made jokes:

"Does that mean you have to have them over?"

"If it's a bottle party, don't bring your Old Gurgleheimer."

"Don't tip the waiter. He may be a Secret Service man."

INVITATION in hand, I called my mother, my father, my brothers, cousins who couldn't remember my name and, of course, my collegiate daughters who became so excited they forgot to ask for anything. My mother's reaction was singular; she seemed to have trouble understanding that it would not be just the Johnsons and the Petts sitting down to an intimate dinner.

Meanwhile, my wife was shopping. Would you believe it, she found a patriotic merchant who sold her a long gown for "only" $140 and the prescribed 16-button length white kid gloves for $35? What with shoes, accessories, travel and hotel expenses, it was already clear that this dinner would cost us about $60 a course. It was worth it.

We arrived at the southwest gate in a procession of long black cars (I had selected a yellow cab to set off my wife's turquoise dress). Showing our ticket, we were directed to drive around the oval drive along which the President frequently holds his walking news conferences.

Our coats were taken by maids in the beautiful ground floor Diplomatic Reception Room, the one Jacqueline Kennedy had covered with striking wallpaper of early American scenes. We were directed up a marble staircase to the first floor lobby, where the first in a procession of nine-foot military officers in white dress jackets took over. He escorted my wife, with me trailing behind somewhat vaguely, past the Marine Corps Orchestra in their scarlet tunics, down the corridors to the elegant East Room. Here, another nine-foot officer startled me by announcing us. At such moments, one wishes desperately one had a longer, more elegant name preceded by at least the rank of group commander.

THE EAST ROOM, like the rest of the wondrous house this night, was warm with light, with sparkling chandeliers, fresh flowers, gay guests and music. A waiter materialized quickly with a varied tray of drinks and, at a silent command from Mrs. Pett, Mr. Pett passed over the martinis in favor of dry sherry. (By the Pett infallible scientific measuring service, there proved to be time for two and a half drinks during the cocktail hour.)

Sherry in hand, we wandered through the rooms. In the lovely, rich Red Room, we noticed a Monet presented "in loving memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy by his family." In the Green Room, Mrs. Pett wouldn't let Mr. Pett sit on Daniel Webster's sofa. It took great effort to win her permission to use the ash trays.

Back in the East Room, we were asked to form a receiving line along the wall. Then, suddenly, that moment of magic when an officer announced "the President of the United States," and they played "Hail to the Chief," and Mr. Johnson walked in with Mrs. Johnson and their guests. As we waited our turn in the receiving line, the Johnson daughters, Lynda and Luci, came by and introduced themselves, with a quiet, disarming straight-forwardness, and their teen-age guest, Gloria Macapagal, the daughter of the Philippine President.

As we waited, the woman ahead of me asked her husband, "how do you pronounce Macapagal after a martini?" When our turn came, an officer announced our name and again I wished we had a longer one with at least the rank of sergeant major. But the introduction went off smoothly and the Johnsons and the Macapagals were warmly cordial as they greeted the untitled, one-syllable Petts.

* * * *

FROM THE receiving line, we passed down the corridor to the State Dining Room. Because of the long guest list, 206 in all, (don't tell mom) that room and the Blue Room were used for dinner with tables of Ten. Luckily, we had President Johnson with us in the State Dining Room, where, under the Healy portrait of Lincoln, he sat with Mrs. Macapagal, Dean Rusk, Jim Farley and others. Mrs. Johnson had Mr. Macapagal at her table in the Blue Room. At her table, Mrs. Pett had former Gov. Robert Meyner of New Jersey, cartoonist Bill Mauldin and several Texans. At his table, Mr. Pett charmed Mrs. Meyner, Mrs. Mauldin, one Puerto Rican business man and several State Department people.

One thing I noticed at once. Few people used the handsome white match books with the words "The President's House" on them. The trick was to appear casual about slipping them into your pocket as a souvenir along with the engraved menu bearing the Presidential Seal.

Dinner, of course, was first class: vol au vent of seafood Newberg accompanied by Krug Johannisberg reisling; roast ribs of beef and Yorkshire pudding with Beaulieu Beaumont pinot noir; green salad and mousse of roquefort and glace Macapagal.

Without introduction, President Johnson rose to salute American friendship for the Philippines and its president. From the Blue Room, via a public address system, President Macapagal toasted President Johnson. It was, all agreed, quite charming.

After dinner, we were served demi tasse and liqueurs wherever we happened to be, in the corridors or other rooms. Then back to the East Room, one third of which was occupied by a stage for a performance by the Harkness Ballet. Just before the performance, Lynda Johnson came in to kiss her parents good night and to apologize to their guests for leaving. She was getting up early the next morning for the start of her mother's whistlestop tour.

* * * *

ON LEAVING, Lynda asked her mother, "will you wake me tomorrow morning?" Her mother's answer was inaudible to the straining ears of the Petts, but then the daughter said, "If you don't, how will I get up?" The problem, as far as could be discerned by the Pett intelligence service, seemed to be left hanging there as Lynda Johnson made her farewells and Mr. Pett, the big spender from Long Island, quietly vowed to send her an alarm clock for Christmas.

Shortly after midnight, the Johnsons went up, leaving unanswered a question which had been troubling the Petts: Does one thank the President and First Lady for a lovely evening? About 20 minutes later, we left, out the North Portico, along the graceful curving drive leading under the elms to Pennsylvania Avenue.

Sinking back in her cab, Mrs. Petts observed, "They seem like such nice people."

"I think we ought to get out of our social rut and see more of them," said her husband.

Auxiliary to Honor President

A reception and luncheon honoring Mrs. Lyle F. Murphy of Long Beach, president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the California Medical Association, will be held at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Cocoanut Grove at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Murphy is a member of Southeast District 10 of the auxiliary which she served as president in 1953-54. She was president of Los Angeles County Medical Auxiliary 1958-59.

Featured speaker for the day will be Nicholas P. Dallis, M. D., author of the cartoon strips "Rex Morgan, M. D.," "Judge Parker" and "Apartment 3-G." His topic will be "The Image of the Doctor." Dr. Kallis resides in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Records for Records

The record industry has produced nearly 1,000 long-playing records containing serious compositions by more than 250 American composers, almost 5,000 jazz albums; more than 100 long-playing records of performances by original casts of hit musicals and revues on and off Broadway, as well as background music from dozens of motion pictures. All this is in addition to the hundreds of albums devoted to American folk, country and western music and the thousands of records of current popular music.

Wigs, Chigs, Hairpieces and Postiches

And Now--Wash 'n' Wear Hair!

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Get set, ladies, for a big to-do about a new synthetic fiber designed to solve most hairdo bugaboos.

It comes in hairpieces and postitches, wigs and chigs (that's what they call chignons in the trade) all currently heady news at The Broadway.

This "better than hair" fiber is four times stronger than the variety you grow yourself and is 10 times more manageable.

It can be washed out in a light detergent, won't mat or tangle and looks so much like hair you can't tell which twin has the phony.

A SWITCH in Hairdos

HAIR UP TONIGHT, down tomorrow . . . that's the quick-change artistry that takes a fashion-conscious lady around the world, around the clock. Above, the top-knot chignon, a perfect foil for formal evenings . . . right, the pony tail look for exotically casual evenings at home . . . just two of many hairdos possible with Reid & Meredith's "living chignon." Available at Broadway Stores.

After a Fashion

THE FIBER is called D-40, which doesn't mean much to fashion-conscious femmes, and has a formula as long as your arm, which does mean a lot to the quality of the new product.

The idea started with that world-famous California swimsuit designer Rose Marie Reid, who's worked with synthetics a long time, and son Bruce Reid, a market analyst who'd been dealing mostly with aircraft.

Now he's head over heels in "hair-craft," turning out synthetic tresses with the help of partner Garry Meredith and Union Carbide, which developed the fiber.

Together they have set out to solve, one by one, all the hair problems women flip over. His instincts being for things practical, young Reid felt that the synthetics, when fashioned into wigs, should be more manageable than a woman's own hair and easier to care for than a real hair wig. "Why put something difficult to handle back on their heads?" he asked sensibly.

Further, he told his mother that to be economically profitable, wigs should be made of stuff that comes by the yard, like the fluffy bathroom rug upstairs.

And that's exactly how the wig component is being manufactured, at break-neck speed, in a plant in New England.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, here in Long Beach, a young stylist from New York named Bruce Keller and his assistant are turning a lot of heads with their new synthetic dos at the Broadway's Los Altos store.

Keller mixes and matches switches that exactly tone into a customer's own tresses (red hair is the most difficult to match, he says), while his assistant cuts and styles wigs that are ready and set to go in jig time.

"This new fiber is the answer for the woman who's coif collapses on a rainy day (it's unaffected by dampness), whose hairdo is gone with the wind or a swim, who's schedule sometimes gets too busy to squeeze in a hair appointment," said Keller.

The wigs are permanently curled, come in 20 popular colors, require only do-it-yourself care, can be washed and dried like a pair of hose and flipped into a variety of hair styles.

Woven into a stretch cap, the man-made hair won't fall out and is light as air (full wig weighs only two ounces).

Furthermore, a boon to ladies on the go, they can be turned wrong side out and tossed in handbag or suitcase. And for any world-traveler or stay-at-hometowner, that's going some!

WIGS FOR HAIR STYLES In a Hurry

NEW BEAUTY IS yours in minutes with R&M's revolutionary "better than hair" wigs. Permanently curled, they require no set, no rollers, no pin ups. Available in 20 popular shades, new fiber sets pace for hairdos that are wash 'n' wear, can be toted in handbag or suitcase, won't collapse in rain or fade in suds or sun. With more density, more body, more luster than human hair, wigs can be whisked into variety of coifs by do-it-yourself hair stylists. Styles shown here were demonstrated at The Broadway, Los Altos.

Mrs. Richard A. Jordan

Mrs. Allan R. Cooper

Mrs. Jack Leroy Hawker

Newlywed Jordans, Coopers, Hawkers Honeymooning After Church Rites

Jordan-Shinar

In a gown of peau de soie and tiered Chantilly lace, with applique trim of sequins and seed pearls, Barbara Anne Shinar exchanged wedding vows with Richard Allan Jordan in St. Joseph Catholic Church during a 10 a.m. ceremony Saturday.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Shinar, wore a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones and for her flowers carried stephanotis and white roses. Her cousin, Miss Bernadette Lisecki of Huntington Station, New York, was maid of honor.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jordan. His brother-in-law, Warren Mittura of Concord, was best man and ushering the 200 guests to their places were Jerome Shinar and Jerry Schierer.

A graduate of St. Anthony's High, the bride is now attending Long Beach City College as a nursing student. Her husband is a graduate of Lakewood High and LBCC. She is a member of Newman Club, Iota Chi at LBCC and of the Student Nurses Association of California. He belonged to Newman Club at LBCC and is also affiliated with Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Naval League.

Following a honeymoon in Northern California the couple will reside in Long Beach.

Cooper-Vandemoortel

Two hundred guests attended the Saturday afternoon wedding of Louise Marie Vandemoortel and Allan Ralph Cooper at St. Cornelius Catholic Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Vandemoortel of Long Beach, Mrs. Neil Cooper of San Bernardino and the late Mr. Cooper.

The bride chose a formal gown of satin backed crepe with a bell skirt and chapel train. Her illusion veil was held by a large white rose.

Members of the bridal party included Judith Vandemoortel, maid of honor; Richard Blanchard, best man; Cynthia Russell, Mary Ann Vandemoortel, Quinten Wight and Clifford Klave.

The new Mrs. Cooper graduated from Millikan High School. Her husband attended Santa Monica City College.

On their return from a wedding trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will reside in Santa Monica.

Hawker-Singleton

St. John's Lutheran Church was the setting for the Friday night marriage of DeVonna Kay Singleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Singleton and Jack Leray Hawker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hawker.

The bride wore a floor length satin gown with lace applique. Her veil fell from a crown of pearls. Mrs. Richard Richardson was her matron of honor. Daryl Platt served the bridegroom as best man.

Other members of the bridal entourage included Judy Krogh, Mrs. Virgil Schmidt, Ron Watkins and Harold Dial.

The couple graduated from Jordan High School. They will reside in Bellflower on their return from a wedding trip.

Experts Can Err, Too

Every bridge player has an occasional blind spot. The most famous case is that of a great expert who was playing a seven spade contract with nine trumps to the ace-queen-ten. Dummy (North) held three to the jack. He went over to dummy and led the jack. East showed out, and our hero promptly conceded down one, and complained about the bad breaks.

Today's South also had an expensive blind spot in the play of the hand. He won the heart lead with the ace. He drew trumps with two leads, stopping in his own hand, and led his singleton diamond toward dummy.

West produced a low diamond. South moaned, groaned and muttered to himself along these lines, "Decisions, decisions, decisions. Any lead but a heart, and I would have no problems."

Then, he looked at East, West and the ceiling for awhile and finally played dummy's nine of diamonds. East played the king and led a heart and another slam had gone to never-never land.

* * *

WHAT was South's blind spot? The hand was a lay down, irrespective of who held the minor suit kinds. South should have gone up with dummy's ace and continued the suit. If East played the king, South would ruff; if East played low he would discard his losing heart.

The Powers of Fashion--AND

An Out-of-Style Show

Fashions through the centuries—from the age of bloomers to the era of bikinis—will sweep down the ramp at Petroleum Club Wives fashion show luncheon on Nov. 4 at the Petroleum Club.

It'll be a John Robert Powers production and though some of the styles will be dated (everything from Gibson Girl to World War II canteen cutie dress), the event will be anything but old hat.

For example, the show's director, make-up expert William Fitzgerald, will demonstrate the latest cosmetic tricks—using a subject from the audience.

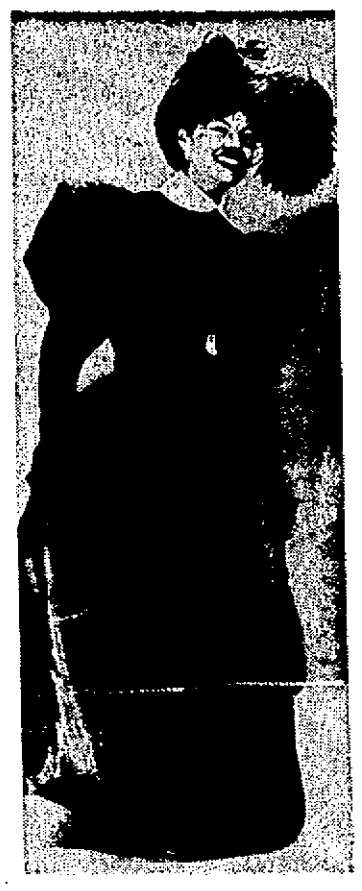

INCLUDED in the John Roberts Powers entourage will be top-flight mannequins (there are 15 authentic costume changes), makeup artists, hairstylists and wardrobe experts.

Also, there will be door prizes: a money tree, a Mr. James hat.

Mrs. Robert Ziebarth, chairman of the event, is being assisted by Mmes. Harold Beach, Stanley Hamilton, John Messerschmitt, Joseph Vasentine, Earl Sechrest and William Benoist.

Tickets are available from club members.

RACQUETY ANNE, circa 1918, will score a style hit at Petroleum Club Wives fashion show.

Past chairmen of Group X will assist the hostess.

WHY GROW OLD?

You'll Awaken 5 Pounds Lighter in Just a Week

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How would you like it if you could go to sleep tonight and wake up a week from now five pounds slimmer? Well, you can't do it quite that way but you CAN do it almost as pleasantly, as those of you who have been following my Trick and Treat Diet this week know.

So many women who are not very much overweight are likely to allow from 5 to 8 pounds to spoil an otherwise pretty silhouette.

Here are the menus for tomorrow.

MENUS FOR SUNDAY

BREAKFAST

One-half grapefruit, one teaspoon sugar
One slice toast, very lightly buttered
Two slices crisp bacon
Coffee, one teaspoon sugar

DINNER

Consomme with parsley
Celery and carrot sticks
One-half medium broiler (one to one-half pound chicken or one good slice roasted chicken)
One medium baked potato seasoned with salt and parsley
One-half cup cole slaw
Peaches, two halves, one tablespoon syrup

SUPPER

Egg omelet (with one teaspoon butter)
Eight ounces skim milk
Three saltines

Some of you may have missed the diet this week or missed a day or two. If those day's newspapers are missing, I will be glad to send you the complete diet in booklet form. If you would like to have it send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Sidelined Soon Enough

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a college instructor. He's wonderful in almost every respect, but he's a nut on sports. He's 27 and I'm 26. He was raised on a farm and his dad never let him go out for sports in school because farm chores came first. He's on two softball teams, and when he isn't playing, he's practicing. When softball season is over, it's football. After football, it's basketball. (He plays golf in between, and he's good at everything.) He likes hockey, too. Don't tell me to find myself something to do. We have two boys. One is two years old and the other is three months. I try to be a good kid and go to watch husband whenever he plays. I sat in the bleachers at a hockey game when I was a week overdue with my second, and chased my 18-month-old all over the gym.

Abby

Someone called my husband to be on a bowling team and I overheard him say, "My wife is unreasonable when it comes to sports!" I ask you . . . WHO is unreasonable?—SPORTS WIDOW

DEAR SPORTS: Your husband! Be patient. Time will sideline him soon enough, and then he'll learn you're the best sport he has.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see your apology for lambasting the clergyman for asking the bride if she were pregnant when she and her fiance came to him to discuss their marriage plans. This is a standard question now, and I am sure the clergyman meant no personal offense. If a priest learns that the only reason a couple is getting married is to give a child a name, he will recommend a civil ceremony rather than a religious one.—INFORMED

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: You disappointed me when you "begged forgiveness" for criticizing the clergyman for asking the bride if she were pregnant.

If a clergyman had asked ME such a question in the presence of my fiance, my fiance would have asked him to take his collar off and step outside. When an innocent person is accused of shoplifting, and is subjected to the humiliation of a search, he has a case against the store, you know. I am not a thief, and no one has the right to ask me to prove that I didn't steal something. The principle is the same.—ST. LOUIS WOMAN

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have been kissed quite a lot. My problem is when a fellow kisses me for the first time, should I pretend I don't know how to kiss very well, or should I let him know that I do?

I don't want him to think I have had too much experience along this line, and then again, I don't want him to think I haven't had any. Can you help me?—SIXTEEN

DEAR SIXTEEN: Just do what comes naturally. But don't overwhelm him in the first act or you'll have nothing for an encore.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: A psychiatrist once told me that a man who beats his wife was probably beaten by his mother (or a female figure of authority) when he was a child. If more mothers knew this they wouldn't be so quick to hit their sons.—EX WIFE-BEATER

His Hat's Off to Crown With Kumquats

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

Chef of the Week

Those who know him best cite his two most outstanding characteristics:

One, he's just plain ebullient when it comes to travel. Two, he has always wanted to be an admiral, hence his devoted activity in the Navy League. Presently he's on the executive board.

Vocation-wise, today's Chef of the Week B. Jerome Young is vice president-manager of the Bank of America, Third at Long Beach Boulevard branch.

Young was born in Evansville, Ind., but accompanied his family to Long Beach at the age of two. Their home and environs, at Fourth and Linden, accommodated a corn field, some cows and a few chickens. It was before the days of the breakwater, too, and he and his brother, "Chef" Vaile G. (Bud) Young, could enjoy breakers 18 feet high.

Their dad had a furniture store on Broadway, the present site of the California Bank.

* * * *

YOUNG LEFT his mark at Long Beach schools, which included the Daisy Avenue, the Atlantic Avenue, Carroll Park and Poly High, before enrolling at U.C., Berkeley. He majored in money-and-banking at its College of Commerce.

Upon graduation, his dad took him by the hand and introduced him to a banker. He got the message and has stayed-put ever since. He started as a messenger with the old Bank of Italy, which later became Bank of America.

After mastering the jobs of bookkeeper and teller, he was sent to manage the Bank America at Cherry and Anaheim, in 1933. In 1949, he was promoted to his present position.

* * * *

A MEMBER of the Long Beach Rotary Club, Young belongs to the Signal Lodge of Masons and is a Knight Templar. He also serves as secretary of the Community Rehabilitation Board.

"B.J." and his wife, Doris, have two sons, "B.J. Jr." who is in the insurance business, and Gilbert, a member of the Space & Research Department of North American.

Fishing and gardening do rate some of his attention—that is, when he can be torn away from the travel folders. Having just returned from a trip to Europe, he's now perusing the "Down Under" literature.

The fact that he's hatless, really doesn't indicate that he is not a serious cook. (Who would dare don a chef's cap when up a kumquat tree?) He grows 'em, and has included them as a garnish for his Crown Roast of Lamb.

DOUBLE CROWN ROAST OF LAMB

This is actually two lamb rib sections, consisting of 14 ribs, sewed together. It weighs about 4 to 6 pounds, and provides 7 servings (each the equivalent of a double lamb chop) with no leftovers. Have your meat dealer cut meat back from ends of ribs and cut off back bone.

We basted this roast with a spicy orange sauce as it cooked, and just before serving heaped an Indian rice pilaf into its center. The rib ends are decorated with preserved kumquats; fresh fruit and more kumquats garnish the serving plate.

To cook the meat, arrange crown on a rack in an open pan. Insert a meat thermometer into the thickest part of meat. Cover ends of ribs with foil to protect them from burning. To hold roast in shape, set a small heatproof bowl in its center. Put into a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) and roast for 2½ to 3 hours, or until the meat thermometer registers the degree of doneness you like—about 170 degrees for medium, 182 degrees for well done. During the last hour of roasting, baste several times with this orange sauce: Heat together 1 cup orange juice, ¼ cup finely chopped chutney, ½ teaspoon curry powder, and 1 stick cinnamon; simmer 10 minutes.

Rice Pilaf, Indienne. Melt ½ cube (¼ cup) butter or margarine in a heavy 2-quart pan; saute 1 large onion (finely chopped) until golden. Add 2 cups rice and continue cooking, stirring often, until lightly browned. Add 6 cups boiling chicken stock and these spices tied in a cheesecloth bag: 1 stick cinnamon (broken); 12 each whole peppers, whole cloves, and whole cardamom; and 2 peeled cloves garlic. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Add 1 cup golden raisins and simmer 5 minutes longer, or until tender.

Spoon part of this pilaf in center of roast, serve the rest in a separate dish. Sprinkle top with ½ cup lightly toasted blanched almonds and 2 chopped green onions. Serves 8.

To garnish and serve roast, cut away excess fat from center and remove picks, if used: Have ready 1 container (about 1 lb.) preserved kumquats and 3 to 4 cups of fresh fruit—we used fresh melon spears and grapes. Cut a cross in the ends of the 14 kumquats you'll need to decorate ribs; mix remaining kumquats with fresh fruits to garnish the platter.

'Stay In School!'

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

This is for all young boys and girls — DON'T SETTLE FOR JUST A HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION. If you cannot go to college, go to a trade school. I know, from experience.

I graduated from high school and took a job with a small firm. After 10 years they went out of business. I soon found out I didn't have enough education and was too old for most jobs. I had to live with and depend on a relative for food and shelter, and soon she became cold and distant where she was once a very warm friend. I finally found a job taking care of an elderly couple which didn't pay much but did give me a little money.

It's a terrible thing to be dependent on someone who is continually reminding you that they have to pay the bills. I'm grateful for her taking me in but when I marry the man I'm going with, I doubt if I ever go back to visit her.—UNEDUCATED

DEAR UNEDUCATED:

Dropouts, take heed! In this age of specialization, it is almost mandatory that one learn a trade or profession. There seem to be more people than jobs and only the best qualified will find work.

You can be made to feel very small when you have to depend on another for food and shelter; even those who may not be reminded of the fact feel "beholden," and their pride takes a beating.

UNEDUCATED, perhaps you can repay your relative for all she did for you—you should if you can, you know. Also, if and when you have to help someone through a difficult time, remember how she felt and act accordingly.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 21 and need help desperately with my marriage. My husband brings home $52 a week and spends $30 of it for food—fruit and vegetables, no meat. You can see there is very little left for bills; rent and all the other expenses of a household.

I would like to work but he refuses to let me. He is 21 years older than I and already has a family. I would like a family, too, but he won't have it—thinks it would end up in divorce like the first one.

Well, this marriage is going to end in divorce unless he changes and soon. I don't want to live alone but I'm rapidly losing all my love for him. About all he cares about is eating! — A BIRD

DEAR BIRD:

Did you marry this man with your eyes closed? Surely you knew how much he made, how he liked to eat, that he already had one family before you married him! If you didn't, you were pretty stupid.

Besides, marrying a man twice as old as you was asking for trouble sooner or later. As a husband and father he had already failed once, and you should have thought long and hard before you married him.

Yes, I expect your marriage will end in divorce but I can't put all the blame on him — you shouldn't have married him in the first place unless you knew all about him and were willing to take him as he is.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My 17-year-old son has been dating a mature 12-year-old girl for three months and wants to marry her. My mother is against the whole idea—thinks they are too young. I say that the aged aren't equipped to make modern-day decisions.

What do you think? (We are financially able to support these young people.)—MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

Good Heavens! I would say your mother is much better equipped to answer your "modern day" problem than you are!

They most certainly are too young to marry and why should you want them to? Your being "able to support" them is very bad for them—they should support themselves—for their own good.

How in the world can you even consider for one minute, your son marrying a girl 12 years old! She is just a child, no matter how "mature" she seems. She has years of school ahead and lots of fun, and so has your

Mothers like you are rare, I'm happy to say.—M.M.

Ballet Billed at Shrine

Today at 3 p.m., the famed Leningrad-Kirov Ballet will appear at Shrine Auditorium in a gala performance which will include high lights from "Prince Igor," "Bayaderka," "Giselle," "The Nutcracker," "Gopak," "The Snow Maiden" and "The Gossips."

The full-length "Swan Lake" is scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. The gala performance of excerpts will be repeated Thursday night.

The West Coast premier of the fairy tale ballet "Raymonda" will be given Friday. "Sleeping Beauty" is scheduled Saturday at 3 and 8:30 p.m.

* * * *

IN THE final ballet next Sunday at 3 p.m., four Long Beach children will perform with other area youngsters chosen for roles as birds, snowflakes, grasshoppers and dwarfs in "Cinderella." Performing with the 120 members of the Leningrad-Kirov company will be Laurie and Nancy Ichino, 4301 Keever Ave.; Christy Mills, 3843 E. Broadway; and Suzanne Rosecrans, 329 Elliot Lane. The youngsters also performed their roles in the company's opening performance Friday night.

DISCOVERED!

Linnea Stevens as Lady Bracknell is horrified at finding the four young lovers played by (from left) John Furman, Linda Hummel, Bonnie Gallup and Burleigh Booker in this scene from Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." The California State College at Long Beach production opens Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. to run through Saturday. This marks an anniversary for director Dr. W. David Sievers, who in April, 1952, directed the British comedy as the college's first full-length play.

'Miss Julie' to Screen

"Miss Julie," a winner of the grand prize at Berlin and Cannes film festivals in 1952, will be shown on Long Beach Film Society's fall film series next Sunday in the Little Theater in California State College, Long Beach. Screenings will be at 5 and 7:30 p.m.

Based on Strindberg's classic study of the role of women in contemporary society, the film is a probe into the motivations of an adult woman who never had been allowed to be girl.

The companion short will be "Questioning City."

'Milk Train'

Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More" opens Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Stage Society Theater, 9014 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles.

Near-Perfection Possible

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

I suppose perfection is an unattainable thing, but near-perfection can be arrived at. I am thinking of the recent opera performance of "Andrea Chenier" by Giordano, given by The American Opera Company here in Long Beach, our first real grand opera production. How nearly perfect that performance might have been, had it not been for some bad judgment on the part of the management.

The singing voices of most of the principals were outstandingly fine. But the whole performance was marred by the enormous size of the principal soprano. Of what good is a gorgeous voice if the appearance of the heroine sends a titter through the audience on her every entrance?

* * * *

GRAND OPERA is pure illusion and the listener must be kept in a fantasy of what is going on on the stage. Also, there is no excuse for costuming that makes members of a chorus look ridiculous. The men's wigs were at all angles, some of the chorus women wore dusting caps, and the costume of L'Incredible looked as if he were about to go out for Halloween — and he supposed to be a spy! He should have looked like a thug. These are bad errors of judgment in directing which cost the company much prestige.

This failing is not confined to the American Opera Company. The Los Angeles Opera last year had a lean, skinny Falstaff, when Shakespeare clearly described him in the words of Mrs. Ford as "shaped like a barrel—a hogshead of fat!" And he drank his gallons of beer from a child's mug instead of from a flagon. These are inexcusable blunders and they are responsible for making grand opera sometimes seem ridiculous.

* * * *

THE SAN FRANCISCO Opera also makes mistakes. In some of its opera productions so many tiers of risers were used—for no reason at all—that the stage was badly cluttered and the singers had to be acrobats, as well as artists. In a deplorable performance of "Faust" with this same company, although Marguerite's simple dwelling had just been eulogized in a fervent tenor aria, and Siebel had left a bouquet of flowers at the door, Marguerite came blithlely sauntering in on the opposite side of the stage, carrying a market basket!

The Festival of Opera in Laguna Beach last summer gave notable performances, with but one exception. Because of bad casting, the soprano from New York nearly ruined "Cosi Fan Tutti" with an edgy voice and a slovenly appearance.

These things ought not to be and grand opera would become more popular if the "powers that be" used better judgment in casting and in direction.

Major and Minor Notes

Auditions for 'The Messiah'

Tryouts for the chorus of "The Messiah", which Civic Chorus will present Dec. 6, will be held today at 2 p.m. in Municipal Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd. Soloists will audition Monday at 7 p.m. in Jefferson Junior High School Auditorium. Frank Ahrold, choral director for the Recreation Department, will direct the production.

New Film Catalog at Library

An attractive, improved "Film and Film Strip Catalog" for 1964-65 has just been made available at the film section of the Long Beach Public Library, according to Miss Nina Boyle, librarian. There is a charge of 75 cents to cover the cost of publication.

In addition to the usual alphabetical, annotated list of 16mm films and a subject index, the catalog includes a section of helpful information about use of the film service: how to use advisory and preview services, how to avoid damaging film, who may borrow film, loan period, fines, etc.

THIS YEAR, at patron request, Miss Boyle has enlarged the catalog to include alphabetical listings of directors, producers and writers of films represented in the collection. Similarly there are lists of music composers, narrators and photographers. The 1964-65 catalog is easier to use than any previous one and more complete.

ALWAYS AT your call when you've a need to be filled — that's Classified ads. Dial HE 2-5959 now.

MAESTRO

Mantovani, whose music bridges the popular and classical, will bring his concert orchestra to Municipal Auditorium Friday at 8:15 p.m. for the first program of Community Concert Association's 1964-65 season. Doors open at 7:15 p.m. Membership cards must be presented for admission.

Jeffrey Fiskin, native of Long Beach now studying in France, has a show of portraits and paintings at Dana Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

Some of the work has been sold, but has been loaned back to the artist for this showing.

Fiskin was graduated from Polytechnic High School as an honor student. He studied art at Pomona College, where he will continue after his return from France at the end of the school year.

His current show will hang through next Sunday.

"NEW HUMANISTS in the Americas," will open next Sunday at Palos Verdes Art Gallery. Paintings have been loaned by the Zora Gallery and are the works of Belkin, Gongora, Icaza, Landau, Ortiz, Sepulveda, Rabel and Spafford.

New young artists in the Los Angeles area are represented by graphics.

The show will run through Dec. 2.

BETZ SALMONT, special studies student at California State College, Long Beach, will have an exhibit of her sculpture at Vivian Fier Galleries, 1714 Westwood Blvd., West Los Angeles, through Nov. 7. The show will open with a public reception Monday from 6 to 10 p.m. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Salmont has studied with Meredith Olson, Fran Soldini and at Chouinard Art Institute.

On loan for the exhibit is "Owl on a Limb," a bronze done for the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rathje of Newport Beach, and a sculptured horse commissioned by Dr. and Mrs. David Joseph of Downey. Other pieces are in bronze and fibre glass.

AMATEUR artists are invited to consign their work for a charity auction to be conducted in Lakewood Dec. 12 by Tom Long, real-estate salesman - auctioneer. Proceeds from sales will be split 50-50, half going to the artist, half to charity.

Sixteen local civic organizations, primarily in the Lakewood area, have been asked to submit the name of a needy family, and the sixteen families will share equally in the auction proceeds.

Further information may be obtained by calling Long at the Ellis Schrader Realty office, 5505 Woodruff Ave.

Sculpture Exhibition Challenges Viewer

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Light, Form, and Space" is a terribly exciting sculpture show. It challenges the viewer's imagination and provokes him to look afresh at the world, visually, spatially, and conceptually. The 35 works by 18 artists were chosen and handsomely installed by Robert McMenomy of Long Beach City College faculty. It continues through Nov. 10 at the College Art Gallery, Harvey Way and Faculty Avenue.

Perhaps the most arresting piece is "Eden Blocks" by Robert Grew. Blocks and parts of a female display dummy all painted in yummy Disneyland pastels, are piled up, seemingly in random fashion. The painting is precise, in the Pop Art mode, and includes many symbols, among them lemons as well as the proverbial apple. The sweet colors enigmatically overlay a biting statement.

* * * *

ANOTHER worker in painted wood is M. K. Stussy. She constructs tall, vertical monuments from old balustrades, veranda moldings and the like. Her grey sentinel glows in black and white, while the "Queen of Brights" seems emblazoned with every strong color in the palette.

Nev's "Black Queen," on the other hand, is a small cast bronze, almost a piece of jewelry with baroque intertwinings, carefully textured tresses and an exquisite crown.

* * * *

"MOON 25" by Claire Falkenstein is much more what one would like the moon to be than scientific exploration has shown. Her moon is a complexity of void spaces surrounded by infinities of fine copper wire webs, enmeshed with jewel hunks of molten glass.

This collection reinforces the suspicion current recently that two-dimensional painting is on the wane and sculpture is in the ascendency. Like our scientists, creative artists are being drawn to the exploration of space.

Announce Contest for Playwrights

A small community theatre in Oregon this year may produce the play that will be next year's Broadway smash.

The Very Little Theatre of Eugene, Ore., an amateur theatrical group which has been in continuous operation since 1929, is conducting a Western States Playwriting Contest. A prize of $100 is offered for the winning play.

The contest is open to residents of Oregon, California, Washington, Hawaii, and Alaska, and to any student of a school within those states. The contest is now underway, with Nov. 15, 1964, the deadline for submission of entries.

* * * *

PLANS CALL for the winning play—which must be unpublished—to be produced this season as part of the theatre's regular five-play schedule. Plays are presented in the VLT's own 200-seat theater.

"Through this contest, we hope to give West Coast playwrights an opportunity to have their plays produced," said Kenneth Griffith, VLT president, "and at the same time we hope to find entertaining new plays for our audiences."

Located in Oregon's second largest city, the VLT is unique in that it receives no subsidy of any kind, and has no "patrons" or "angels." The entire operation is financed by box office proceeds.

Further information and a complete set of contest rules may be obtained by writing the theater at 2350 Hilyard St., Eugene.

Ambitious Season for L.B. Symphony

the season; and Florence Cole and Marvin Cloyd will offer a selection from "Have Podium—Will Travel," with a stopover at the symphony.

Lauris Jones, of course, will direct the whole program.

"Season in Miniature" will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m.; buffet dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Reservations may be made at the Symphony Association office, 1935 E. Seventh St.

ALTHOUGH this is the opening event of Symphony Week, concert season tickets already are available at the association office.

Two series are offered.

Five Sunday evening concerts will be given at 8 p.m. with all seats reserved. All, with the exception of the Luboshutz - Nemenoff program, which will be in the Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium, will be in the auditorium's Concert Hall. Season prices for the entire series are only $8 and $6 for adults and $6 and $4 for students.

The schedule is:

Nov. 15, Camilla Wicks; Jan. 24, Mormon Choir; March 14, Furjanick Award winner; April 11, Luboshutz-Nemenoff; and May 16, All-Orchestra.

A SECOND series of four Saturday evening programs will be offered at 8 p.m. in Long Beach City College Auditorium with seats unreserved. Prices are $6 for adults and $3 for students. These concerts are designed especially for family groups. A combination of the two series also may be purchased.

The Saturday concerts will be Nov. 14, Camilla Wicks; Dec. 12, Henri Temianka, guest conductor, and Jakob Gimpel, pianist; Feb. 20, Julien Musafia, pianist; and April 11, Luboshutz-Nemenoff.

Camilla Wicks, former Long Beach resident who has won an international reputation as violinist, now is living in Santa Ana, is on the faculty at State College at Fullerton and, in Mrs. McDonald's words, "is playing like an angel."

The Mormon Choir of Southern California, with Fred Davis as director, will do "Carmina Burana" by Carl Orff with the Long Beach Symphony. This will be the first Long Beach performance of this great work for chorus, soloists and orchestra.

Luboshutz and Nemenoff will play the Martinu "Concerto for Two Pianos," which was composed for them. Principal works at the all-orchestra concert will be Copland's "Billy the Kid" suite and Schubert's "Symphony No. 9 in C."

TEMIANKA will direct the combined California State College at Long Beach and Long Beach City College choirs in festival music of the Jewish, Protestant and Catholic faiths. His friend, world-famous pianist Jakob Gimpel, will be guest artist, playing Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2."

Musafia will play a Mozart and a Shostakovich concerto.

Those artists who are not on tour will attend "Season in Miniature" to meet and chat with guests whom next they may see across the footlights.

'Milk and Honey' Next on Melodyland Stage

"Milk and Honey" opens Tuesday night at Melodyland, Anaheim, with Molly Picon, Patricia Morison and Walter Cassel in leading roles. The musical will run through Nov. 8.

"Damn Yankees," starring Eddie Bracken, closes tonight.

"Milk and Honey" relates the adventures of a group of American tourists in Israel where they witness an exciting Independence Day "Hora," a beautiful Yemenite wedding ceremony with its glowing rituals and, in a whirl of exuberant dances and songs visit a "Moshov," a collective farm in the Negev.

The book is by Don Appel, music and lyrics are by Jerry Herman of "Hello Dolly" fame and staging is by Billy Matthews. Choreographer is Jack Beaber; Richard Parrinello is musical director.

* * * *

MELODYLAND producers Sammy Lewis and Danny Dare will bring back "Irma la Douce," starring Juliet Prowse, for a two-week run beginning Dec. 8. The South African dancing star broke all Melodyland box office records, playing to SRO business at each performance, when she appeared in the show in September. The entire original cast will return with her, including her leading man, Ron Husmann, and character actor Robert Ellenstein.

Seats for "Irma" are now available by mail order only to the Melodyland box office.

Goodwill Plans Annual Doll Sale

Hundreds of dolls — antique dolls, character dolls and modern dolls in good condition at reasonable prices — will go on sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the annual pre-Christmas doll sale sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Goodwill Industries.

The sale will take place at Wightman Memorial Building, 800 W. Pacific Coast Hwy., from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mrs. Stephen R. Hemmi is auxiliary projects chairman.

Dolls donated to Goodwill Industries are repaired and dressed by members of the auxiliary. Doll dresses and accessories also will be included in the sale.

Proceeds will be used by the auxiliary to assist the Goodwill rehabilitation program and to provide welfare services for the handicapped.

The Doll Club of Long Beach is cooperating at the sale and doll authorities will be present to assist collectors.

* * * *

MEMBERS of the auxiliary will meet Tuesday at Wightman Memorial Building for a business meeting at 11 a.m. followed by 12:30 p.m. luncheon and an afternoon panel discussion and program.

Mmes. Shirley Sawers of Los Angeles Opera Guild and Lois Balsley, organist, will present a musical program. Participants in the panel discussion will include Bess Bulgin, personnel department; Charlotee Hilton, medical; and Dr. Hugo Foucar, testing and placement.

Dining room hostesses will be members of Women's Fellowship of the United Church of Christ headed by Mrs. Kenneth Baustian.

AUTUMN IN YOSEMITE, when the big leaf maples turn yellow, the dogwood leaves become scarlet and the oaks show shades of ochre and red. Glacier Point, 3,214 feet above Yosemite Valley, in background.

SCENE OF SPLENDOR

Autumn's Colors Splash Yosemite

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

The copper, orange and apricot tones of the aspen, the sunshiny yellow of the maples and the scarlet of the fuchsia are racing up the steep canyons in Yosemite National Park to hail the arrival of Indian summer.

But these are only the vanguard of what is to come to this scenic wonderland. Very soon the dogwood, black oak, Indian hemp, rabbit brush and other flora of the forest will add their riotous tones of scarlet and crimson and red to the annual masterpiece that Mother Nature paints against the green backdrop of the pines and the tawny meadows of the Valley.

Because of the dry season, the richer hues are a bit tardy in Yosemite this fall. However, if predictions of some of the experts are accurate, the Park should reach its true magnificence by next weekend or the weekend thereafter.

* * * *

FIRST TO splash their yellows were the aspens along Hwy. 120, on the east side of the park. The aspens along the old dirt road above Badger Pass are turning. Many of the maples on the valley floor already are yellow masses, but others remain green.

As of now, the dogwood is spotty, but there are some plants with brilliant scarlet and crimson leaves at Happy Isles and a few long the highway between Tenaya Bridge and Mirror Lake.

Indian hemp—a plant two to four feet tall—is one of the best displays so far, producing patches of vivid yellow along the Merced River between Rocky Point and Pohono Bridge, and in the beautiful little meadow behind Yosemite Chapel.

Along the Wawona road are patches of pale Lessingia, although most of this is gone from the valley. The bright yellow of the rabbitbrush family is putting on a show on highways leading into the big playground, and there is some scarlet fuchsia near Wawona Tunnel.

* * * *

COMPENSATING for the slow arrival of the fall spectrum, the sugar pine cones this year are making a tremendous showing after some lean seasons. Some have fallen but many will cling to the trees until Spring or until a storm brings them down.

Add to all this the fragrant air scented with pine and fir, the bright mountain sky with birds flickering from tree to tree, and the sassy jay squawking as they strip the acorns.

It all adds up to a rewarding trip to Yosemite in autumn.

* * * *

WARNING: If you enter Yosemite — or any forested area at this time—remember things are tinder dry. Be extra careful against fire. Smoke only in designated spots.

And do not forget that deer remaining in the Valley the year round are in some degree dangerous to those who approach them closely. The Rangers ask that you do not feed them.

* * * *

ACCOMMODATIONS: The Ahwahnee, one of the truly fine hotels of western United States, will be closed briefly in late autumn for renovation. Also open now are Yosemite Lodge with its cafeteria and grill; and the Wawona Hotel Annex which operates on the European plan during autumn, winter and spring with a coffee shop nearby. All other hotels, lodges and campgrounds are open only during summer. It is wise to obtain advance reservations for fall visits from the Yosemite Park and Curry Co. (office in Los Angeles), which operates all these facilities.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

2 California Events Listed

Two California events, the Imperial Valley Rodeo & Brawley Cattle Call at Brawley and the Mother Goose Parade at El Cajon, are among the "Top 20" on the National Association of Travel Organization's list for November.

The Brawley event, scheduled Nov. 2-8, will be a salute to the cattle industry with parade, rodeo and Mexican fiesta. Fairy tale floats of all kinds will feature the El Cajon parade Nov. 22.

Your Big Chance to Travel Free

A tremendous gift from the travel industry can be yours at the World Travel Show, to be held Nov. 6-15 at the Long Beach Arena. It's possible with "Travel 65 Passport," a booklet containing more than $30,000 in travel gifts to be distributed at the Show.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained without charge by signing the Log Book at the first-floor counter of the Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

The booklets will not be distributed at the show.

Gifts offered in "Travel 65 Passport" include four different trips for two to Hawaii, a ski vacation for two to Colorado, a jaunt for two to New York and the Caribbean, a week's vacation for two at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, and many others.

Take the Camel Train!

By Donald C. Langley

CAIRO

IT TAKES two trips to nearby Giza to see the breath-taking spectacle of the pyramids and the sphinx, one by the sparkling light of day and one in the cool of the evening.

The daytime view is best enjoyed by camelback. One hundred fifty of the festooned "ships of the desert" are available for hire, under careful regulation of the Egyptian government tourist police.

The jogging ride is "touristy"—you won't see Egyptians riding these camels—but that doesn't detract from the fun.

An officer of the tourist police, who maintain a station near the pyramids, insists that no one has ever fallen off a camel. For those who nonetheless prefer their adventure closer to the ground there are about 30 horse carts available.

* * * *

THE TOURIST police license the drivers and see that they comply with regulations on comfort and safety. They insure that camels get their regular health inspection and that drivers do not ask for tips. They also serve as an informal lost and found department. Tourist police can be identified by their black uniforms.

It cost 40 piastres (about 92 cents) to reach Giza from the center of Cairo by taxi, and about 15 piastres (35 cents an hour for the camel ride.

The robed and turbaned guides, accustomed to a stream of visitors from every corner of the world, speak the essential words of half a dozen languages. They also have learned to opera any type of camera and they know the best spots in which to pose their camel and its rider against the pyramids or sphinx.

* * * *

JAPAN AIR LINES travel experts advise that getting good pictures in the vicinity of the pyramids is difficult. The glare of the sun is strong and backgrounds (normally the pyramids) tends to be overexposed.

It is not necessarily hot, however. The Egyptian air is light and dry and only in the middle of the summer does it become a little uncomfortable. Dark glasses are a must at all times.

Having surveyed the pyramids by camelback during the day, the tourists should return in the evening for the sound and light performance, presented every night.

* * * *

THE "SOUND" is a narration of the history of the Nile Valley. The "light" is powerful floodlighting which bathes the pyramids in various patterns and hues to underscore the narration.

The lights, which may one moment pinpoint a single pyramid in soft blue and the next illuminate them all in a glowing gold, create an absorbing sense of action, throughout the hour-long presentation.

Narration is in English three times a week. Information desks at the hotels have the exact schedule and can book package tours which cover the performance and the round-trip transportation.

Once the sun goes down in Egypt the desert cools quickly. A sweater or a top coat is necessary in all but the warmest summer months.

Mounted on a camel, a visitor to Giza prepares to see Egyptian pyramids in the time-honored way.

Gadding the Southland

For the 41st year, Anaheim will make Halloween the time of celebration with its Halloween Festival, one of several such events scheduled in the Southland.

Anaheim's festival opens Thursday and ends Saturday evening with a giant Pageant Parade that will bring out huge geysering jack-o-lanterns and such errie creatures as automated witches. There will be a kids' costume Friday forenoon and a Pumpkin Bowl football game Friday evening.

Rosemead holds its Halloween and American Heritage Parade at 10 a.m. Saturday with children up to 9 years of age, costumed, or pulling their own floats, making up the first division.

The American Heritage section follows the theme of "Turn of the Century—1890-1910."

La Jolla plans a Halloween celebration Saturday beside the sea coves and caves where children will spend all day decorating downtown business windows for awards. The small fry also will have a Burning the Witch ceremony and costume party.

If you're a gadder who likes the desert, don't overlook the Imperial Valley Gem and Mineral Show at Imperial, south of Palm Springs, Friday through Nov. 1. A "gem tree" will be included among special exhibits and a field trip is planned to Cerro Pinto in Baja California.

Delaplane's Travels

"Where would I buy a man's wrist watch in Europe?

MINE IS automatic, calendar type, stainless steel and well-styled. It cost $42 from Bucherer's—they have shops in all major cities in Switzerland. This is a "house" watch. That is, it is not a brand name.

I think you do better with "house name" watches on price. (Swiss watch works are all made in one part of Switzerland and it's styling, advertising and gold casing that costs money.)

The big houses are Gubelin, Turler, Burcherer—Gubelin seems to have the leading recommendations among the Swiss.

"Where would we buy pearls in Hong Kong please?"

SINCE I don't know pearls, I'd go to the department store, Lane, Crawford Ltd. It's one price and sells Mikimoto cultured pearls from Japan. There are probably a hundred shops selling pearls. But Hong Kong is a bargain city generally. And how do you bargain on something you don't know about?

"Do you bargain in shops in Japan?"

NO. JAPANESE custom is to have one fair price. However, I would try a little bargaining in tourist shops in ANY part of the world. Tourist shops everywhere are a little high. And most places they are setup to provide a percentage to a guide —10 to 15 percent. So if you come in alone, they can knock that much off for you. So ask.

"A place to do general shopping in Paris—not a tourist shop."

THE THREE BIG department stores: Trois Quartiers, Printempts and Galeries Lafayette. All within walking distance of the Opera. One price. No bargaining. But they MIGHT have a reduction for traveler's checks.

"Any place to buy good linens in Ireland?"

BROWN'S in Grafton street, Dublin. (They have a catalogue and you can do mail order business with them.) A fine, reliable house with all kinds of excellent things. No bargaining. Reasonable prices.

"Is there any place in Mexico where you can order things by mail?"

I DON'T KNOW of any. I don't often ship from Mexico either. You lose about a third of the time. A bargaining country on everything. Many good buys but carry home whatever you buy.

"Would you suggest a place to buy gloves in Paris?"

HERMES behind the Hotel Crillon is elegant. I order by mail from Freddy at 10 Rue Auber. Quite possible both have catalogues but I don't know. Discounts usual for traveler's checks but you have to ask.

"What are the best buys in Copenhagen?"

SUPPOSED to be silver, furs and porcelain. I never did any shopping there. (I bought a lot of electricity in the night clubs and it was worth it.)

LET YOURSELF GO TO A FOREIGN WORLD OF

As your jet begins its descent to the volcano-girt plateau where Mexico City sprawls, your view of the oldest city on the North American continent will be kaleidoscopic, day or night.

The ice-clad peaks of Popocatepetl and Iztaccihautl, if struck by the brilliant sunlight, will seem almost blinding in the crisp air. Cumulus clouds hang majestically over the Sierra of Ajusco and the Desert of the Lions. And, as your big airliner banks over the city before making its landing, you may catch a glimpse of multicolored mosaic walls; of skyscrapers born of cold steel and glass; of gray and red lava colonial buildings; of tumbled blocks of ancient pyramids.

Mexico City is a microcosm of Mexico today—a little world that reflects the many cultures, peoples, and languages that have created this country of vivid contrasts. Near the National University, with its buildings that are breath-takingly modern, you can see the pyramid of Cuicuilco—which antedates the Aztec era by as many centuries as the Aztecs antedate today's culture.

From a seat in the Zocalo, Mexico City's heart, you can watch women in Paris fashions and women in huipils—the standard dress of Indian women for a thousand years. You can see faces that reflect Spanish, Aztec and even Mayan heritage. You will hear the slurring slang of Mexico City, the lisp of Castilian, precise English, and Nahuatl, one of the surviving Indian languages.

For many travelers, Mexico City alone offers enough diverse enchantments to tempt them back time and again. The gourmet revels in restaurants that offer every imaginable kind of cuisine. The inveterate shopper finds hours of delight in the shops that jostle each other in winding alleys or spread their wings on broad avenues. Students of history delve into Mexico's mysterious past at the pre-Aztec ruins in Teotihuacan, or in the many museums. Art lovers gaze in wonder at lavishly adorned churches, 17th Century European masterpieces, and the works of modern masters like Rivera, Orozco, Siqueiros and Tamayo. The Capital is a city where revolutionary modern architecture stands cheek-to-jowl with humble adobe; dazzling tropical flowers spread through public gardens and private patios; sleek Cadillacs and antique taxis compete with shuffling foot peddlers on the crowded streets. There is enough to see and do, to glance at and gape unabashedly at, to keep the most avid sightseer happily footsore for as long as he can keep up the pace.

But Mexico City is only the beginning. The pleasures and treasures of this wildly varied country are too fascinating to be fully imagined, and certainly too abundant to be fully described.

HERE'S WHY WESTERN IS THE WAY TO GO!

Western is truly the wonderful way to Mexico! Our smooth-flying giant, the 720B Fan/Jet, will whisk you there with jet-age speed and comfort. It's a mere three hours and five minutes from Los Angeles, for example, to fabulous Mexico City.

And here's why we say Western's Fan/Jet to Mexico is the greatest bargain in foreign travel. 720B Fan/Jet Coach costs just $93.00 each way, tax-free.* It's a fare so low, you can't say no! Yet you're always treated as a special guest on Western, with a delicious lunch or snack.

Of course, if you prefer to fly Deluxe, there's just nothing to match Western's Fan/Jet "Fiesta Flights." Gourmet food, champagne and other beverages—a touch of Mexico in a fun-filled atmosphere that really starts your South-of-the-Border holiday off right.

Mexico is a land with a fascinating history, which you'll learn more about as you peruse this magazine. And perhaps, while we're on the subject of histories, you might like to know a little more about Western's background. Western is America's senior airline—with the longest continuous-service record in American commercial flying. In April, 1926, when Western's first flight took off for Salt Lake, we flew M-2 biplanes.

Today, we fly Boeing 720B Fan/Jets, the finest commercial jetliner in the air. And today we can fly you all the way to Mexico City many times faster than we flew to Salt Lake City in 1926!

Fan/Jet Coach fare from Los Angeles. From San Francisco, $116.70, tax-free. From San Diego, $103.90, tax-free including transfer to Los Angeles for Fan/Jet departure.*

Or, for a real bargain, fly Western's famous all-Coach Electra—only $144.50 round-trip excursion fare from Los Angeles or San Diego.

FASCINATION AND BEAUTY—JUST HOURS AWAY

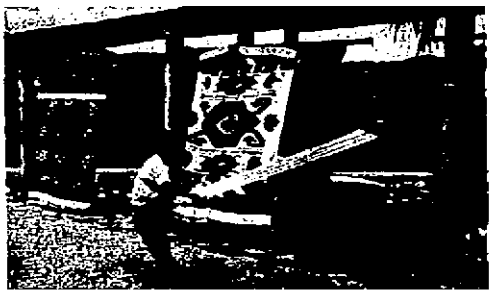

For Mexico is not one land, but many; and it's safe to say that whatever your preferences for climate, for landscape, and for activities on a vacation, Mexico has something spectacular to offer.

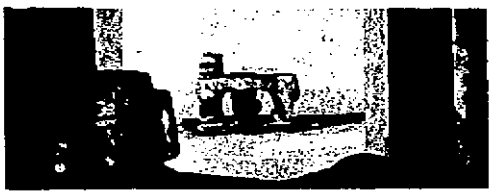

There are deserts where the dry, crisp air makes you forget that smoke-clogged cities even exist. There are tropical rainforests and jungles where the foliage is so lush as to be almost impenetrable—virtually unexplored and guaranteed to give you real adventure. There are dazzling beaches like Acapulco's, where you can rub sun-tanned shoulders with people from every country in the world—and remote, tropical beaches where you can sun and swim in complete solitude.

There are lush valleys of mangoes, papaya, melons and sugar cane; meadows filled with alpine flowers; great mountain ranges and snow-capped volcanoes; and the mist-shrouded Barranca de Cobre, which is deeper than the Grand Canyon by at least 2,000 feet.

If deep-sea fishing attracts you, Mazatlan is rated as one of the world's greatest spots—literally jumping with giant sailfish, striped and black marlin, dolphin, yellowtail, and sea bass. And if you're a frustrated archeologist, you can feed your fascination for the remote past on the remains of ancient cultures which stud the land. Pre-Aztec pyramids near Mexico City date to an era before Christ; Mayan ruins on the Yucatan Peninsula go back to the Fifth Century; while the giant Olmecan heads found near the Gulf Coast are almost 3,000 years old.

And wherever you go, whatever you do, you'll find the warmth and openness of the Mexican people adding to your pleasure. As the land varies, so do the customs, the costumes, the languages, the way of life—everything, but the genuinely friendly welcome visitors receive. And if you're a lover of festivals, you'll feel at home anywhere, because every Mexican loves a fiesta, and uses just about any excuse for a celebration.

Whether your tastes lead you to the cosmopolitan delights of Mexico City; to the sun-filled days and festive nights of Acapulco; to the ancient worlds of Teotihuacan and Chichen Itzá; or to the pleasures of some of the lesser-known areas of Mexico, we think you'll agree with a favorite Mexican saying. "Como Mexico, no hay dos"—there is no other country like it.

Western's route system has changed quite a bit over the past thirty-eight years, too. In 1926 our only route was Los Angeles-Las Vegas-Salt Lake. Today we cover the twelve Western states, Canada and Mexico—the map shows you the major cities Western serves. Whether you want to "Let Yourself Go—Mexico," on a fabulous Magic Week holiday; or to fly to Minneapolis/St. Paul or Seattle/Tacoma or Las Vegas—Western offers you fast flights and fine service. The next time you fly, let yourself go—Western!

Your Travel Agent is the Expert on Mexico
He has all the facts and figures. Tell him what you want out of your Mexican holiday, how long you plan to stay, and how much you'd like to pay. He'll work out every detail. For a holiday that's all fun and no problems, see your Travel Agent first.

FIRST DAY: Board your fast Western Airlines Jet/Prop Electra and relax. A few hours later you're in magical Mexico City! Transportation is provided to the charming Hotel Monte Cassino in the heart of the city's most elegant shopping and dining area, where your room is reserved. Your time is your own, to explore one of the world's most beautiful capitals. Perhaps you'll shop at the Museo de Artes e Industrias Populares, where you can purchase folk arts and crafts from every area of Mexico; or visit the Palace of Fine Arts, with its superb collections of Rivera, Orozco, Siqueiros and Tamayo (and where the Ballet Folklorico performs Wednesday evenings and twice on Sundays). Nearby restaurants and clubs offer gourmet food and a gay night life. SECOND AND THIRD DAYS: Free days to spend strolling the beautiful, tree-lined streets, browsing through shops with a huge variety of goods, visiting places like the National Cathedral, the largest cathedral on the North American continent; the old Zocalo, main plaza of the city, where the National Palace (with its history-laden Rivera murals) is located; the Alameda, historic park filled with flowers and fountains; the National Museum of Anthropology, with its Aztec and Mayan treasures. Your hotel can help you arrange the optional (and inexpensive) sight-seeing tours you'll want to take: the Pyramids of the Sun and Moon at Teotihuacan, impressive relics of the pre-Aztec era; the Indian Market at Toluca, largest market in all Mexico (held every Friday); University City, with its mural façades and some of the world's most striking futuristic architecture; Chapultepec Castle, once home of the Emperor Maximilian, now a Historical Museum (magnificent view of the entire city here); the Floating Gardens of Xochimilco, where the flower-decked canals are at their gayest on Sundays. FOURTH DAY: You're off to Taxco, the silver center and one of Mexico's most picturesque towns. As your spacious bus glides onto the modern highway, you may be tempted to nap; but the remarkably lovely Sierra Madre countryside will probably hold your attention for the 3-hour ride. Taxco clings to the side of steep hills; a town of cobblestone streets, red-tiled roofs, purple bougainvillea. After you check into your comfortable room at the Rancho Taxco or Posada de la Mision, your time is free to browse in the dozens of silver shops, visit the famous Church of Santa Prisca and San Sebastian, or just sit in the pretty zocalo and watch the life of the town swirl around you.

FIFTH DAY: A short, 4-hour bus trip takes you along a fine highway, past eye-catching scenery, to Acapulco, fabulous "Riviera of the Pacific." It's a true paradise of wide beaches, lapped by an incredibly blue sea; multi-colored tropical sunsets; and a night life that often lasts 'til dawn. You'll stay at the balconied Hotel Palacio Tropical, high on a hill overlooking the bay. SIXTH DAY: Your time is free to enjoy Acapulco: swimming in your hotel pool or at Caleta or Hornos beaches; exploring the less-known beaches like Puerto Marques; sunning near a thatched-roof cabaña; water skiing or skin-diving; deep-sea fishing for marlin or sailfish. There's balmy sunshine by day; evenings offer fine dining, dancing under a tropical moon, cocktails at places with spectacular views of the beautiful bays, and a wide variety of nightclubs. SEVENTH DAY: Motor back to the Capital and enjoy one more night in Mexico City. Then, Adios to a Magic Week, as you board your Western Airlines Electra for the smooth, fast flight home.

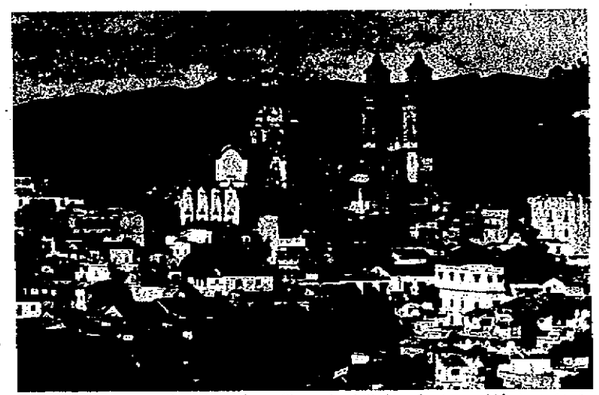

MAGIC WEEK price includes: round-trip air fare to Mexico City on Western's famous Jet/Prop Electra; all hotel accommodations (double occupancy); bus transportation to Taxco, and to and from Acapulco. All you'll need extra money for is your meals and tips; optional sight-seeing; laundry; souvenirs.

Xochimilco's flower-filled canals, where you dine on a gondola, while mariachis play.

Pyramid of the Sun at the pre-Aztec ruins of Teotihuacan, 30 miles from the Capital.

Taxco, the silver center, is a picturesque village of red-tiled roofs, steep cobblestone streets, purple bougainvillea. The spires belong to the exquisite Church of Santa Prisca.

Chapultepec Park's lovely tree-encircled lake, at the foot of Maximilian's Castle.

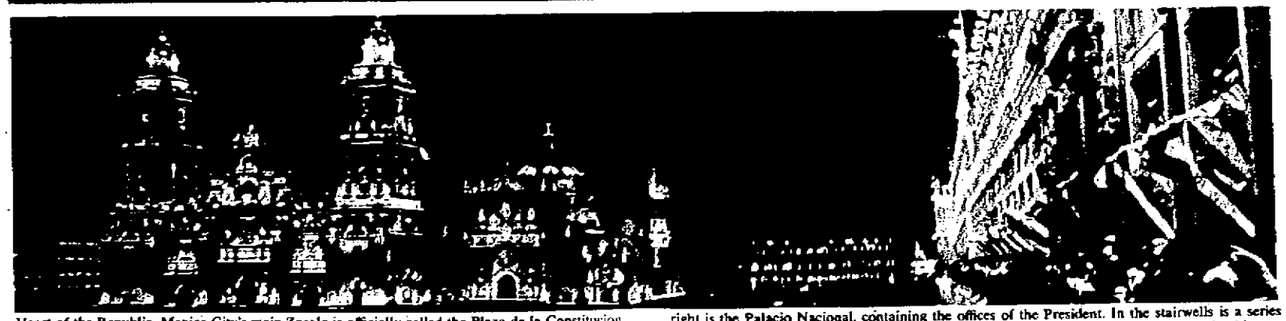

Acapulco's luxurious bay-front hotels offer visitors superb dining, and gay night life.

Ballet Folklorico offers spectacular performances Wednesdays and Sundays at the Palacio de Bellas Artes, Mexico City.

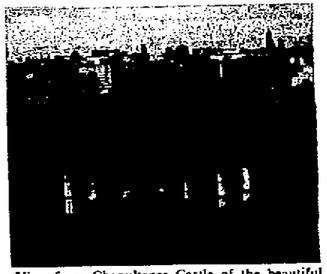

Colorful Indian Markets are great fun to shop in. The biggest is on Fridays at Toluca, which is about an hour's drive from Mexico City.

Heart of the Republic, Mexico City's main Zocalo is officially called the Plaza de la Constitucion, and is illumined most weekend nights. At left is the city's 17th Century National Cathedral. At right is the Palacio Nacional, containing the offices of the President. In the stairwells is a series of murals painted by Diego Rivera, depicting Mexico's colorful, and often tragic, history.

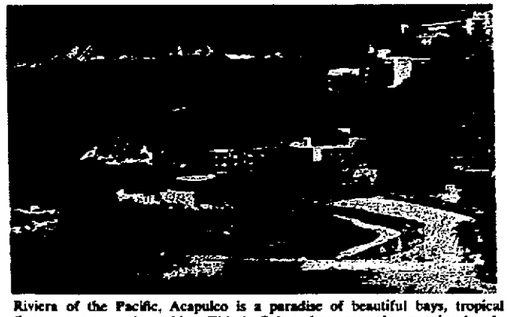

Shrine of Guadalupe, just outside the Capital, is the holiest in all Mexico.

View from Chapultepec Castle of the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma, in the heart of Mexico City.

The Monument of Independence on the Paseo de la Reforma in Mexico City.

Riviera of the Pacific, Acapulco is a paradise of beautiful bays, tropical flowers, year-round sunshine. This is Caleta, known as the morning beach.

View of a mile-high city, from a high-rise hotel. Restaurants and clubs in the Capital often offer a superb view as part of the menu.

Rivera's "History of Mexico" and other famed murals can be seen at the National Palace.

Taxco's famed Church of Santa Prisca, in front of the town's picturesque Zocalo.

Acapulco has miles of sweeping beach, lapped by an incredibly blue sea.

Aerial view of spectacular University City, with the stadium where the 1968 Olympics will be held.

A HEAD START TO HAPPY TOURING

Documents—three are required: a Mexican Tourist Card (available at any Western Airlines Office); proof of U.S. citizenship; a valid smallpox vaccination certificate.

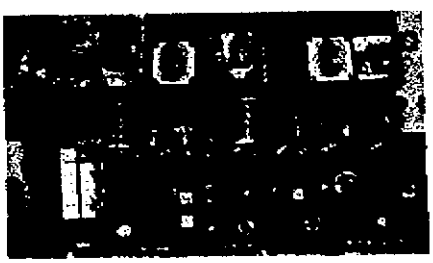

Clothing—Mexico City weather is pleasant and moderate, and this is a very cosmopolitan city; so dress well and bring a wrap. The rest of Mexico is warm, tropical and informal; light summer sports clothes are all you'll need. On Western's Coaches, you're allowed 55 lbs. of luggage; on Deluxe, 66 lbs.

Hotels—a wide selection of ultra-modern, luxurious hotels, symbolize the new era in Mexico. You'll enjoy gay, continental hospitality, superb dining, and standards of comfort and convenience that will make your visit memorable.

Money—there are 12.50 pesos to one U.S. dollar, and you can convert freely in hotels, shops and banks. There's no limit to the number of dollars you can take into Mexico. (With Western's low fares, you'll have lots of spare cash!)

Customs—you may bring back to the United States $100 worth of duty-free goods per person; or mail back unlimited gifts of less than $10 each to different persons. Mexican law places no limit on the amount of goods you may take out of the country.

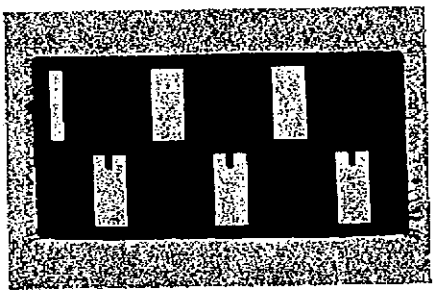

WHERE TO GO ON A SHOPPING SPREE

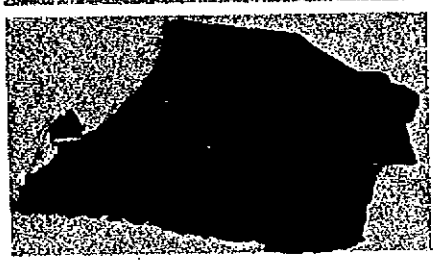

POTTERY

There is such great variety, at such remarkably low prices, you have only to choose what appeals to you. Wonderful, oven-proof brown casseroles, big pots, soup bowls, are available in every public market. Talavera de Puebla pottery, in rich yellow, white and blue, is found in Puebla and is of fine quality. Oaxaca has a distinctive dark green pottery that is quite strong; and a handsome black pottery as well. In Tlaquepaque, just outside Guadalajara, you will find unusually shaped, colorful pieces, both inexpensive and fascinating.

SERAPES AND TEXTILES

Serapes are a marvelous buy in Mexico, because they are almost always made of wool, are hand-loomed, and can be used as rugs, blankets or hangings. Bargaining is in order, and prices range from $8 and up. The best serapes come from Santa Ana, near Puebla, and from a spot near Oaxaca. Hand-loomed Toluca cloth is a great bargain; exquisite woolen rebozos can be bought anywhere in Mexico for about $3.50, especially in Mitla and Oaxaca; and hand-screened cloth, made into blouses, skirts and ties, are found many places in Mexico City.

LEATHER GOODS

Mexico is famous for its fine rawhide wallets, belts, saddles and other leather goods. Monterrey is an especially good center for leather. Huaraches, or braided leather sandals, can be found in nearly every market place, and good ones last a lifetime. In Puerto Vallarta they are made to measure. The fine shops in the fashionable Niza section of Mexico City have handbags and shoes of excellent quality and style.

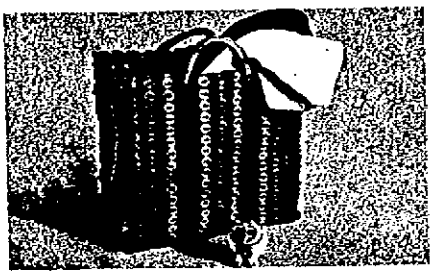

SILVER

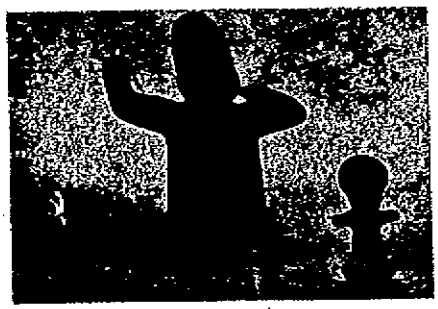

Mexico is the greatest silver-producer in the world, and high government standards guarantee that anything marked "sterling" or ".925" is at least 92% pure silver. Taxco is the silver center, and there you will find everything from simple Danish styles to traditional English patterns to native Indian motifs. Mexico City shops, of course, also offer silver in abundance. (Western's "Magic Week" Tour includes a visit to Taxco.)

BASKETS AND WOVEN GOODS

Nearly every area of Mexico has its own style of basketry, and the local market place is the place to bargain and buy. Handbags and shopping bags, bread baskets and clothes baskets, of every size and shape, are to be found for very little money. The sturdy, giant-size shopping bag in multi-color stripes is a must for carrying your small purchases, and costs less than a dollar.

FINE ART AND ARTIFACTS

There are many galleries where original paintings or good reproductions of famous Rivera or Tamayo works may be purchased. Misrachi at Genova No. 20 in Mexico City is a good starting point. Reproductions of pre-Columbian artifacts are available at most ruins.

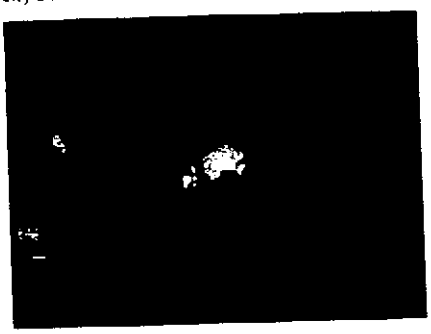

GLASSWARE

At Guadalajara's glass factory you'll find the famed blue bubble glass, as well as many modern decorative pieces. It is good, amazingly cheap, and will be well-packed and shipped for you. Mexico City's glass factory is worth a visit, too.

OF EVERYTHING IN MEXICO

DINING AND NIGHT LIFE

MEXICO CITY offers some of the finest restaurants on the North American continent. Only a few are listed here. For superb French cuisine visit La Jena or the Derby; Mexican dishes are unexcelled at El Refugio; Yucatan food can be found at Circulo Sureste (try the "pollo pibil"); the Mauna Loa serves Polynesian dishes amid one of the world's most colorful gardens; La Scala is Italian; Czardas is Hungarian; and American restaurants range from excellent, expensive Delmonicos to the hamburgers and apple pie homemade style of Sanborn's. The Villa Fontana offers fine food to an accompaniment of violins. The penthouse restaurant atop the Tecalli Hotel is one of the best dining spots in the city, and has a magnificent view. (Monte Cassino Hotel, where you'll stay on a Western "Magic Week" Tour, is in the heart of one of the city's best restaurant areas.)

IN ACAPULCO, the Focolare is elegant and excellent; La Isla at the Hilton has charming atmosphere; the Bel Air Coffee Shop offers everything from steaks to sandwiches in a sidewalk cafe atmosphere. The Ski Club presents an unusual night water-skiing show; the Jacaranda offers a show and dancing at the water's edge; Club Bum Bum is the tourist's delight, with a good floor show; La Perla is the famous cliff-hanging club from which to watch the diving boys. (Your Western "Magic Week" Tour includes a visit to Acapulco.)

THE PAGEANTRY OF SPORTS

Part of Mexico's Spanish heritage, the bullfight is a spectacle not to be missed. In Mexico City bullfights are held almost every Sunday in either the Plaza Mexico or the smaller El Toreo. Fights may also be seen in Acapulco and Guadalajara.

Jai Alai, the famed old Basque game, is commonly called frontón in Mexico. Contests can be seen in Mexico City at the Frontón Mexico, and in Acapulco.

The Hipodromo de Las Americas in Mexico City is one of the most lavish race tracks in the world. The season is October to April, and tourists are admitted free upon presentation of their tourist cards.

A LAND OF CHURCHES

Some of the most spectacular architecture, finest artwork, and most remarkable decorative crafts are to be found in the churches and cathedrals of Mexico. Nearly every village and town has its showplace. Only a few of the more memorable are mentioned here.

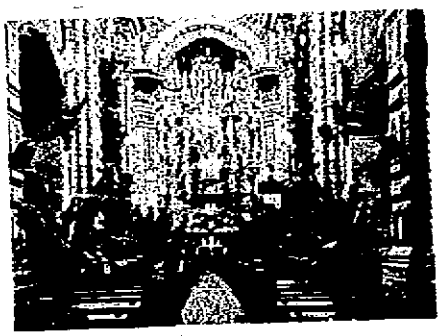

SHRINE OF OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE

In a suburb of Mexico City is the most famous Shrine in Latin America. The Virgin of Guadalupe is Queen of all the Latin Americas, and on December 12, 30,000 to 50,000 pilgrims come, some from hundreds of miles away, to pay homage. But any day of the year you can see dozens of the faithful, inching their way across the courtyard or up the aisle on their knees.

NATIONAL CATHEDRAL

Located in Mexico City on the Zocalo, on virtually the same site as the principal Aztec temple destroyed by the Spanish invaders, this is the largest cathedral on the North American continent. It was begun in 1573, completed in 1667.

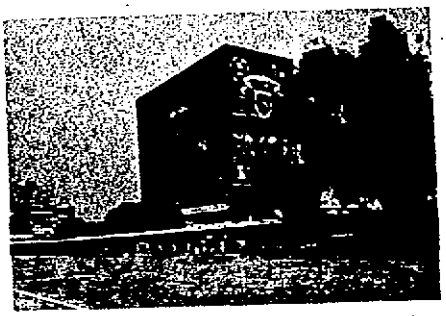

SANTA PRISCA CHURCH

This tall-towered, 200 year old church in Taxco is said to be the finest example of the ornate churriqueresque architecture in all of Mexico. It is lighted each night and makes a beautiful spectacle. One of Mexico's great religious painters, Cabrera, is credited with the fine paintings.

CHOLULA

This village, 8 miles outside of Puebla, is not to be missed if you have an interest in churches, because it has 300! Los Remedios, whose huge dome can be seen for miles, stands atop the high "hill" which was a pyramid of the Toltec era.

UNIVERSITY CITY

Just on the outskirts of Mexico City is the University of Mexico campus, 80 buildings which are among the most architecturally striking in the world. 156 architects, and the country's best painters, sculptors and designers joined to build the campus, which includes a 15-story science building, a magnificent stadium which seats 102,000 persons (this will play host to the 1968 Olympics), a liberal arts building nearly a quarter of a mile long, the world's largest swimming pool, a cosmic ray laboratory and a nuclear physics laboratory. The exterior murals by such famed artists as Diego Rivera, David Siqueiros and Juan O' Gorman are alone worth the trip.

FIESTA IN MEXICO

Almost any time of the year that you choose for your Western Airlines trip to Mexico is a good time to see a festival. Here are a few festival dates that are celebrated widely. The Day of St. Francis, October 4, (especially good festivals in Puebla, and Zapopan near Guadalajara). November 1 and 2, Day of the Dead (Mexico City, Colima, Cholula). December 12, Festival of the Virgin of Guadalupe (especially Mexico City). Christmas and New Year's festivals are spectacular everywhere. January 6, Dia de los Santos Reyes, is like a second Christmas.

9-DAY THREE STAR HOLIDAY
$360.00

MEXICO CITY

In the dynamic, sophisticated Capital your tour includes guided sight-seeing in a private limousine; the spectacular Ballet Folklorico; a dinner at the romantic Villa Fontana; and superb accommodations at the Continental Hilton.

GUADALAJARA

You'll love this colonial city with its friendly people, its art treasures, its lovely music. Sightsee at the Glass Factory (you can buy the famous blue glass here); the Cathedral, with its 17th Century masterpiece, Murillo's "Assumption"; Cabanas Orphanage and the Governor's Palace, where Orozco's murals can be seen. Your home is the brand new Guadalajara Hilton.

PUERTO VALLARTA

Escape to a paradise where smooth beaches stretch for miles . . . mountains curve round an azure bay, teeming with marlin and sailfish . . . and a colorful village nestles among the hills. The incredibly lovely Posada Vallarta, with palm-shaded pool and private beach, is your hotel (all meals included). A boat trip to the Bay of Mismaloya, where "Iguana" was filmed, is included.

Price includes round-trip Jet air fare from Los Angeles; all hotels (double occupancy); sightseeing and meals mentioned.

(IT-PV-9)

15-DAY MAYAN ADVENTURE
$548.10

If you love variety, this is for you! The tour takes you from ultra-modern Mexico City . . . to the ancient world of 5th Century Mayan ruins in Yucatan . . . to the lagoon-laced Caribbean retreat of Cozumel. Just the highlights are listed.

After 3 nights in Mexico City, you'll visit charming Merida in Yucatan; then motor past picturesque Mayan villages to Uxmal. The Palace of the Governors is the finest existing Mayan ruin.

CHICHEN ITZÁ

This is the heart of the Mayan empire—a world of 100-foot high pyramids, intricately sculptured temples, massive statuary, gods with names like Chac-mool and Kukulkan. You'll stay at the deluxe Hotel Mayaland, where wild birds fly through tropical gardens.

ISLA COZUMEL

An island paradise, just a short flight from Merida. 20 miles of white sand and coral beaches stretch between rampant green jungle and a turquoise sea. After a fabulous Cozumel visit, you'll return to Mexico City for a night, then fly home.

Price includes round-trip Jet air fare from Los Angeles; air and land transfers between cities; finest hotel accommodations (double occupancy); meals except in Merida and Mexico City.

(IT-MTA-YC14)

DIANE SHERRY of ABC-TV's "Bing Crosby Show" is jack-o'lantern ready for Halloween.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THERE WAS A PERIOD several years ago when actress Emmaline Henry was being considered as a housewife for TV commercials.

Despite the fact that she's never been married, Emmaline felt, as an actress, she could do a fine job of being a video spouse for the blurbs.

The soap company considering her didn't agree. They hired someone else.

Later, Emmaline was signed to play the wife of John Astin in the "I'm Dickens, . . . He's Fenster" series.

When that series was cancelled after one season, the actress was selected as the TV wife of Mickey Rooney in ABC-TV's Wednesday night "Mickey" series.

Recently Emmaline received a letter from an advertising-agency friend in New York.

He had attended a conference with executives of the soap company who had originally rejected the actress as their kind of housewife.

NOW THEY WERE in the market again.

The soap exec in charge of the conference knew exactly the specifications of the housewife he desired to plug his products. Said he:

"I want the Emmaline Henry type."

For better or worse, Emmaline now seems wedded to the image of housewife.

She thinks it's for the better.

"It's an image that has brought me a steady job in two series. I like working steady. I'm not a transient-type actress and I like being able to live in one place rather than out of a suitcase."

Emmaline also thinks the "Mickey" series is "for the better."

"Ours is a brilliant show," she claimed. "The writing is fantastic. I roar."

Sure, it's slapstick, she conceded but that's exactly what television needs more of, in her opinion.

"LOOK," SHE SAID, "I enjoy good drama but I'm not a fan of the psychological or the surgical operation.

"I don't even like hospitals.

"The provinces of the mind and body should be documentary subjects, not drama."

There's enough in the world today that is "so serious and troublesome" that Emmaline feels television should offer the opposite along entertainment lines.

The "opposite" is what "Mickey" is serving up.

"If we get an audience to watch it," said Emmaline, "this series could go for 25 years."

At the end of 25 years, Emmaline may contact her advertising-agency friend in New York and see if they still want her type for the soap commercials.

But not before.

For she's convinced that the television audience will discover "Mickey" and she'll be right at his side.

'Molestation' Drama Topic

Child molestation is the subject of this season's opening "Purex Special for Women" at 3 p.m. Wednesday, channel 7.

The one-hour drama stars Nina Foch and Martin Landau.

Miss Foch plays an attorney who is assigned by the court to defend Landau, who is accused of the crime.

• • • •

THE FACT that the female attorney is also a mother increases her reluctance to defend the accused molester.

Dinah Shore will serve as hostess for the program and other upcoming Purex specials.

These will include a drama about aging parents and a story debating whether a woman's place is in the home.

SPECIAL

DISCOVERY '64—In the same pointed black hat, cape and toothy grimace she made famous as the wicked witch of the west in 1939's "The Wizard of Oz," Margaret Hamilton joins host Frank Buxton in a probe of the "weird world of witchcraft," and takes a light-hearted look at the story of black magic, at 11:30 a.m., channel 7.

FISHERMAN'S FIESTA—The colorful 14th annual parade of the decorated fishing fleet will be described by Tom Frandsen from San Pedro in a 90-min. telecast at 12:30 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Dennis Weaver, Ricky Der and Bruce Yarnell.

A CONVERSATION with John M. Bailey—The Presidential campaign is discussed informally at 2 p.m., ch. 2, by the chairman of the Democratic Committee with CBS newsmen Martin Agronsky, Robert Pierpoint, Dan Rather.

ISSUE & ANSWERS—Perhaps Goldwater and Johnson never will share the same camera, but at 4 p.m., ch. 7, you'll see three other Presidential candidates do just that. Describing their qualifications for the office, platforms, influence of "splinter" groups, campaign issues and whether they could support either of the top-runners are candidates E. Harold Munn Sr. (Prohibition party), Eric Haas (Socialist Labor party) and Clifton DeBerry (Socialist Workers party).

HOOVER BURIAL—The funeral and interment of former President Herbert Hoover will be seen vy videotape from West Branch, Iowa, at 4:30 p.m., ch. 7, and 4:45 p.m., ch. 4.

Rx FOR A NIGHTMARE—Members of the Senior Citizens Council offer their viewpoints in favoring medical care for the aged at 5 p.m., ch. 2. The non-sponsored half-hour, following a similar one last week by the AMA, is the second in a 2-part series.

20TH CENTURY—The deliberate, unsubstantiated political lie as it has been used in Presidential campaigns, and attempts to lessen this problem in politics, will be examined in "Smear: the Game of Dirty Politics," a special edition of "The 20th Century" at 6 p.m., ch. 2. How a smear is born is discussed by Walter Cronkite, Martin Agronsky and Mike Wallace through pictures, political cartoons, posters and interviews, examining lies aimed at Jackson, Van Buren, Lincoln, Cleveland, Blaine, Smith, Hoover, FDR, Stevenson, Eisenhower, Nixon, JFK and this year's candidates and at a faked composite photograph used in the Butler-Tydings Senatorial campaign in Maryland in 1950.

DECISION: 17 CROSSROADS—The three most controversial issues on the Nov. 3 California ballot are viewed by six authorities at 10 p.m., ch. 13, in the first hour of a 2-part pre-election series. Bill Johns is moderator as John Lamb (pro) and Laughlin C. Waters (con) discuss Proposition 16 for a state-controlled lottery. Debating Proposition 15, to outlaw pay TV, are William Ross and STV president Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver Jr., while Proposition 14, repealing the Rumford act, are Santa Ana Board of Realtors vice president Richard Laughlin (pro) and State Senator Tom Rees (con).

There Really Is a Regis Philbin

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The only reason anybody would interview a guy named Regis Philbin would be to find out if there is a guy named Regis Philbin.

During a luncheon meeting with Regis, you keep expecting him to deny his name somewhere between the soup and salad.

However, he never does. In fact, he adds two middle names, making it Regis Francis Xavier Philbin. More than that, no man can ask.

Regis is a puckish young man that you'll be hearing a lot about on television. So you might just as well get used to his name.

The 31-year-old Philbin has been signed to take over Steve Allen's job as host of a syndicated high-time television show. (Starts 11 p.m. Monday, Channel 5).

* * * *

PHILBIN, a soft-spoken fellow whose Irish ancestry shows through his face, was formerly host on a San Diego television station show, playing the role of an inquisitor who brought out the best and worst in people.

Sometimes the worst in people rebounded to the disadvantage of Regis, as evidenced by an angry wrestler who busted Philbin's finger during an on-camera bit of spoofing that turned serious. Regis also got a ripped shirt and torn jacket.

Then there were the times he laid bricks with a bricklaying champion, practiced flycasting with a lady flycasting champ, hosted a frog-raising contest and was master of ceremonies at an eating competition between two hungry giants.

* * * *

ALL OF WHICH indicates how far Regis has come from the days when he was "too chicken" to enter show business.

"I was such a chicken," said Regis over a cup of coffee spiked with an ice cube. "I didn't know if I had enough talent. I never took a class in speech because I was afraid to stand up and speak."

Regis' present position is not for one who is chicken, especially since television is a business in which everybody is after you with an axe.

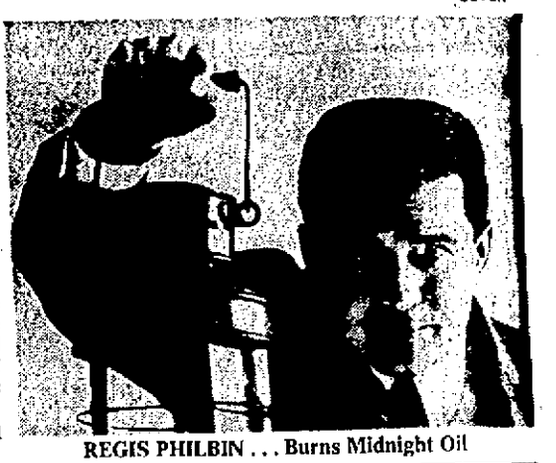

He is an unknown name following the popular Allen who left the show to become host of CBS-TV's "I've Got a Secret."

And he follows Allen into that jungle of television — the syndication field where shows are sold to individual stations instead of aired on a major network. Whereas Allen had 32 stations when he quit, Regis starts out with 19 and a lot of confidence.

It is confidence gained in the more than 10 years that Regis worked in television, starting as a page boy and working his way up through the ranks of messenger, parking-lot attendant and writer.

And although Regis may have been "chicken", he overcame his fears to the point where he once asked Evangelist Billy Graham if anybody had ever stolen his Bible.

"Somebody had," recalled Philbin.

SPECIAL

WHAT'S THIS SONG?— That old warhorse, led in TV's infancy by Bill Gwinn, returns in a new color format at 9:30 a.m., ch. 4, replacing the defunct "Word for Word." Lorne Greene and Beverly Garland team with studio contestants, with Win(k) Martindale as host for the musical quiz.

SPOOK-A-NANNY — Donna (BevHillbillies) Douglas and Bill (Martian) Bixby join creator Walter Lantz, magician Chuck Jones, Bob Adkins and his collie and host, "Jeepers Creepers" in a special half-hour Woody Woodpecker Halloween party for the kiddies at 6:30 p.m., ch. 13.

REGIS PHILBIN — Premiere. The offbeat host of ch. 10's (San Diego) longtime series moves into the seat vacated by Steve Allen at 11 p.m., ch. 5. Seen there recently as the week-long guest of Phyllis Diller during her guestint for vacationing Steverino, Philbin now joins the rat(e) race with Johnny Carson and, next month, Les Crane for the insomniac viewers. Liberace, Mary Kaye, astrologer Sydney Omarr are opening-night stars, with Ann Sothern a week-long guest.

SUE RANDALL makes a featured appearance during "Wendy and Me" at 8:30 p.m. Monday, channel 7.

Oscar-Winning Jose Wants TV Series

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The varied talents of Jose Ferrer have given him an uppercase reputation in show business, but the star would be happy to latch onto a popular television series.

He guests on "The Danny Kaye Show" Wednesday (10 p.m., channel 2).

"I don't blame Shirley Booth, George Scott or Ralph Bellamy, for example, for appearing in weekly video series," Ferrer said. "People who say they 'sold out' to television are crazy.

"Most people, and this includes the press, don't fully appreciate the economic handicaps under which a prominent performer works these days. Unless you're a Kirk Douglas or an Elizabeth Taylor and make movies for your own companies, you work for a salary."

• • • •

THE OSCAR winner and holder of many stage honors is willing to hop aboard the video bandwagon, but there are certain ifs.

"I don't want too much compromise," Ferrer explained. "Producers today run scared. They buy the rights of 'Lady Chatterly's Lover' and turn it into another 'Mrs. Miniver.' I respect men like Walt Disney and Joe Levine—they don't deceive you. Their stuff may not be your dish, but you know what to expect.

JOSE FERRER
As Danny's Guest

"I see that television is doing a 'Peyton Place' series this season. It will be fun to see if it doesn't come out like 'The Bobbsy Twins.'"

• • • •

FERRER actually signed for one television series a while back, he said, but compromise and vaccilation began to drain the juice from the original concept in an effort to keep from offending anyone. He bowed out.

The star will guest on Danny Kaye's variety hour again later in the season, and he will get a chance to demonstate his all-round entertainment talents.

"People know me as a serious actor, but I'd like to play night clubs and make records," Ferrer said. "The Kaye show and a few more like it may open the door. If television can make Shirley Booth into a housemaid, maybe it can do something for me."

SPECIAL

SPECIAL FOR WOMEN—Premiere. First of three Dinah Shore-hostessed daytime dramas stars Nina Foch and Martin Landau with Suzanna Cupito, June Dayton and Vinton Hayworth in the story of a woman lawyer assigned by the court to defend a man on trial for molesting a 10-year-old girl. There's a happy ending at 3 p.m., ch. 7, but the whole sordid subject of child molesting is explored.

MY FAIR LADY Premiere—Arthur Godfrey and Bill Burrud co-host gala ceremonies at the Egyptian Theatre for ch. 13 at 7 p.m. Among those expected to be interviewed during the "live" hour are stars Audrey Hepburn and Rex Harrison, plus benefit co-chairmen Frank Sinatra and Natalie Wood.

ONE WEEK TO GO—Walter Cronkite moderates a "Campaign '64" roundtable at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, as CBS correspondents assigned to top candidates view the men, campaign and issues.

JOHN QUINN—Why television leaders had urged pre-election repeal of the "equal time" ruling is exemplified at 8 p.m., ch. 2. As a result of demands resulting from the Oct. 5 Murphy-Salinger debate, a free half-hour goes to John Quinn for the Socialist-Labor party.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON—The President, in his role as candidate, takes part in a coast-to-coast half hour political appeal at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, preempting "The Beverly Hillbillies."

I would like to know why "Wagon Train" isn't in color this season.

We bought our color set last fall and "Wagon Train" was one of our favorite color programs.

Since there are other color shows on in the same time slot, it seems to me they'll lose a lot of viewers—including us.

Sharon Fambrough, Norwalk

There was not enough sponsor interest in "Wagon Train" to pay the added cost this season of continuing color telecasting.

The Olympic games have always been events that stir me and I always wished that I could be a part of them.

But, not having the world-wide ability to participate, I have always applauded the efforts of our unselfish youth who have won medals for the good old U.S.A.

In 1960 we were afforded wonderful coverage of these events on the TV screen at a reasonable hour.

Now we have to arrange to be at the set from 11 p.m. to midnight

It seems to me that this Olympic games is more important than any other program and could be placed earlier in the evening so everyone can see it.

Carl B. Winkler, Artesia

While NBC-TV — who won the telecast rights for the Olympics—hasn't said so officially, they obviously don't believe "everyone" wants to watch the games.

Their generally late-night scheduling keeps their regular prime-time programs intact for habit viewers.

SPECIAL

RAWHIDE—Three "firsts" in this one! It's the dramatic TV debut for singer Dean Martin . . . the first Western for prolific writer Stirling Silliphant . . . and the first role of a priest for veteran actor (his fan club just observed its 36th birthday) Ramon Navarro. For his last job before retiring, a professional gunfighter is hired to kill the town's leading and most popular citizen. Featured, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, are Laura Devon (ex-Boone) as the devoted wife who tries to dissuade him, Theodore Bikel as a newspaperman, Jack Kruschen as a bartender and Michael Ansara as the intended victim. Martin refused doubles for stunt work in segment produced by Jack Arnold, recently assigned to "Gilligan's Island."

CHRYSLER THEATRE — Four-time Emmy-winner Art Carney stars as a museum curator with a shady past in a tongue-in-cheek caper at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Balking at an offer of a million dollars if he'll steal the world's second - most - valuable painting, entrusted to his care, he then must forestall the heist by three separate gangs of thieves, led by Spring Byington, Mike Mazurki and Reginald Denny. Featured are Mark Lawrence, Eleanor Audley, Art Aragon, Roland LaStarza and, as himself, TV (ch. 9) host John Willis.

You don't need glasses . . .

You need a new WINEGARD COLORTRON ANTENNA

You need a more powerful TV antenna to clear up that picture. One that takes more of the signal from the airwaves, and amplifies it before it reaches your set. When your set receives a strong, clean signal from the antenna, your picture becomes sharp, clear, bright . . . more enjoyable.

Model for model, Winegard's new electronic Colortrons are the world's most powerful antennas. Distant stations come in clearer and sharper. Snow and interference are reduced or eliminated.

For color or black & white, you can't own a finer antenna for best reception. Priced from $64.90. Antenna without electronic amplifier $24.95 up.

NO FREEZER? WHY NOT RENT ONE!!
Yes, for the first time, you can rent a home freezer for the low, low price of only $4.00 per month. (No obligation to buy.) This is an exclusive offer of Candlewood Meats to enable you to take advantage of volume buying — without the expense of purchasing a freezer. The money you save will more than pay for the rental, plus give you the convenience of a super market in your home.

OUR COVER

Rarest among athletes are the super-stars, and rarer yet are teams blessed with two. So when basketball experts sit down to isolate the five best players in the world they don't look far after the Los Angeles Lakers. Elgin Baylor (No. 22) and Jerry West (No. 44) are so good that opponents concentrate on stopping the other Lakers. Baylor and West CAN'T be stopped — except, as they were last season, by themselves. The Lakers swept to two consecutive Western Division championships in the National Basketball Association until the 1963-64 campaign, when injuries struck down their deadeye duo. But now Jerry's jumpin' and Elgin's ticking, so Laker hopes are bright. Don Hardin tells all about it on Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

History has proven that Presidential elections are not always "in the bag" until all the votes have been counted. Charles Evans Hughes discovered this to his sorrow, and so did Tom Dewey. But there were also several others who learned the hard way. Read "Squeakers in Presidential Elections" next week in Southland.

Khrushchev Feared Death by Poisoning

By Hoyt McAfee

ALTHOUGH Nikita Krushchev boasted of having a "monstrous new terrible weapon" before his fall from power in the Soviet Union, he lived in mortal fear that some enemy would slip atomic dust into his coffee or food and "shrivel" him to death! On his last fence-mending and "good neighborly" tour about Europe, I can reveal authoritative that Soviet security agents, armed with Geiger counters, preceded him everywhere. Their sole duty was to examine all food prepared for Mr. K's consumption to make sure it contained no atomic dust!

His other security guards went armed—as always—with pistols and small daggers (concealed under their coats). But the Geiger counter detail enjoyed "top billing" over them. They had the devil of a time keeping their Geiger devices under wraps and, in fact, both in Denmark and Poland intelligence agents of those countries caught glimpses of what they were doing.

Hungry? British intelligence says Khrushchev feared atom dust would be slipped in his food.

ADDITIONALLY, two alternate British agents of branch No. 5, the secret arm of England's military intelligence, watched Russian Geiger counter men test food before Khrushchev ate it. I now have an informal and authentic report of their observations as supplied by a "pipeline"—an alert, intelligent, and reliable British girl who knows whereof she speaks.

She, working with a woman British agent designated in Old Bailey Court, London, as "Miss K," not long ago helped to smash a Russian secret-spy ring. It was operating inside the British navy base at Portland. She and her female colleague kept the two key links of the espionage group under surveillance—namely, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kroger.

Other intelligence agents of branch No. 5—who are designated in official reports as "the matchless men"—shadowed master spy Gordon Lonsdale for months. Posing as an American naval attache, he quickly enlisted two "pliable" employes in his conspiracy — Henry Houghton and his sweetheart, Ethel Gee, names that turned out to be aliases.

AFTER MEETING them covertly, Lonsdale (who also carried a forged Canadian passport) would follow a roundabout route to the suburban cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kroger. From that rendezvous, he used a short-wave radio to transmit information damaging to Great Britain's security to Moscow.

That was the second big case on which my friend (I'm instructed to refer to her as Miss C) worked. It gave her considerable satisfaction, both as an intelligence agent and a patriot, to have a hand in putting the grappling hooks into spies Lonsdale, the Krogers, Henry Houghton, and Ethel Gee.

I first met the high-spirited British girl (now Miss C) during a series of magazine assignments along the U.S.-Mexico border. These called for me to go prowling with customs' agents and members of the U.S. Border Patrol's special detail. Miss C, a business secretary in Texas at that time, convinced the American agents that she could be trusted.

ACCORDINGLY, she was permitted to "tag along" discreetly in the background on some of my writing assignments with the border patrol: all of which had to do with dope, diamonds, and other forms of smuggling. What she saw and learned on those outings sold her on a career in some branch of intelligence work. Bidding us "cheerio," she returned to London. She knew what she wanted and pursued her goal with relish and determination.

After an intensive training course, she pulled a "wire" in Great Britain's Home Office. Her contact there was instrumental in paving the way for her first assignment as a female agent with branch No. 5. (An agency which, incidentally, now employs several highly trained young women agents—dedicated young women who wear an assortment of disguises to carry out their assignments.)

Now that I've explained Miss C's credentials, I wish to add that we corresponded fairly regularly as a result of the "good old days" down along the border. Her revealing comments about the recent tour of Khrushchev and his overriding fear of being poisoned by atomic dust or bacteria violate no British security regulations.

Why, the reader may wonder, did the Russian dictator harbor an all-pervading obsession about atomic dust particles? He and his inner circle had good reason to be concerned about such a danger, my informant emphasizes.

FOR HIS OWN secret agents a while back conceived and initiated the hellish method of "rubbing out" a "traitor" by sneaking atomic dust into his food or drink! This has occurred —I can reveal—in two specific instances. ("There have been other reports of it happening, but our intelligence sources have been unable to document them," Miss C adds.)

One was a hard-driving, ruthless Russian "controller" in Great Britain. For months he took advantage of the political bitterness of well-placed Englishmen (and paid them lucrative fees as well) to elicit valuable information about Britain's latest atomic and radar devices.

Sometimes by secret courier and again by powerful short-wave radio, he relayed the data to Russian intelligence in Moscow. Finally, however, the "nameless men" from Britain's branch No. 5 caught the master Russian spy, or "controller." In time, they prevailed upon him to "sing"—to bare details of the Soviet spy apparatus in Great Britain.

In return for his cooperation, the Home Office granted him asylum—and a chance to start life anew—in a small English village. Unfortunately, other Russian secret agents finally tracked him to his hideout.

WHETHER they tricked him (the defector) into meeting them somewhere and

Pockets Full of Gold

By Retta E. Ewers

SOME years ago, when gold was worth its own weight, it was often found by pure accident and when least expected.

Nature is a great prankster in her methods of hiding and revealing her treasures. Stories of men's dealing with her, and her fickleness, are full of drama and romance.

A short time ago, in Salome, Ariz., an excavation was being dug for Dick Wick Hall, famous humorist, over which he was to build his home. While excavating, a pocket of gold ore was struck worth $150,000. Search as they would, no amount of hard work in the surrounding area produced a penny's worth of gold.

Of all mines discovered in the Far West, there are none, perhaps, more dramatic in history than those in Tombstone area.

RIDING ALONE one day in the Apache Indian Territory, Ed Schieffelin, a lonely prospector, came upon the skeletons of two men. His attention to them had been drawn by the shying of his pack animal. Outstretched arms of the two men reached toward a pile of rocks, as if attempting to grasp some with dying fingers.

Ed stopped to examine a rock and found it to be rich gold ore. Nearby was an outcropping of a pegmatite dyke, in which mineral is often found. He set up claims, naming them Tombstone, because his friends had told him, "All you'll ever find will be your own tombstone."

Two years later a city of 14,000 stood on the spot; a gut-totin', rip-roarin' city destined to go down in history as the wildest town the Wild West ever bred.

Many of the great mining developments in the early West owe their origin to U.S. soldiers stationed in the Territory during the Indian uprisings.

GLOBE, a silver and gold bonanza town came about by accident. While scouting for renegade Indians, a soldier picked up a large nugget of almost pure silver. It was not an isolated piece, since the whole hill was well sprinkled with large and small nuggets. Other diggings unearthed silver, copper and gold worth millions.

Fighting and claim jumping were common occurrences. In one such happening, Ed Darnell, an Arizonan, came upon three men moving his monuments.

Shooting followed and resulted in the deaths of all four men. Before Ed cashed in, however, he wrote these words on a cartridge box: "three men jump my claim an I jump thim."

Months later a passing Indian found their remains. Subsequent testings proved the claims they fought over, to be of negligible value.

LOST MINE stories of lost California mines are legion, most famous being Dutch Oven, Lost Padres, Peg Leg, and Lee's silver lode. All are supposed to lie somewhere in the Mojave Desert.

Women as well as men, but in lesser numbers, find interest in running a test for gold.

Since the Feather River, above Oroville, was diverted to build a dam, prospectors have found gold in the dry river-bed.

Most recent gold discovery in California was at Del Webb's Sun City, 22 miles south of Riverside. While excavating for a reservoir, gold ore was encountered, but of insufficient value to be profitable.

Arizonans are certain of the existence of the Lost Dutchman mine in the Superstition Mountains, and many lives have been sacrificed in trying to locate it.

After his 23rd time at exploring the Rich Hill area in Arizona, Bill Esenwien accidently discovered his bonanza. This was in 1958. He still lives there.

RUNNING OUT of supplies while prospecting an area already thought to be played out, he took a heretofore untraveled shortcut over the mountains toward Stanton. En route he landed on an almost inaccessible ledge where gravel, sprinkled with hemetite, lay all about him, fairly shrieking a message of "Gold!"

He gathered up a few samples, marked the spot, and after crawling for half a mile through cat's claw, reached his destination.

Rich Hill lived up to its name. It had produced millions and bred three towns, Weaver, Octavo and Stanton. Only Stanton remains today with a population of six persons.

Esenwien named his claim The Aurora, and the abilities of a mountain goat are needed to reach it.

RICH HILL is wealthy in other minerals and gem stones, especially garnets, finest ever seen, according to Esenwien. Black sand is radioactive, indicating uranium; sheelite is present in commercial quantities.

The prospector in this area could emerge with his pockets full of gold. But the price is high and water is scarce, so he is forewarned.

Mechanical Doctor

By G. Winston Ross and Dick LaCosta

ALMOST everyone needs a doctor at some time or other during his life. Few would quarrel with that fact. But that statement applies especially to aerospace test pilots who are required at all times to be in tip-top physical condition.

Take test pilots, for instance.

When they push past the speed of sound (762 m.p.h. at sea level), bioastronautics medical men must know precisely the amount of stress and exactly the degree of strain they experience. This information, however slight, must be recorded, evaluated and checked against known medical facts.

Moreover, at no time in world history has it been more important for medical men to know more about physical man.

CURRENTLY, man stands at the very threshold of space. Soon, he will free himself of the fetters that bind him to earth. Only then will he be able to attempt piercing the atmospheric envelope that encases him as he tries to reach the moon.

Today, both military and civilian scientists constantly check aerospace pilots with one goal in mind: Insuring that today's aerospace men will tomorrow safely land on the earth's only natural satellite, the moon.

Some 65 miles inside the heart of America's Mojave Desert, where many of the world's aerospace records are made, scientists currently concern themselves deeply with the physical condition of their aerospace test pilots.

Until recently, scientists at this wind-whipped, sand-swept desert base were handicapped by not knowing exactly what stresses and strains the pilots experienced while traveling three, four and more times the speed of sound. Even after pilots landed, three or four hours often passed before data recorded while in flight could be evaluated.

Two U.S. Air Force pilots check mechanical doctor console at Edwards Air Force Base.

IN THE PAST, pilot-performance data were recorded on tape. The result was hours of study after flight were necessary before final medical evaluation could be made.

Today's test pilot, occupied with flying supersonic aircraft, watching dozens of instruments and manually recording observable information, may not become aware of dangerous situations in time to take corrective action.

The "Mechanical Doctor," officially called an Electronic Monitoring System, can in six seconds measure the stress a pilot undergoes while in flight. Not only can the mechanical doctor diagnose the pilot's physical condition but it also can simultaneously report and detail the aircraft's stresses.

Since the system requires no computation of data, graphs, or analyses, technicians on the ground are able to warn a pilot within seconds when dangerous situations arise. Aerospace scientists predict that the mechanical doctor may in the future save the lives of any test pilots.

ONE ADVANTAGE of the system is that it promptly relays to scientists on the ground a pilot's breathing rate, reaction time, blood pressure, heartbeat, body temperature, and volume of air breathed. It even employs a polygraph device, similar to that used on a lie detector, to show if the pilot feels nervous or becomes anxious. Lastly, it indicates attitudes, strains and stresses affecting the aircraft—including speed, pitch, roll, yaw, skin temperature, wing flutter and strain, and susceptibility to stall.

The mechanical doctor displays physical data on the aircraft and physiological data on the pilot on separate consoles. The consoles are the only ones known to be in existence in the world today. They were developed from ideas first presented by Air Force scientists and engineers stationed at this isolated base.

Aerospace scientists, engineers and technicians now envision use of the console on future space vehicles. One particular aircraft they're concerned with is the Manned Orbital Laboratory (MOL), an orbiting, globe-girdling, boost glide vehicle. They add, without crossing their fingers, the console may even save the life of the Dyna-Soar pilot as he plunges into the earth's atmospheric envelope from outer space.

That alone would make additional scientific research on the console well worthwhile. And save the lives of future spacemen.

The Action Starts Wednesday!

Lakers' 1-2 Punch: Baylor and West

By DON HARDIN

Jerry West is one-half of the Los Angeles Lakers' one-two scoring punch. West will be back in action with hopes for a big year on the NBA boards.

Elgin Baylor is the other half of the big punch for the Lakers. Bothered by knee troubles last season, big Elgin is back looking better than ever.

LOS ANGELES LAKERS of the National Basketball Assn. have embarked upon their fifth season since moving west. Next Wednesday, following four road games, they will open their home campaign at the L.A. Sports Arena against the Baltimore Bullets. As usual, they are relying upon perhaps the most respected one-two punch in the league, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor.

This particular combo has more flavor than any in the nine-team circuit and their combined scoring averages consistently have been higher than any other one-two tandem in the league. This, plus the fact that each is personably likeable, has helped the Lakers to lead the NBA in attendance, at home and on the road, for the past three years. This is the only team ever to attract more than 16,000 for a single game date.

Baylor and West have played together for four years—that's since the Lakers left Minneapolis. Jerry was a raw rookie and Elgin was entering his third year as a prolific pro. Between the two—Baylor, a Negro, and West, a Southern white — there never has been any animosity nor jealousness. In fact, they are the best of friends.

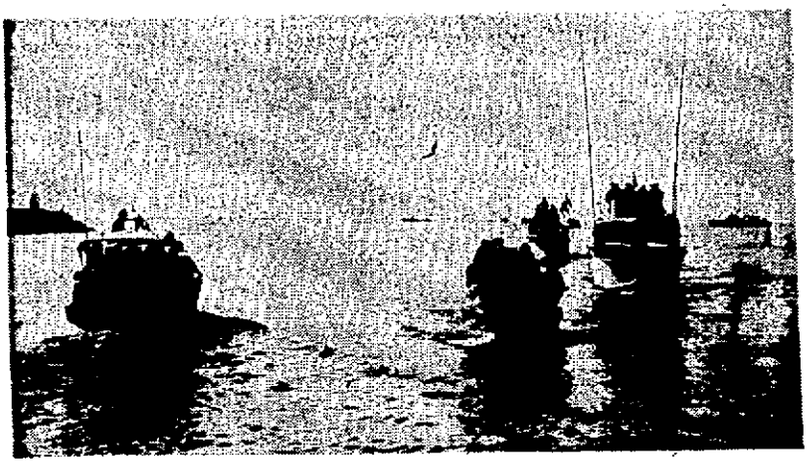

EACH IS SHY to a great extent but never fails to answer reporters' queries. Each is a good family man and under contract to the Lakers year-round, rather than just the basketball season.

Although the Lakers proved to be the most profitable club last season, owner Bob Short and general manager Lou Mohs continue to cringe because of the salaries they have to deal out to these fine stars.

When rookie West signed his first contract, it was for three years at approximately $18,000 per, plus a bonus. The salary since has skyrocketed. Baylor has been lounging around the past few years at the $50,000 mark. But, each is deserving of every dollar. Look at it this way:

In his first season at Minneapolis, Baylor averaged 24.9 points, the next season,

California is in the midst of an aquatic sports explosion that will see Californians owning more than a million pleasure craft by 2000.

Search for Relaxation

There's a Boat in Your Future

By LOU JOBST

IT IS VARIOUSLY known as the aquatic explosion, the boating boom and the recreation revolution. Its sounds are the thunder and roar of revving marine engines, the flat slap of keels on the water, the snap and crackle of sail and the crash of a rolling surf.

It is an affluent society's attempt to handle more and more spare time—a search for relaxation that has become a frenzied industry and a sport-hobby of magnitude and scope that pose formidable political and economic problems for the future.

This mass flight to the beaches and out on the briny threatens to turn California into one continuous anchorage, a sailor's highway stretching from San Diego to San Francisco.

BOATING, the backbone of this out-of-doors explosion and already big in California, the nation's most populous state, is bound to get bigger, the experts say.

The state's 17 million residents now own about 300,000 (120,000 in coastal Southern California) boats, ranging from huge 180-foot schooners to 8- and 10-foot skiffs, or about 17 craft per 1,000 citizens.

While these figures might appear impressive in the bulk, numerically, California is only third in the nation in total numbers of boats, trailing both Michigan and New York.

Percentage-wise, on the basis of numbers of boats per people, the Golden State is way down the list, ranking number 22.

WITH 850 MILES of superb coastline and more than 2,000 miles of inland waterways, mostly accessible to trailers and cars, and a climate that favors year-round outdoor recreation the aquatic-boating industry has no way to go but up.

Up, asserts the state division of Small Craft Harbors, is going to be a precipitous climb.

Within 11 years the California recreation fleet is expected to number some 557,000 boats, or 23 boats per 1,000 persons.

By the year 2000, only 35½ years away, there will, DSCH claims, be one million pleasure boats in use in California.

THERE IS and will be plenty of water, ranging from the open main to the landlocked saline Salton Sea and including even fresh water lakes and high altitude reservoirs. In all, the state has 340 bodies of water available to boating, but only 200 have any kind of public facilities. Projects now under way or authorized will add another 45 by 1975.

Facilities for launching trailer-borne boats fall far short of needs for the present 300,000 small craft.

Dry storage for boats is provided in the plant that formerly housed the Ford unit on Cerritos Channel.

These efforts to add boating facilities are insufficient by present standards, claims the state agency, and threaten to get completely out of hand in the future.

"In terms of cost, today's shortages in harbors and facilities amount to about $195 million at present price levels," asserts the Division of Small Craft Harbors.

BY 1975, the shortage could be about $318 million even if all the presently planned projects are completed and current programs are continued."

Dealing with basic facilities the state, according to DSCH, now has 1,420 boat launching lanes* and needs 120 more to handle the present boat population; 45,840 mooring spaces or berths and needs 28,180 more immediately; has 12,000 dry storage spots and needs about 60,000.

In little more than a decade the minimum requirements for the state will be 3,730 launching lanes, 143,800 berths and 119,000 dry storage spaces.

The South Coastal area, which includes Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego Counties, now has 250 boat-launching lanes (needs 300), and 16,220 berths and slips (needs 8,610 more). By 1975 the Southland facilities will have been expanded to 380 launching lanes and 36,000 moorings, according to the state.

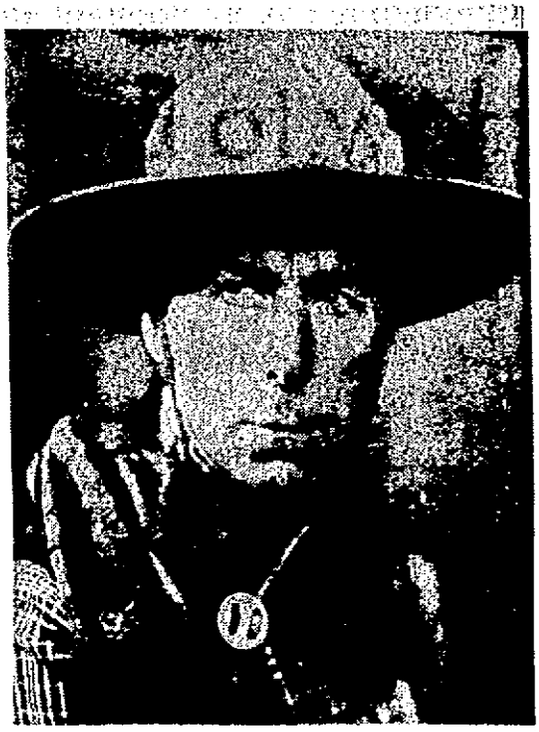

IDEALLY, THE STATE envisions a system that incorporates both multipurpose harbors and harbors of refuge.

The latter, which may be full blown harbors or nothing more than breakwaters, navigation aids, dredged channels or turning basins, should be located every 35 miles up and down the coast. This distance was selected arbitrarily as the distance any small craft, the crew of which keep themselves advised of weather conditions, could travel in sufficient time to take shelter from an impending storm.

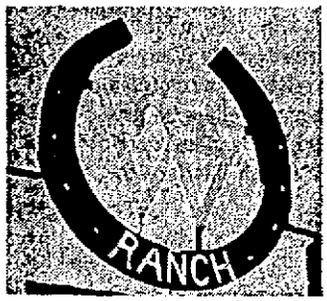

At present there are 32 such safe anchorages in the state and there is a minimum need for 49.

*(A lane is defined as a facility upon which 2,000 boats a year can be launched in an area where the boating season is six months long. In 1962, there were 2.6 million boat launchings in California.)

A Cowpoke's Legacy

In the days of silent films, a striking figure rode tall in the western saddle. His name was William S. Hart, a name perpetuated today in his home that he willed to the people for a park.

By Bill Stephens

William S. Hart (top right) was a true-to-life Hollywood legend of silent western films, and he left a legacy of reminders of his heyday. Above, the entry to his estate, now a park, and his initials set into a gateway at the entrance to the ranch.

POISED on a hill overlooking Santa Clarita Valley and Newhall is a large mansion filled with the presence of a man, who in his lifetime became a true-to-life legend.

William S. Hart's home, La Loma de Los Vientos (Hill of the Winds), is filled with movie mementos of the late silent film star, as well as relics of the Old West that Hart knew and depicted so well in his movies.

Hart willed his home and Horseshoe Ranch to the people of Los Angeles County as a park before he died in 1946. Characteristic of the actor was a remark he made before his passing, "While I was making pictures, the people gave me their nickels, dimes and quarters. When I am gone, I want them to have my home."

Warren M. Dorn, chairman of the board of supervisors, describes William S. Hart Park as "a monument to Hart, the early movie industry, and the West." The park is maintained by the County Parks and Recreation Department.

ASIDE FROM ITS purely historical interest, the park's rolling grounds, sweeping vistas, and other features provide a family searching for weekend diversions with a neat recreation package.

The 233½-acre county park has picnic facilities, a corral enclosing farm and wild animals, a cemetery for Hart's dogs and horses, a bunkhouse, trails, a barn and other points of interest.

Visitors may hike or be ferried up by bus to Hart's mansion, located approximately one mile from the picnic area, at Newhall Avenue and San Fernando Road, Newhall.

The late star's home, considered one of the finest examples of Spanish-Mexican architecture, contains oil paintings and other art by Charles M. Russell, considered the greatest American artist produced by the West. His works pictorialize Indian and pioneer conflicts, buffalo hunts, and other subjects which a reviewer has said, "preserve for us, as accurately as possible, the essence of an era that has vanished."

ALSO STORED or displayed in the home are movie props; Hart's gun collection, which includes Indian hunting rifles and a six-shooter attributed to Billy the Kid; a hunting axe inscribed "Carson 1861" (Kit Carson); furniture, Hart's library, sculpture, Sioux war gear, and art treasures.

Hart's colorful personality is reflected everywhere on the Horseshoe Ranch and in La Loma de Los Vientos.

His boyhood was spent in the West, where he learned to speak Sioux from Indian friends and where he met the frontier personalities he was later to portray on the screen with a realism and accuracy never equalled before or since.

In the middle of a successful stage career, in which he created the role of Messala in "Ben Hur" and the title role of "The Virginian," Hart recognized the potential of the infant motion picture industry.

In 1913, he arrived in Hollywood to attempt breaking into western films. At the time, westerns were totally untrue to life and poor financial risks. After a year's effort, Hart failed to find a backer for a feature-length film or a promise of a contract, but did manage to complete two one-reelers.

DISCOURAGED by his failure to accomplish more, Hart returned to New York. A telegram was waiting for him on his arrival, with an offer of a contract and the future in movies that saw him become Hollywood's highest paid performer in 1915.

His two short one-reelers, reluctantly released by the backers, proved instant successes — giving a Hollywood touch to the nevertheless true beginning of Hart's fantastic career.

His name may be dulled by time, and perhaps there are few around today who idolized the western star four decades ago, but William S. Hart was the Gary Cooper, John Wayne and Tom Mix of his time.

Hart's last movie, "Tumbleweeds," was completed in 1926. With the advent of regulating scripts and production by public relations men, Hart's independence as a producer, and his insistence on it, lost him his battle to remain in films.

"TUMBLEWEEDS" played in 11,033 of the nation's 14,000 theaters, but lost money when the industry closed the doors of first-run theaters to the star's movie.

In 1931, Hart, equipped with an excellent stage voice, recorded a prologue to a projected re-release of "Tumbleweeds," which might have brought him back into movies, bigger and more popular than ever.

Legal complications blocked the release, and Hart's voice was—like the man—to remain silent in that era of silent films which he helped shape.

How to Embrace, Hollywood Style

WHILE Bob Hope and Dina Merrill were rehearsing a kissing scene in "I'll Take Sweden," Bob's new comedy film produced by Edward Small for United Artists release, the comedian decided to "try out" the bussing style of several Hollywood personalities before picking the correct one for his role of an American business man in love with a pretty Swedish interior decorator.

1. "This will take a little thought," reflects Bob Hope as he ponders his category of embraces.

2. "Let's try the Rock Hudson style—strong and forceful!" Dina Merrill's ready to be convinced.

3. "How about Rossano Brazzi?—the continental touch." Dina thinks that might be good, too.

4. "Now the eyes closed bit—every other Hollywood leading man does this one," Dina's waiting.

5. "Let's settle on comedian style—the world needs all the laughs it can get these days."

Southland Magazine

Beautiful, and Deadly, Lady

By Isabel Macomber

SCIENTISTS BELIEVE the drug used in unethical brain washing in Communist "trials" is scopolamine, the active principle of henbane. The drug works as a cerebral sedative, and is used medicinally to calm the agonies of delirium tremens or the withdrawal symptoms of drug addiction. Henbane, a member of the nightshade family, has famous relatives.

One, Datura arborea, is handed across Southland fences as though it were a common garden - variety shrub. "Just stick a branch in the ground and it will grow," one neighbor tells another. It has white lilies eight inches long hanging from the ends of the branches. The leaves are oval, pointed at the tip, flattened at the base.

The drug stramonium whose properties are like belladonna's, except it is more relaxing to the unstriped muscle of the bronchial tubes, is obtained from it. Used in cigarettes it relieves asthmatic attacks. In the days of Nero, a Greek physician, Dioscorides, wrote: "The root being drunk with wine has the power to arouse not unpleasant fantasies. But two drams being drunk makes a man beside himself for three days and four being drunk will kill him."

PLUTARCH, writing the life of Mark Antony, said this about Antony's soldiers eating belladonna in a retreat from the Parthians: ". . . they remembered nothing in the world, and employed themselves only in moving great stones from one place to another, which they did with as much earnestness and industry as if it had been a business of the greatest consequence."

There is a story of Hannibal using mandrake to win a victory over rebellious Africans. Making a sham retreat, he left huge jars of mandragora wine. After the enemy had moved up and drunk the wine, Hannibal returned and imprisoned them.

Macbeth, king of Scotland, used similar tactics. Pretending a truce, he sent bread with wine and ale — mixed with belladonna leaves — to the enemy. Macbeth did not take prisoners, but massacred the drugged soldiers.

A BABYLONIAN remedy for toothache: powdered henbane seeds mixed with resin.

Roman Legionnaires gave a drink of mandragora wine to men about to be crucified to ease their pain.

It is believed belladonna was the drug used in the wine was also used in the midnight witches' rites in the depths of the Hartz Mountains in Bavaria to produce hallucinations. After initiation, the "witches" were rubbed with a salve made of the crushed leaves. The 13th century bishop, Albertus Magnus, said belladonna or henbane was used in brews made by necromancers to conjure up demons.

The word belladonna comes from two Italian words: bella—beautiful, and donna—lady, because Italian ladies used a drop of the juice in their eyes to give sparkle and enlarge the pupils. It did blur their vision, but they willingly suffered this.

Blue nightshade, and black nightshade, which are sometimes fatal to grazing animals, grow in the United States.

The Irish potato is a member of this family. The "eyes" and new sprouts contain solanine.

TOBACCO is also a nightshade, and nicotine a very toxic drug.

One member of the family that is now respected is the tomato. In Colonial days

Early American blends with stylings of other periods in the living room of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Day. Stove and wallpaper add novel touch to entry.

Spread low and deep, the Day home is pleasingly landscaped in keeping with exterior design and texture.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Stylings Merge in a Happy Blend

By Stella George

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Day, 3730 Country Club Drive, is distinctive for many reasons, not the least of which is the fact that it features an Early American decor with subtle blendings of other periods.

A unique decoration in the entry hall is a small black coal stove where warm, red artificial embers cast a rosy glow of welcome. A used brick fireplace is in the center of the right wall. Large windows on either side are draped in ruffled white. A low coffee table is directly in front of the fireplace, surrounded with large pillows. In one corner is a plaid chair and hassock with a tiled end table on one side and a tiny, marble-topped milk stool on the other. Lamps are milk glass.

IN ANOTHER corner of the room twin French Provincial chairs are upholstered in avocado quilted silk. The handsome lamp on the table between the chairs is fashioned to look like an antique oil lamp, with a wick inside the green glass. Beside the comfortable wing-back chair near one of the windows is a low carved chest. In the opposite corner are a small sofa and a rocking chair. Furnishings are in impeccable taste and, since the room is extra large and furniture kept at a minimum, the feeling of spaciousness is greater than ever. Mrs. Day did her own decorating.

As in most homes, the family room is the most used room in the house. At one end is a walk-in bar surrounded by four large stools. Nearby is a maple drop-leaf table and two chairs. At the other end of the room a curved sofa faces a built-in unit across the way. The latter is tailored to accommodate the TV, books, and knickknacks picked up from all over the world.

A LEATHER CHAIR and small occasional chair are on either side of the sofa with a round coffee table accessible to all three. A marbled corner table behind the sofa serves as a lamp table. The floor tile has inlaid squares of large playing cards, appropriate and interesting for this type of room. A small desk and chair are near the windows. A swordsman from England is on the wall above. Shelves, holding more treasured knickknacks, line the large windows which face the garden.

The sunny yellow kitchen is modern with every fine appliance. There is a dining area at one end and the front windows face the street. The bedroom wing is at the other end of the home.

The garden has a delightful country atmosphere. Just outside the door in the family room which leads to the patio and garden is a tomato vine which has climbed to more than six feet in height. Full grown trees shade the ping pong table. Shrubs and plants flourish in abundance.

TV and records are handy in this convivial corner of the family room. A novel idea is seen in the playing cards design set into the floor tile.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Cholesterol No Sure Test

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

YOUR cholesterol level in the blood is no sure-fire diagnostic test, a new study indicates.

Researchers at Baylor University's medical school found that 8 of 10 patients suffering from hardening of the arteries had cholesterol levels within normal range.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance occurring naturally in the body. Some physicians think that excessive levels of cholesterol in the blood may lead to heart attack or stroke as a result of contributing to thickening of the arteries.

MANY OF the pneumonias in children and young adults are caused by a micro-organism known as Mycoplasma pneumoniae, a government scientist reports.

The organism caused pneumonia in about 3% to 10% of persons infected by it, says Dr. Robert M. Chanock of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. However, many persons harbor the organism without experiencing symptoms.

Tetracycline antibiotics are effective against the organism.

MEN WHOSE JOBS require little physical activity develop fewer cancers, a 15-year study of 60,000 workers discloses.

On the other hand, these same men—managers and clerks—have a high rate of death from coronary heart disease.

The finding is that of Dr. P. G. M. Schram of the occupational health department of the Dutch Postal and Telecommunications Service. The report is in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for doctors.

MEN, ARE YOU troubled with heartburn? Have a doctor check it out, of course, but don't panic.

It may be only your belt, notes Dr. G. H. Jennings in the British Medical Journal.

Examination of elderly men complaining of heartburn often discloses nothing significant except "a pink zonal indentation around the upper abdomen, due to tight trousers or the wearing of a belt."

If this is the case, try suspenders, suggests Dr. Jennings.

BIRTH CONTROL pills can sometimes cause liver damage, University of Helsinki researchers report in the British Medical Journal.

Seven women who already had undergone the menopause were given the drugs for 28 days. In every patient the drugs "provoked liver injury," the researchers found.

The doctors now think the effect of the drugs on the livers of younger women should be studied in detail.

BOYS—at least in Argentina—have a faster daily hair growth than do girls, researchers there report.

A new study described in the Journal of Investigative Dermatology also discloses that boys aged 3 to 9 years have thicker scalp hair than girls of the same ages.

Reptile Shoes a Hit for Autumn

FEET FIRST into fall comes the elegant new pretender to the fashion footwear throne, Congo Crocco. And just in time to show itself off proudly in the wildest season for reptile shoes and boots in many a moon. Congo Crocco is a soft, supple leather embossed to resemble the real thing so cleverly that only a real crocodile would know for sure. Fits into a budget so beautifully you might very well walk away with a style for every occasion, and a color to match your mood.

Fleming Joffe, one of America's most creative leather tanners, has developed Congro Crocco exclusively for the shoes shown here in these latest fashion plates from Brown Shoe Company.

The easy life calls for pants . . . and pants mean boots, to complete the picture. A great way to carry off the long leggy look is with Miss America bootshoes, the slip-on variety that just meet the cuffs of slim tailored, sharply creased pants.

The plush touch for skirts that move, move, move can be found in gleaming black Congo Crocco Naturalizer pumps—especially attractive with the latest hand-finished maple heels.

The walking shoe? Air Step and Congo Crocco make an exciting combination. Lots of crocodile-y touches in a traditional walking shoe to go with gently shaped daytime fashions.

Another great daytime look combines school girl appeal with smashing sophistication. Softly tailored skirts or shifts that bare the knee accent the active, casual life. They should be worn with brilliant colored textured stockings. The logical shoe? Congo Crocco slip-ons by Life Stride to finish it off with a flair.

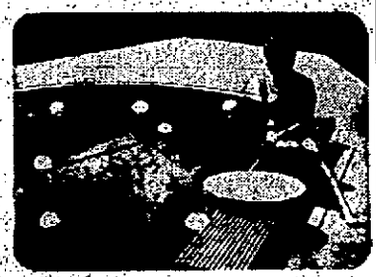

Young and breezy is the feeling when you wear a simply styled Congo Crocco flat. Risque has them in many hues and colors—made to match with fall's newest fabrics.

Of course, the grade school set goes for Congo Crocco. Buster Brown's T-straps in Congo Crocco get A-plus for fashion.

Quick and Easy Cherry Dessert

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Cheery Cherry Crisp simplifies preparation of desert. Serve with a rich dairy topping.

WE DOUBT if there is in existence a simple recipe for making a dessert as good as this Cheery Cherry Crisp. Excellent when served warm or cold and "as is" . . . it is especially designed (and exceptionally good) to be served warm topped with whipped cream, dairy sour cream or softened vanilla ice cream.

Recipe makes 8 to 12 serv-served as a snack or as a regular dessert.

Cheery Cherry Crisp

2 cans pitted sour pie cherries
½ cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1 package yellow cake mix (standard size)

Pour cherries and juice into 9x13-inch pan. Cut butter into dry cake mix with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles corn meal. Sprinkle evenly over cherries. Bake in moderate, 375 degree, oven 30-35 minutes or until top is crisp and lightly browned. Serve warm topped with vanilla ice cream, whipped cream or dairy sour cream.

Topping Note: Whipped cream may be flavored with almond extract if desired. Children seem to like ice cream best on this, and the adults who have tasted it liked the dairy sour cream.

Wine, Anyone?

America is becoming wine-conscious. And it's no joke that Fred Beck—gourmet, wine taster and pixie—is doing more than a little to bring this about.

Consider "The Fred Beck Wine Book" (Hill & Wang, $4.95) a happy book just out, in which he presents not only the basic facts on wine, but also fascinations dear to tender, wine-loving hearts.

Not only does Beck reveal the secrets of a wine judge, but gives the reader a descriptive trip through dozens of California wineries and what to look for in each. And he lays his Mark Twain touch upon California vintages, the "storied wines of France," of lordly price, the wines of Germany, "the happy wines of Italy," "the noble wines of Spain," and lush and mellow wines of Portugal. No wine buff would swap his book for the most expensive magnum of champagne!

Recipe of the Week

WHEN IT'S TEATIME for Mrs. Frances J. Lenden, Box 1191, Oakland 4, Calif., she has a recipe that she prizes, and this recipe wins the $5 prize as best of the week. Here it is:

Delectabites for Tea

½ cup shortning, part butter
¾ cup light brown sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg
1 cup all purpose flour, sifted before measuring
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
2 cups puffed rice
½ cup chopped pecans

Mix the shortening and sugar until light and fluffy then add flavoring and the egg and beat thoroughly. Sift the dry ingredients together three times and stir into the egg mixture. Fold in the puffed rice and nuts. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet, flattening each with a fork. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 minutes.

If you prefer crisp cookies, let cool on cookie sheet, otherwise lift out carefully while still hot and let cool on heavy paper. Makes 2½ dozen.

A She or a He, Ship's a Ship

By Lou Jobst

THERE is no more pithy question than: Why is a boat a she and not a he?

People have been pondering the point almost from the moment the first man climbed aboard a floating log and paddled away from the bank.

And like most great unresolved issues there are nearly as many different views as there are viewers which is exactly what the American Merchant Marine Institute learned when it tossed the question to the public some time back.

THE ARGUMENTS ranged from the ridiculous to the erudite and included both punning and punditry.

A ship is a miss, claimed those with a salty command of the King's English, because it (opps) she is dressed like a lady. The feminine garb school points out that a vessel wears stays (ropes), jewels (small blocks), combings (hatch edges), laces (riggings, short section of sail rope called earrings), and bonnets (engine and boat covers).

The ship also has a waist (amidships) and is the center of much bustle in port where her agent is called a husband.

ONE SAILOR wrote that a ship has to be a she because once in port the "first thing she does is head for the buoys."

Nonsense, amended a scholar, who claims the secret is psychological, asserting that in ancient times sea voyages took men away from home for years and that the sailor saw in his ship the representation of those things longed for—female love, female security and warmth.

A less profound, but seemingly practical syllogism, from Texas, held:

"First there is always a gang of men around her and second it takes a lot of paint to make her look good and third (and probably most convincing) she's cranky, unpredictable and hard to get along with."

The literary-inclined argue both the Bible and Shakespeare support the "she" view.

WROTE THE BARD in "Winter's Tale" ". . . now the ship boring the moon with her mainmast" and the third verse of Acts VVI states "and sailed into Syria and landed at Tyre, for there the ship was to unlade her burden."

There is substantial factual evidence to support claims that woman usurped man at sea.

Ship, they argue, is a masculine noun in Italian, Spanish, French and Portuguese and is neuter in Germanic tongues.

Ships are called merchantmen, men-of-war and Indiamen.

Phoenicians, purportedly the first civilized sailors, put to sea in vessels carrying figureheads of male animals, not maidens.

There are countless written works referring to ships as He.

But the best argument—and a purely personal waterfront observation — is that sailors are prone to use language aboard fit for no lady's ears.

Deadly Lady

called love apples, they were believed to be poisonous. About 1825, an Italian painter, Michele Corne arrived in Newport, R.I. The house where he lived bears a marker commemorating his tomato as an edible fruit.

The drug belladonna is obtained from dried leaves. The leaves and roots of the plant contain 0.3 to 0.4% of the drug. It is used in the relief of coughs, excessive perspiration, to dilate the pupil of the eye, and externally to relieve pain. In small doses it relaxes the spasms in nervous stomachs. The maximum dose is 3 grains. The antidote is to wash out the stomach with 5% tannic acid solution.

At dusk datura lilies scent the air attracting hummingbirds and large moths. Whether, like henbane, datura is deadly to fowls, or whether hummingbirds enjoy dreaming of wild flights through the night, only the birds themselves know.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Study by Copying

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Our son brought home a passage from a famous book and said his teacher had instructed him to copy the passage several times and notice the style and punctuation of the writer. Wouldn't this sort of copying tend to rob a youngster of his individuality?"

ANSWER: Learning by examining and imitating a good model is approved procedure—especially in the field of the arts. In this way the student learns how the most competent persons in his field do their work.

He obtains certain fundamental principles, but since he is a unique human being, he could not be a carbon copy of his model even if he wished to be. In time he develops his own style, reflecting his own thoughts and personality.

Just make sure his model is the very best available.

QUESTION: Is a teacher just a transmitter of knowledge?

ANSWER: A good teacher is much more than that. He transmits knowledge, but he also translates and amplifies it. He shows the practical application of knowledge—how it can be used by the student in his daily life.

To use a simple example, the first grade teacher does not merely say: "This is a piece of chalk." She says: "This is a piece of chalk. Here's what we do with chalk." And then she demonstrates.

QUESTION: Should the teacher be the servant—or the master—of the student?

ANSWER: The word "servant" is inappropriate, and so is the word "master," for it conveys the idea of complete domination.

A teacher should not use the student as a sounding board for his own pet views, or provide help only on his own rigid terms. Rather, he should make himself available to the student as a guide, an answerer of questions, a helper.

This does not mean there should ever by any doubt as to who is in charge of classroom discipline. It does mean that the student should feel that the classroom exists as a friendly, helpful place created for his benefit—rather than as a place for the teacher to earn a living in the dual role of baby sitter and undisputed authority.

Camera Filters

Camera filters, like lenses should be handled and stored with care to keep them free of dust, fingerprints, and scratches. A dirty or scratched filter will only degrade the image-making quality of any lens with which it is used. A camel's hair brush is a good tool to use for removing dust and other foreign matter from filter surfaces; lens tissue should be used to get rid of finger smudges or other "unbrushable" blemishes.

Always brush first to avoid grinding solid particles into the glass; use the lens tissue with a gentle wiping motion, breathing on the surface being cleaned if needed to help loosen stubborn smears.

How to Hide a Railroad

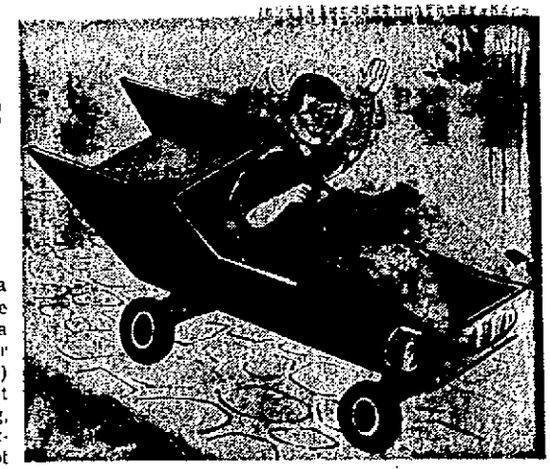

By Steve Ellingson

HERE'S a way to steal a little space along one side of a room and hide a whole railroad line in it. Or —if your boy (or his Dad) have taken up that newest indoor sport, slot racing, this hide-away table is exactly right for them. Slot racing, in case you haven't heard, is the newest fad among fathers and sons. It differs from railroading, in that small electric racing cars are used. The speed of each car is controlled by each participant and follows a small slot, or groove, in the floor of the shelf. Since each person can control the speed of his car, the races call for skill and get to be real exciting.

The fold-down train or slot racing table (see illustration) is eight feet long and four feet wide. It may be made longer in the event you have more wall space available. The handy part is, once you're through playing, the shelf may be folded up against the wall where it's out of the way. It protrudes only a few inches when folded and the peg-board face may be decorated to make it add to the appearance of your room. Many folks place these tables in their garage.

THERE ARE many other uses for a folding shelf such as this, for example, it's handy for mother when she lays out her sewing. Then too, there are many hobbies that call for a large work table and of course daughter will like it for her doll house and furniture.

TO ORDER, specify Train Table Pattern No. 362 and send $1 in currency, check or money order with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Every boy should experience the fun and excitement of having a push race car like this.

Home-Built Racer

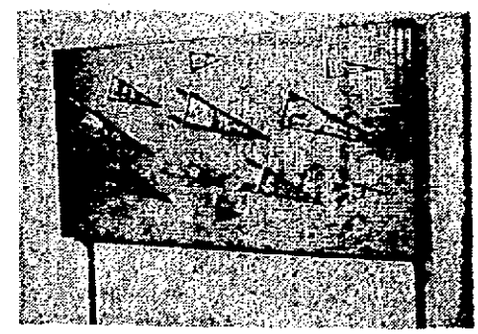

By Bill Meyerriecks

MORE than likely Dad made a home-built racer when he was around 9 or 10. It was the rage then, and still is one of the most satisfying and fun play projects around. The idea of playing grown up, of racing in the Indianapolis trials, of being a racing car driver is part of the fun of growing up.

Sketchbook this week presents a sleek design plan, S-182, for both Dad and his son to get together and build. And the son can do a great deal of the construction outside of handling the power or hand saw in cutting out the body parts. He can help assemble, paint and add the finishing touches.

The Sketchbook plan showing how the racer is made gives all parts and lumber lists. The cost of making the racer is moderate. One sheet of half-inch plywood plus a 16-inch width of ¾-inch plywood some four feet long are the lumber essentials. The wheel kit (which is detailed in the plan) is the only other major expense. Or if you are clever at adapting wheels from another toy around the home, you can use these and cut your costs considerably.

To obtain Sketchbook Plan S-182, send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Intrigues of World War I

By VERA WILLIAMS
Scotland Magazine Book Editor

WITH THE Civil War thoroughly covered in the flood of books that marked its centennial, attention now focuses on World War I.

In the forefront of the books about this conflict of a half-century ago comes "THE AMERICAN HERITAGE HISTORY OF WORLD WAR I" by Brig. Gen. S. L. A. (Slam) Marshall (USAR Ret.), veteran of both World Wars, described by Carl Sandburg as "the greatest writer on modern war."

Gen. Marshall's widely acclaimed previous books are "Blitzkrieg," "Armies on Wheels," "The River and the Gauntlet," "Island Victory," "Night Drop" and "Battle at Best." This is his first book about World War I, and is produced by the Book Division of American Heritage Publishing Co., distributed by Simon and Schuster, ($12.95 and deluxe, $15.45. After Christmas, the prices will be $16.50 and $19.)

"American Heritage History of World War I" tells the history of the war from Sarajevo to Versailles. It starts with an explanation of the tangled European alliances that made a small war impossible and a major war inevitable. In the course of his 150,000 word narrative, the soldier-author traces the step-by-slow-step progress of the bloody conflict against the background of international power plays, home front politics and high command rivalries.

The first one-volume history of the war to make full use of the legacy of art and color, the volume contains more than 300 pictures, many never before published. The collection includes photographs, paintings, drawings and posters gathered from 40 museums and archives in nine countries.

AN ADVENTURE of epic proportions in the history of the American West is recreated by Wallace Stegner in "THE GATHERING OF ZION" (McGraw-Hill, $7.95), the story of the great Mormon trek from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to Salt Lake City, Utah. The migration, which began after Joseph Smith, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and his brother Hyrum were shot to death by a mob in 1844, ended in 1869 in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake when the golden spike was driven, joining the Union Pacific and Central railways at Promontory, Utah.

Traveling the trail, the Mormons endured harrowing experiences: religious prejudice, murders, battles and Indian raids are seen against the background of unbelievable hardships that nature itself imposed on the Mormon emigrants.

The author, professor of English at Stanford University, is a non-Mormon fascinated with Western history.

TWO OLD FRIENDS, who happen to be two of the most important living American writers, chatted informally with wit and wisdom on a variety of subjects. They talked about the nature of poetry, art, love, friendship, integrity, God, and realization of self, how a man must live, the role of the American dream, freedom, the lives of great men.

The result: THE DIALOGUES OF ARCHIBALD MACLEISH AND MARK VAN DOREN" (Dutton, $5.95.)

"SPACE is the only defense against nuclear energy, and we have about run out of space on earth . . . If man is wise, the last war has been fought."

Thus Foster Hailey and Milton Lancelot conclude their photographic story of modern naval combat, 1898-1964, titled "CLEAR FOR ACTION" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $12.50.)

In more than 400 photographs as well as in maps, charts, logs and diagrams, the dramatic story of great warships unrolls, beginning with Manila Bay and climaxing at the Battle of Leyte, which the authors believe was the last major naval conflict the world will see. From now on, they think, the power of nations will be decided not on the surface of the sea but in the green waters below and the blue sky above.

QUEEN BERENICE ruled at Jerusalem when Hebrew monarchs sat on the throne only by the grace of Rome. Yet such was the personality of the heroine of Howard Fast's novel "AGRIPPA'S DAUGHTER" (Doubleday $4.95) that she commanded awe and respect. Red of hair, green of eyes, strong of will, Berenice tried to save what was still left of Hebrew sovereignty from the Roman representatives —men of greed and cruelty.

Fast's novel tells of the feuding between the Jewish factions, the Romans' best ally, through which the Jews accomplished their own destruction. It is a splendid portrait, in fictional form but solidly grounded on history, of a beautiful and great queen, who faced odds and forces beyond even a great queen's ability to control.

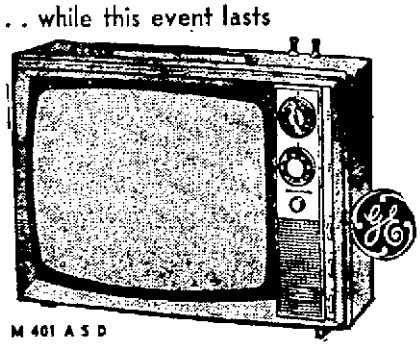

"GOODBYE, KATE" by Billy C. Clark (Putnam, $4.50) is the hilarious tale of a thinking mule, who was bond of book learning—especially American history—and the boy she adopted. The mule was Old Kate, as weathered as the Kentucky hills she roamed, and the boy was Isaac, who met her one summer day and never was quite the same again.

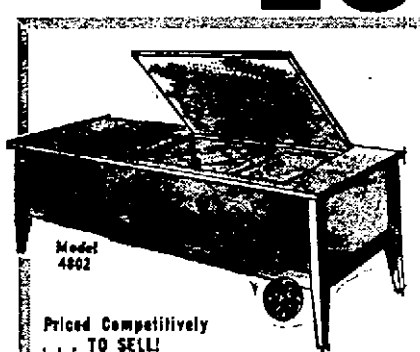

"KIT CARSON," a new biography by Noel Gerson, tells the legend and history of the famous Indian scout and frontiersman (Doubleday, $4.95).

Keeping Cats Fit

By Eleanor Avery Price

CATS are lots of fun, but they deserve more than just a chance to play. They need the best care that can be provided to keep them happy and keep down veterinarian bills.

Many cats seem to be troubled with sluggish colons. To help prevent this, buy an oily type of fish such as plain sardines and add a teaspoon of mineral oil. Mix well, and feed a fresh mixture about once a week. If the cat already seems to have an impaction, offer this mixture twice a week. Other ways to try to help are putting a blob of vaseline on the cat's paw for him to lick off, or even butter. Give Brewers yeast, plenty of bulky foods and lots of liquid. If these do not help, waste no more time but get the cat to a veterinarian. Your cat may need surgical removal of impacted stool or even a foreign object.

ON THE OTHER hand, some cats have just the opposite of a sluggish colon. Temporary diarrhea can usually be checked with milk of bismuth or Kaopectate, a good tablespoonful for a grown cat, less for smaller cats. Repeat about every three hours. Withhold milk, too. Some cats just cannot tolerate dairy products even if they enjoy the taste. (This is true of dogs, too. Of the many dogs, I've owned just one that could digest milk.)

Bloody diarrhea could mean a serious disease such as coccidiosis which is easily transmitted to other cats. Looseness could also indicate worms. And at all times a very malodorous stool indicates trouble. If you cannot quickly get the cat back to normal, by all means take him to a veterinarian. The cat may have swallowed a foreign object or have something else seriously wrong.

CATS SELDOM develop cavities in their teeth, but they do have trouble with formation of tartar which can cause inflammation and injury to the gums and eventually loosen the teeth. A veterinarian can scale the teeth.

Cats, and especially indoor ones, need attention to their claws. You can trim them yourself if your cat is the placid type, but you may end up having a veterinarian accomplishing this for you. Here is a way I have used for years. Put the cat in a small home-made box just barely large enough to accommodate him. In fact, when the lid is down, the cat should not be able to move. The floor of the box should be of wire just large enough for the cat to stick his claws through. Now stand the box up on end. The cat is powerless to do other than hang on through the wires, and you can trim his nails without a struggle. I believe this method has been employed on zoo cats.

OF INTEREST to cat lovers is Arrowhead Cat Fanciers show today at Hemet Fairgrounds, Palm and Florida Avenues, Hemet.

PACIFIC Cat Fanciers have a show Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 at Portuguese Hall, Artesia. Entries close Tuesday for German Shepherd Dog Club of Southern California specialty match Nov. 8 at Orcutt Park, Topanga Canyon and Roscoe Street, Canoga Park.

RIVERSIDE Kennel Club has a show and trial Nov. 1 at Hemet Fairgrounds. Nov. 22, Del Sur Kennel Club event in El Cajon; for details contact Jack Bradshaw, 727 Venice Blvd., Los Angeles 15.

PEKIN Pekingese Club holds its fall match today at Bellis Park, 8th and Knott, Buena Park. Entries are taken until 1 p.m. for classes under two months and up. Pat Miller of Mar-Pat Pekingese from Gardena will judge.

Highlanders Dog Club has a practice match today at Highland Park Playground, Ave. 61 and North Figueroa St., L. A. Entries taken until noon.

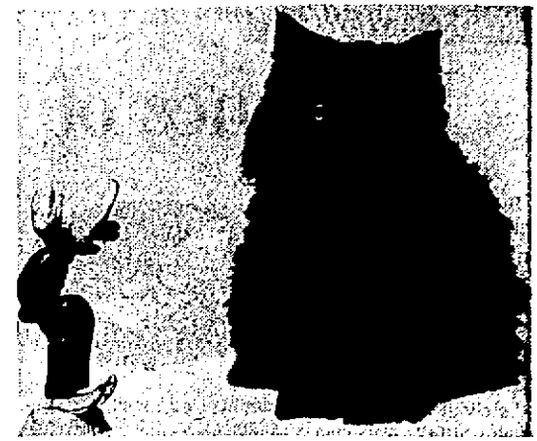

Remember today is the end of daylight savings time.

Time to Adjust

Plants, like people, enjoy life better if given time to adjust to new environment, particularly to sudden switches from tropical humidity to northern climates.

If your new foliage plants are given proper "climate conditioning" by local professional growers, they will thrive more readily in northern climates.

Foliage or "green" plants are grown in tropical areas, and shipped north in "bulk," or in thin-walled, non-porous containers subject to wider temperature and moisture variations. They should be transplanted to porous clay pots and given a period of adjustment under professional growers' supervision for more successful growth in cooler northern climates.

Willie Winkie is a black Persian owned by Dorothy Bond of Long Beach. Fine cats like this are shown today at Hemet Fairgrounds.

'One of the Little People'

Electronics specialist Roger Brown leads a busy life, his small size no major handicap.

By Helen Bottel

ROGER (Brownie) Brown is college trained in electronics. He has a responsible position with Douglas Aircraft, Santa Monica, and he enjoys his work. His employers regard him highly. He has friends by the score and "no enemies I can think of." He comes home to a charming wife and six children — ages 4 to 19 — who think "Pop is tops."

Summed up, Roger Brown might qualify as a fairly typical "Mr. Model Suburbia."

. . . Except for one thing: he can stand upright in a compact car without once denting his five-gallon hat. He weighs 65 pounds, stretches to 48 inches in cowboy boots, and buys his favorite western style clothes in "boys wear" where a size 10 gives him a perfect fit.

Brownie (and everyone calls him that) is what the world terms a midget. He prefers to describe himself as "one of the little people."

NO ONE KNOWS why nature turned out this well-proportioned man in miniature—he was born 50 years ago of standard-sized parents. But it's certain heredity played its part and still does:

"Three of our children will be 'little,' " he predicts. "The other three take after my wife. She's five-foot-two."

Does the lack of stature create problems?

Not in the least. "It's all on the plus side," Brownie maintains.

"I can flirt with the ladies and no one gets mad, not even husbands."

"I get special treatment in restaurants—in fact wherever I go, and I'm on the go a lot, in my work."

"I find friends everywhere because" (this with a cheerful grin) "somehow I'm noticed, and I return the notice with a smile and a compliment."

"All the kids know me," he adds, waving at one who shouted his name from across the street. (And like him, too—he's an adult who meets them at their own level and this level has scarcely anything to do with size.)

AS AN INSPECTOR in the Quality Control Division at Douglas, Brown is headquartered at Santa Monica, but trouble-shoots all over the world.

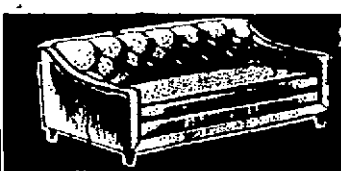

Only one question ruffles Brownie's normally even disposition. It is thrown at him all too often and goes, "Does the aircraft company keep you on to get into little places and fix things in engines, like I read about once?" This is somewhat like asking a six-foot-five college graduate if the firm employs him to dust high filing cabinets.

Brownie has never "lived by his size," though he could well fit the paraphrased song title, "Little Man, You've Had a Busy Life." He put himself through Oklahoma University with money earned in circus and county fair routines, but it was ability that got him the spotlight.

He has been a trick rider, a sharpshooter, a precision knife thrower with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey. For a time he dived 75 feet into an eight-foot tank of water. ("But I quit because it gave me a headache.") He has played the rodeo circuit. He has managed stage productions. He even dealt blackjack at Reno and Las Vegas. For the past 17 years he has been with various aircraft companies in the Southwest.

SHOW BUSINESS led Brownie to his wife. She was new at the circus—the Australian whip cracker with pretty face and friendly smile. His specialty at the time was knife throwing. Each needed a target, someone with steady nerves and a large amount of trust. They teamed up and were immediate hits.

Though the act disbanded when Brownie went into World War II defense work, the team and the trust continued. After 25 years of marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown would still face knives and whips for each other—even though they haven't tried lately.

Begging Is Big Business

By Frank L. Remington

AN UNSHAVEN, pitiful-looking little man stood at a busy Pittsburgh street corner. Carefully he eyed two men, then approached them. "Could either of you guys spare two bits?" he ventured.

The two men exchanged glances. "We're police officers," one of them announced. "You can't beg on the street."

The officers trundled the little man off to jail. When he was booked they found packets of currency adding up to $8,389 on his person.

In Los Angeles, authorities found that Juan Diaz, 26-year-old legless beggar, had been leading a double life. By day he solicited money in the streets; by night he slipped on a pair of artificial legs, drove his custom-built Cadillac and escorted well-groomed young ladies to expensive night clubs. Upon investigation, local officials discovered Diaz had amassed a fortune of $30,000.

The old Mother Goose jingle, "Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, The beggars are coming to town . . ." is just as appropriate now as in days gone by. From Los Angeles to Boston, from Seattle to Miami, every city, town and hamlet has its share of panhandlers and alms-seekers.

MEMBERS of this strange breed of human beings deliberately exploit sympathy for profit. Since time immemorial men have felt responsible for a fellow human in need. So year after year these mendicants live a debasing, parasitic existence, receiving a livelihood through the generous gratuities of others.

It is quite possible that many of these perennial moochers make more money than you and I will ever make. In New York, an aged, frail and bedraggled beggar possessed so much money that Magistrate Anthony F. Burke fined him $25 and announced that if he had the beggar's $25,917 in savings accounts he would "be down in Palm Beach."

How truthful is the beggar's hard luck story? Will he starve or sleep on a park bench if you don't heed his plea for money? The answer is an unequivocal no. Furthermore, the person who gives actually retards the work of organized charity to which we collectively contribute around $8 billion each year.

Like most other practitioners of his "profession," George Patterson, a 40-year-old professional sponger, regards his benefactors as dupes. "I respect the people who don't come through when I put the bite on them," Patterson says, "No one has to do this sort of thing. There are plenty of agencies to care for really handicapped cases. Without so many softhearted people I'd be out of business. I'm grateful to those who give me money, but they're chumps."

WHAT TYPE OF person takes up begging? Obviously the professional either can not or will not adjust to social and economic reality. He escapes by abandoning the norms of behavior such as pride, duty, and acceptance by society.

Essentially the beggar is a psychological case, for no healthy, self-respecting person would voluntarily submit to such a debasing way of life. As one psychologist puts it: "He is not begging because he needs help, but he needs help because he is begging."

Estimates as to the actual number of beggars in the United States range from about a half to three-quarters of a million. Of course, not all of these pursue the "profession" on a full-time basis. Many vagrants, hobos and bums work for limited periods and beg intermittently.

There is a wide range of practicing mooch artists, from the well-dressed, able-bodied panhandler who is usually a fast talker and consummate actor to the undisguised beggar in tattered clothes with his tin cup. The upper crust of the panhandlers's fraternity dresses and acts like a respectable businessman.

NOT LONG AGO a neatly dressed, middle-aged man stopped a Los Angeles clergyman who was about to enter the study of his church. The caller greeted him by his nickname and identified himself as a newcomer to the city. He said he had known the minister in a former pastorate, although the clergyman could not place the man.

After a casual conversation, the caller revealed he would not receive his first paycheck until the following week. His children had needed expensive medicine and now had no food, and he had not been in town long enough to establish credit. Would the minister advance him $25?

The minister did not advance the money, but told the man to go on to work and promised to take food to the children. A drive to the false address proved the caller to be an imposter.

Another type of touch artist is the operator who specializes in exploiting membership in religious and fraternal orders or labor and trade groups. Of course he rarely belongs to the group but does possess a union card or displays the pin or insignia of a fraternal order. These make an effective appeal, for the victims believe they are assisting a brother member or fellow workman.

THE USUAL panhandler generally relies on a hard luck story, which he sticks to as long as it works. The typical story is that he just got out of the hospital after being a victim of some disaster which has figured prominently in the news. Some may limp or have their arms in slings as the result of a current fire or major accident. Hundreds of others just recovered from pneumonia or influenza.

Usually this type of "gimme guy's" take is not excessive because he knocks off "work" when he's raised enough money to drink himself into oblivion. And he's disdainful of anyone who proffers him anything but cash.

Many professional touch artists cloak their begging under the guise of salesmanship. They "sell" matches, pencils, shoe strings and other relatively valueless merchandise. A peddler's license purchased from the city keeps the beggar within the law and salves his conscience. Of course, the giver is not expected to take any of the merchandise when he drops a coin into the proferred cup. To do so he incurs the disdain of the beggar and brands himself as a cheapskate.

ONE PROMINENT and very effective type of begging involves an appeal to a prospective giver's sense of pity and patriotism. The chiz artist working this dodge poses as an ex-serviceman. Nintety-nine times out of a hundred he has never seen the inside of an induction center.

Usually this "ex-serviceman" peddles for 25 cents some trifling item that costs him about 25 cents per hundred or less. It is packaged in an envelope bearing an inscription like: "I don't want a handout from you. I'm selling these items to support myself. Help a wounded World War veteran help himself."

The full-time professional beggar usually works with a tin cup or hat in which to collect his coins. His most valued stock in trade is his ability to depict misery and misfortune to arouse sympathy. This type of mendicant usually "works" long hours and often maintains a residence, and sometimes supports a wife and family in comfort.

THE MOST familiar type is the apparent victim of some severe handicap, real or pretended. Many appear to be blind, crippled, deformed or minus one or both legs. He usually takes a position at a busy downtown spot and simply sits there, lifting his cup appealingly to passers-by. Or he may, if he's able, inch his way along crowded sidewalks, attracting attention to himself by singing or playing a battered violin, harmonica, accordion or some other musical instrument.

Beggars not naturally "blessed" with a physical handicap often disfigure their faces and arms with acid and put collodion in their eyes to make themselves "blindmen." Others make liberal use of crutches and bandages, or fake other physical handicaps and deformities. Invariably they wear tattered and patched clothing to depict poverty.

Ernst Klatt of Glendale used a false arm stump. Actually it was a padded sock and he did very well until a police officer became suspicious and squeezed where his arm normally would be. The arm was there!

The officer hauled him off to jail and the false arm was booked as evidence. Under questioning, the prisoner admitted he'd learned the false arm trick 50 years ago in Kansas City and had earned a living by it ever since.

THE WHOLE problem of begging and panhandling has become a social menace and a source of concern to the police and public. The chief thing you and I can do to help solve the problem is to stop encouraging mendicants. We can do this by not dropping coins in the beggar's tin cup and refusing to be taken in by the panhandler's tale of woe.

Camellias Spread the Flower Season

By Joe Littlefield

EARLIEST of the blooming japonica type camellias include Dai Kagura and Pink Perfection. There are several others. Gardeners need not be too concerned about cutting the flowers from camellias stems. Below the flower, on the stem an inch or several inches down there is a slight ring swelling that indicates a growth cycle. Cut the flower stem about two leaves above the swelling. This means the blossom will have a leaf or several leaves which adds a natural cut flower touch, instead of the leafless bloom.

There are three general growth shapes of camellias, as well as three seasons of blooming varieties.

Camellias have varying blooming seasons and thus spread the flower period. They can be cut with stems if cutting is done carefully.

AS TO SHAPES: Glen 40 is a compact upright, slow growing, mid-season to late bloomer; Debutante is a full peony form of pink color, an early to mid-season bloomer, upright to buxom growth; Giganlea has flowers of red with white marbling, very large to semi-double, anemone form to peony form, exceptionally vigorous open growth and a mid-season bloomer; Blood of China is a late season bloomer, compact growth, with large, semi-double to loose peony form, deep salmon red flowers.

Your local nurseryman will recommend shape and size of camellias as well as your choice of colors and season of bloom — October, December, or not before March. The three seasons of blooming camellias provides color from October possibly through April and often into May.

ONE OF THE MOST comprehensive books on camellias is "Camellia Nomenclature," published by The Southern California Camellia Society, Inc., and copyrighted 1964. It lists all varieties of camellias and describes them. Helpful information on culture of camellias is included. This book is a must for anyone interested in growing camellias. Another helpful book is Sunset's "How to Grow Camellias."

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . The stunningly colored garden lilies should be planted now for bloom in late spring and summer.

Plant calendula in sunny beds for bright winter color.

When your fuchsia finally is finished blooming, do not do any pruning. Just because the flowers are finished does not mean that it is time for clipping. Wait until next February for any pruning.

Many evergreens are best set out in fall. They benefit from the winter rains which will come later. Check with your local C. A. M. nurseryman for the types best suited for October planting.

The newer spreading lantanas, if planted now, will often bloom right through winter in California's milder regions.

A Star Performer

GRACEFUL AND neat, Woodwardia fern will complement any area in which it is planted. Try it in a rock garden or with bright flowers. No matter what assignment it is given, Woodwardia is a star performer. It's available now at nurseries.

Good Sign

The white frost you see on the sides of your red clay flower pots is a sign that harmful salts that might endanger plant health have been leached out through the porous walls of the clay pots. The frost can be scrubbed off in a few seconds to restore the natural terra cotta color of the container.

Dorothy Digs

PANSIES provide almost instant color. There are, however, a few precautions that should be taken.

Most important, pick out good, field-grown plants with a healthy green color and large blooms.

Prepare the bed by deep spading and mixing steer manure or other fertilizer (bone meal is very good) with the soil. If you have time, spray the ground thoroughly with a copper ether solution to eliminate the wire worms and other underground pests that kill many pansy plants each year.

If you have already planted your pansies and you find one or two dying from "pansy wilt" water them thoroughly and a few hours later disinfect the soil with a copper ether spray that will kill underground bugs that are eating the roots.

If no fertilizer was used at planting time, an all fish fertilizer applied once or twice a month will keep them blooming and healthy.

GARDEN CLUBS

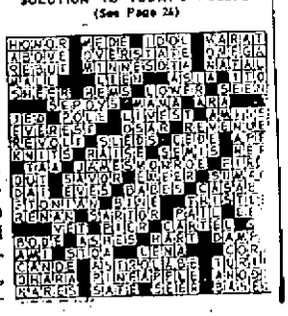

Judging of orchids will be the topic of Eugene Casey, an American Orchid Society Judge, at a meeting of South Coast Orchid Society at 8 p.m. Monday at Silverado Park Clubhouse, 31st Street and Santa Fe Avenue, Long Beach. The public is invited.

"A Rose For You," a sound color film, will highlight the meeting of the Orange County Rose Society at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Iva Meairs (formerly Sun Garden) School Cafetorium, Trask and Newland Streets, Garden Grove.

Thomas Basick, second vice president and membership chairman, will take charge of the program and door prizes during the attendance of George F. Roy, 1st vice president and program chairman, at the 65th annual National Rose Convention and Rose Show at Phoenix, Ariz.

A ways and means table and refreshments will complete the evening. The public is invited to all meetings which are held the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area.

What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANULL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANULL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itch-irritation is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANULL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANULL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANULL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANULL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANULL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANULL in your pharmacy.

Baylor, West

29.6, and since coming to L.A., in succession, 34.8, 38.2, 34.0 and 25.5. West, jumpy and unsure in his first season, averaged 17.6 but then shot to seasonal averages of 30.8, 26.6 and 28.7.

Additionally the combine has been one-two in assists every year they have performed together and that concludes that, although potent scorers, they are not selfish in that respect.

BAYLOR, former all-American from Seattle University, has been voted all-pro and has been on the all-star team each of his eight years in the league. West, who missed out in his rookie season, has been named for both laurels the past three seasons. Only Bill Russel and Bob Cousy of the Boston Celtics can boast such credentials.

The Lakers finished second in the Western Division in the first year of the westward move. They finished first the next two seasons, losing to perennial champion Boston by narrow margins in the playoff finals, then last season finished third.

That third-place finish is what spotlights Baylor and West even more. The Lakers haven't had a big center the likes of Russell or Wilt Chamberlain of the San Francisco Warriors for years, thus the burden of defense, scoring and rebounding has been on these two players. But last season both were hobbled by ailments of various sorts.

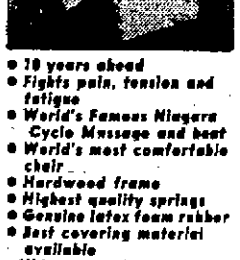

WEST missed eight games with a broken thumb. During that span the Lakers won one game. Baylor was plagued throughout the entire 80-game schedule with calcium deposits above both knees. When Elgin was scoring 71, 68 and 64 points a night he was a whirling dervish, defying anyone or any group to guard him. Thus, on gimpy legs, he was unable to do so last season, nor could he rebound as well.

Some people, including many among the 20% of the gate who attend the games from Long Beach were about ready to write off Baylor after last season (with his mere 25.5 average) but, even at 29 he now appears about as sound as ever. And West, who was counted out in a major magazine article while in his second year as being too brittle for the NBA wars, is just beginning to warm up at the age of 26.

So it appears that one-two punch might be around for some time under the guiding reins and influence of coach Fred Schaus, 39, who helped West to all-America stature while coaching the Cabin Creek kid at the University of West Virginia.

Khrushchev and His Unholy Fears

then slipped atomic dust into his food, or bribed some sympathizer into doing that, British agents have thus far been unable to determine conclusively. They're sure of this, however: that the radioactive dust brought slow and gruesome death to the ex-Russian master spy.

His hair and teeth fell out. Then he lost his eyesight and hearing. Next, layers of his skin peeled off. By that time, atomic poisoning had so corroded and eaten away the vital tissues of his body that he could no longer walk or take nourishment.

He died without throwing any light on his mysterious and terrifying death—except to remark cryptically: "You know who did this to me!"

Another atomic dust poisoning occurred in West Berlin recently, one similar to the grisly fate which befell the Russian defector in England. It likewise involved a one-time Russian espionage agent who, after much soul-searching, defected to the West.

AS FOR Khrushchev's wandering: in one known instance on his visit to America a Soviet security agent checked his food with a Geiger counter. Until his downfall, British intelligence agents in Europe testify, his Geiger counter "minute men" played a vital, skittish, and unrelenting role in protecting him from atomic dust particles that, they fear, may be slipped into his food or drink by (1) "an embittered Red Chinese provocateur" or (2) "an agent of the imperialist West."

Just recently, for example, Mr. K made a Japanese delegation in Moscow shiver with this announcement: "This monstrous new terrible weapon Soviet secret military research has developed is a means of the destruction and extermination of humanity." (Most experts surmise that he was referring to the cobalt bomb—a weapon which could, the late professor Albert Einstein predicted, wipe out all human life on our globe.)

Before Mr. K made his "bomb-rattling" boast, however, Geiger counter security agents gave the food prepared for him a thorough going over. They did so quietly, behind-the-scenes—that being the first known instance (to British intelligence) that such a precautionary step was taken on "home grounds," or in Moscow.

In short, with his own secret agents using atomic dust to do away with defectors, the Russian dictator evidently felt that the same kind of horrible death could conceivably, overtake him.

To paraphrase William Shakespeare: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a dictator's crown!"

"YOU SAY she's the mother of six children? Well, I can't believe it!"

Comments like those are often heard these evenings at Jack's Corsican Room, 5430 E. Second St., where lovely Phyllis Webster is the new hostess and co-owner. Phyllis, who has the voice of an angel and the beauty of a magazine cover girl, is so attractive that many of the restaurant's guests are astonished when they discover that her half dozen children range in age from 11 to 19.

Phyllis, who is 5 feet 6 and has auburn hair, is the wife of John T. Webster, president of Long Beach District, Board of Realtors, who recently purchased the restaurant, one of the best in town. The Websters were married in January 1963 following a romance which began—of all places—at Jack's Corsican Room. Phyllis and John met at the restaurant five years ago when they were introduced by a friend, Mrs. Kathy Bugbee.

THEY MADE so many friendships at the restaurant and found it such a stimulating place that they were delighted to buy it from Jack and Rose Bass when the opportunity came along last summer. Phyllis, who was reared in Long Beach and attended school here, has long been one of the restaurant's singing personalities, her fine warm soprano joining top professional voices in concerts accompanied by the Corsican's gifted pianist-composer, Franz Steininger.

superb cuisine, with the emphasis on prime rib au jus ($4.50), which is so tender and flavorful that guests regularly drive from Los Angeles, Pasadena and Santa Ana in order to enjoy it. Other outstanding featured dishes are Australian lobster tails ($3.95) and a selection of tender, juicy charcoal-broiled steaks (from $3.50 for the special a la carte New York.)

SUNDAY TREAT — Restaurateur Rex Welch continues to enchant the dining out public with the fantastically low prices at Welch's, 4401 Atlantic Ave., one of the city's most glamorous restaurants. THE TRYING LIFE OF A CELEBRITY'S DOUBLE by LLOYD SHEARER

How come one company pays out a million dollars an hour?

That's how much Metropolitan Life policyholders and beneficiaries collect every hour of the working day. Last year, it added up to more than a cool $2 billion. And two-thirds of it went to living policyholders.

Because we insure more people, it figures that we do more. A lot more. Especially for our policyholders. One thing we do is train our representatives in the field to make a clear and expert analysis of exactly where your family would be if you died or someday decided to retire. In plain dollars and cents. Metropolitan calls this a Family Security Check-Up. It's confidential and it's free.

Wouldn't you feel a little safer if you had one? Just call your Metropolitan adviser and it's yours.

Q. Is Angie Dickinson carrying a torch for Frank Sinatra, who promised to marry her?—R. R., N. Hollywood, Calif.

A. Sinatra made no such promise. Reportedly Miss Dickinson has been carrying the torch.

Q. Can you tell me whether Jackie Kennedy will follow the Kennedy family practice of sending daughters to Catholic schools and sons to nondenominational schools?—Ann McKnight, Asheville, N.C.

A. She probably will. Caroline Kennedy now attends the Convent of the Sacred Heart at 1 East 91st St., New York City, along with her cousin Sydney Lawford.

Q. What has happened to Freedomland, the New York version of Disneyland? Is it equally successful? Is it owned by Disney?—F. R., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Freedomland has no connection with Disneyland. On Sept. 15, 1964, Freedomland filed a petition for bankruptcy in the Federal Court, New York district.

Q. How old is George Raft?—William Harkness, Oak Park, Ill.

A. 69.

Q. There is a rumor that the Beatles will not entertain in front of segregated audiences. Can you verify or deny?—A. L. Jones, Bessemer, Ala.

A. It is true. Says Beatle leader John Lennon: "We never play to segregated crowds. We'd rather lose our appearance money than submit to such regulations."

Q. Abbe Lane, the singer who was married to Xavier Cugat—wasn't her maiden name Fanny Rabinowitz?—Elsa Schonciet, New York, N.Y.

A. No, it was Francine Lassman.

Q. Cary Grant, who is 60, is going with a young chick who is 24. I saw them together in Jamaica. Who is she?—P. I., Miami, Fla.

A. Actress Dyann Cannon.

Q. Is it true that Sen. Goldwater's office at National Republican Headquarters in Washington has been fitted with bulletproof windows?—D. Sims, Silver Springs, Md.

A. True. The Senator's life has been threatened, and every effort is being made to protect him.

Q. Who is the Lord Chamberlain who banned John Osborne's new play, A Patriot for Me, from the London stage on the grounds it was liable to corrupt?—Lou Sherwood, Yonkers, N.Y.

A. The present Lord Chamberlain is Cameron Fromanteel Cobbold, 60, 1st Baron of Knebworth. Since 1624 the Lord Chamberlain has had the job in England of supervising and censoring stage plays.

Q. How about the story that Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her daughter, Princess Irene, are now on the outs? Is it because Irene secretly became a Roman Catholic?—Victor Dennison, Baltimore, Md.

A. They are reportedly estranged, but the estrangement has nothing to do with Irene's conversion but rather with her subsequent marriage.

Q. Who is presently our ambassador to India?—H. L. Knox, New Haven, Conn.

A. Chester Bowles.

Q. How long have Sir Winston and Lady Churchill been married?—Beverly Glenn, Eureka, Calif.

A. They were married in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, on Sept. 12, 1908.

Q. What is the Hollywood opinion concerning Vince Edwards' acting ability? Does he have any? He seems so unemotional on the Ben Casey TV show.—Viola Larsen, Oakland, Calif.

A. Edwards is regarded as a TV personality. He is considered no great shakes as an actor.

Q. I would like to find out how many times that angry man Westbrook Pegler has been married.—F. T., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Three times.

Q. The inside story of the marriage between King Constantine of Greece and Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark—isn't it a fact that the King's mother, Queen Frederika, demanded her daughter-in-law bring a $1 million dowry to Greece?—B. N., Hempstead, N.Y.

A. The Danish royal family agreed to deposit a dowry of $300,000 in Princess Anne-Marie's name in a Swiss bank.

Q. Who said: "In politics nothing is contemptible"?—Gregg Lopes, Santa Fe, N. Mex.

A. Benjamin Disraeli (1804-1881), British statesman and author.

Q. What is the latest word on Jack Ruby, who shot Lee Harvey Oswald? Has he really gone nuts?—Frank De Solva, Atlantic City, N.J.

A. Doctors say Ruby is now "mentally unbalanced," which may save him from execution.

Q. Who or what are the Rolling Stones?—Diane Hart, State Center, Iowa.

A. They are a British vocal and instrumental quintet who have surpassed the Beatles in homeland popularity.

Q. Malcolm X of the Black Muslims—what sort of man is he, and should Negroes follow his leadership?—Isetta Smith, Detroit, Mich.

A. Malcolm X is a former thief, dope addict, dope-pusher and convict who angrily preaches hate.

A SPECIAL PARADE REPORT: IS YOUR MINISTER TRAINED TO HANDLE TODAY'S PROBLEMS?

Do you feel your clergyman, be he Catholic, Protestant or Jew, understands your problems? Is he able to help work out effective, realistic solutions when you ask for help?

Equally important, is your clergyman an essential figure in the community all week long, or is he only a Sunday preacher? Does he help solve community problems?

In short, can he cope with the ever-increasing demands of our modern world?

Unfortunately, many clergymen are not qualified for their role in the changing and changed world of today. They are burdened with an antiquated system of clerical education which limits their interests and narrows their abilities.

This harsh judgment on today's ministry comes from leading clergymen of all three faiths. For the past few years, dissatisfaction has been boiling among church leaders over the way clergymen are trained for their missions. More and more clerics agree that the clergy in America is not adequately equipped or educated to help solve the basic problems today. And they believe that strong improvements are needed in the system of seminary education for the future minister.

As long ago as 1950, the late Pope Pius XII pointed out the need for Roman Catholic seminaries to develop a new and modern outlook. "If young men—especially those who have entered the seminary at a tender age—are educated in an environment too isolated from the world," the Pope declared, "they may, on leaving the seminary, find serious difficulty in their relations either with ordinary people or with the educated clergy."

"By and large," stresses the Rev. Dr. Jerald C. Brauer, dean of the University of Chicago Divinity School, "the church in America cannot cope with the problems the country faces. And the primary reason is that the clergy is not educated to handle these problems."

A rabbi, Dr. Neil Gillman of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, believes one of the major shortcomings of the clergy is that they have not been able to attack some of the deepest difficulties of the community, primarily the personal problems of the congregation.

'SCHOLARSHIP DIVORCED FROM LIFE'

"The problem of the seminaries has always been that of scholarship divorced from life," charged the late Samuel N. Shoemaker, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh, and noted writer on religious subjects.

There are close to 50,000 men in about 800 seminaries in the U.S. and Canada today. Formal preparation in these seminaries varies widely. Some Protestant sects, believing that any person inspired by God can be a preacher, require no formal training of their clergy at all. On the other hand, Episcopal priests and most rabbis must have a college degree and four to six years' seminary to qualify for ordination. In the Roman Catholic Church, diocesan priests study from 8 to 12 years, which covers high school, college and seminary. Methodists, Presbyterians, Lutherans and other Protestant denominations generally ask that seminarians have four years of college, followed by three years' seminary.

What all these systems of education have in common, however, is that they stress what might be called spiritual subjects. The curricula consist of such courses as church history, theology, Bible interpretation, sacred literature and the arts of preaching. According to critics, this emphasis worked in the past, when the clergyman's chief role was to preach, hold prayer meetings, make calls and administer the sacraments. But today the clergy has branched into far broader areas of activity.

A FULL ROSTER

The minister is "the preacher, the scholar and teacher, the priest at the altar, the moral and spiritual counselor," Dr. James M. Gustafson, professor of Christian ethics at the Yale Divinity School has written. But, Dr. Gustafson added, he is also responsible for "the behavior of his youth group on a bowling party, the conduct of a financial campaign for a building fund, the public relations of the parish church, the effectiveness of the local council of churches or ministerial association, mitigating tensions between conflicting groups in the community, saying the blessing at the service club luncheon, the sex education of adolescents, premarital counseling. . . ."

A breakdown of the minister's time at various activities provides ample evidence of his responsibility for a wide variety of tasks. Dr. Samuel Blizzard, Princeton Theological Seminary, has estimated that in the typical minister's 10-hour day, 4 hours are spent in administrative work, 1 at organizational details, ½ hour teaching and 4½ as pastor, priest and preacher. Although half his day is spent in what could loosely be called the "business" of the church, the American cleric has had little or no education in business administration. And, although most churches today have extensive Sunday school programs of which the minister is in charge, he has little or no background in educational methods or psychology.

A recent survey by the National Institute of Mental Health shows that about half the mentally ill turn first to their clergyman for help. Yet few seminaries provide courses in psychology or counseling. And many churches now have a policy of counseling young people before marriage. Yet little training has been given in the family, birth control or sex education.

James C. Worthy, Assistant Secretary of Commerce in the Eisenhower administration, now a management consultant, recently made a plea for the clergy to learn more about the problems of business in order to give guidance to businessmen on ethical questions. "I myself have tried to get such guidance," he said, "only to find that the ministers knew so little about business as to make communication difficult."

In fact, very little in a minister's seminary preparation gets him ready to meet the outside world, according to the Rev. Stafford Poole, C.M., dean of studies, St. Mary's Seminary, Perryville, Mo.

Dr. Reuel L. Howe of the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies, Bloomfield, Mich., told PARADE that not long ago, a newly ordained minister was called to a local hospital to minister to a man who had suffered a a heart attack. When he saw the sick man, the young pastor became violently distraught, and the doctors had to take care of him. He never made another hospital call.

In an Eastern suburb, a middle-aged man, a church member for many years, began drinking heavily and grew difficult to get along with. He finally explained to his minister that his unmarried teenage daughter was pregnant; in addition, he was having trouble meeting payments on his home. Instead of trying to help him work out solutions, the minister merely said his behavior was unacceptable to the church and the community. The unhappy man left the church, never to return. "This minister panicked," says Dr. Howe. "He couldn't think of any creative way to help a man who was going through some of the worst trials of his life. His seminary studies had not equipped him to gain insight into the problems."

Much of the misunderstanding of the Catholic Church's position on birth control can be attributed to undereducation, although "seminary education, in general, is too bookish," says the Rev. Paul F. Darcy, M.M., director of education for the Maryknoll Fathers, Ossining, N.Y. Father Darcy describes a young woman who had had two stillborn children. "Psychologically, she was a wreck. Her pastor gave her no real advice, did not suggest she visit a physician experienced in these problems, and when she asked about the possibility of some method of birth control, he did not fully explain the Church's outlook, but said: 'It is better to have children even if they die, because that way more souls will get to heaven.'"

Some authorities have even suggested that a recently reported increase in mental illness among clergymen can be blamed, at least in part, on lack of education. "They have too many jobs to do that they don't know anything about," says one expert.

Although theological studies are and will remain the cornerstone of the ministry, Father Poole suggests widening the studies to include sociology, counseling and social work in all seminaries. Others have urged study in administration, organization, economics, labor and race relations and educational psychology.

A leading Protestant writer, the Rev. Walter D. Wagoner, has warned that the poor quality of seminary education drives many bright seminarians out of the ministry. "The church is going to be crippled if the better seminarians walk out," he says. As a partial solution, he urges that all seminaries affiliate themselves with high-caliber colleges or universities, so that their theological courses can be supplemented by lay courses. Those that are not affiliated, he states, "are at a serious disadvantage in meeting the educational challenges of this generation of seminarians."

Ministers in Industry program at McCormick Seminary sends students like Mal Brownlee (l.) to work in industrial jobs to learn about the problems of the workingman.

Continuing education, even after ordination, is of utmost importance to the clergy's mission, according to the Rev. Ralph E. Peterson, director of the department of ministry of the National Council of Churches. "We must convince the clergy that their education is never completed," he says. "They should be studying, reading, going to school throughout their entire career."

The Very Rev. Paul J. Hallinan, archbishop of Atlanta, agrees with the need for continuing education. (He is one of the few U.S. archbishops to hold a doctorate.) "A steadily increasing number of priests are enrolled in universities and colleges for further studies, which range from the pure sciences to the humanities and professional education," he says.

SOME MOVE AHEAD

Some seminaries and divinity schools are beginning to act on the need for changes. The Jewish Theological Seminary offers a course in pastoral psychiatry, while Maryknoll, in Glen Ellyn, Ill., teaches counseling for priests. The Chicago Divinity School has revamped its entire curriculum to lay greater stress on solving problems in areas other than theology.

A number of seminaries, in order to reduce the load on the minister, have been teaching students to be minister-specialists in such fields as administration, counseling, education and preaching. Some churches have already employed these specialists.

One pioneer, McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, sends seminarians out to work incognito in factories and laboring jobs in a summertime "Ministers in Industry" program. According to Rev. Dr. Arthur McKay, president of the seminary, "the object is for these young fellows to learn to understand the men they work with and not to prejudge them or their problems. We hope they'll understand how a man's work affects his spiritual life."

In other facets of the program, says Dr. McKay, "we train the men to work with groups of people who have 'been cast up on the beach'; we have a dozen courses in the church and economic life, alcoholism, social welfare and society and the church. We also give special training for ministers in industrial communities and offer degree programs in social work."

The seminary's program has garnered such enthusiasm from management and labor that the director, the Rev. Dr. Marshall Scott, has often been called in to mediate labor disputes.

Of course, spiritual guidance is still the principal function of the clergyman. But the success of progress-minded programs proves that this function can be performed better if the clerical curriculum is broadened to meet the specialized problems we face today.

HOLLYWOOD IN THE SKY

WILL IT PAY OFF?

by ARNO JOHANSEN

Actor Walter Slezak watches himself on one of TWA's flight movies.

There was a time when a daylight transcontinental air flight afforded passengers a memorable sightseeing trip across the country.

That time encompassed the pre-jet era of flight.

Today, with aircraft winging at altitudes of 30,000 to 35,000 feet, passengers frequently see nothing beneath them but clouds. If it's a clear day, they whiz by cities and landmarks so quickly (at 600 mph) that at best they catch only fleeting glimpses of geographical features below.

On night flights they generally see nothing—once in a while the dappled lights of a distant metropolis.

To make air time pass with pleasant quickness, more and more airlines are going into the movies-in-the-sky business.

Until last month, TWA was the only U.S. carrier and Pakistan International Airlines the only foreign carrier to project movies aloft.

Now Continental and American are also showing films. In the fiercely competitive airline business, can United, Eastern, Braniff, Northeast, Northwest Orient, Delta and National be far behind?

David Flexer, president of Inflight Motion Pictures, the company which pioneered first-run flickers in the air, reports: "We are currently talking to half a dozen different airlines about our system. I don't want to mention their names, but they know we introduced our Theater of the Sky on TWA three years ago, and they've seen TWA's business shoot up like a rocket."

In the first 7 months of 1964, TWA's domestic passenger traffic increased 25 per cent, its transatlantic traffic 27 per cent. In that same period, American gained 14 per cent, and United only 7.4 per cent. Pan American, which is TWA's foremost transatlantic rival, showed a 24.4 per cent gain.

John Harrington, vice-president of TWA in charge of passenger services, admits that a "significant proportion of this line's increase can be attributed to movies," but he declines to reveal how much it is costing TWA to screen 1,100 film showings a month. His competitors estimate the annual cost at about $1 million.

Are in-flight movies worth that much?

Listen to Bob Six, president of Continental Air Lines. Last month he gladly spent $45,000 on each of his Chicago to Los Angeles jets. Six paid that sum to the Ampex Corporation of Redwood City, Calif., for installation of a compact magnetic videotape playback system, which allows presentation of first-run movies and stereo music in flight. Continental and American make no charge for their movies. TWA charges coach passengers $1, first-class passengers nothing.

Says Six, one of the nation's most progressive airline leaders: "Air transportation has been riddled by two major problems—fare and fear. Both have been too high. Continental has tried to solve the fare problem by introducing all-time low jet economy fares. We pioneered three different classes of service on the same aircraft—first, coach and economy—so we've gotten fares down for people who want to fly without frills.

"As regards the fear problem," Six continues, "no one really knows how large it is. Certainly there are still many people afraid to fly. I believe that films in flight will reduce the fear quotient in first-time riders.

"We're equipped to show five consecutive hours of visual programming—first-run, full-length movies, TV programs, short subjects, live TV. We can pick up a football game in Chicago, a tennis match in Los Angeles. Passengers who don't want to look at their 9-inch screen can switch to the music channels. Our audio recorders provide up to five hours of stereo music.

"This sort of entertainment diverts the passenger. It takes his mind off his flight and off his fear. Serve him a drink, a meal and a movie, and his trip is just about over.

"The way I look at it, in-transit entertainment, now in its infancy, will offer a boon to the airline industry. It's worth what it costs. It will boost business."

Other airline executives, domestic and foreign, are not as optimistic. They're afraid that Hollywood in the Sky is an overextension of passenger comforts. They're afraid that costs will mount.

One European vice-president told me on a flight to Copenhagen: "I'm very much afraid of introducing movies on our aircraft. It's all right at the beginning, when you're the only carrier who's showing films. Then you've got an advantage. But when your competitors follow suit—what then? You've lost your initial advantage, and all the airlines are loaded with heavy additional costs.

"Moreover, we will soon be entering the supersonic transport era. In the 1970's we'll be flying at 1,200 to 1,500 mph. Long-distance flights will get shorter and shorter. On a run from San Francisco to New York there may not be enough time to give the passengers both a meal and a movie.

"In America the airline business is extremely competitive. I can understand why most of your domestic carriers will follow TWA. But I don't believe Pan American will, and surely in Europe, where so many of our airlines are owned by the state, we will move slowly in the matter of movies."

HE STARTED IT ALL

The man most responsible for the boom in flight flickers is David Flexer, 56, a driving, gray-haired dynamo who has been in the motion picture business practically all his life. Vice-president of a Hollywood film company which pioneered many changes in cartoon techniques, Flexer owns and operates motion picture theaters in the South, introduced the first drive-in theaters in St. Paul-Minneapolis and St. Louis in 1947.

One October night five years ago, while commuting on one of his coast-to-coast flights, Flexer asked himself the same old question so many bored theater-owners who fly had previously asked: "Why don't they show 16mm movies aboard the plane?"

One of those indefatigable industrialists who believes ideas are worthless unless executed, Flexer decided to answer his own question.

Certainly the cabin of a spacious airliner seemed to be a natural projection room. Why, then, couldn't movies be projected in it?

"I began to investigate," Flexer now good-naturedly recalls, "and before I came up with the answers, it cost me almost three years and a million dollars.

"My basic problem was twofold: how to get lightweight equipment designed so that it could fit into a shallow compartment in the ceiling of the plane's cabin, and how to get it so completely automated that a crew member could flick a switch and the equipment would project a two-hour movie without interruption in Cinemascope or Technicolor and then cut itself off.

"If they don't stop serving peanuts on the movie flights, I'm going to resign."

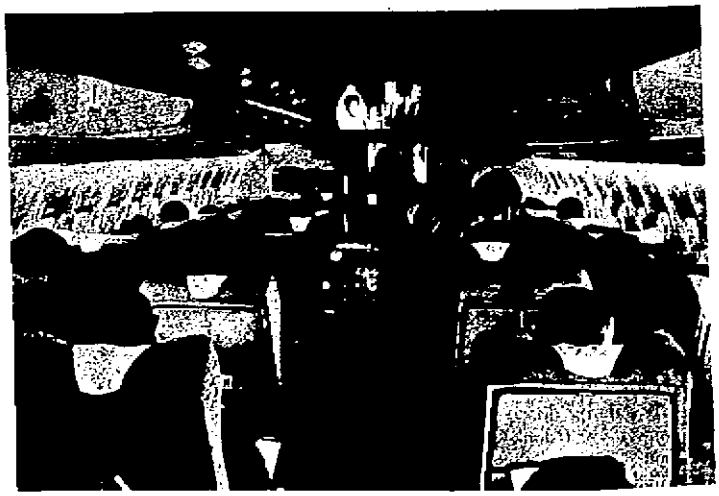

"As you know, in the ordinary theater 2 large projectors are housed in a large, roomy booth and are used alternately to run a 20-minute reel."

Who in the motion picture game could produce the type of equipment Flexer required? Several projector engineers he consulted told him to drop the idea.

"It will never work," one expert said flatly. "How can you get a 24-inch reel into a 12-inch space?"

Devoting his full time, energy and bankroll to the project, Flexer in 1957 began work with Reeve Sound Company of Long Island City, N.Y., creators of Cinerama. The first three machines they turned out together didn't work.

"But we persevered," Flexer narrates. "And fortunately for me I got the complete co-operation of TWA—

Passengers watch film on TWA flight. Movies are free for 1st class, $1 on coach.

they put at my disposal, to try out the equipment, a Boeing 707 jet. And we really tried out everything.

"In December of 1960, after almost four years of trial and error, we held our first showing—a press preview—in the air. For the next six months we ran test flights across the country, checking out the equipment, observing passenger reaction. Both were excellent.

"In July 1961, aboard 12 TWA international flights, first class only, we staged our first scheduled screenings. After that, we were in. Now, with a little luck I may yet make some money."

Flexer claims that his in-flight movie system is the most efficient and pleasurable now in use by any airline. It projects the latest films on two wide screens, one above the first row of seats in the first-class cabin and one in the coach section. It is the only system equipped at present to show films in color and wide screen.

"I can't decide whether to take the London Super Jet and watch Pegory Greck or catch the double feature on the Bombay flight."

Its basic disadvantage, according to several passengers, is that the aircraft cabin is darkened by the other passengers during projection.

"I'd much prefer reading a book in flight," a Los Angeles schoolteacher averred. "But everyone else aboard wants to see a movie. So naturally, I go along with them and turn off my light. On TWA flights the majority always wants to watch movies, and as you know, the majority always wins."

American and Continental Air Lines have equipped their planes with passenger TV sets.

American calls its entertainment system Astrovision, constructed by the Sony Corporation of Japan. It will cost on completion about $4 million. It includes a TV camera in the nose of the plane to transmit live TV and in-transit pictures of the terrain, takeoffs and landings. One TV set between the seats is provided for each two first-class passengers and one overhead set for each nine coach passengers.

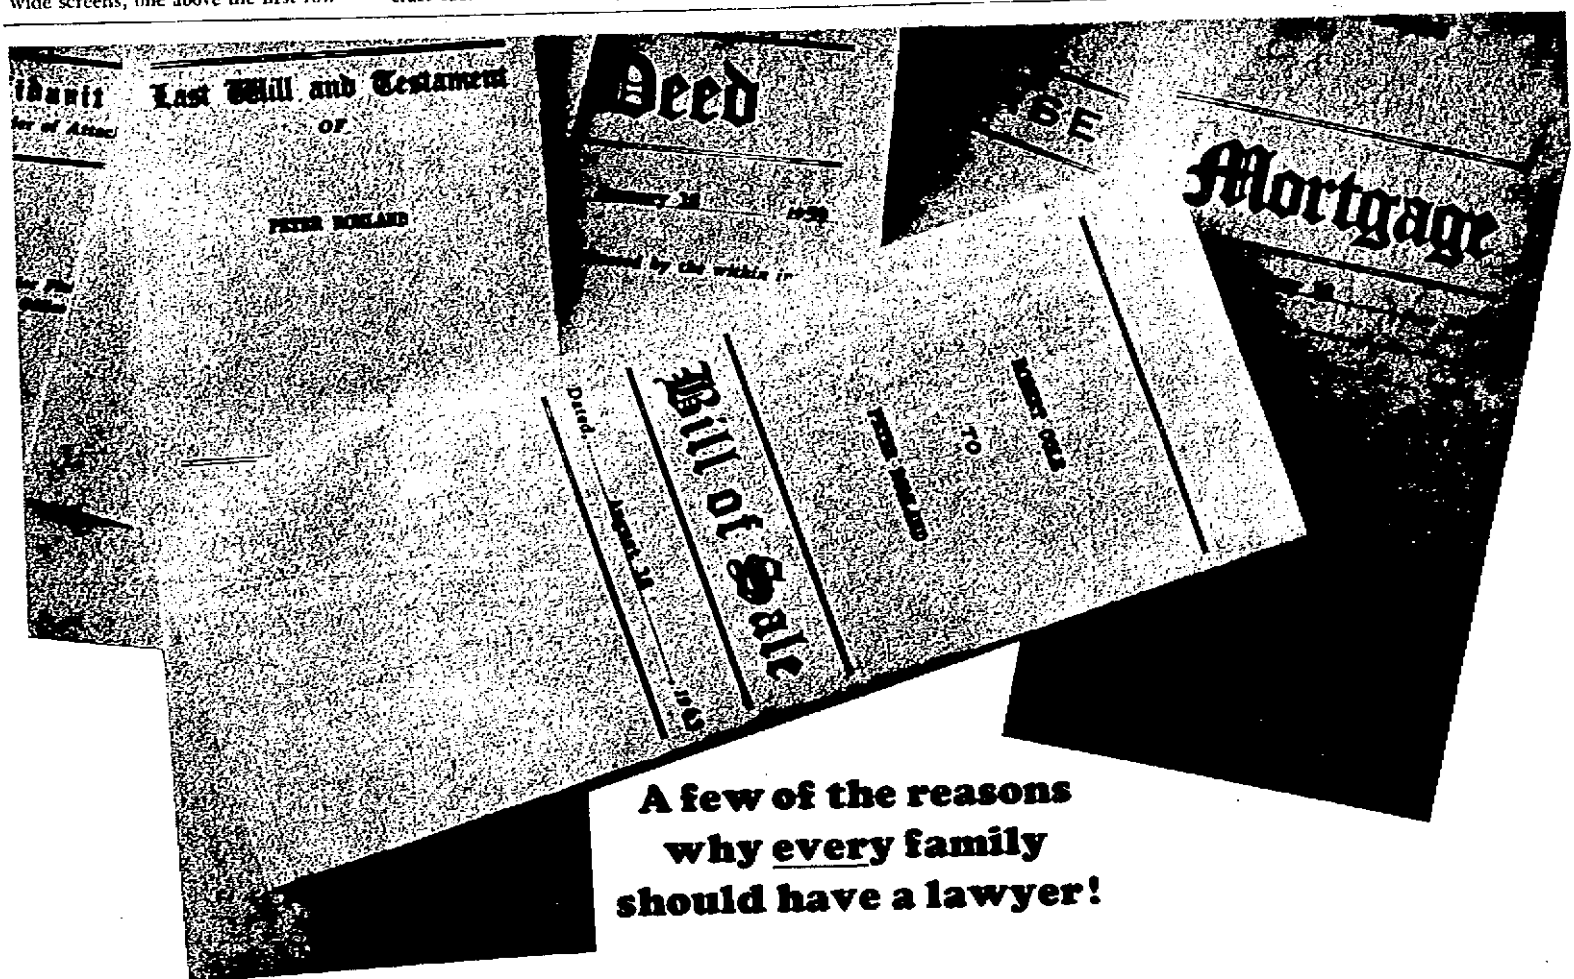

The Continental system provides the same overhead sets for all passengers. Both American and Continental expect to provide color TV in the near future.

Is there any danger that too many creature comforts will jade today's cross-country air commuter?

On a recent TWA trip to New York, a Harvard sophomore sitting beside me said he was getting tired of films in flight. "If this guy Tillinghast," he announced (Charles Tillinghast is president of TWA), "really wants to please the new breed of passengers, he'll offer something new."

"Like what?" I asked.

The Harvard sophomore leered. "Like belly-dancers in the aisle," he declared. "That's like what."

A few of the reasons why every family should have a lawyer!

Free booklet shows how he can be invaluable, how to go about choosing him.

Nowadays the family that doesn't know the law—or a lawyer—may well find itself in difficulties. According to the State Bar of Michigan the average citizen "is living in a legal world far too complex to cope with alone and unaided."

You'll learn the urgent truth of these statements once you read "Why You Should Choose a Family Lawyer NOW!" This timely booklet was written for New York Life by Lester David, noted writer, and is approved by the American Bar Association.

Fact-filled booklet. The author gives you many examples of how well-meaning persons have suffered serious loss through ignorance of the law. He shows how a family lawyer can help prevent such difficulties, saving you money as well as time, annoyance, or possibly lasting grief.

Take the case of the man who put his suburban home in his wife's name. "When she died and left no will, he discovered that her relatives were entitled to a share of her property, including the house!" A lawyer would have pointed out the wisdom of both husband and wife having made out a proper will—and of keeping it up to date.

How do you choose a lawyer? This booklet suggests several ways, and discusses the cost of his services—which is probably less than you think!

Get your free copy. You'll find this booklet as easy to read as it is worthwhile, as interesting as it is authoritative. To get your free copy, ask your New York Life agent or use the coupon at right.

a delicious dish

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

This wonderful chicken dish comes from Brazil, where [illegible] of the house prepares it for special occasions. Plan on making this entree for company dinner during the forthcoming holiday season. Guests and family alike will shower you with compliments. This recipe and others, equally delicious, may be found in The Cook Book of the United Nations, just published by the United Nations Association of the U.S.A., Inc., New York, N.Y. 10011. The book contains authentic recipes from 112 countries—250 ideas from appetizers to menus for large buffet dinners. The book may be purchased from the Association for $2.95.

[illegible] de Galo Pardo
(Golden Fowl with Chestnut Dressing)

1 roasting chicken, 4 to 5 lb
1 cup white wine
1 clove garlic, minced
Juice of 1 lemon
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives or green onion tops
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Giblets, chopped
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 can (8 oz.) puree of chestnuts
4 slices bacon

Marinate chicken in mixture of wine, garlic, lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, chives and parsley for 24 hours in refrigerator. Drain and wipe chicken dry. Cook chopped giblets in butter; add pepper, nutmeg, chestnuts and ½ teaspoon salt. Place mixture inside chicken; put bacon slices over breast; wrap in foil and place in open roast pan, breast side up. Cook in 375° oven 2 hours; open foil covering, brown and complete cooking. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Note: This recipe makes about 1½ cups of very rich stuffing. Do not expect it to fill the chicken completely.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

OPPOSING INSURANCE MACHINES. The Air Line Pilots Association is trying to get Congress to pass a bill eliminating air trip insurance sold through machines or counters in local air terminals. The pilots say these insurance machines are irresistible invitations to maniacs. They point out that in the past 30 years there have been 18 known or suspected passenger aircraft bombings. Half of these occurred in the U.S. Seven were fatal. Insurance has been established as the cause of five. Early this year, 44 passengers were killed in a Pacific Air Lines crash, again with insurance the possible motive. Pilots claim the ease with which almost unlimited amounts of insurance can be bought from vending machines is a major factor in bomb incidents by the emotionally unstable. They want insurance vending machines removed from airports, trip insurance placed in the hands of trained personnel rather than pretty but unknowledgeable counter girls. Airport managers who lease concessions to the insurance companies, and the companies which make high profits from these vending machines, are, understandably enough, against such a bill.

POSTWOMEN. Alarmed by an acute staff shortage which is delaying mail deliveries in London, the British Post Office is suggesting an emergency measure -- part-time postwomen. More than 1,000 postmen resigned in the London area this year, many of them before the mail strike which resulted in a 6½% wage boost. The Union of Post Office Workers opposes the idea of postwomen.

SUPER TV AERIAL. Are you willing to forego the status symbol of a TV aerial on your own roof? Technicians in Munich, Germany, are experimenting with a 75-foot aerial mounted on a pylon which can serve several thousand TV sets. Carl Norcross of the Crawford Corporation, constructors of Crofton, Md., a new city between Annapolis and Washington, D.C., may be the first to introduce it into this country. It would eliminate the unsightly forest of TV aerials which now plague so many communities.

MRS. McGARRY & 12 BABIES—ALL BORN BY CAESAREAN.

EVEN DOZEN. Most doctors advise married women that three, possibly four, is the maximum number of Caesarean operations any mother can undergo. A few weeks ago Mrs. Kathleen McGarry of London surprised the medical profession by giving birth to her 12th child via Caesarean section. "My husband and I love children," she explained, "which is why we've had 12 in 16 years. I am also a Roman Catholic and would never do anything to stop these babies from coming."

SOVIETS HINT. Russian propaganda has always dismissed Project Plowshare, the U.S. program aimed at finding peaceful uses for nuclear explosives, as a sinister cover-up for weapons testing. At the UN Atoms for Peace conference in Geneva recently, the Soviets hinted that they would be interested in joining Project Plowshare. The Plowshare Project — "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" — has as its objective the use of nuclear blasts for excavating canals, harbors, moving mountains, extracting oil, shale and minerals from beneath the ground.

SPANISH PROTESTANTS. In Spain there are approximately 30,000 Protestants. For years they've been trying to work out with the Franco government a bill of rights granting them religious freedom. Vatican authorities have been urging such a move since 1961, but die-hard leaders in the Spanish hierarchy have opposed it. A foreign office spokesman in Madrid recently tipped newsmen that before the year is out the Spanish parliament will pass a law granting legal recognition to religious minorities and their houses of worship.

IRONY. Saddest show business story of the year involves Mrs. Inge Barber, Montreal producer. Last October when she was visiting London, Mrs. Barber was offered the Beatles for booking anywhere in North America. All she would have to put up would be $1,500. Said Mrs. Barber to the Beatles' representative: "I wouldn't take those guys if you gave them to me in a 'Care' package. They just won't draw."

WEST TO EAST. Hardly any mention is made of it in the American press, but each month about 1,000 Germans slip across the West German border back into Communist East Germany. One of the most popular crossing points is outside Lubeck. Why do these people return to Communist tyranny? The investigating Committee of Free Jurists, an anti-Communist group in West Germany, asserts that 99% of these returnees are "evading justice." What most of the border-crossers are really evading is debt. A good many are drunks, bums, labor-dodgers, persons who got in financial trouble and can see no way out but to skip. When they cross the border into East Germany they are placed in East German reception camps under rigorous scrutiny as possible Western agents. Once they satisfy the authorities, they are shipped to various towns and factories, their lives from that point on completely regulated by a ruthless government.

AIR BUS. A British pioneer aircraft company, Short Brothers & Harland, now located in Belfast, wants to manufacture an air bus. It would fly 288 passengers for short hops up to 500 miles. Passengers would buy tickets at the airport, carry their own baggage aboard. Each air bus would cost $6 million to build.

why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"Simply because your haircoloring is designed to flatter—you want it to stay clear, lively, elegant, week after week," says Leslie Blanchard. "You shouldn't use just any shampoo! The wrong shampoo can turn hair color dull and cloudy. So insist on Clairol Shampoo, the colorfast shampoo. It won't change hair color." Very different from other leading shampoos, colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. In two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. At leading beauty salons and cosmetic counters.

A CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

BARRY GOLDWATER'S DOUBLE

by LLOYD SHEARER

MADISON, WIS.

Two years ago when Thomas Gipson, 42, a rugged, handsome hairdresser from Milwaukee, was vacationing in Arizona, he stopped for a few days in a Phoenix resort motel.

One afternoon three attractive, well-dressed women—he estimated their ages between 35 and 50—hurried up to him. One extended a handful of assorted knuckles and rings to squeeze. Another kissed him warmly on the cheek, the third clung possessively to his arm.

"When did you get back to town?" the cheek-kisser asked.

Gipson smiled, and the other two women kissed him.

Pleasantly surprised at the bonanza, he said, "I just got in."

"And how is Peg?" one woman asked.

Gipson backed away and shook his head. "I'm sorry to admit it," he announced. "But I'm not the man you think I am."

"Now, come off it, Barry," one of the women ordered.

"My name's not Barry," Gipson declared. "My name's Tom Gipson."

The women looked at each other in disbelief, then moved closer and peered at the hairdresser. What sprouted was a geyser of chatter.

"Do you know Sen. Barry Goldwater? . . . Are you related to the Goldwaters? . . . Do you come from Arizona? . . . You're kidding us, aren't you?"

To all these questions, Tom Gipson answered, "No."

"You look enough like Barry Goldwater," said one of the women, "to be his twin."

"In fact," said another woman, "you look more like Barry Goldwater than Barry Goldwater does."

That was the first time in his life that Tom Gipson, proprietor of two beauty salons, one in Milwaukee and one in Arcadia, Calif., learned that he and the U.S. senator from Arizona were look-alikes.

A few weeks ago, after the senator had made one of his rousing campaign speeches on the steps of the state capitol in Madison, Wis., I introduced him to his double.

"Senator," I shouted, "I'd like you to meet your twin."

I shoved Gipson onto the podium.

For a moment Barry Goldwater stared at his double. "Well, I'll be a . . . ." he muttered. "It's like looking in a mirror." Turning to his wife, he said, nodding at Gipson, "Can you believe it, Peg?"

Peggy Goldwater looked at Gipson. Her jaw dropped. She could say nothing. The likeness was so amazing.

"I've seen your picture in the papers," Goldwater said, "and I'm sure glad to meet you. Gosh! You've even got the same kind of nose I have—broken."

Gipson nodded. "We've got a lot of things in common, senator. But I think I'm one up on you in one department, anyway."

"What's that?" Goldwater asked.

"You have a flying license," Gipson pointed out, "and I have a flying license. You have a license to operate a ham radio station, and I have a ham license. But I'm a licensed beauty operator, and you're not."

Goldwater grinned. "We've had Elizabeth Arden beauty shops in Phoenix for years, and I'm a licensed beauty operator, too."

Goldwater turned to me and said, "It's amazing, isn't it?"

"Listen," I answered, "if your plane had been a few minutes later, we were going to have Gipson here read your speech. No one would've known the difference."

"I'd like to take him along with me," the senator suggested, "just to absorb some of the brickbats."

Said Gipson: "This is the first time since the start of this political campaign that I've enjoyed looking like Barry Goldwater. Up to now it's been rough. It's complicated my life, and some of the complications have been pretty dangerous.

"I was in the Marine Corps for five years. I've got a pretty good grip on my nerves, but so many things have happened to me because I look like Goldwater that I'm now taking tranquilizers."

At different periods in his life, Gipson, born in Coral Gables, Fla., has voted Democratic and Republican. He thinks the senator from Arizona is a fine man, a personable man, a sincere legislator, and he cannot understand why this celebrity, to whom he bears an astonishingly close resemblance, should arouse such end-of-the-spectrum emotions in people.

"Right after the Republicans held their convention in San Francisco," he told me, "people would stop me on the streets of Milwaukee. They'd call me the greatest man on earth or a few choice curse words you could never print.

"At first it was kind of fun. I took it all in stride. I just came to the conclusion that Sen. Goldwater has the kind of personality few people feel neutral about. But then the haters started to go to work on me."

According to Gipson, two men stopped him on a crosswalk in Milwaukee and asked him

Barry meets double, Tom Gipson (l.), in Madison, Wis., for the first time.

if his name was Goldwater. He told them it wasn't and continued on his way. He got into his car and drove out to his beauty salon at Capitol Court shopping center. He noticed that the same two men were following him in a car, bearing Illinois license plates.

When he stopped in a parking lot, the two men approached his vehicle, jerked him out and threatened to kill him.

"I broke away," Gipson related, "ran into a near-by store and told a security officer what had happened. By the time we got back to the parking lot the two guys had gone.

"After that, my name and picture and address were printed in the paper, and I started getting phone calls. Most of them were idiotic: 'We know who you are, Goldwater. There's no point in hiding. We're gonna get you . . . . You're a dirty Communist rat . . .!' It made no sense, but it was frightening and disturbing. After all, there's no defense against maniacs."

Gipson, who is 5-feet-10, 2 inches shorter than Goldwater, with dark-rimmed spectacles and graying hair, changed his phone, eventually moved to a new apartment. When similar phone calls were directed to him in his beauty salon, he quickly hung up. He now refuses to answer the phone unless the caller first identifies himself to one of his assistants. At home he has an unlisted number.

The most serious incident occurred on August 20th while he was driving to Chicago along the Tri-State tollway in Illinois. Gipson is divorced—his ex-wife also runs a beauty salon—but he still maintains a close friendship with his former mother-in-law.

"I was on my way to Chicago," he says, "to see my mother-in-law. I was driving alone, taking it easy. A car with three men in it passed me. They all did a double take, wondering whether or not I was Goldwater.

"I'm used to that, but then, after a few minutes, they forced me over to the side. I was mad as hell. One big guy got out of the back seat and said, 'We know who you are. Get out of the car.' I was halfway out. I was going to tell him who I really was. I was going to show him my license. Two other guys joined him, and then just as I got out, one of them stabbed me with a knife in my left side.

"As I stood there, right off the Edens expressway, clutching myself, they got into their car and drove off. I tried to flag down a few passing cars. No one would stop. I got in my car and tried to make it to Chicago, but I was losing a lot of blood.

"Finally," Gipson maintains, "I felt I'd better stop or I'd lose control of my auto or get in an accident or I'd black out. A pickup truck stopped and took me to a filling station. I phoned my ex-brother-in-law, who came and got me. He drove me to the Northwest Hospital, where a Dr. Hailicki stitched me up."

As a result, Gipson was widely publicized in the world press. "I appeared on TV stations giving interviews. I was besieged by photographers. A show producer tried to sign me up for personal appearances, a road show throughout the country, providing Goldwater is elected President. Magazines offered to buy my life story. My beauty operators — I have 14 who work for me — began to show me new respect.

"Women whose hair I've done in the past—they phoned and wanted only me to work on them. If Goldwater is elected, my notoriety will probably continue. If not, I'll probably fade back into the woodwork."

Listening to Gipson talk—I taped-recorded him for hours—I found it difficult to determine whether he liked or disliked his present notoriety.

I asked Dee Gardner, an attractive blonde who helps manage his Milwaukee beauty salon.

"My answer," she said, "is, a little of both. Tom is somewhat of a showman, an extrovert. He works every now and again as a photographer's model, so he doesn't mind the publicity. But the threats are really frightening.

"The other day he got a telegram at the store, warning him to keep his mouth shut. Apparently the world is filled with more nuts and crackpots than most people think. I'll be glad when this election is over."

"So will I," said Barry Goldwater's double. "I've become a curiosity-attraction, and business has boomed, but I've just about had it."

Beauty salon owner Gipson is in demand with lady customers thanks to look-alike publicity.

DO YOU TAKE VITAMINS AND STILL FEEL TIRED?*

If you take vitamins yet still feel tired—you may need more than vitamins to restore your normal strength and energy. Your worn-out feeling may be due to pale, iron-poor blood.

Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because GERITOL contains 7 vitamins and, in addition, supplies the amount of iron needed to build iron-rich red blood. Just 2 GERITOL tablets, or 2 tablespoons of GERITOL liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver! In only one day, GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests: Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement.

So when you feel tired, check with your doctor, and if iron-poor blood is your problem, take fast-acting GERITOL every day. You'll feel stronger fast—in just 7 days or your money back from GERITOL.

Due to iron-deficiency.*

Go steady with a clear skin!

(to keep that peaches and cream complexion)

NEW! Bactine Medicated Skin Cream

NEW BACTINE MEDICATED SKIN CREAM is your wonderful new way to a clear complexion. The medication keeps working for hours, but has no medicine smell. Kills many surface bacteria that can cause infection. The medication really penetrates to clean those pores of excess oil and imbedded dirt. Leaves your skin "Bactine clean."

New Bactine Medicated Skin Cream is non-greasy, leaves no film you can see or touch. Rinses off like a milky lotion. Leaves your skin soft because it doesn't dry skin like soap.

So, to keep that peaches and cream complexion use Bactine Medicated Skin Cream regularly . . . and go steady with a clear skin!

MY FAVORITE JOKES BY LOU JACOBI

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lou Jacobi, 47, born in Toronto, has long been recognized as a master raconteur. He is also one of the few comedians who, owing to his Broadway and Hollywood success as an actor, has had his original reputation as a humorist somewhat diminished. Jacobi began his show business career in Toronto musical comedy, then went to London, where he played at Ciro's and other night clubs, later signed for leading roles in Guys and Dolls, Pal Joey and other top musicals. Jacobi has been featured as a character actor in a score of films ranging from Irma la Douce to A Kid for Two Farthings. He is currently holding forth on Broadway in the musical comedy hit, Fade Out-Fade In. Herewith some of his favorite funnies.

The former chorus girl obviously knew nothing about acting, and the Hollywood director was frantic. Finally he roared, "Can't you show me any emotion?"

"I don't see how," the chorine pouted, "when all you've been doing is photographing my face."

Remember when the only difficult thing about parking a car was getting a girl to agree to it?

The patient walked into the psychiatrist's office. As soon as he sat down he began stuffing pipe tobacco into his nostrils. The psychiatrist observed him for a few minutes, then walked up and said; "You are certainly in the right place. Now, tell me how I can help you."

The patient looked up. "You can give me a light."

The 4-year-old boy was very much impressed by his 6-year-old brother, engrossed in a book. He asked the 6-year-old if he could really read.

"Of course," said the older brother without taking his eyes off the page.

"Then read something for me," said the younger, pointing to the television. "What does the writing on that TV say?"

Coldly the older answered: "I just read books. I don't read TV sets."

A lion approached a rhinoceros and asked: "Who is the king of the jungle?"

"You are, O lion," came the answer.

The lion went up to a hippopotamus and asked: "Who is the king of the jungle?" The hippo said: "You are, O lion."

The lion went up to the elephant and asked, "Who is the king of the jungle?" Whereupon the elephant seized the lion with his trunk, whirled him around, tossed him in the air, caught him on the way down, slammed him into a tree.

Half-dazed, severely beaten, the lion shook himself, managed to mutter weakly: "Just because you don't know the right answer, you don't have to get sore."

A woman driving a car-pool station wagon filled with eight kids ran through a stop sign. A police officer motioned her over to the curb. "Listen," he said, pointing to all the pupils in the station wagon, "don't you know when to stop?"

The matron shook her head. "They're not all mine," she said.

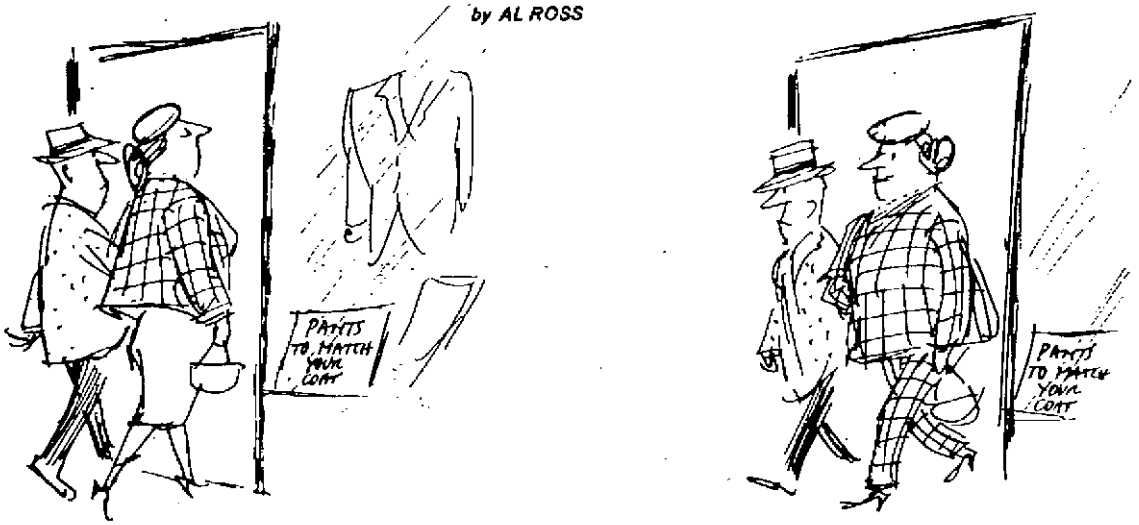

A local busybody, unable to contain her curiosity, asked an expectant mother point-blank whether she was going to have a baby. "Oh, goodness, no," the pregnant woman answered pleasantly. "I'm just carrying this for a friend."

THIS TV SIGNAL HAS JUST REACHED A WINEGARD ANTENNA... WHAT HAPPENS NEXT CAN MAKE A BIG DIFFERENCE IN YOUR TV PICTURE

Why? Well for one thing, this Winegard Colortron antenna has a patented Electro-lens signal system that picks up more TV signals while it rejects signals that cause interference. As a result, you get sharper, clearer reception in color or black and white. If you live in a fringe area, a special electronic power pack boosts signals 5 to 10 times . . . brings distant stations in like "locals".

The Winegard Colortron is built to give you years of picture-perfect service . . . wind tested to 100 m.p.h., gold anodized to prevent rust and corrosion. It's the most sensitive, rugged TV antenna made.

If you and your family want the best reception possible, a Winegard Colortron is a wise investment. Colortrons start as low as $24.95. Power packs extra. The proof is in the picture and your satisfaction is GUARANTEED.*

Eliminate weak, faded reception. Clear up interference . . . get rid of ghosts and smeary pictures. Get all the available channels in your area and see TV at its finest. Your TV service dealer will be glad to install a Winegard Colortron antenna for you today. Write for FREE booklet.

Money back guarantee in force for 90 days after installation.*
